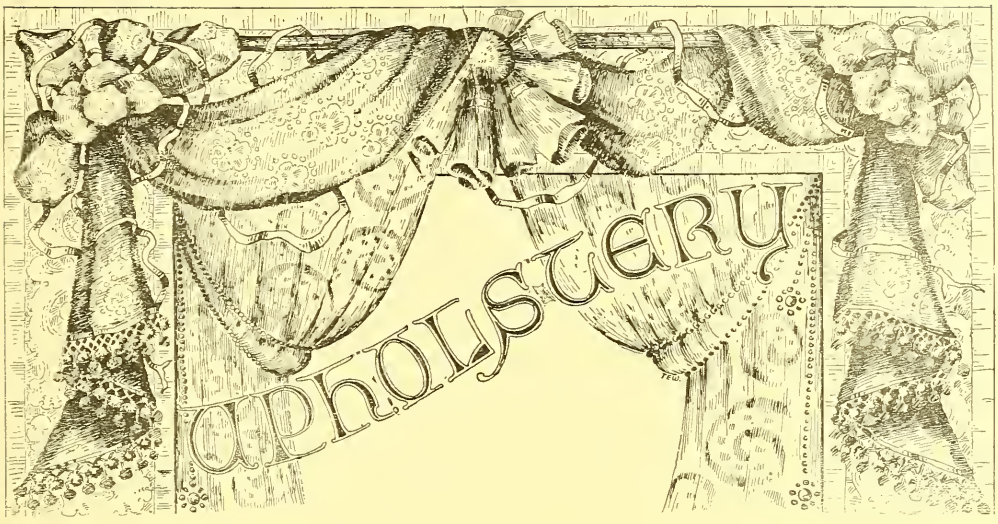
They are opening for the spring season a choice lot of Iran rugs, and show also a very desirable assortment of antique carpets, which are so hard to get just now. Also superb antique Shirvans and large lots of Guenges, Karabaghs and Bokharas, large and small The offerings include also an exceedingly rare lot of Afghans, and they state that such Afghans as they are putting on the market have never been seen in this trade. They are very proud of having secured the lot with so many looking for them. The offerings will be very strong in Turkish, Persian and India carpets in all sizes and colorings, as special agencies have been established in the districts where these goods are made.

The Messrs. Karagheusian have an especially well lighted and spacious loft for displaying their new goods. They occupy an entire floor in the building at 365 and 367 Broadway, on the northwest corner of Franklin street, and first callers this week will have the opportunity of making choice selections, as the goods have just been opened. The firm have been in existence in Constantinople for half a century, and stand high in commercial and banking circles, facts which naturally give them great advantages in their rug and carpet business.

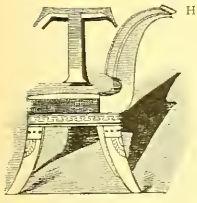
GOSHEN SWEEPERS.

The Goshen Sweeper Company, in an advertisement in this issue, invite attention to their line of sweepers. The illustration of their "Majestic" will attract buyers who are looking for a sweeper with excellent and effective action at moderate price. They manufacture cam action and broom action sweepers in great variety, and guarantee every sweeper turned out by them and bearing the name Goshen. Write to their office in Grand Rapids, Mich., for prices.

Albert Graff & Co., importers of straw mattings, 609 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, are now offering an exceptionally extensive and desirable line, comprising China and Japan mattings personally selected and bought in the matting districts of those countries by Mr. Graff, of the firm. These goods will be sold at close prices for cash, and samples and prices will be submitted on application. See Graff & Co.'s advertisement on page 20B of this issue.



The Fortnight.



THE past two weeks in the general upholstery market have not kept the promise of the earlier part of the month. There have been many buyers in town, but the volume of trade has hardly been up to the mark. Domestic makers of lace curtains continue to be away behind in their orders, and the retail business of the spring will be well under way before they can catch up. Foreign makers are sending in goods with reasonable promptness, which is probably due to the fact that import orders were placed last fall with a good deal of conservatism.

The renaissance of the chenille has apparently come. Buyers who have steadily declined for a long time to handle these goods except in the smallest quantities possible have begun to order them with considerable freedom. Travelers who on their way westward hardly opened the trunks containing chenille samples were compelled to show them daily on the return trip. The demand appears to be greatest in the medium and better grades of all over effects. In dadoes, fringes and plain goods there is little change.

IT is a matter of open comment in the trade that one of the largest manufacturers of lace curtain goods is about to send to the Pacific Slope his New York representative, with a view to exploit his product among the cash retail concerns in that section.

NOTTINGHAM advices report that good orders are on hand for lace curtains, window blinds, &c., and some of the finishing firms are kept pretty well employed, but the local curtain machinery is not fully engaged. The plain net trade remains in a healthy condition. Considerable quantities of bobbinets suitable for embroidering are being sent to the Continent, and prices are firm.

SECRETARY GAGE has sent to the House of Representatives, with his recommendation that it be complied with, a letter from the Supervising Architect of the Treasury advising the purchase of the Bowling Green site, in New York, and the construction upon it of a new custom house, to cost not more than $3,000,000, exclusive of the cost of the site. It is shown by the terms of the letter that there is now available for the purchase of a site a balance of a former appropriation amounting to about $1,500,000, in addition to which the Supervising Architect asks for an appropriation of $750,000. It having been found impossible to sell the present custom house site on Wall street for $4,000,000, it is recommended that it be sold for not less than $3,250,000, it being understood, although not stated in the letter of the Supervising Architect, that an offer of the amount named as the lowest price has been made and will be repeated.

The domestic manufacturers of machine made lace curtains are having their innings, as we understand that all machines are fully employed and the product is sold far ahead. This condition is due to the American goods being cheaper by reason of the new tariff than the foreign goods, and the generally improved business situation.

The Scranton Lace Curtain Company is sharing fully in the present great demand for domestic lace curtains. Its spring patterns have evidently pleased the buyers so well, and the quality and make of the goods are so uniformly acceptable, that the trouble this season is to turn out the goods fast enough. Creighton & Burch, the selling agents, 10 and 12 Thomas street, have placed the Scranton lace curtains with the best houses in the trade.

SEEN AND SUGGESTED.

To be fashionable, drawing rooms and parlors should have a frieze around the walls or just above the doors and mantels. People have discarded the fireplace for use, but they are so habituated to its break in the monotony of walls that they cling to it in the majority of cases, and do not seem to be able to find a substitute for it.

A mantel in the style of Louis XV. should have a mirror above it, in the centre of which should rest a crystal applique, which appears circular in form because of its reflection, and makes a soft radiance when lighted.

The appliques about the walls must be in keeping, though they are of brass or gilt, sometimes with crystal attachments. Fashionable lamps, also, are now made of brass.

In a Louis XV. room everything must harmonize. The tapestries (if used at all) must be suitable to the period, and there must always be at least three of them, or a panel to correspond may be set on the third wall. In a tapestried room three draperies, costing several thousand dollars each, hang on a gilt molding below the "cove" of the wall, and above this jointure are figures in bas relief to match the friezes, or the ceiling may be frescoed. The tapestries must have the same ground color, and that must be like the ground color scheme of the chairs, sofas, carpets or rugs.

All the furniture must be in the style of Louis XV., which insures lightness and grace of shape, gold and jeweled woodwork and dainty upholstery effects, and admits of the introduction of exquisite pieces of furniture, made in those days for use, and in these principally for ornament.

The window draperies, cushions and all the ornaments in such a suite of rooms must be in Louis XV. style. None of the bric-à-brac may be of any other period.

What may be called the cult of sofa pillows is not so well understood as it should be. On a sofa or divan, whose cover is a gay Bagdad curtain or a flowered brocade, the effect is very inharmonious if it is piled with a variety of all-over design effects. The pillows should be for the most part in solid colors or soft neutral tones, or the result is exceedingly inartistic. An excellent arrangement is to have, in the case of a divan which has no back, perhaps three large square pillows stuffed with hair and covered with a hard plush or corduroy in a solid color. This establishes a background, even if the actual cover of the divan is gay, and permits the use of more variety then in the cushions against it; but to buy cushions in a haphazard way is often as disastrous as to buy pictures by the yard or bric-à-brac by the bargain sale.

The art silks for the various uses of fancy work, including scarf draperies and sofa cushions, are vying in beauty this season with costly hand work in the shape of elaborate embroideries. A sofa cushion made up of silk of a pale art green tint, powdered with brown thistles, was as extremely realistic as though it had been wrought in relief work. Some other patterns seen were one of apple green silk, covered with cherry blossoms, and a rich one of a café au lait ground, upon which were strewn in lavish profusion perky bunches of the stiff little spikes of wintergreen leaves, with the bright red beads of berries that betoken their ripening.

An elegant way to furnish a library is with heavy carved black oak of the Elizabethan period. The big chairs are quite as comfortable as they are handsome, and seem to imply that solidity for the accommodation of mind and body are to be found in the library. Its walls should be dark green, while those of a dining room should be comparatively light, and boudoirs and sleeping rooms decidedly so.

William Nichols has opened an upholstering establishment at Milford, Del.

Frank W. Robinson, formerly with T. J. Keveney & Co., is now in the upholstery department at John Wanamaker's, New York.

The account of the Saranac Mills will be represented hereafter by Herbert Gardner in New York and by R. S. Brownlie, of the former firm of Rosenthal & Brownlie, in Chicago and the West.

James Munro, manager of Stern Brothers' magnificent upholstery department, will sail for Europe about the middle of March. If the effete monarchies have anything new to offer, Mr. Munro will bring it back with him.

R. T. Hazzard & Co., of Philadelphia, will act as selling agents for the decorative burlaps manufactured by the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company, Camden, N. J. Hazzard & Co. will show the goods at their Philadelphia headquarters, 814 Pine street, and also at their New York office, in the Presbyterian Building, Fifth avenue.

The "Inlaid Linoleum (Thomson's Patent) Company, Ltd.," Halifax, England, has been registered, with a capital of £50,000 in £5 shares, to adopt an agreement with W. G. Thomson, and to carry on the business of manufacturers of and dealers in linoleums. The directors are Clement Holdsworth, Sir John Cass, William M. Brigg and W. G. Thomson.

The Wyoming Valley Lace Company, Wilkesbarre, Pa., have purchased recently the plot of land 61x127 feet on Union street which was owned by the late Elias Robbins, and will build on it a large addition to their factory. The company held their annual election on the 15th ult., and the following officers were chosen: President, W. J. Harvey; treasurer, Fred Theis; secretary, P. R. Raife; directors, Messrs. Duncan, Peter Forve, C. E. Stegmaier and John T. Lenahan.

The Ardmore Mill, now building for the Laurence W. Frank Company, at 139 and 141 Oxford street, Philadelphia, is rapidly approaching completion, and will soon be ready for the machinery. The company intend to manufacture high grade curtains and table covers, upholstery and decorative fabrics. The mill will be one of the finest in the city, and will have every facility for producing high grade goods. A very notable feature of the mill is the arrangement for light, the building being one story in height. The roof is one vast skylight; a great advantage for a room in which delicate fabrics are manufactured.

WORTH STREET'S UPHOLSTERY ATTRACTION.

No better proof of the position held by Stead & Miller as leading manufacturers of upholsteries and curtains may be evidenced than the fact that the major portion of visiting buyers find their way to 115 Worth street, the firm's New York salesroom. The latter is now almost flocking by itself owing to the up town movement, but as one ot the largest buyers said to a Review man: "We'll have to go down to Worth street as long as Stead & Miller remain there." D. O. Kerbaugh, in charge of the office, is not behind his up-town competitors in attractive and convenient appointments for displaying the goods, for the Worth street showrooms form model selling quarters.

Stead & Miller have marketed their output this season very fully; in fact, in quantity of goods the season will probably come up to any in past big years, but values have been so greatly reduced as compared with five years ago that an upholstery manufacturer has to exceed largely even such a year as 1892 in output to compare with its money volume.

ROSENTHAL & BROWNLIE CHANGE.

The firm of Rosenthal & Brownlie, manufacturers' agents, has dissolved, and the business is continued by W. E. Rosenthal, who retains all the accounts handled by the former firm, excepting that of the Saranac Mills. Among these accounts are those of Hyndmann & Moore, the Matred Mills and the Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company for the West. Mr. Rosenthal continues the salesrooms at 458 Broadway, New York; 147 Fifth avenue, Chicago, and in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston and Toronto, while he is considering also the opening of an office in St. Louis. Mr. Rosenthal shows one of the strongest lines of tapestry and chenille curtains and table covers and upholstery piece goods, and will add new lines by the opening of next season.

THE POINT DE PARIS BOBBINET CURTAIN.

Cohen Brothers & Co., 424 and 426 Broadway, New York, are to the front again with six new designs of bobbinet ruffled curtains of the Point de Paris effect. The large increase of orders for this class of window drapery, which has become a leading style in all the fashionable cities of the world, has forced Messrs. Cohen & Co. to remove their workroom to the lofts over their store on Broadway. They now occupy three floors, 50x100 feet each, devoted to the manufacture of all kinds of made-up curtains.

The store of Ewen, McIntyre & Co., New Haven, Conn., will be enlarged next May by the addition of an adjoining building, which is three stories high. The firm will then have about 60,000 feet of floor space.

J. S. LESSER & CO.'S NEW QUARTERS.

J. S. Lesser & Co., the lace curtain manufacturers and importers, are now well settled in their new quarters at 473 Broadway, where they occupy two lofts, each about 30x200 feet. One loft is utilized entirely for showrooms and offices, and its arrangement and superb light make it a model lace curtain salesroom. J. S. Lesser returned on the 19th ult. from abroad with a number of new styles in Brussels, Irish point, Tambour and Nottingham curtains. The firm also show a choice line of domestic lace curtains and a strong assortment of ruffled net and muslin curtains of their own make. There is every indication that Lesser & Co. are to figure more prominently in the curtain field than ever before.

STERN BROTHERS' SPRING UPHOLSTERIES.

The wholesale upholstery department of Stern Brothers has become one of those places to which lovers of the beautiful and useful resort in search of handsome things, which can be found nowhere else in New York. There is hardly anything of the art products of the world in draperies and upholsteries which is not to-day to be seen in this department, which offers buyers desirous of finding confined patterns and fabrics opportunities which give them a chance to distance all competition without the necessity of carrying stocks, the mere interest on which would eat up all possible profit. There is absolutely nothing that is new or good that is not to be found at Stern's, and it goes without saying that there is nothing that is staple and good, even if it be not new, that cannot be found in the stock.

Chas B. Young & Co have had very satisfactory calls from visiting buyers during the past fortnight, and are sending in good orders to Hoyle, Harrison & Kaye and the Eden Manufacturing Company. They have lines of curtains, piece goods and table covers which cannot be overlooked.

D. Robb Stirratt is recording excellent orders on the Hensel Company's new "Velvet Ruff" rope portière. As stated in our last issue, the advantage of obtaining a thicker appearing rope at about the same price as the old style rope portières appeals at once to a discerning buyer.

Stephen Wallis, representative of W. E. Meats & Co., the Nottingham curtain manufacturers, recently returned from a satisfactory Western trip, and will go out again this month. Mr. Wallis is offering the stock of curtains at 33 Howard street at specially low prices, and can give immediate deliveries.

The John Kroder and Henry Reubel Company are now settled in their new and spacious salesrooms, 268 and 270 Canal street, New York, and their offerings in upholstery and carpet hardware, wood and metal curtain poles and trimmings, &c., are well calculated to interest thoroughly every buyer. Their large factory on Clinton street and their increased facilities for both manufacturing and selling metal and wood goods enable them to meet the demands of the trade more completely than ever before. See their new advertisement on page 99 of this issue.

Kurr.—Louis Kurr, manager of B. Altman & Co.'s upholstery department, returned from Europe on the Trave February 24.

Lee.—L. W. Lee, of Lee Brothers, Peoria, Ill., was in the New York market last week. He says that he chooses the winter season to come to New York, leaving the warm weather for his brother, F. T. Lee. Mr. Lee received a hearty welcome by the selling fraternity, who remember the uniform courtesy extended to them by the Messrs. Lee when visiting Peoria.

Lesser.—J. S. Lesser, of J. S. Lesser & Co., returned from Europe recently.

Lincoln.—F. S. Lincoln, who has for several years been upholstery buyer for G. V. S. Quackenbush & Co., of Troy, has since the consolidation with Loomis & Evans, as noted in a recent issue of The Review, been promoted downward—that is his department is to be moved from the third to the second floor. He will also be given additional space.

Mallerny.—Clark Mallerny, head of Albert Gall's upholstery department, Indianapolis, was in town last week looking after his spring stock. "Confound it, man," he said to a salesman who refused to meet his view as to the price of certain articles, "you're so contrary that cheese would physic you."

Naumann.—A. Naumann, of the A. Naumann-Pulfrich Company, was a passenger on the St. Louis when she saved the passengers and crew of the Veendam. Mr. Naumann witnessed the departure and arrival of the rescuing boats and the bursting of flames from the Veendam, and aided in caring for the passengers.

O'Brien—Desmond.—P. O'Brien has succeeded J. D. Desmond as resident buyer in New York for J. J. O'Brien & Co., San Francisco. The office is at 43 Leonard street.

Seymour.—Thomas C. Seymour, for many years with the Scotch Syndicate, and more recently with Lord & Taylor, has made an engagement with the Pegamoid Company.

Sharp.—Robert G. Sharp, for many years manager and foreign buyer for the upholstery department of the famous old house of E. S. Jaffray & Co., is one of the incorporators of the C. H. Carroll Company, which will open a department store about April 1 in Rochester, N. Y. Mr Sharp is an able merchant, a broad guage man, and will be an acquisition to mercantile and social circles in his new home. His New York friends, and the term includes everybody who ever met him, will be sorry to lose him, but will wish him all the success he deserves, and that is simply wishing him everything he could desire.

Wasserman.—Ben Wasserman, of the Philadelphia Tapestry Company, is back from an extended wedding tour, and is as happy in his new as he was forlorn in his old estate. The day is not far distant apparently when an old bachelor will be as rare in the upholstery trade as an imported silk hat.

FERGUSON BROTHERS' LATEST NOVELTIES.

In a business like that of Ferguson Brothers, the well-known manufacturers of novelties and specialties for furniture, upholstering and housefurnishing departments, brain work must be both incessant and well directed to secure success, for the demand for new things never relaxes. The great growth of this firm's business is therefore a conclusive proof that their designing department has at its service a remarkable and apparently inexhaustible fund of ideas, enabling them to turn out new things to suit every season, novelties which not only fill all obvious demands of the public, but also suggest and stimulate new uses, things entirely novel and yet so evidently desirable that one almost wonders why they were not thought of before. Among the specialties in the Messrs. Ferguson's lines which have been especially successful in the present season are a number of new styles in screens, a line of white enameled cabinets, a variety of fire screens, and their unique shirt waist boxes. These boxes are perhaps the greatest hit of the season. They are made in nests of four, each box being covered with handsome cretonne, lined with dainty figured muslin and having a lid with brass hinges. They are extremely useful as receptacles for clothing, shoes, &c., and the demand for them has already reached great proportions.

Ferguson Brothers' complete lines are shown at their downtown salesroom, 494 Broadway, and at their office and factory, 433 and 435 West Thirty-first street, New York.

James S. Lyon, theatrical upholsterer, of High Holborn, London, died recently. He was intimately connected with the theatrical profession for the last fifty-five years, and during that time was intrusted with the furnishing of most of the theatres and music halls in London and of many in the provinces. The English theatre-going public is indebted to him for a very large proportion of the comfort and luxury it enjoys when attending a place of amusement.

The great amount of work encountered in the removal of the salesrooms of The John Kroder and Henry Reubel Company to 268 and 270 Canal street, coupled with a constantly increasing business, has kept Messrs. Reubel, Kroder and Angier and their entire force more than busy since the first of the year. Time is straightening out matters, however, and orders are beginning to go out with usual promptness. This company now have the best lighted and appointed salesroom for carpet and upholstery hardware and curtain poles in the trade.

The Warner Bedding Company, 399 Sixth avenue, will go out of business April 1.

Speyer Brothers, dealers in upholstering materials, cabinet hardware, &c., will remove about May 1 from 113 to 101 Bowery, where they will occupy the store and basement.

The schedules of George W. Graham, manufacturer of gimps, braids and carpet bindings, 516 West Thirty-fifth street, who assigned on January 24, show liabilities, $12,407; nominal assets, $17,772; actual assets, $8,940.

The partnership heretofore existing under the name of Manix, Dresser & Ahrens has been dissolved by mutual consent, E. H. Dresser having retired from the firm February 1, and Gustave Ahrens having retired on February 19. The business of the late firm will be conducted by J. E. Manix and A. R. Manix, under the firm name of J. E. Manix & Co.

The strong lines of curtains and curtain materials handled by F. M. Van Blaricom have sold so freely that the factory facilities have been constantly enlarged. The combinations and effects in fish net, muslin and bobbinet ruffled curtains are specially tasteful and handsome, and reflect high credit on Mr. Van Blaricom's knowledge of what will sell. A call at his salesroom, 415 Broadway, will be profitable to every curtain buyer.

James McCreery & Co.'s Twenty-third street store continues to expand. The firm have added another building, 25 feet front. The improvement of the main floor will not end here, as the store occupying the intervening space between the two entrances will be occupied by them as soon as the lease of the present occupants expires and the necessary alterations are made. As soon as these are completed they will have an unbroken frontage of 150 feet, with facilities for displays equal to any store in the city.

W. J. Wilde recently returned from a very successful trip for the wholesale upholstery department of B. Altman & Co. He reports that the firm's line received greatly increased attention, as buyers who had purchased the goods previously met with great success in handling them. The feature of seeing effects in weave and style not in any other wholesale stock is certainly an attraction for every careful buyer. Mr. Wilde will start out shortly on a supplemental trip with the latest novelties brought over by Louis Kurr, the department manager, who returned from abroad last week.

Because the culvert at Fourth avenue and Eighteenth street overflowed recently, and water filled the basement of the upholstery store of F. Schumacher & Co., the firm has sent to the comptroller a claim for damages to the amount of $12,909.16, preparatory to beginning a suit against the city.

The new salesrooms of Rieser & Co., 473 Broadway, have presented a busy aspect during the past fortnight, as the firm have received calls from a majority of the visiting buyers, and an old-time air of activity pervaded the establishment. The firm have been particularly fortunate in holding an excellent stock of Saxony Brussels curtains and fine French goods, as it appears the market is not overstocked on these better class curtains. They continue busy on their ruffled muslin and net curtains, and their producing facilities enable them to care for orders as well as any other concern in the trade.

The new upholstery department in the H. A. Meldrum Company's establishment, Buffalo, N. Y., has met with pronounced success since its opening last September, and it has been decided to devote the entire third floor of the building at 460 to 466 Main street, a space 50x250 feet, to upholstery and carpets, a complete stock of the latter being opened up for spring trade. Charles Anderson, of the concern, and W. S. Porter, the practical manager and buyer of the department, have been in the market during the past week purchasing both upholsteries and carpets.

CHARLES W. BRENEMAN & CO.

As large manufacturers of shade cloths and window shades Charles W. Breneman & Co., Cincinnati, Ohio, are in a position to interest strongly every buyer of such goods. Breneman & Co. have exceptional facilities for extensive and economical production, and call attention also to the saving in time and freight charges secured by dealers in the territory tributary to Cincinnati in buying from them. See their advertisement on page 85 of this issue referring to Camargo shadings.

EIDERDOWN FARMS.

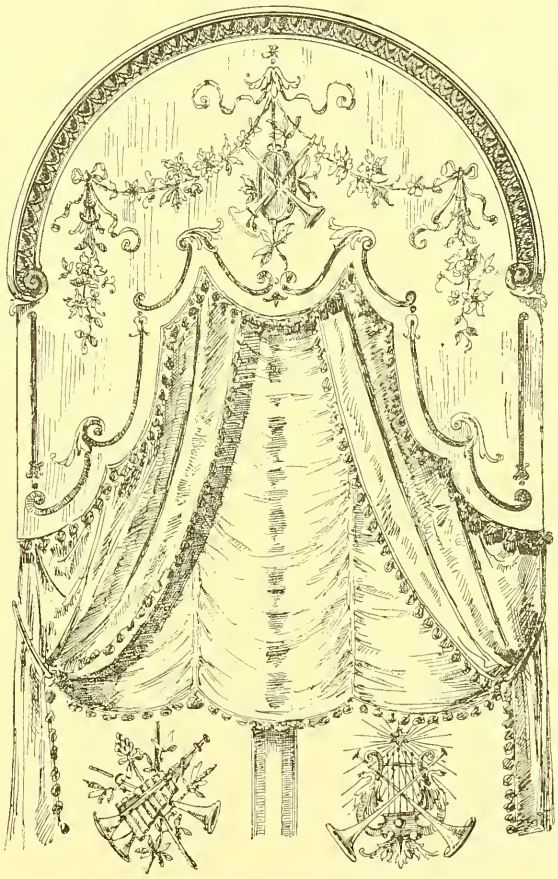
A correspondent of an English newspaper writes from Iceland as follows: "All accounts I have read about eider ducks say that nests are robbed of their down twice, the duck supplying it each time from her own body; the third time the drake gives his white down, and this is allowed to remain. But I was told by farmers in Iceland that now they never take the down until the little ones are hatched. It has been found that the birds thrive better and increase faster when they are allowed to live as nature meant them to do. So now the poor mothers are no longer obliged to strip themselves of all their down to refurnish their despoiled nests. Sometimes, if the quantity is very great, a little may be taken, but enough must be left to cover the eggs when the duck leaves her nest for food.

"An eider duck farm at Isafjord is thus described: 'On the coast was a wall built of large stones, just above high water level, about 3 feet high and of considerable thickness at the bottom. On both sides of it alternate stones had been left out so as to form a series of square compartments for the ducks to make their nests in. Almost every compartment was occupied, and as we walked along the shore a line of ducks flew out, one after another. The house was a marvel; the earthen walls that surround it and the window embrasures were occupied with ducks. On the ground the house was fringed with ducks. On the turf slopes of the roof we could see ducks, and ducks sat on the scraper.'

"About 10,000 pounds of eiderdown are gathered annually in Iceland, 7,000 being exported to foreign counties. Formerly the peasants used to receive over 21 shillings a pound, but the price has now fallen to half that amount. The peasants seldom receive money, and are obliged to barter their down for merchandise furnished by the Danish merchants at the little settlements at the fjords. A pound and a half of down is enough to fill an ordinary bed puff. These very comfortable articles are found in the guest room of every Iceland farm, however poor and small it may be. After a long, hard day in the saddle the traveler longs for warmth and shelter. These little guest rooms have never had a fire in them, and built, as they are, on the ground, there is a dreadful chill in them. Once tucked away in bed, the tired bones lose their pains and stiffness, however, and well covered with down puff, a delightful sense of comfort follows."

SWISS EMBROIDERIES.

The French Consul General at Zurich, Switzerland, says: "The modification of the United States tariff has had no special influence on the embroidering industry; business is certainly a little more difficult in consequence of the raising of the duties, but when an article is fashionable an advance of 50 to 60 per cent. has scarcely any effect. At St. Gall, too, the practice is to put forth new and fashionable goods, which naturally helps sales. The fear of seeing an embroidery industry created in the United States as a result of the increased customs duties has not been justified, as Americans have only taken up silk embroidery, for which the present demand is very strong. For this reason an American house recently gave a considerable order for embroidering machines to work night and day on silk. 'Machines à navette' threaten to oust hand machines in many branches, though for the higher classes of work there will still be a large field open to the hand machines and to fine embroiderers."



WINDOW DECORATION FOR A MUSIC SALON.

Caummasiry's upholstering house on Fourth street, Louisville, was gutted by fire on the 14th ult. All the stock was burned and the building badly damaged. The loss on the house and contents is $10,000; insurance, about half.

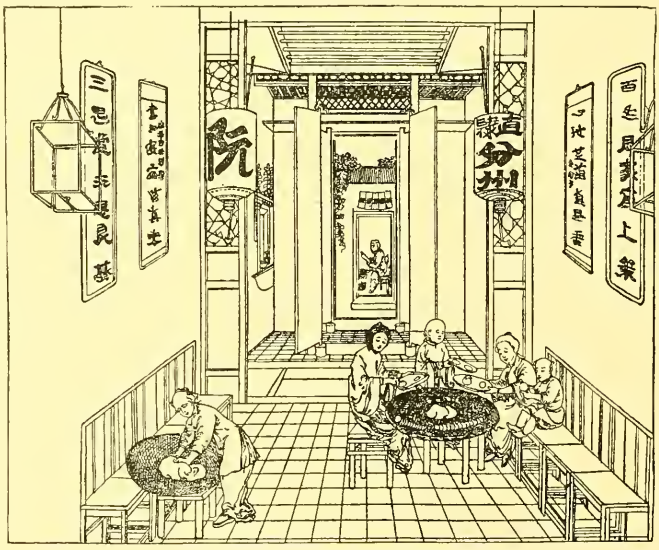
The Putnam Company, manufacturer of bedding, &c., 101 Causeway street, Boston, has increased its capital stock to $20,000.

CHINESE HOUSEHOLDS.

Unlike the Japanese, the Chinese have been accustomed to the use of high tables and chairs for hundreds of years. Curiously enough, though, one often sees the coolies in the streets squatting about on their heels, yet they never take their meals in that position. As a rule, their tables, and consequently their chairs and stools, are higher than ours. So high, in fact, are the round, marble topped tables that one can see only the heads and shoulders of those sitting at them.

The table is placed in the centre of the room, is guiltless of napery—that is, among the middle and lower classes—and only one dish is served at a time. Men and women eat separately, of course, as the women are not supposed to leave the zenana while the men are about the house. Frequently high, carved stools, with marble or porcelain seats let in, are used for dining chairs, and as many sit about the table as can find room for their stools. In private houses much pomp and ceremony are observed, for the Chinese are nothing if not dignified and decorous.

In the homes of the wealthy people we find as luxurious surroundings as we do among the same class in the Occident. For instance, the doorways are hung with heavily embroidered curtains; ottomans, tables and chairs are covered with drapery of exquisite embroidery, and their furniture, of which they have almost as many pieces as we have, is elaborately carved and inlaid with decorated china and different woods.



DINING HALL IN A CHINESE RESIDENCE.

The Chinese characters which stand for napkins or serviette, being translated, read "food arresters"—not a bad name for them, either. In some houses I have seen napkins made of delicate silk and satin, covered with the beautiful embroidery for which they are famous. One corner is turned down, and a silken loop sewed on to serve as a button latch, which is fastened to the top button of the dress.

When the dinner is finished, a lacquered basin of hot water is brought in, and a small cotton or linen napkin wrung out of it, and handed in turn to each one at the table to wipe his hands, that the elaborate silken napkins may not be ruined by soiled fingers. These dainty creations are apparently as great a source of pride to the Chinese housewife as our own delicate doilies are to us.

The Chinese have elaborate furniture, carved bedsteads being a specialty in some parts of the empire. There are some elaborately carved ones which are not so very unlike our own folding bed of the present day. There are drawers beneath the bed, and on either side are shelves and small drawers for toilet articles, so arranged as to be shut in by an outer enclosure of beautifully carved scroll-work set like a screen. This in turn is sometimes concealed from view by heavy curtains.

In the northern part of China, where the winters are very severe, most houses have a broad, hollow trench of brick built across one end or one side of the main room. This is heated by flues, and during the day furnished with low chairs and tables, where the family sit to keep warm. At night they bring their wadded comforts and roll themselves up, and sleep on the heated bricks. In the homes of the better class the kang, as this is called, is divided and arranged more or less with embroidered curtains, hangings, or the scroll carvings of which they are very fond.

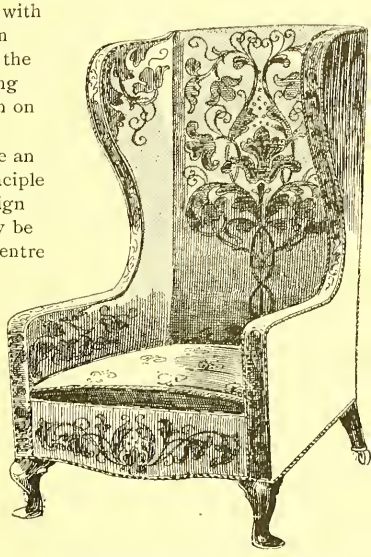
Ries & Co. are sending to the trade a very interesting illustrated booklet, showing a number of original designs in this firm's line of Irish point lace curtains, which are manufactured by them at their factory in this country. Besides their line of Irish points Ries & Co. have on view a very extensive stock of Nottinghams, Brussels, Tambours, Renaissance, novelty, frilled curtains, &c., comprising all grades in a wide range of new and handsome patterns. The trade are advised to see the goods at Ries & Co.'s salesroom, 359 Broadway, New York.

Schroth & Potter, Columbus, Ohio, as manufacturers, importers and jobbers, offer to the trade extensive lines of window shades, shade cloths, lace curtains, portières, table covers, curtain poles, shade rollers, rug fringes, hollands, &c. Their offerings are so comprehensive and well varied as to meet completely every possible demand. Buyers are advised to see their lines, for they will well repay inspection.

A GRANDFATHER'S CHAIR.

Painting is the art of color, sculpture the art of form, embroidery the art of clothing forms. Those delightful old seats (sometimes called "wing chairs"), are, like so many desirable things, a revival of the past. Original grandfather's chairs may still be found in old-fashioned cottages in remote villages, or in the housekeeper's room of some old country seat, but with the sketch given here any practical upholsterer may produce one of this form, carefully noting the proportions given, for in this, in a great measure, the comfort of the chair consists. It is capacious enough to contain one's entire person, if required, with feet comfortably tucked up. There is a cozy corner for the head, and wings which exclude all draught. The ideal material for the covering is Kerriemuir twilled linen, and the embroidery should be in crewel. If anything very handsome be desired, Italian satin (or satin de luxe, a mixture of silk and wool) may be used, and the work may be in filoselle, but crewel on linen is much more in keeping with the date of the chair, and it can be easily cleaned when necessary without injury to work or material, and even without taking the covering off the chair. The colorings should be in greens, rich chestnut browns and old golds, the greens to be used for the leaves, the browns for veining and the golds for what appear as flowers in the design.

The peculiarity of this work consists in the manner in which the different shades are worked in ; all attempts at blending, as in the opus plumarium, are avoided ; there is a distinct line where one shade touches another. Take the acanthus-shaped leaf in the design for the top corner of the left arm of the chair, given in Figure 1. Begin with the outside of the leaf and work all around the edge with an ordinary "leaf" green in stitches of a uniform length of about three-sixteenths of an inch, lying close together, being careful to make them even and regular. Then, inside this, and touching it, repeat the same thing in a shade of blue-green, putting the needle into the first row of stitches, and again inside that in a darker shade of the same color, filling in the entire leaf. The veinings and the outside edge, where the main stem would be, should then be worked in split stich, with two threads of brown crewel in the needle. Outside the main stem is a row of loop stitches of the darkest green, lying lengthways along the stem. To make this stitch the needle is brought up from the wrong side of the work and put through again in the same place, leaving a loop of about an eighth of an inch, which is sewn down with a small stitch. The rest of the leaf may have small stitches in groups of three, something like a broad arrow, at even distances along the edge; this will prevent any hardness of outline. The flower should be worked in shades of old gold and have veinings of brown in split stitch, and a row of small, even, slanting stitches around the outside. The stems should be filled in with stem stitch, beginning on the right-hand side with the "leaf" green and shading to the darkest blue-green on the left side.



GRANDFATHER'S CHAIR, EMBROIDERED.

This example will give an idea of the general principle on which the whole design is executed. There may be a little variation in the centre scroll or flower, which is rather large to be entirely solid. Work in three shades of old gold around the edge, as already described in Fig. 1, and cover the centre with what are known as small "fly" stitches of the lightest shade. These stitches are made in the same way as the "loop" stitches along the main stem of the leaf in Fig. 1, but instead of putting the needle in where it was brought up, put it through a few threads away, leaving the loop open when sewn down. Work the veins in split stitch with brown crewel, as before. The spots above this part of the design should be worked in bullion stitch in the following way: Bring the needle up on the outline of the spot, put it through on the opposite side of the outline, bringing the point out again in the same place from which the crewel appears. The crewel is then twisted many times around the point of the needle, which is drawn carefully out and inserted once more in the same place on the opposite side of the outline, keeping the left thumb firmly on the long knot or roll until the thread is pulled through, so that it may lie evenly across the spot from left to right.

This stitch is perhaps the most troublesome and complicated of any, and when finished should have the appearauce of bullion or purl; but if the worker does not feel equal to attempting it, the spots may be worked in French knots, making first a row on the outline, and gradually filling in to the centre.

The small "powderings" in Fig. 3, to be used for the seat of the chair, should be worked in split stitch, in green crewel, and the spots may be treated in the same way as those in the design for the back of the chair.

THE "UNIVERSAL" CURTAIN POLE.

The claims made for the "Universal" curtain pole are obviously well based. Two views of the pole are given on page 91, and from them the buyer may obtain a good idea of the pole's advantages. The pole is made with two ridges or tracks, which are out of view when the pole is in place. A little oil placed on these tracks will furnish easy and perfect traversing with any ordinary curtain ring. Between the tracks the pole is concaved to allow the use of cords and pulleys on heavy portières, if desired. Therefore the Universal pole supplies all purposes for stationary or movable draperies, and does away with the need of traverse rings, as any ring can be used upon it. The pole is no higher in price than regular stock brass poles, and is intended for regular stock for any establishment. It is made exclusively by the Rome Brass and Copper Company, of Rome, N. Y.

John Gurson gave bonds of $500 to keep the peace in Justice Straus' court, at Chicago, on the 17th ult. He was charged with threatening to kill Joseph and Rudolph Deimel, proprietors of the National Parlor Furniture Company, 462 Wabash avenue. The suit dates back to the failure of Deimel Brothers three years ago. Gurson, it is said, loaned the brothers $5,500 prior to their failure, which he has never since been able to collect. On one occasion, when he called at Joseph Deimel's house with his customary demand for money, according to the brothers, he drew a revolver and threatened to kill both if they did not pay him.

F. H. Lapsley & Brother, 12 South Charles street, Baltimore, are extensive manufacturers of window shades, shadings, fringes, spring rollers, mosquito canopies, &c. Their lines of shadings include the Crown opaque, Bancroft's Sun-Fast hollands, and Oswego shadings, and they are large importers of John King & Son's Scotch hollands. Their offerings to the trade comprise also extensive lines of floor and table oil cloths, linoleum, stair rods, stair buttons, curtain poles, &c. In all of these goods they are in a position to interest strongly every buyer. The death of Mr. F. H. Lapsley, which was noted in our issue of the 15th ult., will not make necessary any change in the business of the firm. Mr. W. E. Lapsley, the surviving partner, is the sole legatee of F. H. Lapsley, and will continue the business as usual.

STARTING IN BUSINESS.

There are, I believe, two important points to consider when about to start in the retail upholstery or carpet business—namely, a good store in which to show your goods, and letting the public know what you have by advertising. Relative to the first point—the store—one can picture an ideal location where rents are low and living cheap, and where the chances of success are many. I remember starting myself in business some years ago. As a clerk on a salary of from $15 to $18 a week, this was slow work, and I had determined to rent a store and begin business with some money I had. My first opportunity was to buy into a store already stocked with carpets and furnishings. The frontage of this store is shown in the first drawing. Small windows, no chance to show goods, and altogether a dismal picture. Inside I noticed the worn counter, the creaking floor of the decaying building, each in its own language speaking of business the glory of which had departed; for once this store did considerable business, but times had changed. Of course rents are cheap for such stores, but I would prefer to pay more and get a better store. In diagram 2 is a store of more modern pattern. The show windows are large plate glass, and there is ample room to show stock; but I would say that the store finally secured is shown in the drawing 3. The windows have been made over so as practically to double the opportunity for display of goods. By fixing mirror glass to the sides and backs of the show windows, my window displays were made very attractive, and enabled me to draw considerable trade. With a good store, fair location and the right assortment of stock, a man has a reasonable show for success, even with limited capital, provided that he lets people know that he has something to sell.

There are methods of circularizing and schemes for advertising without number. Circularizing has had a setback to some extent by the post office authorities objecting to the stuffing of mail boxes with advertising matter. But there is no harm in sending cards in a small way. In my case, all of my friends that I could reach I saw personally, getting from them a list of their friends, keeping a record of all in a book alphabetically arranged, and copying the names of those that lived in my territory from the directory. The financial department evolved an announcement in the form of a unique folder, so worded as to interest the would-be buyers of carpets, draperies, &c. These I sent through the mail, sealing them in envelopes to insure their being opened. As I afterward learned, the store was fairly well advertised by this method. Then I advertised by means of window attractions. I had a hand carpet loom in the window at one time, making carpets. The worst of these unique window shows is that they draw a crowd and block the sidewalk.

I hear of a recent case in which a ladder was placed in front of a show window, running up to the roof. On the ladder, on a line with the sill of the third story window, was placed a dummy fireman. The upper sash of the third story window nearest the ladder was lowered about 2 inches. Filling this space was a sheet iron box, tapering back until it fitted in the pipe of a stove. When the streets were quite well filled with people a fire was started in the stove, and smoke, the result of burning dry grass, poured out of the sheet iron box at the window. The effect was realistic.

But, after all, the advertisements in the monthly, bimonthly or weekly magazine, and the local daily papers, have a more lasting effect. Advertisements on wrapping paper are often obnoxious to the purchasers, while no one objects to the nicely worded paper advertisement. In fact, trade advertisements are very helpful to people who are about to carpet their houses. It has been well said that the carpet dealer who divides a percentage of his year's profits with the printer gets his money back several times over in new business. Many people have become so accustomed to finding information as to new patterns, prices, &c., in the advertising of carpet stores that they look for the announcement in each issue of the various papers.

On April 1 the C. H. Carroll Company will open a department store in Rochester, N. Y. It is incorporated with a capital of $75,000, the incorporators being Charles H. Carroll, formerly of Carroll, Beadle & Mudge, Rochester; Charles Shupp, who is a well-known and solid general storekeeper of Plymouth, Pa., and Robert G. Sharp, for many years at the head of the upholstery department of the old firm of E. S. Jaffray & Co. The company has secured a long lease on very favorable terms of the big store on Elm and East Main streets formerly occupied by Gorton & McCabe. The concern will buy through the American Syndicate. The upholstery department will be located on the second floor, and at the outset no carpets will be carried. A feature new to Rochester will be the service of luncheon between 11 and 2 o'clock, at moderate prices.

Facts About Hartshorn Shade Rollers.

The product of our factories includes Shade Rollers of every description, made of wood and tin, suitable for all classes of work, and many famous Hartshorn accessories.

The cost of these Rollers is slightly higher than any others on the market.

The quality of these Rollers is so high as to be far beyond the reach of real competition.

The reputation of these Rollers is of such strength as to insure success to any merchant in the window shade line who sells them exclusively.

The demand for them is universal, and so heavy as to keep our great factories running constantly.

These are some of the reasons that our Rollers are found to-day in whatever part of the world a window shade is hung.

A JUDICIOUS INVESTMENT.

The Best Economy in your Carpet Room

can only be secured by using the most perfect appliances, of the simplest design and the best construction.

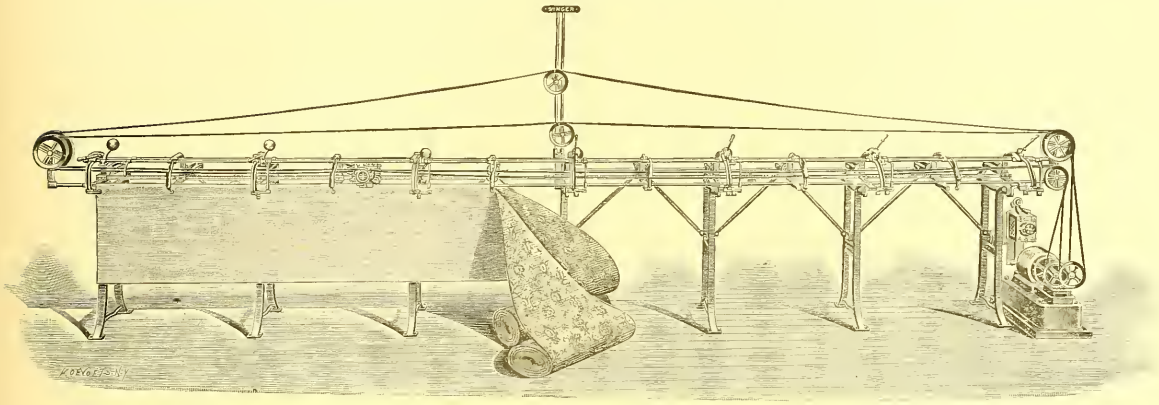
Experience Has Proven the Fact that the SINGER AUTOMATIC POWER CARPET SEWER will save its cost in one year to any carpet dealer having enough business to require a hand machine. THE SINGER AUTOMATIC is now in use by dealers who saved its cost during the first six months of its operation.

A TRIUMPH OF MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY, SURPASSING ALL OTHER DEVICES FOR ITS PURPOSE.



Truly automatic, requires less labor and sews 40 per cent. more carpet than any other machine on the market.
Requires least floor space, and uses any form of power.
Makes perfect stitch and seam, sewing any kind of carpet.

Automatic Matching and Clamping Device.

This device is absolutely unique, and secures perfect stretching and matching, without necessity for expert labor. It is simpler, swifter and in every way more effective than any other way of handling a carpet. The sewing machine works automatically on its track, following the operator from section to section as fast as each is matched and clamped, the action of the clamping levers automatically governing the movement of the sewing machine, thus saving a great deal of time. . . . . .

This is not a Hand Machine Crudely Adapted to Power Operation.

Our Hand Machine is well known, and is still on the market, fully guaranteed to be the best and most practical in use.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1, 1898.

To Buyers of Upholstery Fabrics:

Our new Spring line of Tapestry Table and Couch Covers, Piece Goods and Curtains will attest more strongly than ever the primacy of our position as leaders in this line of goods. Every effort has been made to surpass all previous records, and the many novelties and improvements we have succeeded in producing bear evidence of the superiority of the product of our mills.

Our goods show all that is latest in fabric and style, and are put on the market at figures that commend them to buyers of fine, medium and popular priced goods.

The point to consider in selecting your Spring Upholstery Goods is value. Upholstery Value means richness and exclusiveness of Fabric, Perfection and Correctness of Style, and Excellence of Make. Our New Spring Line reveals the most extensive showing of novelties and styles ever made up by any one single house in this country. It is a line that every buyer should see.

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked

"JOHN KING & SON."

goes a long ways. No one thing prevents dirty floors better than a Perforated Rubber Mat with corrugated surface. The corrugations scrape the mud off and the perforations hold it, so that the surface is always in good condition. Impervious to water, you can clean it with a hose; but if you prefer an old-fashioned shake, that, too, will answer. Made to fit exactly any space, no matter how irregular. Add extreme durability, and name and address inserted so that thief can't remove—and you have a mat every customer on your books can use. Not necessary to carry stock—all you need is samples. Sent free on application.

IMPORT ORDERS.—My recent important announcement is bringing me encouraging inquiries and some orders. Buyers seem to realize the UNUSUAL PRIVILEGES I am offering. I will take, as announced, IMPORT ORDERS from responsible houses on the basis of a small commission, with the understanding that if on inspection in bonded warehouse the goods do not prove satisfactory, the firm giving such order will not be obliged to take same.

A LARGE AND WELL ASSORTED STOCK will be always found, as before, at my spacious and well lighted stores, 343 BROADWAY and 90 LEONARD STREET, NEW YORK, and in bond. As the LARGEST IMPORTER I always enjoy great facilities in securing desirable lots at advantageous prices, giving the benefit of the same to my customers, which is the secret of my success.

Note.—All goods remaining from the old tariff imports are still quoted at old tariff prices.

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven (at every repeat of the pattern) in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 51.

☞Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

RETAIL trade has not been particularly active during the past fortnight, but dealers never expect any marked increase in business before the latter part of March.

Orders already placed keep the looms fairly well employed, but our advices indicate that retailers generally are well supplied with goods, and that therefore duplicate orders may not be given very freely until their stocks are reduced.

Domestic manufacturers of rugs have no reason to complain of the results of the season to this date nor of the outlook in their branch of the trade, while, as our advertising pages show, the demand for Oriental rugs is constantly growing, new firms are entering the trade and the older ones seem to be continually expanding their business.

THE PROJECTED INGRAIN COMBINATION.

AROUND of the Ingrain manufacturers shows conflicting views regarding the possibility of forming a combination, and its success if formed. There is a strong feeling among the larger manufacturers that something ought to be done to improve the condition of the Ingrain business, and the unsatisfactory state of prices, as well as of the volume of business, has caused several manufacturers to listen for the first time to overtures regarding a combination. On the other hand, there are manufacturers who so far doubt the possibility of consummating a mutually satisfactory organization that they do not feel disposed to entertain the project.

Others positively state that they would not enter a combination under any circumstances, considering that their co-operation would be more beneficial to some unsuccessful manufacturers than to themselves. An argument used in promoting the plan is that the property would be taken at a sound market valuation, free from all exaggeration, and hence the stock issued would represent actual value and make each manufacturer's plant worth as much as part of the organization as it is now individually. There is no gainsaying the fact that the Ingrain manufacturers are not obtaining anything near an adequate return from their business, doubtless being worse off in this respect than manufacturers of other grades of carpetings, perhaps excepting exclusive Brussels manufacturers. The aims of the promoters are not to seize the Ingrain industry as a means of gaining inordinate profits, but rather to preserve the industry and obtain a fair margin for the labor and investment of the manufacturers. The idea is that by amalgamating, say, 75 per cent. of the Ingrain machinery of the country, the proposed corporation would be able to sell at the closest prices and yet make a fair profit through the minimum expenses and cost of materials

The conservative opinion, however, is that the task is too great to be accomplished, at least without a long lapse of time and endeavor. Many new features may also come up before its accomplishment, which might change the opinion of those most in favor of the combination at the present time.

THE OUTLOOK FOR INDIA RUGS.

A well informed Oriental rug man makes the statement that if the rug weaving industry spreads over India it will create the strongest competition ever experienced by Turkish and Persian rugs. He says it is impossible to get all the India rugs and carpets which can be sold in this country. The product is now limited, as there are not sufficient natives skilled in rug weaving and the trade is confined to a few districts. With labor in India at 6 cents a day compared to 30 cents per day in Turkey, and the greatest cost in a rug being labor, it can be seen what India competition means.

Another reason for the restricted product of India rugs is the lack of sufficient wool supplies at the places of manufacture. The right kind of wool for an increased product would have to be raised or brought from other countries. Rug weaving has existed for centuries in Turkey and Persia, while it was the Parsees who introduced it into India and it is there a comparatively new industry. Our informant thinks, however, that the manufacture of rugs in India is bound to rapidly enlarge, and predicts great changes within the next five years. He says there is a ready market for first-class styles, as the value is unsurpassed, while India rugs in bad styles have to be sold at a big sacrifice.

Dealers are advised to send for the new price list of the Goshen Sweeper Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich. This list was issued on March 1, and shows reductions in a majority of the grades, which will give greater inducements than ever to handle Goshen sweepers.

Referring to the coming production of whole-piece pile carpets by a concern in Philadelphia, a contemporary states that it will be the first output of large whole-piece carpets in this country. This is incorrect, as the Hartford Carpet Company have been making three and four yard wide chenille pile carpets in one piece for the past two years, and have kept their production sold up to the fullest capacity.

The uniform perfection of the Japan and China mattings now being received by Fritz & La Rue for delivery on their spring orders shows the advantage of purchasing goods from such a reliable house. The buyer is assured of receiving satisfaction in quality and style, which is of paramount importance in maintaining a dealer's reputation. As usual, their invoices are large enough to allow them to receive further orders, and we advise dealers to secure some of these extra choice fresh mattings while the assortment is unbroken. If you cannot call, write to Fritz & La Rue, 1128 and 1130 Market street, Philadelphia.

THE STANDARD OF QUALITY.

The spring business of Thomas Potter, Sons & Co. in their large lines of linoleum, floor, table and enameled oil cloth, and rubber cloth is the largest in the history of the house, and was particularly heavy during the months of November, December and January. Taking their combined output, Thomas Potter, Sons & Co. are the largest producers of such goods in the world; that is, the value of their total production in linoleum, floor and light oil cloth is larger than that of any other manufacturer of these goods. With the proverbial modesty of Philadelphians, they have not heretofore dwelt on this subject, but it is a fact that Philadelphia produces more linoleum than any other city in the world—the output of the Potter mills and one other concern. The high quality of goods, superior styles and fair treatment of the trade have been characteristics of this concern for over half a century, and it is not surprising that the name Potter stamped on a piece of linoleum or oil cloth is a guarantee of standard quality.

WILD'S ORIENTAL RUG DEPARTMENT.

Joseph Wild & Co. have just received what is claimed to be the most extensive and representative importation of Oriental carpets and rugs ever brought to this country. The assortment which was selected by the buyer of the house, who arrived last Saturday from the Far East, covers a wide range of size, make, quality and price, and is especially noticeable for its small sizes in rugs, of which there are thousands. These latter are just now in very active demand, and the whole line will attract the attention of every dealer in Oriental fabrics, who will be amply repaid by an inspection of this latest importation.

B. McCabe & Brother state that their distribution of cocoa mats and matting is as large as ever, if not larger, and that they are able to fill all orders taken. They are also still doing an extensive business in imported jute carpets and rugs, and have increased their lines in domestic Smyrna rugs, Tapestries and other floor coverings. They carry all goods in stock at their warerooms, 83 and 85 White street, New York.

Hunter & Whitcomb are meeting with excellent success in selling the Staines linoleum, manufactured by the Linoleum Manufacturing Company, of Staines, England. The Staines inlaid goods are particularly good sellers, and are popular with the trade for their high quality and attractive effects. The full line of samples is shown at 874 Broadway, where Hunter & Whitcomb are carrying some stock of the goods.

John Mulqueen, the old-time carpet merchant of Brooklyn, is desirous of retiring, and elsewhere offers his prosperous business for sale. He has been in the business about fifty years, having come to this country in the early forties, beginning as a clerk with Hosea B. Perkins. In 1859 he started for himself at 89 Bowery, where he remained until '68, when he established the Brooklyn concern at Myrtle avenue and Jay street. He proposes to take a trip around the world, stopping for a time to visit his old home in Ireland.

Field, Chapman & Fenner will sell by auction on the 17th inst. 12,566 rolls of matting, which is the largest quantity of such goods ever offered at one sale.

The changes at R. H. Macy & Co.'s consequent upon the resignation of Geo. C. English, noted in our last issue, leave Mr. Gribben in charge of the carpet and upholstery departments, with Hartley Knight as second man in the carpet department. Mr. Cunningham is at the head of the furniture stock.

The Iran Company have a splendid location for wholesaling Oriental rugs in the modern building at 907 Broadway, adjacent to the biggest carpet salesrooms of the trade. Their stock has been augmented by new arrivals during the past two weeks, and as they believe in quick turnovers, it will pay buyers to look in on them.

THOS. CAVES & SONS BUY TAPESTRY LOOMS.

THE enterprise of Thos. Caves & Sons is further demonstrated by the announcement from them that they have purchased the Tapestry plant formerly operated by the Cochrane Carpet Company at Malden, Mass. This plant consists of seventy-two looms with drums and all other machinery necessary for making Tapestries, and the Messrs. Caves are now busy removing it from Malden to the mill where they are now manufacturing their Keystone Velvets in Manayunk, Philadelphia. They have leased the remainder of this mill, and will hereafter occupy the entire structure and outbuildings. The Cochrane plant has been used for making Tapestries in the regular way—that is, in printing the warp threads on drums, which process will be carried on by the Messrs. Caves. The latter have not yet decided what grades of Tapestries they will turn out, but by active work they hope to have a line of goods on the market for the fall trade.

W. T. SMITH & SON have recently added ten new 9x12 Smyrna carpet looms, making fifty-five looms now employed on this size carpet. They make this size in various grades, as can be seen by reference to their announcement elsewhere. Their latest production in Art Squares—the Pro-Brussels grade—has come out in very handsome effects and the goods are ready for delivery.

Their History and Manufacture.

Tapestry-Brussels and Velvet Carpeting.

THE salient feature of the manufacture of Tapestry or Tapestry Brussels, and Velvet carpeting is the printing of the pattern on the yarn warp, thread by thread, before the carpet itself is woven on the loom. The pattern is drawn and colored on rule paper, just as the Body Brussels pattern is laid out. Some years ago it was customary to elongate the drawing in order to allow for the loops on the surface of the finished fabric, but this method is not necessary now.

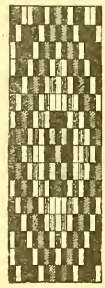

FIG. 1.

Next comes the first distinctive step in Tapestry making, which is the cutting of the rule paper pattern lengthwise into several oblong strips, one of which is shown in Fig. 1 of the engravings presented herewith. This strip represents consecutive threads which run lengthwise through the entire piece of carpet, and for the sake of clearness in this description, these strips are shown again, separated from each other as in Fig. 2. The number of warp threads in a width (27 inches) of Tapestry carpeting varies from about 180 in the low grades to 216 in ten wire goods. Each strip of pattern paper is placed on an oblong board, and when the dyeing of the threads represented on it is to begin the board is taken to the printing drum. These drums vary in diameter in accordance with the length of the pattern, or sometimes the number of repeats in it. The drum is first covered with an oil cloth, which is in turn covered with white yarn, wound around it as closely as the thread on an ordinary reel of cotton. The drum revolves on its axis and the man who guides its movement has hung before him for reference one of the oblong strips of the pattern previously mentioned. Each of the various threads represented on the strip is designated by a number, and every color which appears in the pattern has also a number. The drum also bears near its edge a series of numbers and is provided with a ratchet arrangement which enables the operator to guide the revolution of the drum in accordance with the ruled squares of color upon the design. Underneath the drum is a small carriage running on rails, and in this carriage, which contains a quantity of dye, a wheel revolves as shown in Fig. 3, the top of the wheel being just high enough to touch the thread on the drum, and thus cover it with dye. The printer, referring to his pattern, sees the color needed for, say, the first square in it, and the carriage is then passed along the rails, so that the color required is printed or ruled across the thread. During this operation the drum is held in place by the ratchets, its revolution and the movement of the carriage beneath being regulated by the printer's comparison of the index on the drum with the numbers on the print board.

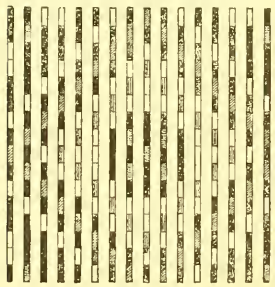

FIG. 2.

The width of the dyed portion of the thread does not correspond exactly with the square or squares of the pattern, some allowance being made for the fact that the fabric will be woven in loops like Body Brussels. As has been said, the loops were formerly provided for by elongating the design, but this had disadvantages, and most manufacturers now make the movement of the drum answer instead, some allowance being also made for the stretching of the yarn when the loops are made. Fig. 4 represents the drum with the yarn wound around it, the dark stripes showing where the dye has been applied.

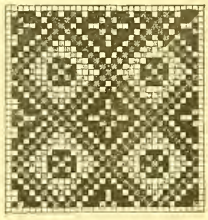

FIG. 5.

The printing of the yarn on the drum is continued in the way described until all the colors needed for the particular thread which covers it have been applied. It was formerly the custom for the printer to scrape the yarn with his fingers to remove superfluous dye, but this operation is now performed much better by a mechanical scraping device, in which a rubber substitute for a finger follows the dying wheel in its passage across the thread.

The dyed yarn, all of which forms but a single thread in a piece of carpeting, is then removed from the drum to the steaming room, where it remains long enough to fix the colors firmly, and is then allowed to dry. From the drying room it passes to the reeling machine, which winds it on a spool, and it is then ready for the setters, whose work consists in setting side by side all the pattern warp threads which are to appear in the carpet when it is finished. At one end of the setting machine are arranged the reels or bobbins of thread, every thread in the width of the carpet being wound on its particular bobbin, the number of bobbins running of course from 180 to 216. The thread on each bobbin is pulled out and fastened to a roller at the other end of the machine. This roller is then run out to a certain length, the threads being thus drawn taut side by side, like the strings of a piano, but touching each other. Two girls, one standing at each side of the machine, then take each thread separately and move it to its proper place, as it appears in a somewhat elongated copy of the pattern, which is placed on the machine underneath the threads. As a certain portion of the threads is passed it is wound on the roller at the other end, and when the setting process is completed the yarn on this roller is ready to be woven in the loom. Fig. 5 shows the pattern as it appears in the finished carpet.

Tapestry carpeting has a backing of jute yarn, and a linen or cotton weft, which serves as a binding thread for the loops in the printed worsted warp that forms the face, the loops being made over wires as in the weaving of Body Brussels. Until recently all Tapestry looms have been subject to a serious defect, in the liability of the printed warp to run unevenly in relation to the ground warp. When this trouble occurs the successive "blocks" of the pattern are too long or short, and do not register accurately with successive portions of the warp strands so as to secure uniformity in the appearance of breadths, and the matching of the pattern in successive breadths when placed side by side. This difficulty has been overcome by a recent invention which insures the accurate registry of the pattern blocks with the other portions of the body fabric, any irregularity which occurs being corrected by the automatic action of an ingenious mechanism by which the tension on the warp yarns is increased or diminished as may be necessary. This device not only removes the danger of weaving unmatchable goods, but also enables one operative to run two looms instead of one, thus doubling or almost doubling the capacity of the Tapestry loom.

Velvet carpeting is the same as Tapestry Brussels, excepting that the wire used in the weaving has a knife-like edge which cuts open the loops as it is withdrawn and forms a pile surface as in Wilton carpeting. Velvet carpets also resemble Wiltons in the fact that more yarn is used for the pile than is considered necessary when the loops are not to be cut as in Body Brussels.

The new Wilton rugs to be brought out by the Worcester Carpet Company for fall trade will interest all dealers, as they will be shown in sizes and effects to meet a demand which is constantly increasing for this class of goods.

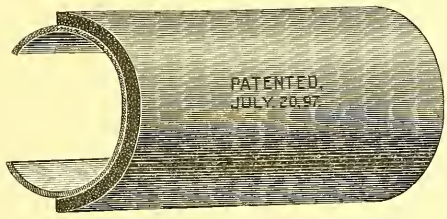
The East Indian Manufacturing Company have made a contract with the State of Maryland, whereby they are now manufacturing cocoa mats and matting by convict labor in the Baltimore penitentiary. They have removed all the hand and power machinery from the factory formerly occupied in Brooklyn, and are utilizing it in the penitentiary.

STAIR PADS AND LININGS.

The spring retail season brings the best demand for stair pads and carpet linings, and M. H. Marcus & Brother, 115 Worth street, New York, are well prepared with stock to meet the wants of buyers. They make the popular round nose Adjustable pad as well as flat quilted pads of all grades, and in cotton filled carpet lining they can supply goods in quality and price to suit the closest buyers.

A CAPITAL INVENTION.

Having won wide recognition as a public benefactor, the inventor of the Knapp rubber binding has added a new claim to fame by devising a rubber nosing to be used on stair nosings where linoleum, oil cloth, rubber or carpet plates are used on the tread. They are reversible, noiseless and prevent slipping. They are made in 6-4 and 8-4 lengths, which can be had in cut sizes 18, 22½, 27, 36,



PATTERN "B."

45, 54, and 72 inches, at a very reasonable price, with a trade discount which allows a liberal margin of profit to the retailer The invention seems certain to produce a revolution in the treatment of stairs in public buildings, apartment houses and other places where there is anything like a large amount of travel. The advantages in point of economy, cleanliness and safety will be apparent from a glance at the illustration herewith presented. Write to the Knapp Rubber Binding Company, 335 Broadway, New York, for samples and prices.

The new lines of Pro-Brussels, Ingrains, Damask and Venetian stairs, &c., shown by the James Hall Carpet Company, Lehigh avenue and Front street, Philadelphia, have made an excellent impression in the trade, and the company have reason to be well satisfied with the demand for them. The Pro-Brussels have proved a decided success, and the Granite Ingrains have also found wide and prompt appreciation. The line of Ingrains includes C. C.'s half wool Unions, and 8, 9 and 10 pair Cottons. See the company's advertisement on page 105 of this issue.

That Thos. Develon's Sons' productions are growing in popularity has been particularly demonstrated this season. The distribution of their goods has been satisfactory and the duplicates should keep them well employed throughout the rest of the season. It is not surprising that goods so attractive in pattern and varied in assortment should find a ready market, especially with the unqualified guarantee of quality always given by this firm. The Bagaria Wilton Ingrains, shown for the first time this season, met with instant success, and have evidently found a permanent place in the favor of the trade.

CHICAGO CARPET NOTES.

Chicago, March 10.

Mandel Brothers within sixty days will occupy what will be practically a new building. They will add the structure adjoining their present building at the corner of Madison and State streets, which will be remodeled to suit their needs. Their old buildings in State street and Wabash avenue will also be improved.

Charles Coloney has been in town.

Mr. Pillman, representing the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company, is traveling through the West. He reports a good trade.

Mr. Rosenthal, of Rosenthal & Brownlie, who have just dissolved partnership, is at the Great Northern Hotel. He is looking about for an office here.

Manager Litt, of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.'s wholesale carpet department, says the cut order department which he has established is exceeding his expectations in the amount of business done.

It is rumored that John & James Dobson will cover Chicago and the western territory from their home office n Philadelphia after the expiration of their present contract with Evoy & Flanigan in May next.

Fire in the Rehm Building, at Monroe and Market streets, last night caused $800 damage by water to the stock of Henry Noee & Co., who occupy the second floor with a stock of cut carpets. The loss is covered by insurance.

A. C. Frost, carpet salesman for Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.'s wholesale department who disappeared some time ago while on a trip for the firm in Kansas, committed suicide in St. Louis a few days ago. The remains were buried here, where Mr. Frost leaves a widow. He was at one time in the employment of Marshall Field & Co.

The new Hartman Furniture and Carpet Company's store at 225 and 227 Wabash avenue was formally opened a few days ago. There were music, potted plants, decorations galore and all the usual accessories of such affairs. The building is 60x200 feet and four stories high, and $40,000 are said to have been spent in altering and rebuilding it. In the basement are shown clocks, lamps, china and glassware, stoves, baby carriages, &c. On the first floor is a general line of furniture, the carpet and curtain departments take up the second, parlor furniture and upholstered goods, hall trees, &c., are shown on the third, and brass and iron bedsteads, chamber suites, dressing tables, &c., take up the fourth. The building is equipped with elevators, electric lights and all other modern improvements.

Marshall Field & Co., of this city, have issued orders that their buyers shall refrain from purchasing and ordering goods in large quantities during the present national crisis, and that they shall buy only in such quantities as trade demands. Similar orders have been given in other mercantile houses in this city. Col. Henry L. Turner, a prominent business man of the city, and commander of the First Infantry, Illinois National Guard, said that the business interests of the city were becoming paralyzed because of the uncertainty of the situation. He also is authority for the statement that many of the small interior banks throughout the Northwest are withdrawing their deposits from the city banks. Otherwise money is easy, the crisis being felt only in ordinary business. R. H. H.

OBITUARY NOTES.

William H. De Rouville, dealer in carpets and wall paper, Albany, N. Y., died in that city on the 11th inst., at the age of sixty-three years. He leaves a widow, two sons and four daughters.

The mercantile agencies announce the deaths of R. W. Allen, of R. W. Allen & Co., Lafayette, Ala.; J. S. Hill, of Hill & Helsley, Central City, Ky.; Bernard Luce, of Luce Brothers, Vineyard Haven, Mass.

William Kessler, who had been connected with the carpet department in Robert Frazer's dry goods store at Utica, N. Y., since April, 1893, died on February 25, after a brief illness. He was born in Utica and was thirty-one years of age.

Vincent A. Keith, brother of Robert Keith, of the Keith Furniture and Carpet Company, Kansas City, died suddenly on the 4th inst. of heart disease. He was born in Lexington, Mo., forty-seven years ago, and made that his home until twelve years ago, when he went to Kansas City. For a few years he was connected with his brother in the furniture business, but later he entered the employ of the Swofford Brothers Dry Goods Company.

THE CLAFLIN COMPANY'S CARPET DEPARTMENT.

The most compact commercial concern in this country probably is the H. B. Claflin Company, and there is no department of the house which is working more cleverly toward great results than that devoted to carpets.

Although started late in the season, the cut order department already has over 100 lines out, and even thus early the orders are coming in with gratifying frequency.

The Oriental carpet and rug branch of the business has grown to such proportions that Manager Winters will send Mr. Beatty to Constantinople on the 23d of this month to establish direct importation of these goods, and proposes to push this department with the utmost vigor. Another buyer will speedily follow to China and Japan in the interest of the matting trade of the house.

The business of the department has been excellent during the past fortnight, and has brought the average of the month up to the standard of the January trade, which was exceptionally good.

J. F. Hanson is running his 3,600 spindle mill at Cordele, Ala., on double time, making carpet yarn.

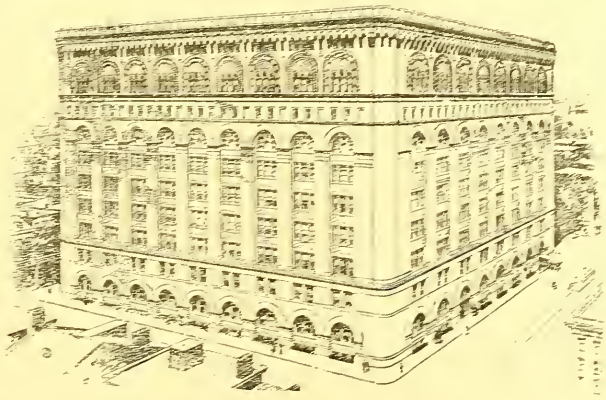
A large factory is to be built for the Dunlap Carpet Company at Fifty-sixth street and Lancaster avenue, Philadelphia. The mill will be of brick, one story high and will be 100x310 feet.

Everyone ought to have an accident insurance policy. The cost is moderate and the argument for carrying an accident policy is as strong or stronger than for life insurance. The Inter-State Casualty Company provides indemnity for partial as well as total disablement, and gives cash dividends to a continuous policy holder after five years. It is especially the carpet man's company, as its president is George E. Hamlin, the former big carpet jobber. Send to 31 Nassau street, New York, for pamphlets and particulars.

THE NEW APPRAISERS' STORES.

The United States Appraisers will occupy April 23 the new appraisers' stores erected for them at Christopher and Greenwich streets, this city. The new building cost $3,000,000 and is believed to be the best arranged for its purpose in the world. It is ten stories high, covers an entire block and is equipped with every known device for the easy and speedy handling of goods. In the centre of the structure are ten freight elevators, capable of lifting 84,000 pounds to the top floor in something less than two minutes. These are reached by a driveway with an entrance and exit, so that trucks can load, unload, and leave the building without turning around and without getting in each other's way. All goods will be received on the ground floor, which is equipped with trolleys, cranes and hoisting blocks for handling heavy packages. The woolen, linen and cotton goods divisions will occupy the fifth floor.

On the first floor above the ground are the appraiser's offices, the invoice bureau, the sample rooms, where samples of all goods on which the duty is charged will be kept; the department for the examination of goods imported as samples, the division devoted to aides, and the rooms for the storage and examination of personal baggage. There are eight sub-ports of entry in the district covered by Appraiser Wakefield's men, and each of them will be connected by private telephone wires running to his office. Placed in the various departments through the building are 100 telephones, one on the desk of each department head. By means of these telephones it will be possible for any appraiser in any part of the district to converse with the head of any department. This will greatly expedite the transaction of business. The invoice bureau receives each week about 6,000 invoices. Some of them consist of only a few items. Others include hundreds of items, sometimes making in all a book of 300 or more pages. Each of these items must be sent to the proper department for entry and examination. Hitherto it has been necessary to send them around by messenger, and as there are three miles of corridors in the new stores, such a method of conveying them was decided to be too slow. In order to provide for the prompt delivery of each item at its proper destination a complete outfit of pneumatic tubes has been put in the building. Mr. Wakeman expects that about 10,000 documents will be blown through the tubes each week.



THE NEW APPRAISERS' WAREHOUSE.

Pease bindings and other specialties should interest every dealer in carpets, curtains or furniture. Write to the manufacturer, Charles F. Pease, 91 Lincoln street, Boston, for his new book. It will well repay inspection.

PROPOSED EXPOSITION OF MANUFACTURED GOODS.

The conductors of the Commercial Museum and the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia propose to hold a national exhibition of manufactured goods in that city, beginning May 10, 1899, and continuing five months. The main objects of the scheme are:

1. To show to foreign buyers the goods American manufacturers offer for export, and to establish their superiority.

2. To show to American manufacturers the character of goods they must compete with in the open markets of the world.

3. To show how American goods should be packed, labeled and put up for export trade.

4. To bring the manufacturers and merchants of the United States in direct personal contact with the principal buyers, merchants and bankers of foreign countries.

The exhibit of American manufacturers will constitute the most extensive feature of the enterprise. The plans are thoroughly comprehensive to attain the objects in view. Every effort will be made to display none but representative exhibits from representative manufacturers. This will make the exposition unusually attractive.

A second department will comprise exhibits of goods manufactured in European countries for the export trade of the world. They will be selected by competent specialists of the exposition, and will be complete and systematic illustrations of the requirements of different export markets. This department will be so organized as to show to American manufacturers just what competition they must meet abroad. By examination of these European goods an accurate judgment can be reached as to how far adaptations and alterations must be made in similar goods made here, and how far the American goods will find a market without modifications, owing to their present superiority.

A third department of the exposition will show in detail how American goods must be packed, labeled and shipped in order to meet the requirements of foreign trade. The value of this department can hardly be overestimated. In some countries, for instance, forms of packing that are usual with us entail heavy losses on foreign merchants, through increased import duties. In other countries, goods must be carried from the interior in carts or on mule back, and must therefore be put up in packages of convenient size and weight. In still other cases, custom house regulations require packages to be marked on the sides, with stencil, or in other ways not usual in the United States. Ignorance of these requirements has more than once led to serious losses, and even bad feeling between the American manufacturer who does not realize the necessity of departing from home methods, and the foreign merchant, who thinks that he is being wilfully injured. This department of the exposition will aim to include all necessary specimens, models and exhibits to obviate in the future all difficulties of this character.

In order to organize and conduct such an exposition of American manufactures suited for export, there has been incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania an organization entitled, "The Philadelphia Exposition Association." The association will have the united support of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum and of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia.

A NEW LINE OF LINOLEUM.

At the New York salesroom of John Crossley & Sons, Mr. Henry Beuttell is showing a new line of 8-4 English inlaid linoleum, which comprises about thirty patterns, notable for artistic and original designs and colorings. The goods are manufactured by a new and improved process, and have made a highly favorable impression upon all who have seen them.

The capital stock of the new company is placed at $60,000, with the privilege of increasing same to $500,000.

COSTIKYAN FRERES' ORIENTAL RUGS.

On page 77 of this issue Costikyan Frères, the extensive importers of Oriental rugs, call attention to their especially large and attractive offerings, comprising Turkish, Persian and other Oriental rugs and carpets in an immense variety of sizes and styles.

To make room for their greatly increased stock and to allow it to be displayed to better advantage the Messrs. Costikyan have enlarged their premises at 139 Broadway, New York, by leasing an additional floor in this building. Buyers have therefore excellent facilities now for examining conveniently a stock of rugs and carpets which will well repay the inspection of the most exacting handler of such goods.

A NEW COMMERCIAL ASSOCIATION.

Exporters, steamship agents and others interested in the foreign trade of the port of New York, held a meeting at the Produce Exchange, this city, on the 7th ult., when an association was formed with the following title: "Association for the Advancement of the Interests of the Port of New York." Thomas A. McIntyre, of McIntyre & Wardwell, president of the Brooklyn Wharf and Warehouse Company, was chosen president; Vincent Loeser, treasurer, and Lenro H. Spence, secretary. Among the vice-presidents chosen was Chas. S. Smith, of Smith, Hogg & Gardner. John Claflin, of the H. B. Claflin Company, was appointed as a member of the committee on enlargement of canals, and Oscar S. Straus, of R. H. Macy & Co., was made one of the members of the committee on port and terminal changes.

The objects of the association are: "The preservation, extension and development of the business interests of the port of New York, as affected by her avenues of communication and transportation from and to the West, by the condition of the harbor and its approaches, by the regulations governing the traffic of the port and by other considerations directly connected with the city of New York as a commercial port." Any person actively interested in the welfare of the port of New York may become a member of the association.

NEW THREAD COMPANY.

At Trenton, N. J., on the 10th inst., were filed articles of incorporation of the American Thread Company, with a capital of $12,000,000. The company will manufacture cotton fabrics and other manufactured goods composed of these materials. It will buy, grow and prepare raw materials and manufacture its own blocks, spools, bobbins, boxes, tickets, labels, wrappers, show cards, tools and other appliances. The stock is divided into 2,400,000 shares, each having a par value of $5. Half the stock is common and half preferred. The preferred stock is to bear interest at the rate of 6 per cent. The incorporators are Peter Lowe, Charles N. King and Ernest F. Charles, of Jersey City.

The Scranton Pa., Tribune said in a recent issue: "Since the deal with a Philadelphia carpet firm has fallen through, Board of Trade officials have been engaged in negotiations with other carpet people to establish a plant on the Tripp addition. Their efforts seem likely to meet with success. There will come here next week representatives of a large carpet concern prepared to give a bond to erect a mill, if ground and other facilities are furnished them, and they approve of this city's inducements. The firm is well quoted. Further information could not be obtained from Secretary Atherton, of the Board of Trade, yesterday."

CHARLES J. MENTRUP.

Charles J. Mentrup, now one of the best known men in the New York and Brooklyn trade, began life as an office boy in B. M. Cowperthwait & Co's establishment, in Chatham square, in this city, in 1882, where he remained for a year. He then went to the Cowperthwait Company, of Brooklyn, where he was in the counting room. In 1885 he went on the floor as a salesman, and by eight years of service won his spurs and was promoted to the charge of the carpet department. For three years past he has been buyer and manager for the carpet department of the Cowperthwait Company, of Brooklyn, and Cowperthwait & Co., in West Fourteenth street, New York. In January last he became also buyer for the Oriental rug department of the Geo. C. Flint Company, of Twenty-third street, New York. Mr. Mentrup was born in Brooklyn thirty-two years ago and was graduated from St. John's College

CHARLES J. MENTRUP.

NEW JERSEY CORPORATION LAW.

A measure pending in the New Jersey State Senate provides for some important changes in the corporation law of that State. The most important provision is one intended to prevent stockholders in New Jersey corporations being assessed on such holdings as personal property when the same stock is assessed by the State in bulk. This provision applies to residents of New York or other States as well as stockholders who live in New Jersey. The bill prohibits the practice of cumulative voting at elections of directors, &c., and prohibits also the incorporation of any company with a capital stock for beginning business of less than $1,000, or a total authorized capital stock of less than $2,000.

The Lewis Batting Company, of Walpole, Mass., is making the spring edge carpet lining, invented by C. C. Stewart, of Philadelphia, and it is now being brought before the trade.

The Goshen Sweeper Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., has issued a new price list embodying substantial reductions in prices, and announces that it will also offer this season a full line of broom-action sweepers, as well as the well-known and popular cam-action sweepers. The officers of the reorganized Goshen Sweeper Company are C. C. Comstock, president; John Mowat, vice-president; H. J. Bennett, secretary and treasurer.

SUPERIOR JAPANESE RUGS.

Despite the increased cost of Japanese rugs through the new tariff, E. T. Mason & Co. find their high class goods as popular as ever and are bringing out a large assortment of new designs, which will be ready for delivery in two weeks. Their exclusive specialties are the Taikio rugs, made in a heavy pile fabric and fast colors in the prevailing shades of decoration. The colors in these rugs are the result of long experimenting with new dyes, by which a method has been discovered of making the colors hold. They show a large assortment of blue and white and green and white rugs in all sizes.

The Inja carpet is an all wool fabric similar to Turkish and Persian rugs in weave and pattern, the designs being reproductions of choice and rare Turkish and Persian goods.

In Japanese matting the firm are offering special inducements in lots. Buyers are assured that the prices and character of the goods will attract them.

A large shipment of rugs has recently arrived per the Sikh which are ready for immediate delivery.

W. & J. SLOANE.

The offerings of W. & J. Sloane are of course an exceptionally important factor in the trade of every season, and to the present one this remark applies with special force. The lines shown include the product of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company's immense mills, comprising Savonnerie, Axminster, Gobelin, Moquette, Velvet and Tapestry carpeting, and Moquette and Axminster rugs.

The great variety of other offerings of W. & J. Sloane includes the very extensive lines of Ingrains and Art Squares manufactured by C. H. Masland & Sons, comprising a wide range of weaves and grades; the popular Smyrna rugs and carpets made by McCleary, Wallin & Crouse; the Nairn linoleums, and the R. H. & B. C. Reeve Company's floor oil cloths, for all of which goods W. & J. Sloane are sole selling agents.

They show also an immense line of Chinese and Japanese mattings of their own importation, and they are large manufacturers of cocoa matting and mats.

With such exceptional and exclusive attractions for buyers, it is not surprising that W. & J. Sloane have good reason to be satisfied with the trade of the season so far.

W. Cooper & Son, 32 North Fourth street, Philadelphia, are well and favorably known in the trade as manufacturers of a very desirable line of sample trunks and cases. The Messrs. Cooper make matting trunks to order. See their advertisement on page 104 of this issue.

The sweepers manufactured by the King Carpet Sweeper Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., have substantial merits that have been quickly appreciated by the trade, as is shown clearly by the large and constantly increasing demand for them. Write to the manufacturers for a catalogue and prices.

SAN FRANCISCO SAYINGS.

San Francisco, March 5.

The furniture trade is not getting on to its feet quite as rapidly as people thought that it would with the approach of spring, but it is reported that the demand runs toward a better class of goods, which shows that an improvement cannot be so very far off. This State was visited by a rain last week, which means many thousands of dollars on the credit side of California's ledger, and reports from the country are very encouraging. The farmers were beginning to feel quite disheartened, as it certainly did look for a while as though the crops would be a total failure owing to the lack of rain. Up to the present date the total season's rainfall is just one-third that of last year.

Grant Cook will open a furniture store at Healdsburg, Cal.

William Worstelt, of Wallace, Idaho, has gone into the furniture business at Wardner, that State.

Schlueter & Volberg report the shade business as very good. Their linoleum trade may also be said to be active.

Alex. Mackay & Son are receiving their regular spring goods and other necessities of trade. This house reports trade a little quiet.

E. C. Bast, the Los Angeles, Cal., furniture dealer, who was recently sent to the asylum on a charge of insanity, has been released.

Judging from the large number of Turkish rug auction sales being carried on in this city, one would be led to believe that a great many Oriental rugs are being sold.

W. G. Barr, the carpet dealer, will remove from 240 Sutter street to No. 227 of the same street on April 1. The new store is in the New Central Block, and is a commodious one.

Quite a number of furniture factory travelers, principally from Chicago, have been in this city for several weeks past, and judging from reports they have met with their usual success.

The Emporium furniture department is running along in its usual manner, with nothing special to report other than that trade is very fair, and that this department holds its own with others in the big department store.

D. R. Edwards, of the Curtin Furniture Company, and P. Weidenbaker, formerly of French & Weidenbaker, will open a store this month at Great Falls, Mon. Mr. Edwards will still retain his interest in the Curtin store, however, and the new place will be looked after by Mr. Weidenbaker.

A peculiar damage suit has been instituted in Oakland, Cal. A. H. Lindquist has sued the Marine Engineers' Benefit Association and Thomas Searey, of the Searey Furniture Company, for $10,000. He alleges that a roll of carpet was thrown from the defendants' premises, on Mission street, San Franscisco, which struck him on the head, with serious consequences. The carpet was being handled by Searey's employees.

Golden Gate.

CHADURJIAN BROTHERS' ORIENTAL RUGS.

Chadurjian Brothers, the well-known and extensive importers of Oriental rugs and carpets, present especially strong attractions to buyers in the large stock they have now on view at their New York salesroom, 369 Broadway. Besides an immense assortment of rugs and carpets, both modern and antique, in which all the important styles of the Orient are represented, the Messrs. Chadurjian show a very desirable line of Bagdad portières of their own manufacture, comprising a wide range of designs and subdued colors which must be seen to be appreciated.

Chadurjian Brothers rank especially high among importers of rugs, and their connections and facilities in the Orient enable them to interest strongly every handler of such goods. They also carry a stock with C. A. Auffmordt & Co., 33 and 35 Greene street.

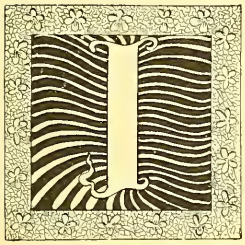
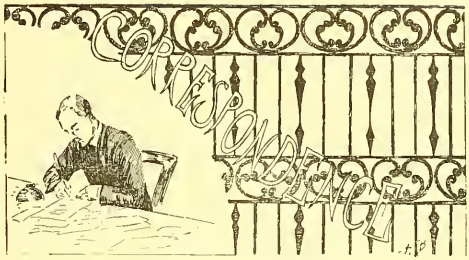
LINOLEUM ON CEMENT FLOORS.



It is not advisable to lay linoleum on solid cement floors such as are often used in public buildings. The solid cement floors generally contain still more or less moisture when the linoleum is to be laid, as it is a fact that cement attracts moisture in damp weather and gives it off when the air is dry. Furthermore, cement is a cold underlay. The disadvantages of linoleum lying on a damp underlay are not slight. Mould ensues, which causes unpleasant odors and gradually has a destructive effect on the linoleum, although the back is waterproof. These difficulties are obviated if a plastering of gypsum is used instead of the cement. The gypsum attracts the moisture contained in the concrete without giving it off again, and furnishes a beautiful, smooth, dry and warm flooring. In order to obtain a good gypsum wash floor, the concrete floors are only leveled, without being smoothed. If all the work in the different rooms is finished, so that only the laying of the linoleum remains, the concrete floors are made even with a thin layer of gypsum ; then they are dried sufficiently and finally covered with linoleum. A padding of pasteboard is now frequently employed. The same serves for the purpose of dampening the sound and for warmth, as well as for a protection against a wearing off of the pattern. But in no case is it advisable to use this padding on cement plaster floors. One should be sure, before laying the linoleum, that the pasteboard is completely dry. Besides, the edges of the linoleum must fit together so exactly that scouring water cannot get through. The same possibility must be excluded along the skirting boards, as other disadvantages may ensue. It is furthermore advisable to provide the skirting boards with a groove or to fix them the thickness of the linoleum higher on the wall, whereby the laying of the linoleum is facilitated. It is also well to wipe the linoleum after it is laid, but before use, once or twice a week with clear cold water. During or after the wiping the windows should be opened. It cannot be recommended to rub the linoleum with oil. The oil applied to the surface would combine with the dirt and soon give a black, dirty surface to the covering. Waxing is also valueless. It is absolutely disadvantageous to paste the linoleum down entirely, as it is better in every way if it lies loose ; the paste is saved and any small repairs that may arise will not necessitate the destruction of the whole covering. As regards the conservation of linoleum when stored, it must be observed that the dirt must be first removed before the linoleum is rubbed with oil and the latter must be spread apart well.

The Massasoit Manufacturing Company, Fall River, Mass , are well known in the trade as the manufacturers of W. E. Turner's popular quilted, interlaced stair pads, which are for sale by all jobbers. See the company's advertisement on page 106 of this issue. These pads should be represented in the stock of every dealer.



A Question of Shortage.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 7, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

We would like to hear from the retailers of the country regarding Ingrain yardage. We have been investigating the matter by measuring six rolls of four standard makes of Ingrains, with the following result: Of the twenty-four rolls, four overran from one-quarter to three-quarters of a yard, six barely held out, and fourteen were short from a quarter of a yard to 1½ yards.

With the known disposition of Ingrains to "creep" after being once unrolled, there is, as we figure it, a direct loss of yardage of from 1 to 4 yards on every roll of Ingrain we cut up. It used to be the case that Ingrain carpets would overrun from 2 to 5 yards per roll, which was right, as it is an impossibility to get by hand measure the yardage indicated by power measuring machines.

We believe, if the matter was investigated, that retailers would find that they are not getting paid for what they pay for.

Our measurements were made by three very competent, close measurers, and their measurements did not vary one-half yard per roll. Yours truly,

New England Furniture and Carpet Company.
W. L. Harris, President.

THE PROPOSED NIAGARA FALLS MILLS.

The Buffalo (N. Y.) Courier in a recent issue said: "Alexander Morton & Co., of Scotland, have signed a contract with the Niagara Falls Power Company for power, and will locate a factory in the vicinity of the Falls. The company is one of the largest manufacturers in the world of carpets, draperies and curtains, and the product of its factories is largely imported into this country.

"Just as to what extent this company will go into manufacturing here, or the amount of power contracted for, it is impossible to learn, as the officials of the Power Company are very reticent concerning the particulars.

"Alexander Morton, the head of the Scotch firm, was in this city last fall as the guest of J. N. Adams. While here he was shown Niagara Falls, and visited the power house. Mr. Morton was said to be very favorably impressed at that time with the power, and its possibilities for manufacturing, and the signing of this contract is the result of that visit.

"It is said that there is another large concern that is to locate at the Falls in a short time, but the power people refuse to mention the facts concerning the company."

Good's rotary carpet cleaning machine enables carpet and upholstery goods dealers to add a very profitable branch to their business at little cost. Write to F. H. Good, 942 and 944 North Ninth street, Philadelphia, for particulars. They will interest any dealer.

Around and About.

THE accompanying diagram shows a big job just completed in one of the new sky-scrapers in upper Broadway. The matting which covers the whole lower hallway was bound with Knapp rubber binding, and the illustration gives an idea of the facility with which curves and irregular outlines can be handled. Of course such a job would have been impossible with the old-fashioned metal binding.

THE following advertisement came under the notice of C. N. Head in a daily paper:

IF SICK SEND A LOCK OF YOUR HAIR, NAME, AGE, sex and 4 cents postage, and I will diagnose your case and tell you what will cure your ailments. Address....Medical Institute.

Whereupon he cut from the coat of his favorite Newfoundland dog named Friar Tuck a handsome lock of glossy black hair and mailed with the 4 cents in stamps in a letter reading:

"Inclosed find lock of hair for diagnosis. Name, F. Tucker; sex, male; age, middle age." The answer came back with business-like promptness on an imposing letter head, as follows:

Dictated by Dr. ——.

Scientific diagnosis of F. Tucker:

Your liver is not active and your tongue is coated, and you have faulty digestion and dizziness and headaches, and at times rheumatic symptoms. Also nervous debility and weak condition of the kidneys and sexual system. . . . Our magnetic powders and Sexual Pills will cure you. The cost of the medicine for one month is $3. This diagnosis is free. Return this letter with your order for medicine. Yours truly, DR. ——.

Friar Tuck's tongue, like that of most dogs, is coated, yet he steadily refuses to take the sexual pills.

WE mentioned in our last issue the fact that Joseph Hynes, who was formerly with W. & J. Sloane, is now private secretary to Commissioner McCartney, head of the Street Cleaning Department. Mr. Hynes entered the service of the Cunard Steamship Company as a boy, became ticket agent and then secretary to one of the officers of the company. While there he naturally met many prominent men, and on one occasion became acquainted with Chauncey M. Depew and John Sloane. The latter took a liking to him, and engaged him as secretary for Henry T. Sloane and Rudolph Scherer, of the California house. Afterward he held various positions traveling on the road, and was finally assistant to the manager in New York. He is a member of the Tammany Hall General Committee.

A predecessor of his in W. & J. Sloane's, John Hynes—no relative, however—left the house to go into the office of Butler, Stillman & Hubbard, where he studied law, and was admitted to the bar. He is now understood to be slated for a position in the Corporation Counsel's office. He is also a member of the Tammany General Committee Whatever may be thought of Tammany Hall by its opponents, its discipline is simply superb. When it gets hold of a bright man who is loyal and serviceable it rewards his work.

WHILE the Spanish warship Vizcaya lay in New York harbor, the Cowperthwait Company, of Brooklyn, received an order for 230 yards of linoleum, 70 yards of carpet, with mats, rugs, &c., the whole bill amounting to about $500. The order was received at noon with instructions that the goods be laid the following day. At 5 P. M. word came that the job must be completed the same night. The linoleum had to be brought from the American Linoleum Company's works on Staten Island. Special trucks were brought into service, the goods hauled to Tompkinsville, where a tug with the layers met them and started for the Vizcaya.

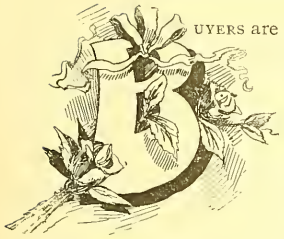
They reached the ship at 10 o'clock at night prepared to do the work. Unfortunately none of the officers of the watch could speak English, and the Cowperthwait Company's interpreter was not on hand. The upholsterers were therefore obliged to go ashore and spend the night. During the time one of them learned enough Spanish by reading cigar box labels to be able to explain the next morning that they were not pirates, and that linoleum, if properly handled, was not dangerous. They were therefore allowed to come on board early the next morning and finished the job in short order. As the last tacks were being driven the big anchors were being weighed, and as the men stepped aboard the tug the ship started on her way to Havana.

AS early as 1815 merchants were endeavoring to discover some effective method of collecting bad debts. The most novel plan was that adopted by Joseph Kendrick, of Bangor, Me. In the November 15 issue of the Register, of that town, he advertised as follows:

JOSEPH KENDRICK informs some of his old customers that he has on hand an assortment of FANCY GOODS, such as are generally made use of in the market, consisting of Notes and Accounts, which he offers on as good terms as can be purchased in this town, if applied for soon; and as they have laid on hand a long time, if there is not an immediate call for them, he is determined to employ a sheriff to carry them from house to house and peddle them out. In that case he cannot insure them to come so reasonable.

HARDWOOD floors grow more popular each year, and of these the "endwood" mosaic is the most beautiful as well as the most durable. The sanitary advantages and beauty of hardwood floors have been so well demonstrated that many of the handsomest homes in New York have not a square inch of carpet within them and use only rugs as floor coverings. Ten years ago wide borders and fancy centres were the style; now the floor is laid in plain squares, and small rugs, not large ones, are the rule. Li Hung Chang was so taken with the hardwood floors of New York that one of his suite arranged with a manufacturer here to fill some orders for China.

THE BIG AUCTION SALE.



Buyers are reminded that the auction sale of the entire stock of John & James Dobson, which was saved from the fire in their Philadelphia wholesale and retail establishment, will occur on the 24th inst., commencing at 10 o'clock on that date, and continuing on each day until the goods are all sold. Everything to be sold will be found in the lofts at 364 and 366 Broadway, New York, on March 22 and 23, the two days prior to the sale, when the catalogues will also be ready. It is suggested that buyers should inspect the stock on the 22d and 23d insts., so as to be able to check the lots they desire to bid upon. This will be the largest sale of salvage carpets ever held. The Underwriters' Salvage Company have received several offers for the whole or a part of the stock, but have decided to sell the goods only at auction, hence the trade will find that everything saved from the fire will be offered at this sale. The announcement of the auctioneers will be found in this issue, and states that the stock consists of 11,000 rolls, half rolls and pieces of all kinds of carpets and mattings, the value of the same before the fire being over $600,000. It will evidently pay buyers from out of town to make a special trip to New York to attend this sale.

Exports of straw matting from Hong Kong and Canton to the United States during the period beginning June 20, 1897, and ending January 14, 1898, amounted to 180,433 rolls.

As previously noted in The Review, the Alexander Smith & Sons' Carpet Company has had in use for some months in its Tapestry mill the matching mechanism invented by Alexander Clapperton, of Yonkers, N. Y., and the E. S. Higgins Company has recently begun to use the device also in Tapestry manufacture, under a royalty arrangement with the inventor.

At New Haven, Conn., on the 10th inst., Judge Townsend, of the United States Circuit Court, sustained the Board of General Appraisers, who held that the Dingley Tariff Act did not go into effect until signed by the President on July 24, 1897. The board had reversed a decision of the Collector of the Port holding that the act went into force at the beginning of the day.

The supreme position occupied by Philip Doerr & Sons' Ingrains has been forcibly demonstrated this season. With advanced prices and the strong competition of underpriced offerings the firm have been able to run their mill fully up to this month, and the looms are still nearly all occupied. Dealers who have handled the Doerr Ingrains well know that there is no argument in quoting that other goods are offered at lower prices. They realize that the only comparison is with the best makes in the market, and that experience in retailing the goods proves them to be worth every iota of the price paid.

NEW MAKE OF INLAID LINOLEUM.

A new accomplishment in domestic manufacture is about ready for the market. The Geo. W. Blabon Company are showing perfected samples of inlaid linoleum and have some of the goods made up. To attain this culmination they have been experimenting with different kinds of machinery and methods for the past four or five years, being determined not to put inlaid linoleum on the market until they had proved their ability to produce an article of the very highest standard in construction and finish.

To reach this point has involved an immense outlay of money, for they practically threw away one machinery plant after deciding to employ another and superior method of manufacture. They have gone on the principle of making haste slowly, and have not offered their goods until every point of criticism which could arise had been satisfied in their judgment at least.

The Blabon inlaid linoleum is made with serrated joints; that is, the inlaid pieces are joined in slightly zigzag instead of straight lines, the idea being to secure the greatest integral adhesion both on the surface and to the canvas foundation. In the treating of the cork mash the Blabon Company have also introduced new features which aim to improve the solidity of the completed cloth. Six patterns are now shown and may be seen at the company's salesrooms in Philadelphia and New York.

The first shipment was made to the Trorlicht, Duncker & Renard Carpet Company, of St. Louis, last week. It was not intended to deliver any of the goods for this season, but Captain Duncker wanted to use the new inlaids on a special contract, and the Blabon Company consented to deliver a few pieces for that purpose.

NOTABLE OFFERINGS IN SMYRNA RUGS.

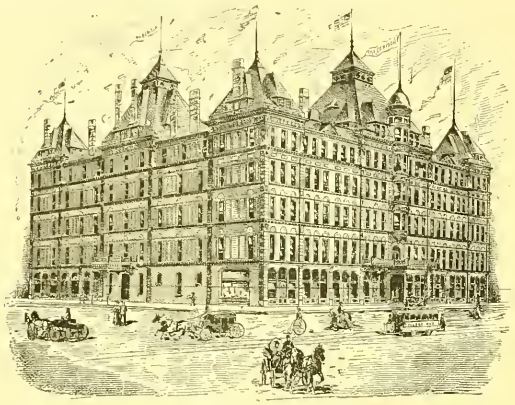
The lines of Smyrna rugs manufactured by McCleary, Wallin & Crouse have proved a great success, a fact very creditable to the technical skill and good judgment of this firm. McCleary, Wallin & Crouse evidently understand the wants of the trade in Smyrnas, and have every facility required for meeting these demands perfectly and promptly. See their advertisement on page 11 of this issue.

On page 96 of this issue, F. G. Rogers, 1015 Filbert street, Philadelphia, offers some special bargains to the trade, among which are all wool Extra-Supers, Pro-Brussels, C. C. Extra-Supers, all wool Art Squares and China and Japan mattings. These goods are offered at especially low prices and are ready for immediate delivery. Write to Mr. Rogers for further particulars.

The Columbia Wood Novelty Company, which has removed from Chicago to Buchanan, Mich., manufactures wood carpets and parquetry flooring. In the manufacture of parquet floors it has introduced several new features, taking four pieces, gluing them together in such a manner as to show the perfect grain of the wood. The flooring is easy to put down, and saves a great deal of work. The concern is already receiving orders from a large number of places.

THE DENISON, INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

This popular and finest hotel in the State of Indiana has recently undergone a great many changes, making it without doubt one of the most complete and comfortable hostelries in the West. A home-like, modern and up-to-date caravansary, equipped for the accommodation of the public with all the latest and most costly furniture and furnishings made expressly for it, it is a hotel which is now the pride of its citizens, and worthy of the patronage of the highest class of guests. Those who require the best possible attention to be found can secure accommodations here that few other houses can offer. It is noted throughout the entire country for its bright and cheerful halls and corridors, its large and well lighted rooms, all newly furnished and decorated in the highest art, and its extra large sample rooms for the accommodation of the commercial trade. This hotel is the headquarters for the furniture, carpet and upholstery trade, besides being headquarters for all large conventions that assemble there. During the past four months the office and corridors have been completely remodeled, in fact, rebuilt, all the woodwork being removed. The only material used was metallic lathing, iron and marble.

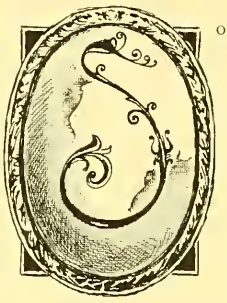


THE DENISON, INDIANAPOLIS.

The Denison caters only to the best class of patronage. The hotel was built on a generous foundation, nearly all the rooms being supplied with bath, dressing rooms, private parlors, and comfortable and home-like arrangements generally. A guest once quartered here always returns. At great expense, the fireplaces have all been removed, and steam heat is now supplied to every room in the house. Fire hose is on every floor, which connect with large fire pumps in the engine room should they be required. In fact, there is not a fire in the entire building.

The Erwin Hotel Company is the proprietor, the president of which is Mr. D. P. Erwin, of D. P. Erwin & Co., one of the most progressive and enterprising citizens of Indianapolis. The management of the Denison is in the hands of Mr. T. J. Cullen, who has long been identified with it, and the success it has attained has been largely due to his personal care of the guests. Should the weary traveler ever have the good fortune to go to this beautiful city he will find rest and comfort at this popular hotel, which is one of the best appointed in America.

W. T. SMITH & SON.



Some interesting and pertinently illustrated advice to the trade will be found in the advertisetisement of W. T. Smith & Son on the colored sheet opposite page 21 of this issue.

The Messrs. Smith's extensive offerings in Smyrna carpets and rugs and Art Squares have found a quick market among the dealers, as was to have been expected, for the lines are the finest and most attractive ever produced in the factories of W. T. Smith & Son, which rank among the largest and most thoroughly equipped Smyrna and Art Square mills in this country.

The firm's lines of chenille, tapestry and lace curtains and chenille and tapestry covers form another highly important factor in their business, for they show in these goods an immense assortment of choice and quick selling patterns, which no buyer should fail to see.

C. M. BAILEY'S SONS & CO.

The old established floor oil cloth firm of C. M. Bailey's Sons & Co opened the season with an exceptionally extensive line of new and standard patterns in all the well-known and popular grades manufactured in its factories, and the line has been promptly appreciated by buyers throughout the country. It is on view at the New York store of the firm, 81 Walker street, where Messrs. John Bailey, Wilson Schwarz and Willard C. Hawk have their headquarters, and at the Philadelphia salesroom, 419 Arch street, where Mr. D. G. White is in charge.

The wide Mosaic or seamless Velvet carpets of John & James Dobson are now made in six colorings, a new green, designated as "Green 27," having been added to the previous line of crimson, blue, green, sage and old rose. The product of the goods is being well taken up.

Albert Graff, of Albert Graff & Co., the Philadelphia carpet and matting wholesalers, is now in Japan, having completed his business in China. He will sail from Yokohama on the 23rd inst., per the Coptic and will reach Philadelphia about April 15. The firm are landing this week large invoices of mattings purchased by Mr. Graff, which include a splendid assortment of all grades. They offer the goods at particularly low prices and can interest the largest users of mattings. Mr. Graff's mission in China and Japan was to buy goods at under regular prices, and that he has accomplished his object is demonstrated by the close figures quoted on the goods which have just arrived. Albert Graff & Co. also have a big line of Tapestries of the best makes, which were purchased at manufacturers' surplus sales and which they quote at a big discount from the present manufacturers' prices. It should be remembered that they can deliver these goods immediately from their warehouse, 609 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

TREATING FLOORS FOR RUGS AND CARPETS.

Very favorite methods of increasing the beauty of a room are to stain and polish its floor, and strew rugs about; but this same floor often becomes a thorn in the flesh of the inexperienced housewife. In average houses the boards of the floors are, to say the least of it, not at all in a fit condition; that is to say, they are generally uneven, and mostly badly fitted together. This misfit is a fault of which householders have a right to complain, for it is detrimental to health, and incompatible with comfort. If, then, it is decided, either on account of health, enonomy or appearance, not to have a carpet laid down all over the floor, the first thing to do is to have the boards attended to. If the cracks are large, they should be filleted with thin strips of wood; if only small, they may be filled in with putty, which, when hard, can be painted over, and will look like the wood. All unevenness must be planed off, and then the staining process may be begun. It is absolutely imperative not to hurry the operation; both the stain and the varnish must have plenty of opportunity to dry before the room is used, or all the work will be in vain. This filleting, or filling in, of spaces is important, for it does away with one more harbor for dust, flies, &c.

The simplest treatment is as follows: When a thoroughly smooth surface has been secured, let the floor be well scrubbed, and then left to dry, after which either of the two following processes can be carried out—they are both equally good: Put on one or two coats of size, remembering that the subsequent success of the staining and varnishing will greatly depend on the careful application of this. Next use the ordinary oak stain, light or dark, according to taste, and when this is quite dry, lay on the floor a coat of varnish. This must be done with a flat brush, which will be found to work more smoothly than a round one. Any painter or decorator will suppy the varnish; only be careful to have it mixed with quick driers, and, above all, do not use the room until this last application is perfectly dry, otherwise the slightest mark will show, and your work will be wasted. Apply the varnish smoothly, and in as straight lines as possible.

Another process is quicker, cheaper and, provided the boards are smooth, almost as effective. After the floor has been well scrubbed and dried, apply one or two coats of ordinary oak stain, the darker the better: let this dry, and then polish with the following mixture, which, by the way, is the proper thing to use on any stained floor, including those stained by the process given above: Melt some beeswax over the fire, stirring some turpentine into it at the same time; when is is of the consistency of stiff paste, put it into a stone jar. Apply a little of this mixture while warm, with a good, firm, dry scrubbing brush (kept for this purpose alone), and brush the floor briskly, as if polishing boots, beginning at one corner, and taking an arm's length at a time. This ought to be done once in three or four weeks at least; the daily treatment of such floors consists in merely dusting them with a soft, dry cloth; washing would, of course, discolor them; spots can generally be removed with a little stain and polish. Abroad, the "frottoir" is exclusively used for polishing stained floors, and it greatly dimishes the labor, besides being much quicker in bringing about the desired result.

The most satisfactory kind of flooring is undoubtedly the parquet, which originally came to us from abroad, and with which many of us have grown so familiar on the Continent. During the last few years parquet floors have become much better known among us, and even those in moderate circumstances can indulge in this most sanitary, decorative and labor saving kind of floor.

Of course, as with all other articles, a certain amount of care is required to keep the floor in proper order, but it can be done with very little labor and by the most inexperienced domestic. When the layers have laid the parquet they rub it all over with a cloth dipped in French polish; this has the effect of hardening the surface and rendering it ready for immediate use; moreover it will remain in perfect condition for about a fortnight or more, according to the amount of traffic. At the end of this period a little beeswax melted in turpentine (as above), and rubbed over the floor with an old, soft cloth, will be all that is necessary to give a beautiful gloss; or the "frottoir" can be used for the application with the same result. The daily process in such rooms would merely consist in taking up the dust with a cloth, any little stains or spots of mud being easily removed by a little extra rubbing.

More serious damage, or accidental stains, should not be treated without professional help; there are very few substances that cannot be treated effectually by an experienced workman, and such serious accidents are fortunately rare. Another advantage resulting from parquet floors lies in the fact that with every polishing the surface becomes harder, less absorbent, and much smoother, thus acquiring a richer and deeper tint, which goes far toward enhancing the attractions of the general surroundings. The whole secret of keeping up a good looking floor is to do the cleaning regularly, to watch for daily traffic stains, and to remove them at once, and to do the fortnightly or periodical polishing advocated above as lightly as possible; more harm has been done to good parquets by the thick application of beeswax, &c., than can possibly be imagined. Of all the hygienic inventions so much and so rightly insisted upon, the question of floors is perhaps one of the most important. Many people have now discarded the old fashioned "all over" carpets, not so much on the ground of economy as on that of cleanliness: squares or rugs, both large and small, are more easily removed for frequent shaking, besides being generally pleasanter to the eye. But if these be used over ill-fitting boards, the harboring of dirt and dust in the inevitable cracks does away with the benefit which might otherwise be derived from the above change.

Imports of carpeting into the United States during the seven months ending January, 1888, amounted to 291,961 square yards, valued at $316,801. During the corresponding period of 1887 the imports were 231,441 square yards, valued at $350,133.

On February 28 of this year Mrs. Semple, who is now sixty-seven years of age, was married to George T. Stevens, a jeweler, of Detroit, Mich. The entire estate is estimated at $1,000,000. A bill in partition was filed on March 9.

The New York and Amsterdam Carpet Company's building at 364 and 366 Canal street, New York, now presents a greatly improved and attractive appearance inside and outside. The exterior is bright with new paint and signs, and the modern changes are in consonance with the enterprising methods of W. F. Carroll.

E. W. Sutton has steadfastly maintained his reputation as a producer of reliable carpet linings. Buyers can depend upon the representations regarding his goods and should consult him about samples and prices, writing to 53 Sedgwick street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The new Oriental rug firm of A. & M. Karagheusian have made an exceptionally good start in business. During the past fifteen days their spacious salesroom at 365 Broadway has been visited by a number of leading rug buyers, who admit that the assortment of goods and inducements offered by the firm compel purchases. Mr. Jinishian has especially interested close buyers by offering selections of bales at bale prices, and the extent of the stock of goods is evident to every visitor to the establishment. For the coming fortnight the special attractions will be fine Kermans in small and large sizes, antique Irans, small and large, and particularly fine antique Shirvans. The firm invite the closest comparison between their goods and prices and any other lines in the market.

Boston and the East.

Boston Budget.

The carpet trade is dull. Whether this is owing to the war scare or not I cannot say; but trade is dull.

Boston, March 10.

The carpet and furniture establishment of George P. Staples & Co., at 739 Washington street, was badly damaged by water Sunday morning. The cause was a defect in the "hot water" heating apparatus. Almost the entire stock of carpets and furniture was seriously damaged.

T. D. Foley, with Thos. O'Callaghan & Co., is on the sick list.

This week's visitors include Mr. Breslin, of the Fries-Breslin Company.

Charles Price, of McCallum & McCallum, has been in Boston for a few days.

Thomas O'Callaghan and his rug buyer, Mr. Wood, were in New York the past week.

B. F. Dutton, of Houghton & Dutton, has purchased the Old Congregational Publishing House Block, the assessed valuation of which is $527,000.

Herbert L. Lane, Boston and New England representative of J. & J. Dobson, is back from his wedding trip, which included a stay at Lakewood, N. J., and the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

W. H. Reid, 611 Washington street, has been doing a remarkably good business during the last three months in W. T. Smith & Son's lines of Art Squares, rugs, curtains, table covers, &c. He visits about every town in New England where there is a store carrying such goods, and keeps at it constantly. Mr. Reid devotes his entire attention to Smith & Son's account, as the large and attractive assortment of goods made by this firm requires his whole attention.

Joseph H. Sanford, who was in the carpet department of R. H. White & Co. for several years, is dead. Mr. Sanford went from here to take a position with J. H. Bruce & Co., at Middletown, Conn.; then he went to Florida for his health, and was in the commission business at Atlanta, Ga. Returning North he died at Middletown at the age of twenty-eight years, leaving a widow. He was a victim of consumption. F. J. B.

The Titus & Buckley Company, Lynn, Mass., was recently partially burned out, suffering a loss of about $1,000, which, however, was covered by insurance.

The Weeks Furniture Company, Woonsocket, R. I., is increasing its ground floor space by the addition of the store formerly occupied by C. F. Hixon. By the addition the company gains 4,000 square feet of floor space.

A suit in chancery has been brought by T. J. Deavitt, assignee of the insolvent estate of B. P. White, formerly of Calais, against the carpet and furniture firm of B. W. Hooker & Co., of Barre, Vt. Mr. Deavitt claims that Mr. White, who is father-in-law of Mr. Hooker, is a half owner of the furniture store, and that one-half the stock and fixtures, valued at $10,000, is an asset of the White estate.

The opening of the Newburyport (Mass.) Furniture Company, on February 26, was a success. Nason's orchestra was stationed on the lower floor, and discoursed sweet music through the entire evening. Mr. Walcott, the proprietor, made things pleasant for the visitors. Over 300 pinks were given to the ladies who called. The store looked well, and some fine furniture was displayed. In fixing up the store since the fire a great many improvements have been made. The workroom has been made larger, and so has the office.

An adjourned meeting of creditors of Jackman & Sexton, Nashua, N. H., was heid on March 4, at the office of the Lyon Furniture Agency in Boston. The committee found the financial condition of the firm practically as reported by the assignees. It follows:

Total assets	$22,928.00

There are doubtful accounts of $2,657.53.

LIABILITIES.

Rent and taxes, $500; borrowed money, $16,900; merchandise bills, $15,551.48; total liabilities	$32,951.48

One thousand one hundred dollars' worth of carpets have been replevined by W. W. Corson and W. H. Chipman & Co. The report continues: "We have made inquiry of the landlord as to the possibility of an assignee in insolvency, or some other person, being able to secure the store to close out the stock for benefit of creditors, and learn that it cannot readily be done. No one but Jackman & Sexton can secure the premises from the owners, and, moreover, we are informed by the debtors that in case the stock is closed out by an assignee in insolvency they will buy this stock, or a new one with promised capital. They are determined, they say, to continue this business in this store. We regret that all our efforts to secure an offer of compromise from the debtors have thus far been unavailing, and we recommend that they make an offer to creditors." Mr. Randall, the assignee, recommended that the debtors pay 25 per cent., and the committee indorsed such an offer if paid in cash in thirty days, but voted that if they did not make such an offer at once the assignee should put the concern into insolvency.

British exports of carpets for the month of January, according to the Board of Trade returns, amounted to 730,200 yards, valued at £69,744.

During the Bowery lodging house fire on the morning of the 13th inst. the carpet and furniture store of Alexander Brothers adjoining was entered by the firemen, and during the excitement incidental to such affairs somebody helped himself to what loose change was left in the till overnight. They sustained no further loss, however.

The King Carpet Sweeper Company have proved their ability to produce satisfactory carpet sweepers and to sell them at lowest prices. They employ an automatic drop pan device exclusive to them which assures clean sweeping. Dealers are invited to write for prices and catalogue to the King Carpet Sweeper Company, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Frank D. Greenough, who represents the Grand Rapids Furniture Company on carpet sweepers and other productions, is back at business after a month's absence, due to a peculiar accident at Syracuse, N. Y. While passing through a street in that city on February 8 a block of ice fell from a seven story building, striking him on the head and causing a severe injury.

Patent No. 599,671, for a carpet sweeper, was issued on the 23d ult. to Allen B. Linn, of Grand Rapids, Mich., assignor to T. Stewart White, Thomas Friant, Gaius W. Perkins and Charles J. Reed, of the same place. The application was filed July 23, 1897. The first paragraph of the claim reads as follows: "In a carpet sweeper, a case having inclined portions, guard bars, a brush shaft having pulleys journaled on said bars, springs attached near their middle to said inclined sides and extending over the ends of the same inside said bars, drive wheels journaled on said springs, and stops on said springs to engage said bars, substantially as described:"

Hanna, who has looked after the carpet and upholstery stock in Kingsford's store, and Daniel Griffin, who has been associated with him in that department, have opened for themselves on West Bridge street, between Second and Third streets, where they carry a stock of carpets, curtains, window shades, &c. Mr. Hanna has been in Kingsford's store for fourteen years past, a major portion of which has been spent in the carpet department. Mr. Griffin has been connected with the same department for six years. The new firm name is Hanna & Griffin.

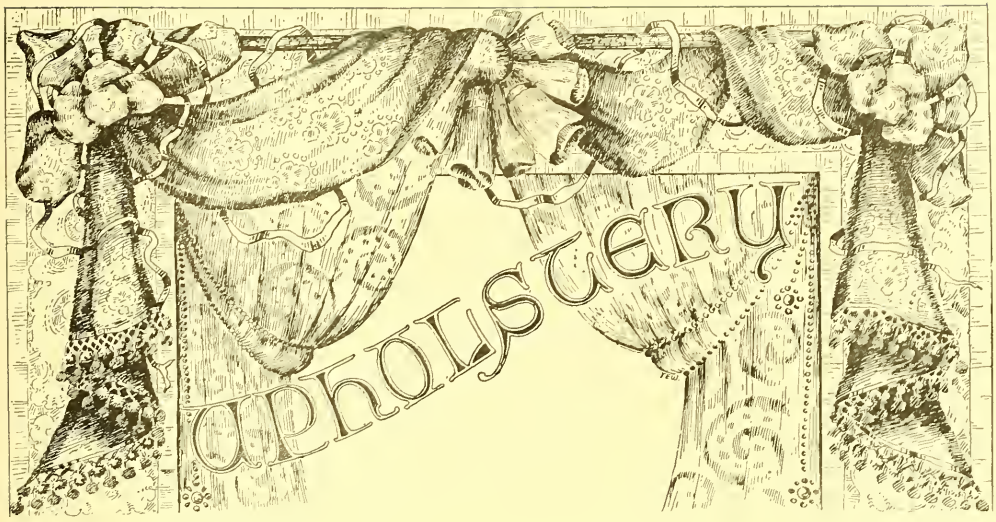
For a view of a big collection of large sized Oriental carpets, buyers should visit the warerooms of Fritz & La Rue, 1128 and 1130 Market street, Philadelphia. They now have on show a splendid assortment of carpet sizes, which in patterns, colorings and dimensions offer a rare opportunity for selection.



THE FORTNIGHT.

The past two weeks have witnessed little change in the upholstery situation. Business continues to be only moderate in all departments. Lace curtains still lead the procession, and in heavy goods tapestries are a close second. The revival in the demand for all-over patterns in chenilles is still a marked feature of the market, but there is no improvement in dado or plain goods. The domestic makers of lace curtains find that even running full time it will be difficult for them to fill the orders now on their books before the opening of the retail season.

The new forest green furniture and wall panelings, with brackets and cabinets, make up a charming scheme of color for a sitting room, breakfast room or country house parlors. Combined with bright plaid or white wicker furniture, it is the prettiest thing imaginable for summer homes.

Among the pretty printed cottons for window curtains cushions and bedspreads for English country houses are blue ones with a good, effective bordering in white, or the white with the willow pattern and others in blue. These cottons wash perfectly, and at small cost a country bedroom can be made to look very artistic. White valances, worked in washing crewels, look very well with the colored curtains. Several of the old-fashioned white counterpanes are ornamented with bold floral designs in the centre and corners, with a trellis in pale gold color filling up the spaces, all in washing silks. Smocked curtain bands in sateen or silk are somewhat of a novelty. They are made of a double piece, and have overcast loops at each end. They average 9 inches in width, and the smocking occupies 3 inches down the middle. It is much the fashion now to have colored silk bedspread and pillow covers with plain muslin over, and frills of embroidered muslin, and the pillows in the shape of hearts. Small pillows for the sofa are also in this shape, and some like large crackers, with deep lace at each end, tied round with satin ribbon and finished off with a bunch of loops. On the bedspread and pillow covers a large monogram is embroidered in white. On a sofa the two cushions—large, and always negligently placed one half over the other—are of contrasting colors; and the footstool should be of one or of both colors. The newest cushions have a frill 2 inches wide only instead of the usual deep one.

W. H. FLETCHER & CO.

J. FRANK RAYMOND has bought the interest of Edward B. Fletcher in the firm of W. H. Fletcher & Co., and the business will be continued under the old style by Frank N. Fletcher, J. Frank Raymond and Edwin D. Teague as general partners, Edward B. Fletcher continuing as a special. The latter gentleman has been compelled to retire from active participation in the affairs of the firm owing to the fact that the climate of New York was undermining his health. He has a tract of land comprising some 1,500 acres in Tennessee, and will probably take up his permanent residence in that State.

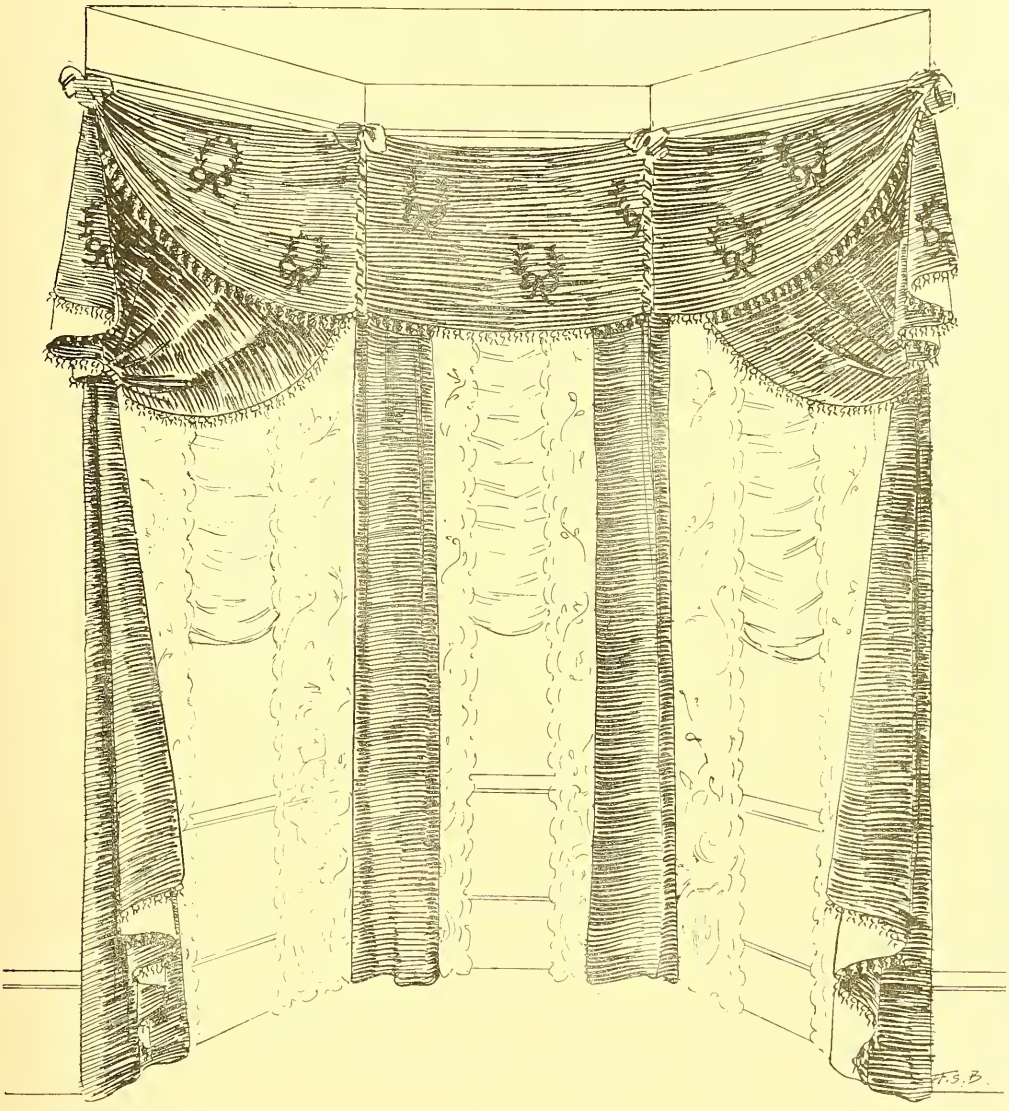
Mr. Raymond is well known to the lace curtain trade. For over forty years his father was manager of the white goods and upholstery department of H. B. Claflin & Co., and the son became associated with him in the management of the department in 1883, and from '87 to '97 did all the foreign buying.

The Sash Curtain Rod and Novelty Company, Providence, R. I., have materially increased their business this season through their extensive line of popular priced rods for sash curtains, vestibule curtains and also lace curtains.

The new advertisement of The Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company in this issue is one of the most ornamental and attractive ever printed in THE REVIEW. It is another illustration of the excellent taste of Geo. F. Hensel, head of the company, who is one of the busiest thinkers in the trade. The major part of the many superb novelties gotten out by the Hensel Company is directly due to the versatility and artistic ideas of Mr. Hensel.

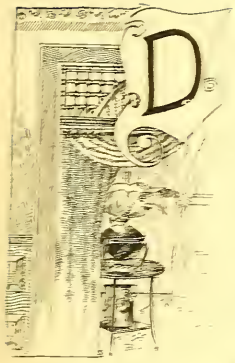
It should be borne in mind that J. S. Lesser & Co. are closely identified with the lace curtain factory at Tariffville, Conn., and distribute the larger part of its output. With such a source of supply it is obvious that they are important people to see on domestic lace curtains, and it will pay buyers to inspect the line of these goods on show at their special salesrooms, 473 Broadway, New York. The firm also display a strong assortment of novelty nets for making up curtains, and are large producers of ruffled and insertion net curtains.

The protest of Hees, Macfarlane & Co. against the decision of the collector at Detroit, Mich., on a consignment of cotton window lace shades, which were assessed for duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 339, act of July 24, 1897, has been overruled. The protestants claimed that the lace was dutiable under paragraph 340 of the above act, which provides for "lace window curtains, pillow shams and bed sets, finished or unfinished, made on the Nottingham lace curtain machine or on the Nottingham warp machine." The Board of General Appraisers, in affirming the assessment of duty, held that the goods in question were neither curtains, pillow shams nor bed sets.



AN IDEA FOR THE PRACTICAL DRAPER'S PORTFOLIO.

WOOD TAPESTRIES.



Details of a new method of employing wood fabric for tapestries are published by the inventor, M. Ferdinand A. Jumeau, of Lyons, France. The process is simple. A sheet of veneer is pasted on a woven cloth, the glue used being of a character to remain pliable and flexible when dry: among other substances a solution of india rubber is suitable for this purpose, and so is any other glue which is soft and supple. On the glue becoming quite dry the wood can be decorated or be left in the natural state. Incisions are made across the wood without cutting the cloth lining, these incisions, which are at equal distance from one another, being made across the fibres of the wood, so that they shall be cut right through, in this way preventing any harmful effect in the working of the wood when in use; or a similar result can be obtained by dividing the wooden surface into small squares. The incisions are made with very sharp-cutting thin knives, with blades exactly one height, and a thickness corresponding to that of the veneer sheet to be cut—the incisions thus produced going right across the wooden sheet without rendering or damaging the woven lining. Finished in this manner the fabric can immediately be pasted on any wall, in imitation of plain wood wainscoting, and will never bulge.

COSEY CORNERS AND DAMASCUS WARES.

Abram Brueres & Co., of 874 Broadway, New York, in connection with their other goods, have a special offering in their Turkish Cosey Corners, at $5., $7., $10. and upward. Besides their Oriental rugs they are making a feature of their Japanese and Damascus goods, and as the latter, although the firm produce their own ship and are running day and night, they find some difficulty in keeping up with the orders already received. The products of Robert Lewis have been among the best sellers in the market, and to Mr. Lewis is due as much credit as to any other one manufacturer in the trade for popularizing tapestry fabrics during the past few years. His products consist of curtains, table covers, couch covers, fabrics for drapery hangings and coverings. The new office is in Room 611, Hartford Building, 41 Union square, and will add another strong attraction to the already great inducements for buyers to visit this centrally located building.

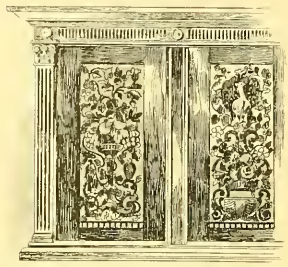
EMBROIDERED OVERMANTEL.

A RECENT example of decorative work of an unhackneyed style is shown in the sketch of an overmantel illustrated herewith. The three panels, mounted in velvet and then set within a frame of dark wood, may be justly described as needlework tapestry, being really executed with the needle instead of being made in a loom, as is the ordinary kind of tapestry. The designs, which are Italian in character, are carried out with crewels, special attention having been paid to the shading and to the coloring, which is of a subdued tone most suitable to such an article of furniture as an overmantel. The division of this overmantel into panels is particularly pleasing, and just affords that rest to the eye which in these days of bustle and hurry is a thing so much to be desired. The working of three such panels would not be costly, but the embroiderer must have artistic sense enough to manage the needful shading successfully, and to arrange the general effect so that it is as good when the embroidery is viewed from the other end of the room as when it has to bear closer inspection.



OVERMANTEL WITH EMBROIDERED PANELS.

No decision had been reached regarding the purchase at the time of sailing.

LIGHT IN THE DRAWING ROOM.

The first concern in a drawing room is (says Mr. W. Scott-Morton in the Art Journal) the method of lighting, both artificial light and daylight. It is not always possible to avoid heavy shadows, but here a well diffused daylight is desirable. It should come from the sunny side with, if possible, subordinate windows where the outlook is good. The ornamentation of the room and all the objects which are placed in any picturesque grouping, as well as the people in the room, look to best advantage when the light is strongest from one side. In artificial lighting, a main central light is found most successful for the apartment generally, but many things in the room often lose the artistic value they possess in daylight by the alteration of the illuminating centre, which causes a different light and shadow relief. When a drawing room has ample window space, and it is considered desirable to retain all the daylight, the treatment of the decoration should be delicate, for fullness of color and strong detail are almost sure to run to coarseness, unless a very skillful hand controls. When the light is scanty, luminous tints and strong contrasts of form and color are desirable, as they help greatly to relieve the apartment of the blackness of the shadows, and make use of them to help the color effect. Where there is a recess or dark corner which is objectionable, there is often presented an opportunity for adding the best touch to the apartment by setting something of china, bronze, statuary, flowers, or a screen, which will tell with much effect in the shaded setting surrounding shadow; provided, of course, that such objects be so placed as to catch a favorable light. In light rooms a soft colored wood like satin wood is certainly the best, but in lower toned rooms, dark woods, like mahogany or rosewood, relieved with ormolu or gilding, are most fitting When a cheerful room is desired nearly everyone thinks of white painted wood. It is clean and easily obtained, and raises no serious ground for criticism; but in every case where white is used it should be tinted to allow of its easy assimilation with the strongest color, be it on the wall, seat covers, or floor. Of the ordinary wall papers little need be stated here, except that it will generally be found that those which are the most pleasing for homely rooms are not those which ordinarily attract one in a decorator's showroom.

They opened their carpet department last August, and are well pleased with the success they have had with it. They cater to the better class of trade.

The old reliable firm of Albert Gall is constantly making improvements in its store. I noticed a very attractive arrangement on the third floor, a portion of it being spaced off to display their samples of hard wood floors, fretwork and grills. This is the oldest firm here, and it has one of the best stands in the city.

Albert Gall, Jr., the well known manufacturer of grills, who has a large establishment at 109 East Washington street, is fast gaining a national reputation in the character of his work, sketches of which have been shown from time to time in The Review. For artistic and up-to-date work, he certainly can supply anyone with ideas. Should you need anything in his line, it would be well for you to correspond with him.

Messrs. Otto Miller, F. P. Walter, and Chris G. Tyner, who for twelve years were with Eastman, Schleicher & Lee, and for the past two years with the Pettis Dry Goods Company, have formed a co-partnership under the style of the Art Decorating Company, and have taken the store at 123 North Pennsylvania street, the formal opening of which occurred to-night (12th inst.). They certainly have one of the most attractive stores in the city, handsomely decorated, and the incandescent lighting is superb, all the lights on the ceiling having different colored globes which harmonize with the artistic decorations both on the ceiling and the walls. The Chase goat brand mohair plushes are selling greatly ahead of a year ago. The frieze goods are especially popular, as they are sold at but a slight advance over plain plushes. Chase & Co., 129 Washington street, Boston.

A NOTABLE COLLECTION OF PICTURES.

GEORGE A. HEARN, of James A. Hearn & Son, New York city, has one of the finest collections of pictures owned by any individual in the country. How many paintings he has acquired during the past decade he himself can with difficulty reckon. How many he has given away, only his relatives, friends and the Metropolitan Museum can tell. At the present speaking the museum has a gallery filled with pictures lent or given by him outright, yet his house does not seem capable of offering wall space to more than hang there now.

For many years the Lotos Club has benefited by his hobby and had his services as a member of the Committee on Art. Recently he showed a number of his pictures there, including the beautiful landscape with plowman, by Horatio Walker; a fine broad marine by Boudin, with ship under full sail beneath swelling white cloud masses; the "Arab Camp," by Fromentin; the "Regions of Fantasy,' by Corot, and other modern works, also a full length portrait of Charles I., by Daniel Mytens the elder, a recent acquisition.

The New York Times, in its issue of the 13th ult., contained a number of engravings taken from pictures in Mr. Hearn's house, and also the views of his library and drawing room, which are presented herewith.

MR. GEORGE A. HEARN'S LIBRARY.

DRAWING ROOM IN THE RESIDENCE OF GEORGE A. HEARN, OF JAMES A. HEARN & SON, NEW YORK.

DRAPERY DESIGNS.

The Sheraton style gives but small scope to the designer of draperies. Sheraton indulged in shallow and thin swags for his valances and long curtains, merely looped back either at a point three-quarters up or in the lower part of the window. The brothers Adam, too, do not bequeath to us any better attempt at original draperies, and it would, therefore, seem that, if we would be accurate in our interpretation of the Sheraton style, we must confine our efforts at originality within narrow limits. But swags, if prettily hung, are delightful in themselves, and their arrangement admits of great variety. Perhaps one of the most delicate means of treating the festoon is to let it terminate in a flat valance, so that it appears to be an integral part of the flat surface. In the first of the two designs of drawing room draperies shown herewith an English artist has endeavored to produce this result. The design would be most appropriate for a striped silk tapestry of delicate coloring. With such a material the unequal surface of the festoon would be marked against the flat surface by means of the interruptions to the stripes that the festoons would occasion. The alternative design is Louis Quinze in style. Here it is proposed to use a curved cornice, and immediately below this is hung a rich net fringe of cross-cord and bullion. Over this will hang luxurious folds of plush, which are to be caught up in the centre by the curved and gilded shells above the cornice. The curtains, which are looped back irregularly, are intended to hang behind the decorative fringe of the valance. The arrangement is certainly effective.

WINTER AND SPRING DRAPERIES.

The materials most suitable for winter and spring hangings and draperies of every description are those which are somewhat close in texture and of rich handsome colorings, as during the cold, dreary months we require our surroundings to reflect warmth and comfort, and nothing is more helpful toward this result than the draperies in our rooms. The skillful manipulation of such things amounts almost to an art, and is seldom attained without much practical experience. There must be no stiffness in the arrangement, nothing fantastic in form, and no pulling out of natural line, but the folds must fall easily and gracefully, having all the appearance of having arranged themselves without any interference. For this reason stiff fabrics should not be chosen, and anything in the nature of jute it is well to carefully avoid. There are few materials more satisfactory than the woolen tapestries, which both look well and wear well. They are manufactured in a large variety of colorings, and in as many designs, some of them being extremely handsome. For dining room or library curtains and for portières they are decidedly useful, and can be made up with a lining either of silk or other plain material, and finished with cord, or quite plain. A very stylish curtain may be made by having a 4 inch border of velvet sewn upon the tapestry in the same color as the ground, and edged with a very narrow trimming. For the portière a lining is almost always necessary if it is required as a draught excluder, and the best material for the purpose is a plain cashmere.

They are located in the Insurance Exchange Building, 418½ Olive street. Mr. Perry is a well-known and popular man, having long represented the best Eastern houses in this territory, while Mr. Schultz, from his successful service on the road for the Trorlicht, Duncker & Renard Carpet Company, has made many friends. A. C. Frost, a carpet salesman for Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., of Chicago, whose mysterious disappearance was noted by The Review's Chicago correspondent in the issue of February 1, committed suicide in this city on February 28. He registered on that date at the Hotel Barnum, under the name of "F. C. No. 22,669. October 13 1896. Lace.—E. Doughty, 9 Clipstone avenue, Nottingham. Issued March 2, 1898.

Foundation nets are made on a curtain machine by employing two extra guide bars, each carrying alternate threads from an extra warp having one thread to each bobbin. The extra bars always move in opposite directions, and between every motion of the bars the carriages make two movements, so that the extra bar threads do not twist round the bobbin threads, but are held in place by the bobbin warp and spool threads twisting together.

WOMEN AND WALL PAPER.

MOMENT a crocus begins to crack the earth, or a too previous robin is heard shiveringly singing his matin song, then the women go daft upon the subject of wall paper. This is one of the sure signs of spring. At the first chirrup of a bluebird the affection seizes them, and women grow as restless and uneasy as fishes out of water, and cannot be contented until they go to the paper hanger and say: "Let me see your latest designs in wall paper."

Then the trouble begins. Samples, more samples, and yet again more samples. Nights of wakefulness; days of harrowing anxiety. No one knows and words cannot describe the enormous difficulty experienced in deciding with infallible exactness what style, shade or tint will be precisely suitable for each room.

It is a herculean task, involving days of incessant thought, application and superhuman effort that would appal a man. It is worse than revising the tariff or formulating articles of arbitration, but no obstacles, however great, daunt women when they are under the full dominant force of the wall paper madness.

This mania for wall paper that invariably attacks women annually as regularly as the seasons come and go, immediately as the streams break their icy fetters and the frost begins to come out of the ground, is said by scientists to be born in them like the love for ribbon, Easter bonnets and fine rainment, and can be no more eradicated or subverted than the propensity of a hen to set when the time comes.

It makes no difference if every room in the house was papered anew last fall, the style has since changed, and this spring there will be no whoa, no rest for the weary husband, until the old paper has been yanked off and the new laid on.

After the turmoil has subsided, if the job has been properly executed, and, in the language of femininity, everything is "just perfectly lovely," then the contented housewife sits down complacently and contemplates the lovely spectacle of her handiwork with a serene composure, a deep satisfaction and a thrill of ecstatic pleasure that no man ever did or will experience.

The wall paper mania is very trying at times, nevertheless husbands never kick, because it is this and other feminine manias that enliven the existence of men, which existence otherwise might be so calm, peaceful and serene as to eventually border almost on very dullness or stagnation —Ex.

Facts About Hartshorn Shade Rollers.

The product of our factories includes Shade Rollers of every description, made of wood and tin, suitable for all classes of work, and many famous Hartshorn accessories.

The cost of these Rollers is slightly higher than any others on the market.

The quality of these Rollers is so high as to be far beyond the reach of real competition.

The reputation of these Rollers is of such strength as to insure success to any merchant in the window shade line who sells them exclusively.

The demand for them is universal, and so heavy as to keep our great factories running constantly.

These are some of the reasons that our Rollers are found to-day in whatever part of the world a window shade is hung.

A JUDICIOUS INVESTMENT.

The Best Economy in your Carpet Room

can only be secured by using the most perfect appliances, of the simplest design and the best construction.

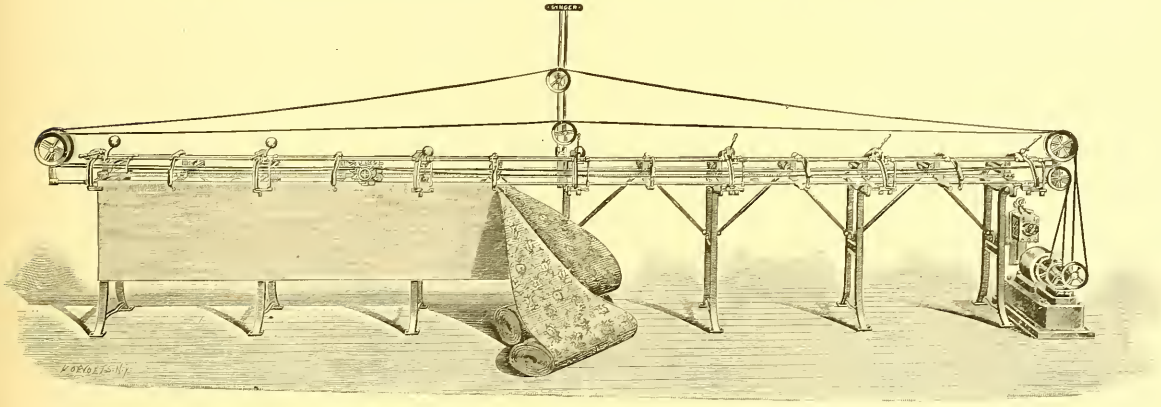
Experience Has Proven the Fact that the SINGER AUTOMATIC POWER CARPET SEWER will save its cost in one year to any carpet dealer having enough business to require a hand machine. THE SINGER AUTOMATIC is now in use by dealers who saved its cost during the first six months of its operation.

A TRIUMPH OF MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY, SURPASSING ALL OTHER DEVICES FOR ITS PURPOSE.



Truly automatic, requires less labor and sews 40 per cent. more carpet than any other machine on the market.
Requires least floor space, and uses any form of power.
Makes perfect stitch and seam, sewing any kind of carpet.

Automatic Matching and Clamping Device.

This device is absolutely unique, and secures perfect stretching and matching, without necessity for expert labor. It is simpler, swifter and in every way more effective than any other way of handling a carpet. The sewing machine works automatically on its track, following the operator from section to section as fast as each is matched and clamped, the action of the clamping levers automatically governing the movement of the sewing machine, thus saving a great deal of time. . . . . .

This is not a Hand Machine Crudely Adapted to Power Operation.

Our Hand Machine is well known, and is still on the market, fully guaranteed to be the best and most practical in use.

We offer to the Trade our usual standard lines of Carpetings for the Spring of '98.

As we were large purchasers of merchandise before the recent sharp advances, we are in position to quote, in all cases, the lowest market price, and in some cases offer inducements that mills and commission houses will not meet.

Our private patterns, especially in Wiltons and Brussels, are not surpassed either in variety of design or novelty in coloring.

If we, with our private patterns and colorings, have been able to secure some of the largest contracts given in this country, would it not PAY YOU to have our patterns represented in your stock.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms.

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked goes a long ways. No one thing prevents dirty floors better than a Perforated Rubber Mat with corrugated surface. The corrugations scrape the mud off and the perforations hold it, so that the surface is always in good condition. Impervious to water, you can clean it with a hose; but if you prefer an old-fashioned shake, that, too, will answer. Made to fit exactly any space, no matter how irregular. Add extreme durability, and name and address inserted so that thief can't remove—and you have a mat every customer on your books can use. Not necessary to carry stock—all you need is samples. Sent free on application.

IMPORT ORDERS.—My recent important announcement is bringing me encouraging inquiries and some orders. Buyers seem to realize the UNUSUAL PRIVILEGES I am offering. I will take, as announced, IMPORT ORDERS from responsible houses on the basis of a small commission, with the understanding that if on inspection in bonded warehouse the goods do not prove satisfactory, the firm giving such order will not be obliged to take same.

A LARGE AND WELL ASSORTED STOCK will be always found, as before, at my spacious and well lighted stores, 343 BROADWAY and 90 LEONARD STREET, NEW YORK, and in bond. As the LARGEST IMPORTER I always enjoy great facilities in securing desirable lots at advantageous prices, giving the benefit of the same to my customers, which is the secret of my success.

Note.—All goods remaining from the old tariff imports are still quoted at old tariff prices.

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven (at every repeat of the pattern) in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 51.

☞ Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK.

ALTHOUGH retail business rarely becomes particularly active before April, our advices from the West show that trade has opened there already in a highly satisfactory way. In the East and Middle States business is still quiet, but dealers expect a strong demand for goods in the present month, and if our controversy with Spain is settled soon upon an honorable and satisfactory basis there is no doubt that the carpet trade will benefit immediately and substantially. Apart from the war cloud everything points toward prosperity throughout the country, and, as all commercial reports show, the revival of general business is not merely a promise, but has already begun. Bank clearings, an infallible index of the condition of business, have increased greatly during the past three months. The iron trade, another important sign of the times, showed marked activity last month, quite apart from the sudden demand for warlike purposes; and equally significant, if not even more so, are the reports of commercial travelers and retail dealers in all parts of the country, which are almost invariably of the most encouraging character.

Of course the possibility of war remains, but at the present writing that bridge has not been reached, and therefore we are not yet obliged to cross it.

WHILE the matter of effecting a combination of Ingrain manufacturers has not been abandoned, yet it can hardly be said that any progress has been made toward a consummation during the past fortnight. It is stated positively that the necessary capital to organize a combined company can be easily obtained if the manufacturers will come together on a plan. The trouble is to get the co-operation of enough manufacturers to assure the combination's success and also to present a proposition which will be acceptable to all.

ADVICES from Canton, dated February 19, indicate that some more settlements had taken place during the ten days previous, and contracts on China matting are put at 180,000 rolls. They quote 1¼ cent in the lower and 1 cent in the higher grades over normal rates. Any large line of common grades would be difficult of placing. Narrow Ningpo and damask can be had at their usual rates. Dealers have their straw crop fully engaged, and will have to count upon the new crop to a great extent with which to complete orders.

IMPORTS OF WOOL.

The total imports of wool since the Dingley act took effect were 2,875,899 pounds in August, 2,429,873 pounds in September, 7,124,231 pounds in October, 10,161,313 pounds in November, 17,768,627 pounds in December and 11,017,085 pounds in January. Carpet wool has constituted the bulk of the importations. The importations of carpet wool at New York alone were 3,599,210 pounds in October, 6,481,008 pounds in November, 10,370,808 pounds in December and 5,042,622 pounds in January. The imports of carpet wool at Boston were 1,964,632 pounds in October, 1,725,185 pounds in November, 3,993,654 pounds in December and 2,349,339 pounds in January. At Philadelphia the imports of carpet wool have been over a million pounds a month, beginning with October.

THOMAS L. LEEDOM & CO.

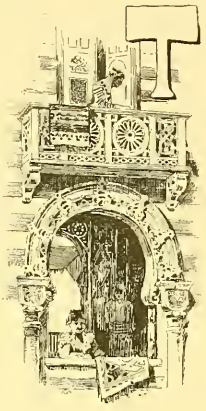
Leedom & Co. are running their great mills on full time and force in filling duplicate orders, an illustration of the appreciation of the firm's products by the trade of the country which must be highly satisfactory to Leedom & Co. Among the latest novelties brought out by this enterprising firm is a line of all wool medallion Art Squares, which will be shown in a large variety of patterns and colorings. Another new and very successful specialty is the line of Dundee or Pro-Brussels Art Squares, which are already in great demand by the trade. In Smyrna rugs the firm shows an immense range of patterns in various grades, and also a novelty in a Smyrna hall runner, made in three lengths, 9, 12 and 15 feet, and in three widths.

Mr. Samuel Thomas, of the firm, and manager of its New York office, reports the demand for duplicates as especially large, and the general business of the season to this date as remarkably satisfactory.

A patent has been issued to the Singer Manufacturing Company for an apparatus to be attached to a sewing machine for binding carpets, a description and illustration of which will be found in our "Patents" column.

IMPORTS OF ORIENTAL RUGS.

THE TRADE'S GROWTH AND PRESENT POSITION IN THE UNITED STATES.



The extent of the importation of Oriental rugs and carpets into this country is a matter of considerable importance to every branch of the carpet trade, and we therefore take pleasure in presenting herewith the first reasonably accurate and comprehensive statistics published in relation to imports of such goods into the port of New York, the imports at other ports of the United States being too small to be of much importance in this connection.

Imports of woolen rugs and carpets from Oriental countries during the period between July 24, 1897, and March 1, 1898, amounted to 204,018 square yards, valued at $775,161. Of these goods 66,307 square yards, valued at $303,125, were for immediate consumption, and 137,711 square yards, valued at $472,036, were entered for warehouses. These figures include all imports from Turkey, Persia, Russia, India and Japan, and all imports of such goods via British or other ports of Western Europe. They do not include the imports of cotton and jute rugs and carpets, which are principally of Japanese manufacture. During the period referred to the imports of these goods amounted to 148,276 square yards, valued at $45,631, and of this amount 117,532 square yards, valued at $36,192, were for immediate consumption. Since July 24 last, the date at which the present tariff went into effect, the imports of Oriental rugs have been classed with certain goods of European manufacture, such as carpets woven whole for rooms, and Berlin, Aubusson and Axminster rugs, but the quantity of these European goods imported is so extremely small that it requires but slight consideration. As an index to our Oriental rug trade of the period named the foregoing figures may therefore be regarded as accurate enough for all practical purposes.

It is, of course, to be remembered that an immense amount of Oriental rugs was imported just before the present tariff became a law, and during a number of months preceding that date, and consequently the statistics relating to imports since then do not furnish a perfect guide to the extent of the business done in this branch of trade. But, on the other hand, the abnormal proportions of the imports intended to anticipate the passage of the new tariff would render them also an unsatisfactory basis for any calculation of the actual extent of the trade during the past twelve or fourteen months.

Oriental rug buyers should bear in mind that H. S. Tavshanjian has connections on the other side whereby he is always receiving desirable lots of Oriental carpets and rugs purchased at particularly advantageous prices, and that similar inducements are given to his customers. His announcement on page 13 should be carefully read.

R. L. Waters opens a carpet and furniture store at 631 Bainbridge street, Brooklyn, to-day (April 1).

Manges Brothers, carpet and furniture dealers, have removed from 150 to 136 West Twenty-third street.

F. B. Erwin, who started in the wholesale carpet lining and stair pad business last December at 224 Canal street, has removed to larger quarters at 89 White street.

Morris & McKay have settled with their creditors on the basis of 50 cents on the dollar, payable in notes at two, four, seven, ten and twelve months. They will open about April 1 in new salesrooms at 359 Broadway.

Patrick Hussar, who said that he resided at 15 West William street, Astoria, was arrested in Long Island City on the 19th ult. charged with the theft of rugs and carpets valued at $40 from the store of Simon Bauman, of No. 1 Flushing avenue.

Thomas Caves & Sons request us to state that all communications must be henceforth addressed to the home office at their mills, Third and Huntingdon streets, Philadelphia. They have ceased to be represented by F. B. Bru Baker & Co. in New York.

The employees in the factory of the E. S. Higgins Carpet Company, this city, have contributed the sum of $222.60 to the fund for the building of a monument in honor of the men who were killed by the blowing up of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor.

Joseph Wild & Co. are enlarging their Oriental rug department by taking in the third floor of the Thomas street store. The sheepskin and robe departments have been moved to the fourth floor. The rug department now occupies the second and third floors.

The body of George W. Farrell, an old employee of W. & J. Sloane, who mysteriously disappeared on February 2, was discovered in the East River on the 26th ult. Mrs. Farrell believes that he became ill while on a ferryboat crossing the river and fell overboard. He leaves a widow and a son.

The Merchants' Association of this city recently issued a circular urging citizens of New York to oppose the bill now before the Legislature providing for the transfer of the control of the Erie Canal from the State to the United States Government. The association characterized the bill as a measure certain to increase freight charges and divert trade from New York to other cities. The bill has been defeated in the Senate and this probably disposes of it completely.

M. B. Evens & Co., instalment dealers in carpets, upholstery goods and furniture, will on May 1 open a new establishment at Park avenue and Broadway, Brooklyn. They will continue their present business at 379 Grand street in that borough.

The Read Carpet Company show thirty-four different patterns of Axminster rugs, which are made in sizes up to 11.3 x 14 3 feet. They carry all sizes in stock, and the full line is shown at the New York salesroom, 110 Worth street, in charge of E. H. Churchill.

A. A Vantine & Co. have recently received large invoices of Japanese rugs per the steamship Sikh, which came direct to New York. Their new Japanese matting is coming in satisfactorily by steamer to Pacific Coast and overland. Large invoices of China matting are on the sailing vessel Abner Coburn, which is now due.

An alarm of fire was sent out from Wanamaker's, Broadway, Ninth and Tenth streets, on the 25th ult. Three engine companies responded, but on arrival at the store were prevented from entering. Some workmen, in moving a ladder, had accidentally set off the automatic fire alarm. Owing to the care exercised by the firemen few of the shoppers even knew that an alarm had been sent out, and there was at no time any excitement manifested.

Worrell & Best, composed of Charles G. Worrell and Edward C. Best, dealers in carpets and furniture at 2037 Third avenue, made an assignment on March 23 to John A. Fitzpatrick, giving preferences to John Best, $500; Elizabeth Worrell, $540, and James A. Renwick, $460. They began business in 1889, and a few years later claimed a capital of $22,000, but for some time business has been very dull. The schedules show liabilities, $3,727; nominal assets, $6,868; actual assets, $3,295.

The increasing sales of the Adjustable round nose stair pad have necessitated more space for stock and salesroom, and M. H. Marcus & Brother have recently leased another large room at 115 Worth street. They carry a full assortment of pads and carpet lining for immediate delivery. It should be remembered that they are wholesalers of comfortables, and show a big line of styles and qualities.

They have just added buntings to their line. Write for one of their thermometers.

Henry B. Pye, of Fennell & Pye, who operate two stores in this city, in a conversation with a representative of The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review recently, said that since he had gone up to Harlem he missed his daily trips to the general carpet market and would be lost without The Review, which keeps him in touch with everyone and everything in the carpet market.

FOREIGN NOTES.

It was stated at the annual meeting of the Kidderminster Carpet Weavers' Association, held recently, that the number of unemployed weavers in the town is decreasing.

The exports of carpets and rugs from the consular district of Bradford, England, during the month of February amounted in value to £1,481, as compared with £4,134 for the same month during 1897.

The reason for the rise in Greenwich Inlaid Linoleum shares is (according to the London Mail) the understanding that the company has sold one of its foreign patents for a price which will wipe off the deficits of the past two years, and supply the company with the necessary funds to fight its battles more successfully in the future.

The Inlaid Linoleum Company, Limited, is a new English concern formed to work the patents of Wallace G. Thomson, of Halifax, England, for the manufacture of a highly glazed or polished linoleum in which the pattern goes through the fabric, so that it will last as long as the cloth itself. Mr. Thomson has invented a machine which is said to be simple and automatic, and which will produce the goods in most intricate floral and geometrical designs.

The Charlton Hotel now being completed in the Haymarket, London, is an imposing edifice externally, and, if all accounts are true, the interior will rival any of the gorgeous palaces in the neighborhood of Northumberland avenue. The contract for furnishing alone has been let for £150,000. The house fortunate enough to secure it is Waring & Co., and their representative, Mr Lovell, is in the United States in order to discover the latest designs.

The Kidderminster (England) Shuttle of the 19th ult. says: "The wool market is said to be in a somewhat peculiar condition. There is no guiding quotations for worsteds. At the East India wool sales, held this week, prices were easy at the start, but on Thursday they were a tone dearer than at the January sales. Low qualities are cheaper, but these do not affect the carpet trade Botany wools are a shade dearer, while cotton shows a distinct hardening tendency. Spinners are rather quiet. They have plenty of contracts on their books, but instructions do not come to hand as quickly as could be desired."

The Board of Trade returns for the carpet export business for the past year show that the exports have declined in both volume and value. Although so keen a competitor in many other branches of trade, Germany is a big consumer of English carpets, and her receipts have grown as steadily as have those of Holland. Equally regular has been the course of business with Belgium, France, Spain, the United States, Chili and British North America; but, unfortunately for our manufacturers, there has been a steady down grade movement, the figures for each year emphasizing the backward tendency. With the Argentine, which in 1896 promised a revival, trade has fallen below the returns of 1895, and although the Australasian demand is nearly double the value of 1895, it is a few thousands below that of 1896.—Furniture and Decoration.

NEW IMPROVEMENT IN BRUSSELS WEAVING.

The Kidderminster (England) Shuttle of the 12th ult. says: "Samuel Holdsworth, of Chester road, Kidderminster, has just patented an ingenious arrangement in Jacquards specially adapted for the manufacture of Brussels and Wilton carpets. On Saturday last Mr. Holdsworth invited the local manufacturers and their head tuners to see the invention, which was on view at the warehouse of G. Holdsworth & Co., Church street, as well as to see specimens of the work done. The improvement consists in an addition to the Jacquard as at present in use, which can be attached in a few hours without disturbing the machine, and evidently at a small cost. The advantage is that in any of the ordinary sets of six or five frame cards several other patterns can be produced, practically at no additional expense. A single thread of any color, or the whole frame at work, can immediately be taken out of the weaving as needed to vary the pattern. This can be done without weaving operations being suspended. The invention seems to be a very practical one, and the experts present on Saturday did not think that Mr. Holdsworth had overstated its capabilities. It is said that several local manufacturers have decided to introduce the improvement into their works."

ARNOLD, CONSTABLE & CO.

Arnold, Constable & Co. offer for immediate delivery very extensive lines of China and Japan mattings of their own importation. They show a great variety of grades and an immense assortment of patterns, especially in Japanese staple cotton warps and novelties and various brands of China matting.

They call special attention also to their new styles in jute and cotton Japanese rugs in blue and white and green and white, and in all sizes from 1.6x3 to 9x12 feet.

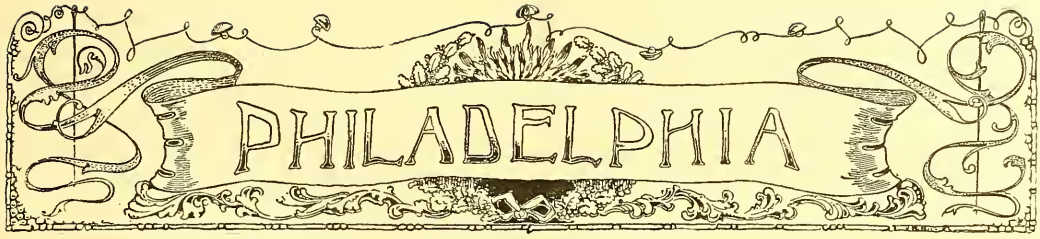
The J. W. Dimick Company have maintained their wide distribution of Velvets this season as heretofore. The spring styles have been even more acceptable than previous season's lines and the fabric continues its favor as a popular priced, free selling Velvet.

May—Is Miss Strongmind an advanced woman?

Pamela—Yes, she is always at the front in all the bargain counter rushes.—Hartshorn's Roller.

Dudway—Smudgkins told me that he gets $40 a week as salesman in a carpet store.

Duebill—Is that so? I wonder what he does with the difference between what he gets and what he says he gets?



....The rumor that "Larry" Adams, formerly with John & James Dobson, had made an engagement with Keefer & Coon as traveling agent is without foundation.

....D. McDowell, who has been confined to his house for some time, is again on his feet and exhibiting a very fine line of extra Ingrains and lower grades of goods for the coming season.

.....Weber & Petzold have had an extrordinarily good season and have orders enough ahead to carry them through until May. New styles for the autumn will be ready in about a month.

....William Henderson is rounding up a very prosperous season and is now busy in getting up new styles and colorings for the fall trade. That they will be fully up to all former efforts goes without saying.

....Henry Holmes & Sons are still running on overtime, as was last reported, and there is no prospect of a "let up." Their new styles are out and are just what might have been expected from what we know of their former successful efforts.

....C. H. Masland & Sons are giving special attention to the fall styles of their various grades of Ingrain carpets and Art Squares, the result of which will doubtless be one of the strongest lines they have ever exhibited. They will be ready in good time for the fall season.

....Dornan Brothers are running a portion of their looms on recent orders and are hopeful of a material increase in the near future. As a new branch in their production we may mention a line of very handsome hearth rugs, made of the same fabric as their 4-4 Brussels carpets.

....Henry Dickel & Son, Wanetah Mills, Ella street, have had the busiest season they have ever enjoyed since the foundation of their plant, and have orders on hand that will require at least thirty days to fill. New designs and colorings for the fall trade will be out on April 15.

....Henry Rath, Jr., Fifth street and Columbia avenue, is doing a fairly good trade in his Extra Supers and lower grades of Ingrains, and it bids fair to continue indefinitely. Mr. Rath has enlarged his office and now has the benefit of a window on the Fifth street front of his factory. The new prism light will be arranged in the window, and then Mr. Rath will be fully equipped without the use of electricity.

....Nearly all the Kensington carpet manufacturers are hard at work upon their new goods for the autumn trade. A glance at a few of the new designs and colorings is sufficient to convince us that the fall styles will far exceed any former efforts, both in design and color tints. Darker and more positive shades will be largely employed, and the new weaves will bring out the "Brussels effects" most perfectly. Most of the manufacturers seem well pleased with the past season's trade. and are looking forward to a large demand for the fall trade.

....Hirst & Roger, Kensington and Allegheny avenue, have a one bowl Lorimer scouring machine for sale. It is as good as new and up to date in every respect.

....James & Geo. D. Bromley are running nearly all their looms on an increasing trade. They propose to offer a very strong line of new designs and colorings for the next season and will be ready to show them in a few weeks. Mr. Bromley is sojourning for a few days at Atlantic City.

Keefer & Coon are about adding Art Squares to their already large production and will soon offer the first fruits of their broad looms to the trade. One loom is now in position and five more will soon follow. That the firm will be perfectly successful in this new departure goes without saying.

....Carson & Irwin, Ingrain manufacturers, Hancock street, above Lehigh avenue, have had a big run on their goods from the first of the season down to the present writing and their looms are still in active operation. They feel that they are largely indebted to the Crompton power loom for their phenomenal success.

....The Bromley Brothers Carpet Company are running to the full extent of their capacity as usual, with the prospect of continuing for a considerable period longer. Rugs and Art Squares are largely called for, as are also their various grades of Ingrains. Their new venture in Pro-Brussels is a happy hit, creating a demand that requires additional facilities to promptly fill.

....Ricker & Logan, 2411 Howard street, have had all of their twenty-eight power looms in full operation during the season now closing, and are working hard upon their new lines for the fall demand. Their next output will be the strongest they have ever yet offered. This enterprising young firm have met with extraordinary success from their first start in the manufacturing of Ingrains.

....Thomas Huston & Co., of the Globe Mills, Trenton avenue and Dauphin street, who turn out a very superior grade of extra Ingrain carpet, have gotten up the strongest line of fall styles they have yet placed upon the market. The designs are decidedly unique in style, and there are several striking new departures in coloring. They will evidently be a success. Trade with them during the past season has been satisfactory.

....John Dunlap & Sons, Cambria Mills, Eleventh and Cambria streets, have had a very fair trade during the past season, especially with their Three-ply grades. The run upon these goods has been something extraordinary, considering the many other fabrics with which they are in direct competition. Great pains have been taken by the Messrs. Dunlap in getting out their new fall offerings, and they are certain to meet the approbation of all who see them.

....The Kensington Carpet Company, which has stores on North Front and North Eighth streets, has removed its North Eighth street stock from 306 to 128 on the same thoroughfare.

....Robert H. Smith, carpet and furniture dealer, 1138 South Seventeenth street, made an assignment for the benefit of creditors to Harry L. Mullin. A schedule of real estate is to be furnished. The deed is dated March 11, 1898, and was filed in the recorder's office on the 12th.

....Thomas Caves & Sons are rapidly putting their new Tapestry carpet mill in order for starting, and the looms are nearly all in position. The plant will be operated in connection with their Velvet mill in Manayunk. The Velvet looms are being run until 8 P. M. through the week. The firm's success in Velvets has been phenomenal, and they will use their best endeavor to earn a like experience with their new Tapestry plant. It is hardly necessary for us to say that the Ingrain branch of their business is in a highly flourishing condition, with all the looms running on full time.

....Hirst & Roger are getting settled in their new mills rapidly, and when completed will have one of the finest plants for the production of Tapestry and Velvet carpets in the country. The building on Allegheny avenue is three stories in height, each floor being 160x55 feet. This building is utilized principally for printing the yarns, and the weaving of the fabrics, although there is a very fine room, 30x40 feet, handsomely fitted for showing samples, while there are also designing rooms and offices conveniently situated and in favorable light. About sixty looms are now in operation weaving both Velvet and Tapestry carpets, and they have been run to their fullest capacity during the entire season now closing. With their new facilities and larger accommodations the firm will be enabled to offer far greater attractions for all dealers in their particular line of goods. Directly in the rear of the mill, fronting on Allegheny avenue, is another large building four stories in height, the rooms being 160x42 feet. The building was formerly occupied by William Johnson as a yarn mill. It is built of stone and peculiarly well adapted to the uses for which the firm intend putting it. Their new designs and colorings for the coming season will soon be ready for exhibition, and they are several steps in advance of all their former efforts. It may not be known to the trade generally that Messrs. Hirst and Roger are both graduates of the great carpet manufacturing concern of John Crossley & Sons, of Halifax, England, and learned there the "art and mystery" of producing Tapestry carpets.

First Carpet Salesman—Do you think there is any significance in the fact that J. & J. Dobson, who were formerly located on Chestnut street, Philadelphia, have taken new quarters on Filbert street?

Second Carpet Salesman—Well, that's a nut that you'll have to get somebody else to crack.

AN INTERESTING DECISION.

In the case of Dempsey v. Dobson, which came before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania recently on an appeal, the point at issue was whether results of an employee's skill and labor in the service of his employer belonged exclusively to the employee or not. The plaintiff, Dempsey, was a color mixer in the factory of J. & J. Dobson, the carpet manufacturers. He alleged that when he left the employ of the Messrs. Dobson his color book, containing recipes for the mixing of dyes, was retained by the Messrs. Dobson, and he brought suit against them for damages, claiming that in the trade of carpet making it was the custom to regard the color mixer's skill as his own exclusive property, and that the employer for whose use the colors were devised had no title therein.

The beginning and progress of the suit have been noted in The Review, and its end is now indicated in the decision of the Supreme Court, which is as follows:

It is one of the requisites of a good custom that it must be reasonable. Another is that it must not be contrary to law. The custom sought to be set up here was an unreasonable one. The color mixer, like the designer and the weaver, is employed because of his supposed ability to serve his employer in the particular line of labor which he is expected to follow. * * * The services of each and all these mechanics are requisite to the production of the carpets. * * * If a color mixer could at his pleasure carry off the recipes and color books from his employer's factory and refuse to permit their further use except upon his own terms, it would be in his power to inflict enormous loss on the manufacturer at any moment, and not merely to disturb, but to destroy, his business. Such a custom would not be reasonable, and could not be sustained. But it is against the law. The courts of the United States, of this State, and, so far as I have been able to examine, of all the States in the Union, recognize the rule laid down when this case was here in 1896 [174 Pa. St., 122] that "the designs and recipes so made for an employer are, as between his employee and himself, his, for the purpose of his own manufacturing business. Even if his employee had obtained letters patent for his formula, protecting himself thereby against the public, still the employer's right to continue its use in his own business would be protected by the United States courts."

THE SALEM OIL CLOTH WORKS.

William Morris' new line of floor oil cloths for the fall trade is now ready, and comprises about 120 patterns, including rugs. In novelty, originality and attractiveness of designs and colorings the line well represents the exceptionally high reputation of Mr. Morris as a manufacturer. In view of the superior quality of the goods and the variety of fine patterns in every grade, Mr. Morris is well justified in counting upon a business even larger than he has ever done before. The rugs are likely to attract wide attention, special care having been taken to make them a very strong feature in the line.

William Morris, proprietor of the works, gives his personal attention to the business, and W. F. Springer has charge of the selling department, as he has had for many years past. John F. Prendergast is buyer and general office man, and George B. Rumsey is in charge of other departments of the works.

A patent was granted to Francis H. Good on the 15th ult. for a carpet cleaning machine A description of the features and an illustration of this new machine will be found in our "Patents" column of this issue.

Obituary.

Philip MacKay.

Philip MacKay, secretary of the American Linoleum Manufacturing Company, died at his residence in Bay Ridge, L. I., on Friday, March 18, of pneumonia. He failed to appear at his office at Joseph Wild & Co.'s., the agents of the company, on the preceding Saturday, and on Monday sent word that he was suffering from a chill. Nothing serious was apprehended until almost the hour of his death, which came suddenly at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. MacKay was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1851 and came to this country in 1876. He was with the Singer Manufacturing Company for seventeen years and joined the forces of Joseph Wild & Co. in June, 1893, succeeding Elijah Bliss as secretary of the linoleum company. In this position he won a marked success.

There is no safer guide to a man's character than the "jury of the vicinage." Those who have known him most intimately must have known him most thoroughly, and no higher tribute need be paid to Philip MacKay than can be found in the following resolution passed at a special meeting of the board of trustees of the American Linoleum Manufacturing Company, held for the purpose on March 23:

Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Philip MacKay the American Linoleum Manufacturing Company loses a most valuable officer, and the board deeply deplore this loss. During the five years he has filled the office of secretary he has discharged the duties devolving upon him conscientiously and in a thoroughly efficient manner to the entire satisfaction of the trustees.

And be it further resolved that this board tender to the family of our departed friend their sincere sympathy in this their great bereavement, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

PHILIP MacKAY.

The funeral services were held at his late residence on the Shore road, Bay Ridge, on the 21st ult. The Rev. Walter Rockwood Ferris, of the Bay Ridge Presbyterian Church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Barr, of Newburg, N. Y. The floral offerings from Mr. MacKay's associates in the house and in the company were very beautiful.

Philip MacKay was a man of whom it was a pleasure to be an acquaintance and an honor to be a friend. Outside of his business duties he had only one fad. He was an amateur horticulturist of the first class, and as his friends passed through his grounds on their way to pay their last respects more than one expressed the wish that he could have lived to see the flowers then in bud arrive at their bloom.

He belonged to the Royal Arcanum, the Knights of Honor, the Ridge Club, of Bay Ridge, and was a trustee of the Bay Ridge Presbyterian Church, of which he was an active and valuable member.

He leaves a widow and six children. His brother, Henry MacKay, is one of the partners in the house of Joseph Wild & Co. and a director in the American Linoleum Manufacturing Company, and another brother, Charles, is secretary pro tem. of the same company.

Fred H. Dickerson.

Fred H. Dickerson, carpet and furniture dealer, Dover, N. J., died on February 16, the cause of death being apoplexy. He was born on April 8, 1860, at Dover, and was educated in its public schools and at Hackettstown. His father, Mahlon H., had been in business in Dover many years, carrying carpets, furniture, &c., in connection with dry goods and groceries. Shortly before the death of the senior Dickerson, the business was turned over to his sons, Edward L. and Fred H., who continued it under the style of E. L. & F. H. Dickerson until March 1, 1895, when they dissolved partnership, Edward taking the dry goods and grocery business and Fred the carpet and furniture, which he had since carried on.

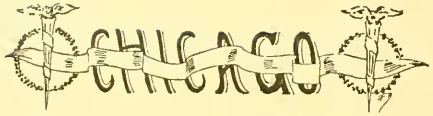
The decedent was enterprising in business, big hearted in social life, genial and generous, and the whole community that knew him so well, as well as his friends in the trade, mourn his death.

He was a member of the Royal Arcanum. He is survived by a six year old daughter and a widow, who will continue the business under the style of Mrs. F. H. Dickerson.

Harold Broadfield, a director of the carpet manufacturing firm of James Humphries & Sons, Limited, Kidderminster, England, died in that city on the 6th ult. of pneumonia, at the age of forty-two years.

The mercantile agencies announce the deaths of Jesse S. Hill, of Hill & Hesley, Central City, Ky.; Walter F. Colby, Barre, Vt.; Joseph Jung, of T. A. Hasler & Co., Bastrop, Tex.; E. D. Gushee, Appleton, Me.; S. Ottenheimer, of Ottenheimer, Baer & Co., Baker City, Ore., and Richard S. Desportes, of the Desportes & Edmunds Dry Goods and Clothing Company, Columbia, S. C.

A WELL-KNOWN and experienced wholesale carpet salesman advertises for a position in our "Want" columns.



Chicago, March 25.

Manager Frank Millington, of the Boston Store's carpet department, has just returned from the East, where he has been buying goods. He expects to show the trade a few points with his purchase of $10,000 worth of Dobson's stock, which will be ready for the showroom shortly.

T. B. Shoaff has been in town.

Thos. Evoy, of Evoy & Flanigan, has gone East.

George Coon, with Keefer & Coon's line of Ingrains and Extra Supers, has been visiting the trade.

Montgomery Ward & Co. have secured a permit to erect a twelve story building at Nos. 117 to 120 Michigan avenue.

Joseph Weber has just returned to his duties as manager of Mandel Brothers' carpet and rug department, after a sickness of two weeks.

The offices of the Columbia Shade Cloth Company are now at 131 Wabash avenue, the company having moved from its old offices on Madison street.

Walter J. Raymer, Chicago representative of the American Pin Company, 157 Michigan avenue, is the Republican nominee for alderman from the Fifteenth Ward.

George B. Swayne will be in the city Monday for a short stay. He is on his way home after a trip to China and Japan for mattings and rugs for W. & J. Sloane.

J. C. Carroll, of the Chicago Carpet Company, has exclusive control in Chicago of J. & J. Dobson's new line of 12-4 Axminsters and reports a fine trade in them.

A fire in the building 215 to 221 Wabash avenue, on the 16th ult., caused the death of twelve people, and about twenty-five more were injured. Among the occupants of the building were R. C. Weichbrodt, dealer in Turkish rugs, and the Decorators' Wall Paper Company.

Snowdon Fetter, salesman for John M. Smyth, has devised a carpet exhibitor, and fifteen of them are now in use in the carpet department of the house. It is an inclined platform about 5 feet square, the highest part of which is 3 feet from the floor and the lowest part about 1 foot. A clamp holds the samples fast to the platform at the higher end, and they are easily thrown back over the clamp for the convenience of the customer.

R. H. H.

George W. Ehlerding has withdrawn from the firm of W. N. Hind & Co., carpet and furniture dealers, 213 West Fifth street, Cincinnati, his interest having been purchased by Mr. Hind, who continues under the old firm style.

O. F. Spate has become sole selling agent for the Trenton Oil Cloth Company, who, as previously noted in The Review, are about to engage in the manufacture of linoleum on a very extensive scale. Mr. Spate is well known to the trade throughout the country, and is exceptionally well qualified for the work he has undertaken.

GROWING POPULARITY OF HODGES FIBER CARPETS AND SQUARES.

The increasing sales of the Hodges fiber carpets, rugs and Art Squares is a proof of the merit and attractiveness of these goods. They may be now found in the stocks of the leading retail carpet houses of the country, and are counted as a permanent feature.

The prejudice of buyers who at first looked with doubt upon the durability of these goods has been wiped away with experience in handling them.

There has never been a doubt in the mind of Frank F. Hodges that the carpets bearing his name would win their way into the trade's and public favor. He has always invited the severest tests as to durability and appropriateness for floor coverings, and the large business now being done is a tribute to Mr. Hodges' judgment and persistence. Spring patterns show color effects not before attempted, some of the new styles being in regular Brussels colorings. The plain color fillings have made a big hit, especially as they are fast in color, which is also true of the vari-colored goods.

The Art Squares and rugs are in extraordinary demand, and the fullest production of the company's mills at Indian Orchard, Mass., is being marketed A late production is the so-called iron-clad carpets, made with a cotton warp and fiber filling. These goods are almost indestructible, yet as soft and pliable as an all wool carpet. They at once compete with the chamber Ingrain, and are shown in neat and attractive designs in carpet colors.

You can have a set of twenty-four Hodges fiber rugs, 18x30 inch, sent on approval, and may thereby gain a knowledge of the goods. Address the Hodges Fiber Carpet Company, 50 Essex street, Boston, Mass.

Sperry & Beale, 39 Union square, New York, are the selling agents, and display the complete line.

CARPET THREAD.

The extended use of machines in carpet sewing has largely increased the demand for spool carpet thread, so that the greatest consumption of thread is in this form.

The Meyer spool carpet thread is adapted for use on any carpet sewing machine, is strong, free from knots and bunches It runs smoothly on the machine, produces an even stitch and is economical to use. It is also adapted for hand sewing.

This thread is sold by John C. Meyer & Co., 87 Summer street, Boston, Mass., who also sell a fine skein carpet thread and wound bobbins for machines. The price list will be found in our price list columns, and Meyer & Co will send a sample of their threads on application.

Under date of Teheran, February 7, Minister Hardy sends to the State Department a note from the Persian Foreign Office to the effect that the exportation of lamb skins is strictly prohibited, in order to stop the wholesale slaughter of the lambs and the resulting advance in the price of mutton. "If lamb skins are found in the possession of foreigners or natives, for the purposes of trade, they will be considered culpable, and a fine of 5 tomans (50 krans or $5), without any right to appeal, will be exacted from them."

NOVEL DISPLAYS FOR CARPET STORES.

FIGURE 1 is specially designed for showing a model of a battleship constructed with a wood frame and covered with carpeting. Get two strips of wood, 5 inches wide, about 4 feet long and one-fourth inch thick, and nail the ends together at (a) (a), expand the centre and nail in a wood deck. Use a piece of broom handle for the mast (b). A box will do for the part (c), and a smaller box for (d). Turrets (e) are round bores. The stacks, (f) (f), are rolls of carpet. Next cover the sides, top and all exposed surfaces with the kind of carpet goods it is desired to exhibit. Take some round pieces of wood, blacken them and insert in the turret sides to represent cannon. Wires (g) will do to hold the small boats, which may be procured at any toy store. Fig 2 shows the method of making steam issue from the stacks in representation of smoke. (A) is a section of the roll of carpet representing the stack, (b) a tin funnel, (c) a water tin and (d) a small oil lamp. The steam generated rises through the funnel and looks like smoke issuing from the furnaces.

FERRIS WHEEL WINDOW DISPLAY.

THE device shown in Fig. 3 may be used as a window display in a carpet store. Only the frame construction is shown, and this is calculated to be trimmed or hung with carpet fabrics. The rims are made of 3 feet 10 inch wood rims. The axle consists of a short piece of 1 inch gas pipe, through which is passed a longer piece of three-fourth inch pipe, with its ends resting on grindstone bearings placed on top of a light frame of wood. All these parts can be bought at small cost of hardware dealers and assembled by any clerk who has a little patience and ingenuity.

Two harness rings are placed around the axle and to these the spokes are fastened. On the front rim are arranged the articles it is desired to show. The spokes, six in number, are wood. On the back rim may be placed some articles if wished, but of course the front rim display will show the best. A small box can be fastened to each of the braces that hold the rim together, and these serve as cars. The boxes should be covered with carpet of bright design. On the front side of the frame which supports the wheel may be a display of goods, and on the rear side a line of new patterns. When placed in the show window the space around the base of the supporting frame is filled with goods.

EFFECTIVE WINDOW DISPLAY.

I HAVE also just finished another effective show window, exhibit arranged as follows: In a showcase about 6 feet long, with glass top, front and ends placed across the front window, is a display of five rows of plated ware, such as is used in connection with drapery. The front row consists of silver plated pole rings, the next of general trimmings, and so on to the back row, progressing from small to large as they go back. Each row contains goods uniformly alike, and all are suspended from neatly covered wood strips by means of fine gauge wire which it is difficult to see. What attracts the attention of curious pedestrians is the legerdemain of a lot of bright articles set quivering every few minutes by an employee behind the scene, which is accomplished by tipping the case. The effect is heightened by the mirror in the back of the case, which duplicates and intensifies the illusion.

PANORAMA.

THOSE merchants who have at times adopted the continuous plan of showing new goods by winding one roll to another with the carpet open and across the window usually fail to get good results, owing to the uneven winding. Fig. 4 shows how to overcome this. Build wood brackets (b) at each side and bore holes for a shaft of wood (c) in each drum to bear in the same as shown. The drum is shown in full in Fig. 5. The cylindrical part can be made solid and the shaft (c) put in by drilling a hole in each end. The drum should be about 8 inches in diameter, covered with sand cloth and provided with wood flanges (b). The flanges will keep the edges of the carpet in line when winding. A carpenter can make the drums for a dollar or two, and the rest of the work may be done by anyone who is handy with tools. After the drums are set up in the frames, one at each side of the window, bore an inch hole through the window floor for the shaft (d), Fig. 4. Put a grooved wood wheel 7 inches in diameter at (e), and another 7 inch wheel at (g), on a stand. Connect the two with a band (h), either by motor power or by a hand power crank in the cellar. A continuous line of patterns are sewn together into an endless belt and put around the drums. When the drum at the left is turned by the mechanism in the cellar, of course the roll winds around, showing the display to good advantage to passers. The window is so arranged with goods that only the moving carpet is exhibited.

ADVERTISING IN THE STORE.

SUCH goods as sash and vestibule extension rods, spring rollers, flanges and general curtain materials can be displayed to good advantage inside the store by having the contents of each box sampled on the front. Some of these samples can be fastened with screws; for others staples will be necessary. A point in favor of sampling goods upon the boxes is the advertisement thus gained. It is a well-known fact that the more goods a merchant can display the more he will sell. Besides, the sampling of merchandise upon the boxes makes the various articles much easier to find. The sample is much more prominent than is the label on the original package. Labels are nearly all similar in shape and color. The only distinction is found in the matter that is printed upon them. In dusting, too, the shelf box saves time. As it fits closely between the shelves no dust accumulates on the top. In both instances this time saved is time which the merchant is paying in clerk hire. Let a handsome new set of trimmings be displayed, then note how quickly the eye of some patron will be caught by it.

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST NEW YORK.

In a recently issued circular on the subject of railroad discrimination against New York the Merchants' Association states that more than twenty-five railroads covering or controlling the gateways to all the territory between the Rocky Mountains and Mississippi River and between the Ohio River and the Great Lakes have combined against New York, their purpose being to dam the natural channels of trade and force it to follow artificial ones for the benefit of Western cities.

The practice has been going on covertly for several years, but has recently been publicly acknowledged by the refusal of these railroad companies to grant reduced fares to merchants visiting New York, and the fact that they have at the same time reduced their rates to St. Louis and Chicago.

The Merchants' Association proposes to fight for equal treatment; not for favors, but for justice. It wants what other cities get—nothing more. It proposes to fight differentials, which are diverting our export trade to other ports, scattering its shipping interests and making its great wharfage and warehouse interests unprofitable. It proposes to fight illegal passenger discriminations which turn the tide of travel away from this city. It proposes to fight freight combines that reduce the freight charges of St. Louis and Chicago to one-half what New York has to pay.

In order to meet the reduced fares which the railroads of the Central Passenger Association offers to merchants who will go to Chicago and St. Louis and stay away from New York, the Merchants' Association proposes to make independent arrangements for reduced fares for merchants visiting New York from all parts of the United States. It also proposes to concentrate passenger and freight traffic to and from this city upon the railroads and steamship lines that do not discriminate against New York.

For this work the Merchants' Association requires a fund of $100,000 to $200,000, and it invites contributions from all citizens of New York.

Checks may be made payable to Charles H. Webb, treasurer. The office of the Merchants' Association is in the New York Life Insurance Building, Broadway and Leonard street.

WORSTED GOODS DUTIABLE AS MANUFACTURES OF WOOL.

In a recent decision the United States Supreme Court says: "Worsted is but wool spun and twisted in a particular manner," and as such is a manufacture of wool." The suit arose concerning an importation of worsted dress goods, imported August 29, 1894. The appraisers assessed duty under the provisions of paragraph 395, that is, 12 cents per square yard and 50 per cent. The importers protested on the ground that the goods were "not manufactures of wool." The Wilson law became operative August 28, 1894, except the schedule providing for "manufactures of wool," the date for this schedule being January 1, 1895. The importers contended that worsted was not a manufacture of wool, and that the goods were dutiable at 40 or 50 per cent. ad valorem. The decision of the General Appraisers was reversed by the Circuit Court, and subsequently was sustained by the Circuit Court of Appeals. The Supreme Court has reversed the decision of the Circuit Court, and has settled the vexed question in deciding that worsted is a manufacture of wool.

NEW TRANSPORTATION AND STORAGE COMPANY.

Assemblyman Fitzgerald has introduced a bill in the New York State Assembly incorporating the Merchants' Transportation and Storage Company, with a capital of $100,000, which may be increased to $5,000,000. There are to be thirteen directors, the company is to operate ships and barges to be used in trade and commerce upon the ocean, rivers, canals and waterways, and to acquire elevators, warehouses, terminal facilities, and to transport, elevate and store freight.

To the end that business of the company may not be controlled by any railroad or other transportation company, a majority, or seven of the board of directors, will be chosen by a majority vote of three voting trustees, one of whom will be chosen by a majority vote of the stock represented at the annual meeting for the election of the minority directors, and the other two of whom will be the president of the New York Produce Exchange and the president of the Buffalo Merchants' Exchange as representatives of the commercial interests of the State.

The Kidderminster Shuttle of the 5th inst., says: "Heilner Brothers, the well-known carpet dealers of Dundee, have been appointed representatives for W. & J. Sloane, of New York, for Great Britain. The firm have for several years been sole agents for W. & J. Sloane for the rest of Europe."

The Kentucky Court of Appeals held, in the recent case of Cotton v. Crawford et al., that while the policy of making contracts the effect of which is to destroy competition in business is not encouraged by the courts, nevertheless where a plain agreement is made between a party selling out his interest in a business and his vendees that he is not to re-enter upon the same business in the same town while they are engaged therein the contract will be upheld.

A WHITTALL MILLS SOCIETY CELEBRATION.

The Whittall Mills' Aid Society, composed of employees in the carpet factory of M. J. Whittall, South Worcester, Mass., celebrated the tenth anniversary of its birth by a dinner at the City Hotel, Worcester, on the night of the 16th ult. About seventy-five members of the society were present, and among the guests were Messrs. Matthew J. Whittall and Alfred Thomas. The principal speech of the evening was made by Mr. Whittall. In introducing him the toastmaster, William Greaves, said that he had begun work seventeen years ago, South Worcester being at that time unbuilt and uninhabitable. It was then a swamp or a sand pit, with but a few houses on either right or left. Worcester had 64,000 inhabitants, and now South Worcester was a city in itself. There had been no one to build up this section of the city and do so much for its people after it was built as Matthew J. Whittall. He would say that some of the credit belonged to his workmen, but the credit was his, and thousands of admiring hearts knew it. There had been talk of a separation of capital and labor. Capital was needed and could not live without labor, and vice versa. And when employer and employee joined together in such a gathering as this it was a good omen for South Worcester. At all times Mr. Whittall had given invitation to his people to enjoy the beauty of his grounds, which were the pride of the city, and which attracted many an admirer of beautiful residences and beautiful grounds to that section of the city.

In responding Mr. Whittall said: "I wish to say first, as the toastmaster has spoken of it, that I should be pleased to have you visit the grounds at any time; there will be more pleasure to have you come than should you stay away. A great delight has it been to me to have 700 school children troop by and enjoy the scene, and to have the workmen pass by three times or more a day. When the grounds were first laid out Dr. Conaty said that I would have to build a fence, but I said I would try the experiment first, and if a fence were found necessary it would be built. And you know that to-day there is no fence. Several times I have been asked to move to another part of the city, but I feel just as much at home there as you do, and it is not my intention to move away. It is a pleasure to meet you, and, forgetting for a while the routine of work, touch elbows with one another at least once a year. A banquet yearly would be a good thing for this reason."

"St. Louis still stands third among the wool markets of the United States," said B. Harris, wool buyer. "Our receipts for last year were more than for 1896, being about 30,000,000 pounds; in 1896, 15,000,000 pounds; in 1895, 22,000,000; 1894, 25,000,000."—Ex.

QUALITY VERSUS PRICE.

Charles Biggs, a member of the National Association of Credit Men, in discussing recently the subject of low priced merchandise in the retail trade said: "The demand for low priced merchandise, East, West, North and South, has been especially intensified during the last few years of business depression. Price has been made the keynote of all transactions between buyer and seller. The shelves of the retail merchant have been filled with trashy merchandise, which has given little real service and still less satisfaction to the consumer. The excuse for this has been the supply offered was selected in view of the actual demand. This was probably true. At the present time, however, it must be admitted that there is a vast improvement in the financial condition of the mass of the people of the land. With this improvement there has already come in some sections a marked change in the character of the demand. A larger percentage of the better grades in all classes of merchandise is being called for by the consumer. Therefore it behooves every retailer to give to the selection of his stock most careful consideration. It is to his interest to adjust his purchases in accordance with the changed condition. He can with very little effort, and without enlarging the number of transactions, considerably increase the volume of his sales by presenting to his trade articles in which quality rather than price is shown to be the chief merit, and by advocating the purchase of such goods by reason of the advantages to the consumer which follow. The opportunity for pursuing this plan is presented in nearly all lines of merchandise, and it is certainly well worth while for the merchant to study the temper of the times. With the turn of the tide that has set in all should endeavor to reach the high water mark of success and improvement in the quality and price of merchandise sold, which will result in a corresponding increase in gross sales with no greater cost of doing business."

TAXING DEPARTMENT STORES.

Senator Davis has introduced into the New York State Senate a bill designed to restrict the field of department stores. It provides for the taxation of such stores substantially as follows: The various lines of trade commonly handled by them are classified into twenty-five groups, and the dry goods store is prohibited from conducting more than one of them except by paying into the public treasury an annual tax of $100 for adding the second group (clothing), $5,000 for the third group (jewelry), $10,000 for the fourth group (groceries), $25,000 for the fifth group (meat), $40,000 for the sixth group (wines and spirits), $80,000 for the seventh group (furniture), and $100,000 for any other group. The measure is intended to apply only to places of 10,000 or more inhabitants, this exemption being made in favor of the country store. It is not to apply to manufacturing warehouses, pawnbrokers or auctioneers.

SMOKY CITY NEWS.

Pittsburg, March 24.

Notwithstanding the fact that there may be wars and rumors of wars, that we have been tried by fire, and that the ruins have descended and the floods came, we find the carpet business very brisk just now at our April 1 "moving season," and the dealers well satisfied with present trade and future prospects.

E. Groetzinger has been spending the past week in the Eastern markets.

"Jimmy" White, who put in the past year at McClintock's, has returned to the Groetzinger establishment this season.

Manager Scott, of Campbell & Smith's carpet department, is doing some lively hustling these days and keeps his department well to the front.

At the Pittsburg Carpet Company's store every evidence of a busy spring season can be seen. Manager Perkins has made many improvements in the old stand.

J. R. Thompson, late with Gimbel Brothers, Philadelphia, now manager of the carpet department at Kaufman Brothers, reports business as very lively.

The rug department of Jos. Horne & Co., Penn avenue, is doing a very satisfactory spring business. W. E. Gardner, lately with E. Groetzinger, is now with Horne & Co.

C. L. Rose, Allegheny, formerly of the firm of Bovard, Rose & Co., is much gratified over the spring business to date in Allegheny, and is pushing things with characteristic vigor.

The O. McClintock Company, Fifth avenue, who this spring opened a very extensive Oriental rug department, report a large sale of fine carpets and a very satisfactory general business. This firm secured the contract for the shades, &c. for the Carnegie branch library, located in that section of the city known as Lawrenceville.

At E. Groetzinger's big establishment on Penn avenue things are looking very lively. Mr. Groetzinger enlarged his building the past season by the addition of another story, and yet finds himself crowded for room, using, at the same time, one floor of the large Arrott Storage Building, immediately in the rear, for storage of mattings, linoleums and carpetings.

The wholesale trade is very active, both in piece goods and in the cut order lines. Mr. Grant, of the Groetzinger traveling force, reports their men all in, and orders very satisfactory; they are very busy cutting up goods in the cut order department, the business being largely in excess of last season. Mr. Lautenslagen, of the Pittsburg Dry Goods Company's new cut order department, is very much elated at its success.

The high water of the 23d and 23d caught many Pittsburg business people. At the linoleum and rubber goods house of J. & H. Phillips, on Sixth street, they opened on the morning of the 23d to find 3 feet of water in their basement and much damage done to stock. Around the corner at the carpet house of E. Groetzinger the same condition of affairs existed, the rise in the Allegheny coming unexpectedly about 2 A. M. and flooding the cellar floors. Mr. Groetzinger's loss will not exceed about $2,000. The McElwee Furniture Company adjoining suffered a loss of about $1,000 on stock by the same flooding of their basement floor.

Jake Rosenberg, for several years at the head of the McClintock upholstery department, but late of Chicago, is again back at the old stand. The carpet boys were all glad to see "Jake," and to hear some of his new stories.

Among the buyers in this market the past fortnight were: Henry Unchapher, Apollo, Pa.; Geo. C. Magill, Dawson, Pa.; W. H. Rodgers, Brilliant, Ohio; E. H. Wells, Wellsville, Ohio; Winfield Scott & Son, Steubenville, Ohio; A. Trautman & Son, Butler, Pa.; Rodgers & Elder, Lisbon, Ohio; A. J. Speigelmire, Braddock, Pa.; Welsch & Puffenberg, Wilkinsburgh, Pa.; Mr. Weller for the Letonia Store Company, Letonia, Ohio; McCune & Swartz, Homestead, Pa.; Brian Brothers, Salem, Ohio; Ewer & Brother, Jeanette, Pa.; S. P. Keller & Son, Monongahela, Pa.; Ridinger & Caldwell, Irwin, Pa.; C. E. Andrews & Sons, New Bethlehem, Pa.; Skelley & Haney, McKeesport, Pa.; A. J. Wild (Michigan Furniture Company), McKeesport, Pa.; A. S. Cunningham, Indiana, Pa.; Irwin Smith, Smithton, Pa.; L. H. Reeves, Coal Centre, Pa.; Mrs. J. Klapheck, Wheeling, W. Va.; F. A. Fuller, Wilmerding, Pa.; A. Frank, Irwin, Pa.; J. N. Mullins, Fayette City, Pa.; A. A. Carmack, Brownsville, Pa.; A. M. Borland & Son, Monongahela, Pa.; T. E. Marshall, New Brighton, Pa.; S. C. Weimer, West Newton, Pa.; Murphy & Co., Scottdale, Pa. Ad. Leighny.

THE TRANS-MISSISSIPPI EXHIBITION.

ORK is progressing rapidly on the site of the Trans-Mississippi Exposition, Omaha. The Government Building is finished, and the exposition will probably be ready for the public on June 1, the day appointed for the opening of the grounds. Thirty-five States have signified their intention to participate in the exposition, and others are preparing to appoint commissions. New York, Kentucky and Tennessee are the latest States to appoint commissions, and those for Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Rhode Island will soon be announced. Agents of the exposition in Mexico and Canada report that those two countries will be well represented. Many of the Western States have prepared for very extensive displays. Montana will send in a few days a train of ten cars loaded with various Montana products as the first instalment of its exhibit. Oregon, Wisconsin, Kansas and Colorado are also making elaborate preparations.

"I THINK I shall have to discharge my office boy."

"What's the matter with him?"

"All there is for him to do at the office is to tear off the sheets once a month from the various calendars hanging on the wall, and when he tore them off on the first day of March he kicked because February was such a short month."—Ex.

A VIGOROUS LETTER FROM ROBERT DORNAN.

An attack on Senator Quay by the Philadelphia Public Ledger of the 17th ult. brought from Robert Dornan, of Dornan Brothers, Philadelphia, a reply of which only a portion was printed in connection with a rejoinder made by the Ledger on the 23d ult. As Mr. Dornan's high position in the carpet trade makes his views on the subject at issue of special interest to our readers, we take pleasure in presenting herewith the full text of his letter to the Ledger, which is as follows:

Philadelphia, March 18, 1896.

Editor of the Public Ledger:

In your issue of the 17th inst. your editorial "On Serving the Public" is not couched in the usually courteous terms one is accustomed to read in the columns of the Ledger. Without wishing to engage in newspaper controversy, I deem it only a duty to reply to the language you employ in holding up the services of Senator Quay to his country and constituents to public scorn. That I should take such action may be considered unnecessary and gratuitous; nevertheless, with the knowledge which obtained during the pendency of the Wilson Tariff bill in the Senate, the great services of Senator Quay to his constituents through the efforts made almost single handed to secure an amelioration of the hard conditions attached to the duties relating to carpets, it would be an act of gross ingratitude if I were to permit your words to pass unchallenged.

Let Senator Quay be what he may as a politician (which aspect of your criticism I do not touch upon), and however much a criticism of him as such is deserved, I can truthfully say as one of his constituents occupying a position to know, that his services to the carpet manufacturing industry have been invaluable, and in every way worthy of the highest commendation. I unhesitatingly declare that with the support of a dozen Senators equally fortified with printed matter for argument (as was he), and as thoroughly determined, they could have overthrown the Wilson Tariff measure in the Senate, and by this saved the country in a large degree from the terrible business distress that followed the passage of that bill and which still continues, notwithstanding the passage of the Dingley Act with its improved protective features.

If a confirmation of this opinion is desired, I beg leave to refer you to the Hon. John Sanford, Amsterdam, N. Y.; Alexander Crow, Jr., and Samuel B. Stinson, both of this city, all of whom were personally cognizant of Senator Quay's efficiency at the time described, and again later during the consideration of the Dingley Tariff bill in the Senate. In my opinion your reflections upon Senator Quay regarding his alleged "non-usefulness to the business of the country and his constituents" had better been left unsaid, because they raise doubts as to the soundness of your whole position.

A SUCCESSFUL MERCHANT'S OPINION ON ADVERTISING.

The rooms of the Merchants' Association, this city, on the 17th ult. Robert C. Ogden, resident partner of John Wanamaker, made an address on the subject of advertising. In the course of his remarks Mr. Ogden said: "The success of a business depends on three things—merchandise, service and advertising; and advertising I regard as the dynamic power of the business. It makes the business when taken seriously. One trouble about it is that merchants do not always take it seriously. Under present conditions no business can be conducted successfully without advertising. It is the fundamental principle of business, and should receive the attention of the head of the business. The columns of the newspapers are the rostrum of the merchant from which he speaks to the people whom he wishes to influence. Advertising should always be true. It should be a test of the character of the merchant. Advertising should never be stupid. It should be so attractive as to gain the attention of the reader whether he wishes it or not. It should always be in good English, the illustrations should be of high artistic character and the printing in good type."

The New York Belting and Packing Company, Limited, reports the following recent orders for interlocking rubber tiling: Capitol, Washington, D. C. (elevators); Ebbitt House, Washington, D. C. A NEW CONVICT LABOR BILL.

Representative Cochrane, of New York, has introduced in Congress a bill designed to protect free labor from prison competition. It provides that no person shall knowingly transport, or cause to be delivered for transportation, for commercial purposes, from any State or Territory in which there are in whole or in part manufactured any goods, wares or merchandise, in whole or in part the product of convict labor in any penitentiary, prison or reformatory, or other establishment in which convict labor is employed, into any other State or Territory or into the District of Columbia. All goods, wares, and merchandise made or manufactured in whole or in part in any State or Territory by convicts shall be branded or stamped in a legible and permanent manner, where it can be plainly seen and easily read, "Prison made; made by convicts at ———," giving the name of the penitentiary, prison, reformatory or penal institution and of the city, town or village and State or Territory where made.

All goods made by convict labor, transported without the proper mark, shall be forfeited to the United States, and all persons who violate the provisions of this act shall be punished by a fine of $250 or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

UNION LABOR STIPULATION IN A CONTRACT.

A very singular contract was made recently between George H. Fuller & Co., of Chicago, and Kaufman Brothers, proprietors of a large department store at Pittsburg, Pa. It provides that none but union men shall be employed in the erection of a new business structure for the Messrs. Kaufman to cost $130,000. The most important part of the contract reads as follows: "It is especially agreed that all labor under this contract shall be performed by local union workmen, and the contractors are to furnish a bond with approved security for $50,000 conditioned upon the faithful performance of their part of the agreement."

The M. A. Furbush & Son Machine Company manufacture Smyrna rug looms of the latest improved pattern, which are in great demand among the largest manufacturers of Smyrnas. Write to the company's office, 224 Market street, Philadelphia, for catalogue and prices.

The French consul at Riga, Russia, says that the use of linoleum has developed enormously at Riga within the last few years. Linoleum, which was formerly seen only in the dwellings of the well-to-do, is now found in very humble homes. This progress is due to the Société Franco-Russe, whose works, situated near Riga, are called Provodnik. The factory dates back to 1889. In that year the company sold 5,000 square archines (1 archine equals 28 inches) of linoleum. At present the annual production of Provodnik amounts to 600,000 square archines, but owing to this enormous production prices have fallen 60 per cent.

PACIFIC COAST NOTES.

San Francisco, March 19.

The carpet and furniture trade is a long way from lively, and consequently the dealers feel that they have just cause for complaint. The spring trade has hardly opened up yet, although it probably will very soon, if other years are criterions to go by. Seattle, Wash., appears to be doing about all the business that is to be transacted, especially in Klondike outfitting, although this is not to infer by any means that San Francisco is not doing her share also. The Klondike business does not, however, directly interest the furniture business, as departing gold seekers are not prone to carry furniture.

T. Brilliant is expecting his spring furniture.

M. Friedman & Co. report a good carpet and furniture trade.

R. Burgess will shortly start an upholstery business at Juneau, Alaska.

G. W. Patterson has sold out his furniture store at Hillsboro, Oregon.

Robert Coulter & Brother, 227 Sutter street, are doing a large rattan furniture business.

J. B. Lucas has opened a furniture store in the building on the corner of Broadway and Second avenue, Ballard, Wash.

C. F. Weber & Co., dealers in bank and office furniture, opera chairs &c., have removed from 300 to 306 Post street to 334 Post street.

Harrold, Balcher & Allen, who occupy beautiful quarters at Sutter and Mason streets, are doing a large spring business in antique furniture, fine upholstery and portières.

I. N. Walter, of D. N. & E. Walter & Co., leaves for Europe the 24th of this month. H. Harris is doing the Northwest for the house, this territory being productive of the most orders at present. E. P. Ackerman is hustling in the southern part of the State for the same firm.

Joseph Meunier, assignee of the Chauvin-Fant Furniture Company at Butte, Mon., has filed a report. The report shows the receipts by the assignee to amount to $11,309.05, the disbursements were $5,895.48, and the net receipts $5,413.57, which were distributed among the creditors.

INSTALMENT SALES IN ILLINOIS.

The Supreme Court of the State of Illinois has recently handed down a decision in which it holds that "No chattel mortgage executed by a married man or a married woman on household goods shall be valid unless joined in by the husband or wife, as the case may be." The decision was in the case of Lucius B. Mantonya v. the Martin Emerich Outfitting Company, and grew out of the sale of furniture by the defendants to parties who were running an apartment house and who abandoned it, leaving some of the furniture which had been purchased, and for which a note had been given, secured by chattel mortgage. The owner of the building attempted to seize the furniture for the rent which had not been paid, and the court held the chattel mortgage invalid because it had not been executed by husband and wife.

The Lamond & Robertson Company, of Paterson, N. J., have been sold ahead upon their line of jute carpets and rugs. Their jute goods are considered second to none for their handsome colorings and perfect finish, and are well known throughout the country. At the Central Mills they now turn out two grades of Smyrna rugs—the Armenia and Bangor. The latter rug has proved a great success, and its price and quality should attract all buyers.

PROGRESS IN THE ORIENTAL RUG BUSINESS.

Under their new arrangement with C. A. Auffmordt & Co., Chadurjian Brothers, of 78 Grand, 33 and 35 Greene streets and 369 Broadway, New York, are beginning to show a practical outcome of such a move by offering large quantities of Oriental rugs, carpets and Bagdad portières, which are of exceptional interest to the buyers for large firms.

Chadurjian Brothers have always been leaders in manufacturing in the Orient. They were largely instrumental in popularizing one-faced Bagdad portières and later brought out double-faced and Mosque Bagdads. Chadurjian Brothers are manufacturing, besides, very costly and heavy Bagdad portières, which are sold by them in Turkey at as high as $80 to $90 apiece to the highest Turkish aristocracy. These, of course, cannot be brought here on account of the several hundred per cent. of duty. They are also making elegant Yordez, Kirman and silk rugs. The Messrs. Chadurjian have been very scrupulous in keeping up the reputation of their goods, both in quality and dyes, only vegetable fast dyes being used. When others attempted to introduce aniline dyes Chadurjian Brothers, by their vigorous publications in Constantinople leading journals, aroused the public sentiment against them, and also influenced the Government to prohibit the use of aniline dyes in Cesaria, Asia Minor, where these Bagdads and rugs are manufactured.

A NEW INTERNATIONAL BANK.

A bill for the chartering of an international American bank is now before Congress and it is being pushed by the National Association of Manufacturers. This association discussed the subject at its last convention in New York, and it has always stood out prominently as a representative of this important idea. The new bank will have a capital of $25,000,000, which, it is expected, will be subscribed entirely by American investors.

Among the prominent men interested in the project is William Barbour, of the Barbour Brothers Company. The bank will be conducted on much the same plan as the Credit Lyonnaise, of Paris; the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, of London; the London and River Plate Bank and others operating between money centres and the frontiers of trade. Its capital will make it one of the greatest banks of its kind in the world. Its main offices will be in New York and Washington, and branches will be established in other large American cities. As there is now no bank in South America which is not affiliated with some European concern or institution, the American bank will probably open branches of its own in the principal cities of South America and Central America.

The mill buildings, machinery and land at Norristown, Pa., comprised in the plant of the Norristown Carpet Mills, owned by James W. Barker, will be sold by the sheriff on the 13th inst.

Daughters of the American Revolution.

Washington, D. C., March 20, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

Last week closed the seventh congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The spirit of '76 was not so much in evidence, i. e., the fighting, as in former sessions. They seemed to have a very harmonious time and everything went very smoothly. Mrs. Daniel S. Manning, wife of the late Daniel S. Manning, who was Secretary of the United States Treasury during Grover Cleveland's first administration, snowed under all the candidates for the presidency. Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood was unanimously re-elected editor of the American Monthly Magazine, and Miss Lillie Lockwood business manager. The whole week was very enjoyable and much good work was accomplished. The Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is rapidly gaining prominence and takes rank among the great institutions of this country, and consequently is doing and will do a great deal of good in perpetuating the memory of the heroes of '76, and in regulating many of the knotty questions of the day. They are a great body of women and are equal to most anything that is good and true and noble. And could they enthuse with the spirit of '76 into a few of our statesmen, the great question that is agitating the minds of the people to-day would bring the speedy vindication of American rights and honor that every true American claims for the destruction of the Maine and the lives of her men. D. A. Childs.

Short Pieces in Ingrains.

Laconia, N. H., March 25, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

We have read with interest the communication in your last issue from a Minneapolis firm concerning short Ingrain yardage. Our experience is even worse than theirs. We had occasion to use a full roll of a lot of ten pieces of new Ingrains received this spring, and were surprised, after careful and accurate measurement, to find a shortage of over six yards. Thereupon we measured the rest of the lot, and found them all short from four to six yards. It is certainly a short-sighted policy on the part of the manufacturers, as we can get full measure of some mills, and we certainly will patronize them in preference to the scant measure fellows hereafter. Retailers should measure their Ingrains, and many will be unpleasantly surprised, as we were. But it would work well in the end, as they would naturally avoid the concerns that give short measure and deal with the honest manufacturer. O'Shea Furniture Company.

A handsome new fireproof building is to be erected on the site now occupied by the D. C. Beggs Company, Columbus, Ohio. The present building will soon be taken down to make room for the new one.

Boston and the East.

Boston Budget.

Boston, March 25.

I learn from one of the assignees that Jackman & Sexton, carpets, stoves, &c., Nashua, N. H., have settled with their creditors at 25 cents on the dollar, cash, ninety-five out of one hundred and five creditors having agreed to these terms. The firm will continue business, and it is said considerable new capital has been secured.

Thos. O'Callaghan & Co. have had the interior of their carpet rooms handsomely redecorated.

J. M. Murray & Co., dealers in instalment goods, are a new concern at 1202 Harrison avenue.

C. A. Laubham, head of Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s carpet and rug departments, is in New York this week.

The Boston General Manufacturing Company is a new concern in the instalment business at 81 Union street.

A large order for carpets for the Taunton Insane Asylum has just been filled by Thos O'Callaghan & Co.

Augustus Ridgeway, formerly connected with several Boston carpet houses, has just returned from a pleasure trip to Europe.

W. H. Reid spent last week among the Connecticut towns with W. T. Smith & Sons' rugs, squares, curtains, covers, &c.

"Harry" Richmond, S. Sanford & Son's representative in Boston, is stirring the business pot briskly as usual, but he says trade is not hot enough to make it boil.

After an excellent spring trade up to March 1, W. W. Corson & Co. say that last month was quiet. With any push to the spring retail business they look for considerable more orders, as New England merchants did not buy heavily on first orders.

James A. Furfey, the Cambridgeport cocoa mat and matting manufacturer, is busy on special orders, but can furnish stock goods very promptly. Mr. Furfey's reliable hand-made mats and mattings continue to find a market on their merits, as they have done during a long series of years past.

The Paine Furniture Company, one of the largest retail furniture houses in this city, have just opened an Oriental rug department in charge of William B. Hovey, who is also manager of their drapery department. The new department occupies one-half of the second floor, and has been appropriately fitted up with Bagdad portiéres at the windows and other Oriental decorations. A parquet floor has been laid over the original floor and provides a suitable surface for displaying the goods. No other kind of rugs but Orientals is carried.

George T. Horan begins his fourteenth year as a carpet and furniture dealer in Charlestown by leasing the four story building corner of Main and Union streets, which he will remodel and stock with a large and complete assortment of house furnishings. Mr. Horan's business has grown from small conditions to a large and prosperous trade, and he will carry out his idea, conceived at the start, and make his new location—which, by the way, has been a furniture store for nearly 120 years—a model suburban establishment.

The carpet and furniture business carried on by Fred D. Sperry at 151 Hanover street, under the firm name of W. P. B. Brooks & Co., has been incorporated under the laws of Maine, the official title being the W. P. B. Brooks Company. The capital stock is $100,000, of which $61,000 is paid in. The officers of the concern are: President, F. D. Sperry; treasurer, A. E. Smith, both of this city.

The following circular, which is self explanatory, was issued yesterday:

68 CHAUNCY STREET, BOSTON, March 24, 1898.

To the Creditors of Blanchard & Co. and E. R. Blanchard:

GENTLEMEN—At the date of the last statement rendered by me, June 23, 1893, the assets then remaining in my hands amounted, in cash and receivables, to..... $47.11

And ninety-nine shares common stock of Lexington Print Works. This stock was reduced, by the reorganization of the company, to twenty-seven shares, and last summer I sold these for..... 100.00

Total net receipts..... $147.11

This did not pay the expense of handling the trust, and there is, therefore, nothing for the creditors.

Contributions of new capital were about to be made by the preferred stockholders, in which I, of course, would not participate, and from the financial condition of the company at that time I consider that I was fortunate in getting anything for the common stock held by me, and the amount paid was merely for the convenience of making a transfer which would facilitate the reorganization. The stock was intrinsically worthless. Respectfully,

EDWARD L. PARKER, Assignee.

F. J. B.

Later.

On the 27th inst. fire started in the basement of the brick building Nos. 39 and 41 Summer street, occupied by Gilbert, Brooks & Tebbutt, dealers in Oriental rugs and carpets. The fire worked its way up to the third floor, and is supposed to have started near the basement stairs, presumably from defective electric wires. Building damaged $2,000 and loss to Gilbert, Brooks & Tebbutt is $15,000. Walter M. Hatch & Co., dealers in Oriental goods in the adjoining building, Nos. 43 and 45 Summer street, had their stock somewhat damaged by smoke.

New England Notes.

Alexander McKone, Jr., has opened a carpet cleaning and upholstering establishment at Deering, Me.

P. P. Burnham, dry goods and carpet dealer, Bridgeton, Me., is succeeded by the Burnham & McKinney Company.

A. J. Muzzy & Co., Bristol, Conn., have been making radical changes in their store. The carpet department has been moved from its former location to the upstairs part of the old store, and what was the carpet room will be used for the dress goods and cloak department.

E. Dostie is a new dealer in carpets and furniture at Augusta, Me.

C. C. Paige, carpet and furniture dealer, Tilton, N. H., is succeeded by C. H. Thomas.

Clark Chase, carpet and furniture dealer, Bellows Falls, Vt., has sold out to Keefe & Savage.

Salisbury Brothers & Co., carpet and furniture dealers, Moosup, Conn., have dissolved partnership.

An administrator has been appointed for the estate of the late W. F. Colby, Barre, Vt., and claims will be settled through the Probate Court. The estate will probably pay from 30 to 50 cents.

The Denholm & McKay Company, Worcester, Mass., have taken a twenty years' lease of the building known as Clark's Block, and will add it to their store, excepting a few rooms used as offices.

The Ingrain Weavers' Union, composed of employees of the Lowell Manufacturing Company, Lowell, Mass., has contributed $200 to the fund for the benefit of the striking employees of the New Bedford cotton mills.

Cavanaugh & Burke, Rockville, Conn., have improved the appearance of their store by changing the carpet department from the rear of the store to the front, where they have considerably more room to display these goods.

Lewis Smith, manager of the retail carpet department of the D. M. Read Company, Bridgeport, Conn., reports a very good winter's trade, much better than a year ago. He finds the Connecticut people still favor Ingrains, as the sales of the goods keep increasing, and with Tapestries they comprise the bulk of goods sold.

The Atkinson Furnishing Company, of Boston, have decided to purchase the Norembega at Bangor, Me. The company will occupy the entire ground floor, with the exception of a part of the rear of the building. The front will be entirely changed. A large staircase will be built into the middle of the building, and the front of the building will be brought out flush with the street. An immense plate glass front will be put in.

CARPET CLEANING.

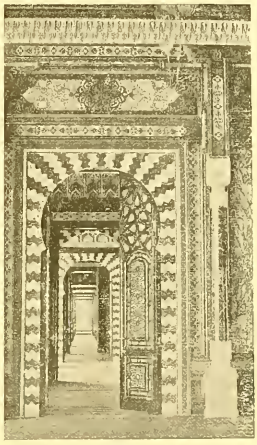
The British carpet cleaners' method of doing their work is as follows: Have two large pans of water, one clear and tepid and the other hot and soapy, made so by shaving "white curd" soap, say, 2 ounces of soap to 2 gallons of water. Have plenty of perfectly clean white cotton rags, free from thread ends and "lint."

Take a square of the carpet at one time and wash the surface quickly with a clean rag and the soapy water. Take up as much of the soiled water as possible, then wring out this cloth into a third pan of tepid water. Take the other pan of tepid water and wipe the soaped and clean surface well, being careful as possible to rub over, not rub in. Then wipe this with clean cloths until as dry as reasonable in so short a time. Proceed with the rest of the carpet until finished, guarding against any shadowy boundary lines by going back of each square as you continue. Change the water at every third or fourth square; more often if the carpet needs it.

THE NEW ORIENTAL RUG HOUSE.

During the past few weeks the salesroom of A. & M. Karagheusian has been visited by many well-known city and out-of-town buyers, who were much impressed by the superiority of their stock and the comparatively low prices quoted on same. This fully justifies their claim of having "Selected goods at moderate prices."

They are now showing a superb line of small Kiz Kilims, all in unusual designs and colors, antique Shirvans, Anatolian rugs and mats, large Bokhara rugs and carpets, and a large variety of antique Irans, including many unique specimens of the rug weaver's art.



PASSAGE IN THE PALACE OF TCHERAGAN.

Their stock of carpets, all in small sizes and desirable colors, is certainly interesting to buyers who in their search for 9x12 sizes are often disappointed as bale after bale is opened, almost all in too large dimensions.

They carry such a varied assortment that they can meet the requirements of the buyer hunting for bargains and leaders, as well as those of the fastidious connoisseur always in search of the unique, "something not seen before," &c. All they ask is a visit to their salesroom, and they feel confident that a few minutes spent among the goods will prove of interest.

THE FURBUSH MACHINERY.

The Smyrna rug looms manufactured by the M. A. Furbush & Son Machine Company, of 224 Market street, Philadelphia, are in use by all the largest makers of these goods, and are the up to date looms in the industry, containing, as they do, every modern improvement. In fact, everything that comes from the Furbush works is of the latest pattern, and the concern has a reputation second to that of no concern in the world for the perfection of workmanship and durability of all the various textile machines it constructs.

Moses Knapp, son of the late Moses Knapp, and nephew of Sheppard Knapp, died in this city on March 30, aged twenty-seven years. He was formerly a clerk with Sheppard Knapp & Co., but at the time of his death was unattached.

The trade can secure carpeting, mattings, rugs, &c., at off market prices from Albert Graff & Co., 609 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, as per their advertisement on page 95. All the goods advertised can be delivered at once, thus being secured for the present cutting up season.

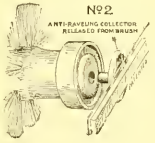
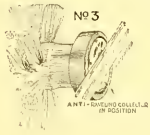
BISSELL'S "ANTI-RAVELING COLLECTOR."

The latest patented improvement announced by the Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company—the "Anti-Raveling Collector"—is a small, circular, concave disk, fitted at the ends of the sweeper, operating in a groove in the brush pulley, to prevent all hair, thread and ravelings from winding on the ends of the brush support or from filling the holes in the ends of the brush, thus preserving the free action of the sweeper and sparing the user a great amount of labor and annoyance. Many attempts have been made in the past to produce something that would properly protect the brush journal, but not until the introduction of this device was there ever a satisfactory preventive to dust and ravelings getting into the holes in the ends of the brush and making the sweeper run hard. This great nuisance to housekeepers in the use of a sweeper has now been completely overcome by the invention which is shown in the cuts presented herewith. The "Anti-Raveling Collector" is one of the most valuable improvements ever made in a carpet sweeper, except "Cyco" bearings, and the Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company purpose utilizing this great improvement in connection with all their high grade sweepers.





Puttus & Buford succeed Puttus Brothers & Buford, carpet and furniture dealers, Forest City, Ark., and R. H. Reeves & Co., in the same business at Cotton Plant, same State, have sold out.

ST. LOUIS SIFTINGS.

St. Louis, March 24.

The Wm. Barr Dry Goods Company have arranged for extensive alterations in their building in the near future at a cost of about $50,000. The changes purposed include the remodeling of each of the three fronts so as to introduce mahogany vestibules at the various entrances to the store.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trorlicht are contemplating a trip to Europe and will probably take their departure in a few weeks.

As intimated in the last issue of The Review, the Charles Niedringhaus House Furnishing Company has taken possession of its temporary quarters, corner of Seventh street and Franklin avenue, where it opened for business on Monday last, in order to close out the stock of carpets and furniture saved from the late fire in its old premises.

Early on the morning of the 18th inst. fire in the arge eight story warehouse of May, Stern & Co., at No. 1711 Olive street, caused a total destruction of the building and its contents, consisting of carpets, furniture and household goods. The loss on the stock is estimated at $50,000, which is almost covered by insurance. Business at the firm's retail store, corner of Eleventh and Olive streets, suffered no interruption. The concern has already secured a new location for a warehouse, having rented the commodious building at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Walnut streets, which is rapidly being filled up with a fresh stock of goods.

B. W. B.

THEY KNOW HOW TO BUY.

On the principle that a well selected stock is already half sold the E. R. Artman-Treichler Company, of 713 Market street, Philadelphia, need fear no comparison with any other carpet jobbing house in the country.

Their lines are chosen from such makes as Smith, Sanford, Higgins, Roxbury, Stinson, Whittall and Schofield, and the process of selection in pattern and color has been carried so far and so carefully that it is almost impossible to find an unattractive design or undesirable shading in the entire assortment.

Everything known to a well appointed carpet stock can be found on their floors, and it is safe to say that the average dealer could make his entire purchases for a season in this establishment and not go wrong in a single instance.

The marked success achieved by Gustave M. Fauser during his first six months as an open designer proves the high character of his work. It will be remembered that Mr. Fauser secured the second award in the prize competition offered by S. Sanford & Sons in the fall of 1896, and was attached to that firm's designing force for a number of years. His work is now being fully taken by the Tapestry, Velvet, Axminster, Brussels, Wilton and rug manufacturers. His public studio is at 103 East Eleventh street, New York.

The spring opening of Jonas Long's Sons, Wilkesbarre, Pa., took place on the 24th ult., and the immense department store of this enterprising firm was thronged throughout that day with shoppers. An orchestra furnished music and an exhibit of hothouse flowers and plants was an additional and very attractive feature.

LARGE SALE OF DAMAGED CARPETING.

About 11,000 rolls and partial rolls of carpeting, saved from the fire at the store of J. & J Dobson, Philadelphia, were sold by auction, by order of the Underwriters' Salvage Company, on March 24 and 25, at 364 and 366 Broadway, this city, Townsend & Montant acting as auctioneers. There was a large attendance of the trade, including many merchants from the East, West and South. The offerings comprised Wiltons, Velvets, Axminsters, Tapestries, Brussels and Ingrains, and the prices realized were as a rule surprisingly high in view of the condition of the goods.

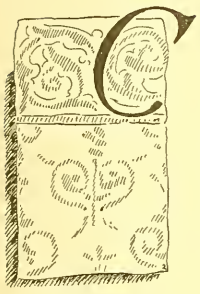
Among those present or represented at the sale were Stix, Baer & Fuller, St. Louis; Clarence Laubham, of Jordan, Marsh & Co.; C. F. Bacon, of R. H. White & Co ; Geo. J. Bicknell, of the Atkinson Furnishing Company, and Frank Ferdinand, of Boston; Henry Wunderlich, and Max Heller, of Lit Brothers, Philadelphia; James Thompson, of Kaufmann Brothers, Pittsburg; A. B. Van Gaasbeek, of A. B. Van Gaasbeek & Co., and Frank Ray, of Wm. M. Whitney & Co., Albany, N. Y.; Williams & McAnulty, Scranton, Pa.; Reed & Co., Taunton, Mass.; C. F. Wing, New Bedford, Mass.; H. M. Bixby, of H. M. Bixby & Co., Salem, Mass.; J. M. Allen, of Allen, Stephenson & Co , Knoxville, Tenn.; C. F. Fuller, Omaha, Neb.; D. Cohen, of Cohen Brothers, Richmond, Va.; Sheppard Knapp and H. B. Haines, of Sheppard Knapp & Co.; John W. Cornell, Geo. Clark, of Baumann Brothers, Cassidy Brothers, S. Manges & Son and John Patten, of New York; Chas. Mentrup, of the Cowperthwait Company, of Brooklyn.

HIRST'S SMYRNA RUGS AND MATS.

Thomas Hirst ranks among the most successful manufacturers of Smyrna rugs and mats in the country and the business of his mills during the present season has been in full keeping with this fact. At his New York salesrooms, 337 Broadway, C. W. Bogert says that orders are coming in well, the demand being especially good for carpet sizes and mats. Mr. Hirst's line includes two grades, the Regal, a standard quality in all sizes up to 9x12 feet, and the Hustler, a new and popular grade, which has proved a very quick seller. Dealers will find that these goods will well repay inspection.

The steamer Horatio Hall, built for the Maine Steamship Company, whose vessels ply between New York and Portland, was launched successfully at Roach's shipyard, Chester, Pa., on the 23d ult. in the presence of thousands of spectators. She is 319 feet in length, has 48 feet beam, and a depth of 19 feet 10 inches. Her tonnage is 3,300, and she has a freight capacity of 2,000 tons. She has triple expansion engines, carrying 180 pounds of steam, and six boilers. Her horse power is 4,500, and her guaranteed speed 17 knots. She is expected to reduce the time between New York and Portland to eighteen hours in good weather. C. M. Bailey, head of the floor oil cloth manufacturing firm of C. M. Bailey's Sons & Co., is the president of the Maine Steamship Company.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO RETAIL ORIENTAL RUGS.



Careful carpet dealers who note the signs of the times and the trend of business must now feel that they should carry Oriental rugs or increase their assortment if they are already handling them. Hardwood floors are certainly creating an increased demand for fine rugs and the Orientals are coming in for a good share of the trade.

The plan offered by Vantine & Co. on page 76 is worthy of every dealer's consideration. This firm will consign to any reputable dealer an assortment of Oriental rugs valued from $500 upward. The dealer can make his own selection or a careful selection will be made for him by Vantine & Co. The dealer is not called upon to pay for the goods inside of a stipulated time, which, at this season of the year, gives him an opportunity to turn them over before the time of payment arrives. After the lapse of the consignment period he can return any part of the goods up to one-half the amount of the consignment. This plan gives a dealer double the quantity of stock he desires to carry, for he can select a consignment of an amount twice as large as the quantity he would purchase if buying the goods outright, as he is allowed to return one-half of them under the agreement. Vantine & Co. have carried out this plan during the past two seasons with excellent results to those trying it. Their reputation in the business community is a sufficient guarantee that the dealer will obtain square treatment in the transaction, and, as has been said, this is an excellent time of the year to give the plan a trial. We would thank our readers who write to Vantine & Co. on this subject to refer to The Review.

The trade are evidently interested in the new patent hardwood stair cover made by the D. Walker Manufacturing Company. An illustration of hardwood stairs covered with carpet pads and fastened by this new device is given on page 97. Every carpet dealer should investigate its merits.

On page 7 Fritz & La Rue announce that they are in receipt of large invoices of their choice and exclusive novelties in China and Japan mattings, and can make prompt shipments. The busy retail season will soon be here, and it behooves retailers to have a good supply on hand, and no better attractions can be found than those offered by this popular Philadelphia house. They also offer an exceedingly fine assortment of Turkish, Persian and India carpets in large sizes.

Lord & Taylor have made a big advance in their cut order business this season, and are demonstrating their ability to fill hurry orders promptly. Their large resources in stock and facilities for making up carpets assure satisfaction to the retailer. A growing feature with them is the wholesaling of carpetings in the roll, as well as in cut orders, and buyers will find them in a position to offer attractive inducements in full pieces.

THE WORCESTER WILTONS AND BRUSSELS.

The Worcester Carpet Company, of Worcester, Mass., have received their usual liberal share of the business done in Wiltons and Brussels, and with an active retail trade they look for good duplicates before the season closes. No concern in the trade has done more to maintain the popularity of Brussels during the past few years than the Worcester Company. They have been extremely liberal in their outlay for new designs, and have kept their goods up to a high point of attractiveness in the matters of style and quality. Brussels are just as good a carpet as at any time in their history, and we think it is to the interest of every retailer to maintain the favor of the fabric which is unsurpassed in wearing qualities.

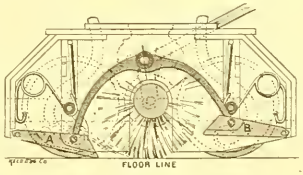
QUICK DELIVERY OF CARPET SEWING MACHINES.

To meet hurry calls for carpet sewing machines, J. C. Taft, Providence, R. I., has made up a supply of his hand and power machines and will be able to ship them immediately upon receipt of orders. These machines can be readily set up by purchasers and installed in working order within a day or two. As stated in Mr. Taft's announcement on page 94, these machines are guaranteed to sew any kind of carpeting and will sew Ingrains with the over and over stitch Fullest particulars will be cheerfully furnished upon application to the manufacturer, J. C. Taft, 40 Friendship street, Providence, R. I.

The Kingston rug fastener is built on sound principles and performs its work with ease and certainty. A glance at the illustration on another page will show that it requires no holes in the floor to catch dust and become clogged with dirt. At a time when everybody is buying rugs no carpet dealer can afford to be without a stock of his clever device.

Some very attractive printed Japanese rugs are shown by A. A. Vantine & Co. They are named Wariato and come in sizes 1.6x3, 2x4, 2.6x5 and 3x6 feet and are sold at 7½ cents per square foot. The Mima-Satta jute rugs are shown in entirely new patterns, reproducing Oriental effects in very handsome, rich colorings. They are high class quality and sell at 9¾ cents per square foot, and are in sizes from 1.6x3 to 12x15 feet.

The carpet sweeper manufactured by the King Carpet Sweeper Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., is so constructed that the mere act of sweeping causes the forward dust pan to drop down to the surface of the carpet in such a position that it must catch and retain all of the dust and dirt which the action of the brush takes from the carpet, it being impossible for any of it to "shoot through" under the pan. The great importance of this special feature of the King sweeper can be easily understood by dealers, and in connection with its perfect construction, excellent finish, &c., may well justify the prompt and wide appreciation which the sweeper has already found in the market. Write to the manufacturers for circulars and prices.



AROUND AND ABOUT.

Cork shavings, hitherto a waste product, are now utilized in the manufacture of linoleum. A cargo of 700 bales was recently landed at Philadelphia from Palamos, a comparatively unknown Spanish port. The shipment came on the British steamship Avydene, which vessel, like many others of the same type of ocean craft, brought it along to pay running expenses, the important feature of her run being to secure an outward cargo of grain. The shavings are the clippings and remnants secured from the Spanish factories after the best parts have been cut up for other purposes.

The Marquette (Mich.) Mining Journal says: "S. Johnson & Co. are putting oil cloth to a new use at their general merchandise establishment. It is being used to cover the ceilings of their storerooms. It is pasted on in a manner similar to wall paper, with borders to match. Over the joints will be tacked moldings, giving it much the appearance, when finished, of an iron ceiling, nicely decorated.

"The idea was suggested to Mr. Johnson by certain manufacturers of oil cloths. They claim that they have given the material a thorough test in decorating ceilings, and that it makes a better looking, as well as more serviceable, ceiling than anything else heretofore used. They claim that when the ceiling is dirty it can be washed with soap and water, while a dirty wood or iron ceiling will have to be repainted. Then they also say that the oil cloth is almost as lasting as either of the other two materials, and that it will look well for a longer time than wood, as the latter will warp and crack."

Housekeepers should remember that the Buffalo beetle makes its appearance as early in the year as in February or March, and the eggs should be very carefully looked after at this time. An entomologist is authority for the statement that these insects are found during the winter in cracks of the floor and crevices beneath the baseboards, and that old cloths saturated with kerosene or benzine and stuffed in these places are the best method to exterminate them. If allowed to propagate in the spring and infest the house, corrosive sublimate is most useful in destroying them. A word of advice is to mix this drug in a wide mouthed earthen jar in the proportion of one teaspoonful of corrosive sublimate to 2 quarts of boiling water. In applying it to rugs or carpets the best method is to hang them over a line, then dip a whisk kept for the purpose into the liquid, shaking it off against the inside of the jar. Carefully brush the rug on both the right and wrong sides, using only enough of the solution to slightly dampen the outside. The liquid will not injure any textile fabric, but, as it is very poisonous, should be used with great care.

In the whist column of the Sunday Sun of March 20 Mr. Foster, under the heading "A Remarkable Hand," tells this remarkable story:

The major is noted for his luck in holding trumps, but is always complaining that he has never held more than nine in one hand. The other day the deuce of clubs was turned up on his left, and the major found he held twelve trumps and the ace of diamonds. His partner led the ace of spades, on which the major smilingly discarded the ace of diamonds, whereupon the dealer trumped it with the turned up deuce. The major bought the drinks.

A correspondent writes to ask if it can be possible that the player referred to could be our Major Bailey. The whist editor of The Review has no hesitation in replying "No."

Had our major held the hand he would have made a skyrocket play by trumping his partner's ace with his ace of clubs. When his partner had stopped using bad words he would have led the three of clubs, and then exposed his hand on the table, and invited his opponents to call for any lead they desired. In that case the club, and not the major, would have paid for the drinks.

LEEDOM'S STOCK IN NEW YORK.

A card from Thos. L. Leedom & Co. in our "Special Notice" columns states that they have ready for immediate delivery at their New York salesroom a stock of their Art Squares, Smyrna rugs and Ingrain carpets. This stock is for the convenience of dealers wishing to sort up, and it will be advisable to write to Thos. L. Leedom & Co., 115 Worth street, New York, when in a hurry for the above named goods.

TEN PER CENT. DISCOUNT ON ORIENTAL RUGS.

On page 17 Yardum Brothers & Co., the Oriental rug importers, announce that in view of clearing out stock prior to new importations for fall they have decided to allow a special discount of 10 per cent. in addition to the usual trade discount on all purchases during the next few weeks. The firm will demonstrate to callers or those who write that this is a bona fide offer. Mr. Armen Yardum is soon to leave for an extended trip through the Orient, and the firm take this method of reducing stock before his departure to purchase fall goods.

They have a good assortment of Oriental rugs and carpets in various grades, including many fine Persians, and close buyers will find this an opportunity worth investigation.

An illustration of the manner in which W. T. Smith & Son please the palates of the trade is given in their announcement in this number. They believe in producing something out of the ordinary, and hence their great success and present big trade in Art Squares and large Smyrna carpets. They have positive novelties in styles and colorings in these goods, besides a particularly large line of grades and sizes, and are right in predicting that their goods will sell freely.

The Iran Company, importers of Oriental rugs, carpets and decorative fabrics, are constantly receiving invoices of goods from the East, and are in a position to offer exceptionally strong inducements to all dealers who handle Oriental rugs, &c. H. H. Costikyan, president of the company, and L. H. Costikyan, its secretary, are thoroughly experienced in the trade, and possess special facilities and connections in the Orient which enable them to interest any buyer. See their advertisement on page 95 of this issue.

The Fortnight.

ALTHOUGH there has been a marked falling off in the business done by the jobbing houses in upholstery goods, the season as a whole has shown very good results. Manufacturers of lace curtains and heavy draperies have had orders which have kept them well employed.

Chenilles continue to show improvement and the outlook is so favorable that some makers will show an unusual line of new patterns for next season.

Retail trade is opening well in the East, as it had already done in the West.

FABRICS of cotton, silk and tinsel. In the case of H. H. Schwietering & Co. against the collector at New York, the Board of General Appraisers decided as follows:

The goods here in question are fancy jacquard figured, loom woven fabrics in the piece, apparently designed for trimming or upholstery purposes, about 51 centimetres wide, in different colors, the warp threads consisting wholly of cotton and the filling of silk tram and double cotton threads covered with metal tinsel, lame or lahn, these latter threads being so thrown upon the surface of the fabric as to impart to it the appearance of being composed in chief value of gold or gilt threads. These goods were assessed for duty at 45 per cent. ad valorem under the provisions of paragraph 302, act of August 28, 1894, and are claimed to be dutiable at 35 per cent. ad valorem either under paragraph 177 or paragraph 264 of said act.

Samples, representing seven qualities of these goods, were submitted to the appraiser at this port for analytical examination by an expert in his department. It appears from that officer's report, and we so find as facts, that the silk component varied in the respective samples from 46.91 per cent. to 58.59 per cent.; cotton from 31.01 per cent. to 43.08 per cent., and metal from 10.01 per cent. to 14.02 per cent., silk being in each instance the component material of chief value.

The protests are accordingly overruled and the assessment of duty affirmed in each case.

COTTON BORDERS FOR CURTAINS.—In the case of Hees, Macfarlane, & Co. against the collector at Detroit the Board of General Appraisers decided as follows:

The goods here in question, which were invoiced from Nottingham, England, as "window shade lace, cotton," consist of white and different color manufactures of cotton, varying in width from about 4 to 6 inches, comprising figures and openwork effects in different designs, and having one straight and one escalloped or otherwise uneven border. They appear to have been, and we find that they were, "made on the Nottingham lace curtain machine or on the Nottingham warp machine."

These goods were assessed for duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for laces or lace articles in paragraph 339, act of July 24, 1897, and are claimed to be dutiable under the proviso to paragraph 340 of said act.

Paragraph 340, under which the claim is made, provides for "lace window curtains, pillow shams and bed sets, finished or unfinished, made on the Nottingham lace curtain machine or on the Nottingham warp machine." The goods in question are neither window curtains, pillow shams nor bed sets, finished or unfinished. They are laces, and may be used upon window curtains of any kind, whether made upon the Nottingham lace curtain machine or on the Nottingham warp machine, or otherwise. Indeed they may be used for purposes other than as parts of window curtains.

The protests are overruled and the assessment of duty affirmed.

LEWIS' CURTAINS AND COUCH COVERS.

The particularly large and excellent assortment of couch covers made by Robert Lewis is securing for him a goodly share of trade in these goods. The Oriental designs are notably attractive and are appropriate in every way for Turkish cozy corners. Curtains in Oriental designs are also shown in a great variety and are made to match the couch covers. These covers are produced in 50 and 60 inch widths and are shown in twelve different styles.

In table covers Mr. Lewis' assortment comprises some thirty different styles and a dozen different grades, the sizes running from 4–4 to 12–4. The large array of curtains makes this line one of the strongest in the market, as forty different styles are shown, covering a great range in diversity of patterns and colorings.

A recent addition to Mr. Lewis' production is tapestry squares for cushion covers, which are shown in a number of different effects. As stated in our last issue, Robert Lewis has opened a spacious and handsome office at 611 Hartford Building, which is in charge of Wilber C. Hyde, his well-known selling representative. Everything in the line is here on show, and can be seen to better advantage than has heretofore been possible. We advise buyers to make some selections from Mr. Lewis' many attractions for the spring trade

W. L. Kindred has opened an upholstery establishment at 58 Park square, Boston, and A. J. & G. A. Pingree have opened in the same business at 329 Columbus avenue, in the same city.

SOFA PILLOWS.

When any season of the four when pillows do not hold their own? The market overflows with beautiful affairs in every known possible style, the newer ones taking precedence of those offered some three months ago. One would be surprised to know how important an industry is that of the manufacture of sofa pillows. Almost every material known to the trade is employed in making them, from the pretty stamped cotton fabric to the gorgeous silk and velvet brocades and the rich looking East Indian silks and cashmeres. The imitation tapestry pillows twelve inches are especially pretty and popular.

New pillows constantly make their appearance. The one now in favor is the Portuguese—a beautiful and artistic combination of odd figures in every color, harmoniously blended. The background, a heavy white satin, is filled with queer, quaint shapes, closely embroidered together. It is finished with a broad satin ruffle of wide ribbon, each edge daintily trimmed with the narrowest of gilt braids.

In linens the variety is endless, the writer's part of the cream being the tone preferred. Many are embroidered in squares in which tiny blossoms are the decorative plan. In the centre of each of these squares is a single blossom—violet, pansy or wild rose in all its natural colors. The same effect can be given in silks of good quality or satins of whatever tint preferred, the long leaf chrysanthemum making also for pillows a wonderful spread of complementary tones.

In the summer pillows the denim as a foundation cannot be excelled. These pretty cotton affairs are in materials of every tint, suitable for any room and decorated in many ways to suit prevailing schemes. One very pretty cushion is in rather a light shade of blue in an ornamentation of fleur de lise, and flowing lines of rich, dark red, the cushion edged by a blue satin ribbon ruffle 4 inches wide and the outer selvage neatly trimmed with a gilt cord.

As lounging pillows nine denims in blue, old rose and dark yellows are most attractive. They are small in size made up without ruffle or cord, the decoration being usually in the centre, in which is a small branch of pine needles, gracefully embroidered and ornamented with these words: "Murmuring Pines and Shadows." These cushions are filled with sweet-smelling leaves, which prove for a "rest cure" an agreeable addition.

For couch covers, with pillows, this same denim can be made a delightful scheme, particularly for rooms in bungalow. For a group of three the pillows should be of more than ordinary size. The centre scheme is a scroll design which can be given as a white water color work of strong effects and afterward outlined by a rope silk or heavy darning cotton, as preferred. This same treatment will prove available for a couch cover edged by a macrame fringe, the whole doing excellent duty for this plan in blue. Curtains, draperies and table covers can be treated in the same way with success.

Plaid ginghams for pillows seem to be as popular as ever, blues and yellows taking precedence of all other tints, the only variations being in the different touches of embroidery, given according to fancy. For all pillows of this kind the ruffle is generally the finish. Their one great merit is that they can be readily laundered and present a dainty appearance which is always acceptable.

As pillows go the college is never out of fashion. Plain materials in cotton goods are the serviceable ones for this plan. Colored linens in yellow, blue and red are available for college colors, in decorations of flags and banners, well worked in silk floss or pasted on in ribbon embroideries. Of course the same ornamentations can be given to pillows made of India, good qualities of satins or denims of solid colors, but the stout linen meets all the demands for these popular conveniences and as a lasting souvenir is the best.

There are varieties in which lace, ribbons and artificial flowers make for each one a pleasing addition. But there are also linens which are stamped and partly embroidered in white silks all ready for the amateur at the most reasonable of prices.

The Whipple Bargain Store, Rumford Falls, Me., has removed to new quarters and added a stock of wall paper.

J. M. Baron has opened a furniture and upholstery establishment at Clearwater, Fla., and William Wirtz has opened in the same business at Duluth, Ga.

"Your wife is financially interested in your business, isn't she?"

"Yes."

"A silent partner, I suppose."

"Well, not much; what she calls one, I fear."

A new wall covering that has not been seen before this spring season is flexible grass paper. It is shown only in plain colors without a pattern and comes in cool browns and greens and in many bright and rare tints. It is particularly suited to library, hall or dining room, as the background is [illegible] and elegant.

CHICAGO'S BIG TRIMMING HOUSE.

To be thoroughly posted in all the latest novelties in upholstery and drapery trimmings, buyers should see the extensive lines of the E. L. Mansure Company, of Chicago. This company manufacture all kinds of upholstery and drapery trimmings, rope portières and embroidery goods for decorations, curtains, valances, lambrequins, table covers, &c., besides being manufacturers of fine furniture gimps. It is the constant effort of the Mansure Company to produce these goods in all the reliable qualities and the choicest styles. They have introduced many successful novelties, and each season adds to their reputation in this direction. Their special designs in embroidery fabrics are particularly attractive this season, and are alone worthy of a view of the company's lines. The business is given the personal attention of E. L. Mansure, who is well versed in what the trade requires, as well as being a successful originator. If you have not seen their spring assortment, write to the E. L. Mansure Company, 45, 47 and 49 Randolph street, Chicago.

RUFFLED CURTAINS.

Among the first manufacturers of ruffled curtains at the outset of the present revival were Hassall Brothers, of Boston. John M. Hassall, of that firm, foresaw a big demand, and leaving his position in a Boston upholstery department embarked in their manufacture. His brother James Hassall soon joined him, and the firm of Hassall Brothers quickly took a leading position in the manufacture of ruffled curtains. From catering to the Boston and New England trade at the start, they kept on expanding until they now send curtains to all parts of the country. E. H. Belcher, their Western traveling representative, is now on his way East after a nine months' tour extending to the Pacific Coast. Hassall Brothers make an immense variety of styles and grades of ruffled edge curtains, with or without lace insertions, in fish net, novelty net, bobbinet and muslin. Their prices and styles are right as shown by the character of their customers, the latter being among the best houses in the country.

HOW TO HANG FRILLED CURTAINS.

The extensive use of frilled lace curtains has caused the introduction of a rod specially adapted to these goods. This rod has been brought out by W. J. M. Gates, 564 Washington street, Boston, Mass., who is also the New England and New York State representative for Cohen Brothers & Co., the extensive manufacturers of frilled curtains. It has been found that the most graceful and stylish draping is obtained by using a double rod—that is, one rod in front of the other. A single curtain, or half pair, is double hemmed and fulled on each rod, a cut of which is shown on page 75. The variety of draping which can be obtained is almost unlimited, and the rod is easily put up or taken down. It has sold readily wherever shown, and we would advise the trade to send in orders immediately to Mr. Gates, so as to have a supply of these rods for spring trade. Read the announcement regarding this double extension rod on page 75.

SEEN AND SUGGESTED.

An authority on the subject inveighs against the color room in the furnishing scheme. A pink room or a blue room, according to this critic, is not admirable, on account of its monotonous treatment. It may be in spite of it, but it is heavily handicapped at the outset. "Consistency," says this authority, "is a prominent fault in modern furnishing." This probably would apply to the arrangement of furniture and belongings as well as to their decorative appearance. The same lecturer advises, when one undertakes to do over a house that has long been furnished, that a preliminary process is to take out about one-third of the bric-à-brac and ornamentation that is in evidence. Space that does not suggest emptiness is the most dignified and restful of treatment. A second requirement urged by the speaker is the fitness of the ornamentation to the purpose of the article. "The apple that proves to be a silk pincushion, the chicken or pug dog that proves to be a box of candy, the cabinet or chest of drawers that proves to be a bedstead—these things we should be rid of."

A New York paper gives the following description of a bed in the house which Lee Sung Quong, a rich young merchant of Chinatown, has set up for his girl bride. Its magnificence is quite Celestial. Quong's Chinese upholstery has converted the ordinary dark bedroom of a tenement-house into a gorgeous bower for the bride. The bed itself almost fills the room, and is placed against a wall hung with rich silk. It is downy looking even under the luxurious spread with which it is covered. This article would befit a millionaire's quarters It is a magnificent piece of dark red silk, woven and brocaded as only the Chinese do such things. The bed has a canopy as long as the bed itself and slightly sloping from the wall to its front edge, from which hangs a band of thick red silk, embroidered heavily with gold, and bordered with black velvet. From behind this band are draped curtains of pure white China silk extending to the floor. The interior of the canopy is brilliantly lighted by lamps that are concealed by the curtains. A couple of pillows, one large and one small, complete the furnishings, and on the silk hangings behind the bed are several small banners covered with weird Chinese pothooks

A PROMPT SHIPMENT.

An order was mailed from a city 200 miles from New York on March 14 to the Hollins Mill Company at Glasgow, Scotland, for their extra quality Scotch hollands. The goods were packed and shipped and placed on a steamer leaving the other side on March 23, just nine days after the order left the sender's hands. This is remarkably prompt work, and the Hollins Mill Company say they can repeat it.

Watts—By the way, which is the heavier, a pound of gold or a pound of feathers?

Potts—A pound of gold, of course. It would be easy enough to raise a pound of feathers.—Ex.

THE HOUR THE TARIFF TOOK EFFECT.

Judge Townsend, of the United States Circuit Court has affirmed the decision of the Board of General Appraisers that the Dingley tariff act did not become a law until the hour it was signed by President McKinley. This decision was given on an appeal taken by the Government from the board's ruling in the case of W. Iselin & Co., dry goods importers, and others last October.

The Dingley bill, passed on July 24 last, was signed by the President at six minutes after 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the same day. The Treasury Department held that it became operative on the day it was signed, and, as the Government does not recognize fractions of days it ruled that duties should be paid under its provisions on all goods imported after midnight on the night of July 23. This opinion the Board of General Appraisers did not agree with, and its view of the matter has been sustained by Judge Townsend.

The decision means a loss to the Government of several thousand dollars in customs duties. A vast quantity of imports were received before 4 o'clock on July 24, as there had been a great rush on the part of importers to get goods in before the law went into effect.

It is said that the Government will appeal from Judge Townsend's decision. Henry C. Platt, representing the Government, declined to appeal under Section 22 of the bill, containing the discriminating duties clause.

The Mt. Holly (N. J.) Union of the 9th ult. said: "Arrangements are being made by the Board of Trade to bring the silk curtain factory of Hancock & Davis, of Bridesburg, to this town, and the old dye house on the burned mill property will be remodeled for its convenience. The firm now employs twenty-five hands, but with the increased facilities of the new plant the number will be doubled."

WALTER C. WILLIAMS.

Very few men who visit the Eastern upholstery markets are better known or more generally popular than Walter Coulson Williams, of the Howe & Rogers Company, Rochester, N. Y. His striking individuality makes him a marked man, and his hearty camaraderie wins him friends wherever he goes. Add that his ability as a buyer and manager is conceded on all sides, and one need look no further for his credentials. Mr. Williams was born in the beautiful town of Penzance, England, and is probably a lineal descendant of the famous Pirates of Penzance, whose history has been told by Gilbert and Sullivan. His family came to this country when he was a boy, and settled in Rochester.

WALTER C. WILLIAMS.

He has resided there for ten years, with the exception of a year, which he passed in Pittsfield, Mass., with England Brothers. He was for several years with Carroll, Beadle & Mudge, and for the past six years has been manager of the Howe & Rogers Company's upholstery department, where he has won a deserved success.

Tabor, Danks & Co., Elmira, N. Y., have dissolved partnership.

R. S. Converse has recently started in the upholstering business at Stafford Springs, Conn.

Hungate & Bowman have opened a furniture, upholstering and wall paper establishment at 285 Erie street, Cleveland, Ohio.

Beadle & Mudge, Rochester, N. Y., succeed Carroll, Beadle & Mudge, Mr. Carroll having withdrawn to organize the C. H. Carroll Dry Goods Company.

Robert S. McDonald has recently been admitted to partnership in the firm of E. A. Hooper & Co., manufacturers of upholstered furniture, 85 Portland street, Boston.

The goods produced by the Philadelphia Tapestry Mills find few equals, and no superiors in this country. Up to date creations and prices that are right, have made this concern one of the most popular houses in the trade.

Visitors to the Corcoran Art Gallery in Washington are struck with the restful color-tone of the place, often perhaps without realizing it, and certainly many times without determining its cause. The walls are covered from the wainscoting to the picture rods with burlaps specially dyed to its pleasing tint of terra cotta. Thousands of yards were supplied to use through all the rooms, this gallery being among the first to emphasize the use of burlaps for this purpose.

THE DRAPING OF MANTEL BOARDS.

In our issue of December 15 we gave a number of examples of the easier forms of mantel board draping, which, if carried out in suitable materials, and with the care that even simple work demands, would considerably contribute to the decoration of any apartment. A few of the materials best adapted for draping are wool serges, diagonals, velveteens—printed and otherwise—the softer kinds of tapestry, plushes, various kinds of velvet, silks, particularly "Liberty," &c., while for bedrooms and dressing rooms and for small drawing rooms, decorated in the light tints which are so prevalent to-day, very pretty effects may be had in certain soft makes and shades of cretonne and linen, and in a combination of both.

In Fig. 6 appears what is known as a one-sided arrangement, a style popular in many quarters, although it is, perhaps, open to question whether it is suitable in a fireplace alike on both sides, to introduce a drapery of such unsymmetrical design. It consists of three parts—two curtains and a festoon—all of which are tacked to the front of board, and finished off with a thick cord. Each curtain must have a full width of 1½ yard wide material, otherwise the plaiting and draping will be very plain. The curtain or tail to the left is carried round the end to the wall, and shaped at the bottom like Fig. 6A. Mark on the front of board the position of each curtain, then apply the chain to obtain the measurement for the festoon; thus, at Fig. 6B, A B corresponds with the top fold, C D with the bottom, the distance between being about double the finished depth of the festoon. The bottom line should be curved toward C and D to a height of about 6 inches or 7 inches. The right hand curtain is caught up with a knotted cord, hanging down about half a yard from the corner, a hook being placed at a suitable point in the curtain and an eye behind the knot of the cord. The left hand curtain, when fringed, is plaited on to the board (plaits turned up from the front), with a little more fullness in front than at the back. The festoon, as represented, should be behind one curtain and in front of the other.

Fig. 6C

In carrying out a design like Fig. 7 the valance of canvas or other material should be cut to size, temporarily tacked to the board, and the drapery chain fixed to outline the drapery. Then the position of the embroidery may be marked, it being obvious that there is no absolute necessity for embroidering under the festoons. In Fig. 7 the central festoon may be dispensed with in cases where it might be found too deep; and where it is employed the two adjoining festoons might be taken under the valance toward the corner of the board, the tails falling over in front, as represented. In this case more of the valance is exposed, consequeutly further embroidery would become necessary.

Fig. 8 is constructed very much as the foregoing, with this difference—that the drapery is all fixed at the back.

The half festoons at the end are in reality whole ones, being carried up to the corner at either end of the board, the shaping of the pelmet or valance giving them the appearance shown.

In the case of curtains they should be suspended from a straight rod the whole length of the board in front, the ends being held up by two or three small cup hooks. In Fig. 9 we have an original design which might be made extremely interesting by the introduction of some medallion portraits or little engravings in Bartolozzi tint. The portraits should be fixed from behind, a glass being used to preserve them from the smoke and dust.

The design on the valance might be embroidered or painted or appliqué work.

In Fig. 10 the drapery should be measured in the usual way, cut in separate pieces, joined at the points of contact, drawn up with a thread. The cord or ribbon holding it at the corners will cover the drawings. Care must be taken to have the sides of each festoon of equal size; otherwise they will not join neatly.

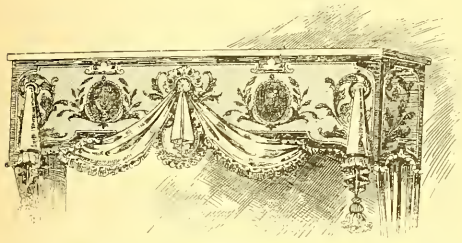

FIG. 9.—DRAPED MANTEL BOARD INTRODUCING PORTRAIT MEDALLIONS.

Fig. 11 speaks for itself; the motto might be embroidered or painted. In either case it should be done with great care. This design might be made realistic by having a fringe bearing some resemblance to the icicle.

HARTSHORN SHADE ROLLERS.

We have been suggesting to the smaller dealers, every now and then, the advisability of using some tin rollers in their business, and thus being able to fill special orders for large shades without sending away for them and being compelled to wait long for the shades. Doubtless some of you have thought of this matter and acted upon it; also the suggestion that you commence by laying in stock a few of the standard sizes of Hartshorn new groove tin rollers, for we have noticed an increasing number of orders for these splendid rollers, and many of them going to new places.

This is as it should be, for if we have ever offered anything to the trade, which they really needed, it is the new groove tin roller, with its clever and correct method of mounting shades quickly upon them. The roller has been a success from the time when we sold the first gross, and the demand which it has, we might say, created for tin rollers among certain dealers has assumed even larger proportions than we expected, and our expectations are not overly modest. If you are handling many shades, to be made up on tin rollers, and are not using the new groove tin rollers, perhaps your men might accomplish a great deal more work by changing to this roller. Many dealers tell us that this has been the case in their workrooms, and we fail to see any reason why it should not be universally so.—Hartshorn's Roller.

NOVELTIES IN DRAPERIES.

Buyers of upholstery goods, draperies, &c., will find in the upholstery department of A. A. Vantine & Co. a number of particularly attractive novelties and specialties which seem certain to be in great demand. Among them may be mentioned the Punjab Jaba cotton draperies, which are made in fast colors and in a variety of handsome patterns, comprising Indian, Kutch, Japanese, Persian and other attractive effects. A line of Anatolian cloth goods made in Bagdad stripes with a brouette line, is likely to be promptly appreciated, and the same remark applies to the new styles in blue and white Japanese crêpes and the choice line of Shikii draperies, which are shown in an exclusive patented Indian design and in a variety of colorings.

Buyers should lose no time before seeing these goods and the many other attractive things in Vantine & Co.'s wholesale department, 18, 20 and 22 East Eighteenth street, New York.

True art is to conceal art, but the woman who paints a velvet lambrequin hangs it on her parlor mantel —Ex.

Upholsterers' webbing, spring and seaming twines, seaming cord, &c., are manufactured on an extensive scale by the Ludlow Manufacturing Company, 133 Essex street, Boston. Write to them for particulars.

Hull, Stickney & Twitchell is the correct firm name of the successors to Lawrence, Wilde & Co., decorators, 38 to 48 Cornhill, Boston. The new firm is composed of William H. Hull, Horace W. Stickney and Union B. Twitchell.

The wonderful demand for the goods made by the Philadelphia Tapestry Mills is due to that peculiar something which is characteristic of everything they produce. Their goods are objects of admiration for their own individual beauty, as well as by contrast with others, and the cost through large production, scientific and economical manufacturing is moderate, so low in fact that it is a source of wonder to many how such good fabrics can be produced for so little money.

FINE LACE CURTAINS.

The value of a good reputation has been well demonstrated this season in the experience of Rieser & Co., lace curtain manufactures and importers. For many years they have made a specialty of handling the finest grades of lace curtains, and their reputation for bringing out choice things had spread throughout the country. The consumption of fine goods during 1896 and 1897 had decreased very materially, and caused the importers to be chary about stocking up abundantly. Rieser & Co., however, have carried a large stock of the choicest goods throughout the dull period, and now that improved conditions have brought about an increased demand for the better goods the trade are naturally seeking Rieser & Co. for supplies. They have found their assortment and stock exceptionally attractive, especially in view of the depleted fine stocks of most other houses, and consequently it begins to look like old times at the new salesroom of Rieser & Co., 473 Broadway. Write to them if you are in a hurry for Louis XIV., Marie Antoinette, Renaissance, Arabian, real Brussels, or other makes of fine laces.

Fraehl & Nieter have embarked in the furniture and upholstery business at New Bremen, Ohio

A. Pauly, furniture dealer and upholsterer, Boston, has removed from Beacon street to 6 Park street.

Not the least important material in making up window shades or in upholstery and drapery work is thread. The Meyer shade and drapery thread is made especially for such work, being unusually strong, yet soft and pliable. It is also smooth and glossy and made in all sizes required for hand or machine sewing. Write to John C. Meyer & Co., 87 Summer street, Boston, Mass., for samples and prices.

MOHAIRS AGAIN TO THE FRONT.

We are pleased to state that the mohair plush mills of L. C. Chase & Co. are very busy, running to fullest capacity. The signs noted last fall of the returning favor of mohair plushes have developed into facts, as seen in the present demand. Another satisfactory feature is that the call is for the best grades, for the goods turned out by Chase & Co are the acknowledged standard of the trade for high quality. The firm find their increased business coming from both the railroad car builders and the upholstery jobbers.

Travelers on the Chicago limited train, leaving the Grand Central Depot at 4 P. M. daily, have been unanimous in praise of the handsome new upholstering of the seats, which are done in Chase's frieze plush, with a detached pattern for the seat and back. The 4 o'clock train to and from Boston via the Boston and Albany Railroad has also been recently upholstered in a neat detached figure of frieze plush, and the Pullman and Wagner Palace Car companies have private patterns confined to them by Chase & Co.

F. E. Droll, who carried on the upholstery business at St. Charles, Mo., died recently.

The M. M. Rhodes & Sons Company, Incorporated, is a new concern manufacturing tufting buttons, nails, &c., at Taunton, Mass.

The Van Dyk Furniture Company, Paterson, N J., is conducting a special sale of lace curtains, and offers during the sale to have every pair of curtains purchased hung free of charge.

Byers & Parmlee, 131 Kingston, street, Boston, have had a very successful season on their curtain novelties. Mr. Parmlee made a thorough round of the trade throughout the country and is now busy getting out his orders.

W. M. Cathrall Company, Incorporated, Philadelphia, have sold their entire stock and good will to Hoffman, Corkran & Co., manufacturers, who will continue in this line on a much larger scale, Mr. Cathrall having entire charge of this department, both in the New York and Philadelphia houses. This firm has purchased in the last three years the business of Coyle & Coyle, A. C. Knight Co. and W. F. Osler & Co., which, with this addition, makes them one of the foremost in their line in this country.

At the regular annual meeting of the Silk Association of America, held March 22, the following officers were elected: Albert Tilt, president; Catholina Lambert, first vice-president; William Strange, second vice-president; Jacques Huber, third vice-president; Franklin Allen, secretary; Charles F. Homer, treasurer; directors—John N. Stearns, William T. Ryle, William Skinner, M. M. Belding, Joseph Loth, A. G. Jennings, Jacob Weidman, W. E. Eaton, James M. Erskine, Geo. L. Montgomery, Jerome C. OBITUARY.

Thomas Halton.

Thomas Halton, for many years a manufacturer of the Jacquard attachment for power looms at his factory on Mutter street, below Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, died suddenly of Bright's disease and neuralgia of the heart on March 12 at the home of his son in that city. Mr. Halton was born in Manchester, England, July 4, 1838, and came to this country in 1872. About 1876 he began the manufacture of the Jacquard machine in Philadelphia, subsequently perfecting the "head motion," which addition makes the machine now complete in every part. Later he engaged in the manufacture of table damask, in which he was successful, the plant now containing twenty looms, which are fully employed. The machinery constructed by Mr. Halton was used largely in the manufacture of fine upholstery fabrics, and he was very popular among the manufacturers in that branch of textile industry. Of a kindly disposition and possessed of a generosity that was notable for its largeness, he very often befriended the new beginners in the textile industry, and many a young firm was indebted to him for its first start in life.

THOMAS HALTON.

Mr. Halton leaves a widow, one daughter and two sons. The business will be continued as formerly by the two sons of the decedent.

THE DRAPING OF CURTAINS.

Is there any necessity for the monotony that characterizes the style of draping of ordinary window curtains? That there is monotony who that observes the windows he passes in any town, with their uniformity, can doubt? It is just for all the world as if the local authority had set up a standard to which every householder was expected to conform, according to a writer in an English magazine.

Now let us take a pair of soft Madras curtains, edged with a fringe, lace, or a frill, and endeavor to throw a little variety into the arrangement of them. Do not assume at the outset, because the illustrations show a small pole from which the curtains are suspended, that this is indispensable. Two thin brass or wooden rods will serve, one for each curtain, to permit of crossing.

Figure I requires no explanation. It is occasionally to be met with on a ground floor window, and serves its purpose well.

Fig. 2 (and this remark applies to all the subsequent designs, with the exception of Figs. 3 and 4) will be improved by being let down a foot on the floor before it is draped. From a point on the outside edge, about 3 feet from the ground, gradually gather up the curtain until the bottom corner is reached; fix the folds with a safety pin, attach this to a cup hook placed in the architrave, and finish off with a bow of ribbon.

Fig. 3. Slightly cross here, and drape at diverse heights. Be careful to have the highest draped curtain on the inside, otherwise the balance of outline will be disturbed.

Fig. 4. This is constructed similarly to the door curtain illustrated and fully described in an earlier number of THE REVIEW. In this case, however, small dress hooks might be substituted for brass rings, and the thinnest twine or white carpet thread might be used in place of cord. This and the following design are very suitable for smoky cities, where frequent shaking and brushing of window draperies is a necessity. Each of these schemes may be undraped and refixed in a very short space of time.

Fig. 5. Here we are away from the beaten track, all the appliances required being two ordinary pins and a piece of stout thread. Fasten this thread to the right hand end of pole, allowing it to depend about 1½ yards; at the lower end fix a pin, bending it to form a hook, and attach a similar hook close up at the other end of pole. Now take the right curtain, and find a point about half a yard inward from the edge (not on the edge, as in Fig. 2), and the same distance lower than the bent pin; raise this point, and fix it over the hook. Repeat this with the other curtain, and the work is done. The same result may be obtained by having a small sharpened hook fixed to the architrave; this, however, might be dangerous where there are children. Were we giving this design apart from the series, we might advise the lengthening of the left curtain by half a yard to bring it near the floor.

Fig. 6 represents a pleasing effect obtained by a simple method. The outline is not by any means original, but whereas in most cases a heavy iron band is employed, here the thinnest slip of wood, or wire, or cardboard, or even a full sized lead pencil, will suffice.

To obtain the curve, arrange the picture chain from the pole round to the outside edge of the festoon. Set this size along the front of curtain, from the top downward. Now observe the space occupied by the pleating passing over the small rod. If a pencil is used this will be about 7 inches, and it will be necessary to double it for the fullness. Mark a point on the curtain 14 inches inward from the edge, and the same distance from the top, where it is proposed to fix the small horizontal rod. Draw a line from this place to the point on front edge, rounding it upward (on approaching the front) about 2 or 3 inches. Over this line sew a narrow caser of the same material as curtains, and let it terminate at the higher point. When fixing, pass the small rod through this caser, gathering the curtain regularly, and fastening it with a pin in position. If a flat lath about half an inch broad is used, it may be fixed to the architrave, and will more readily keep in place.

Fig. 7. This, in a pretty, soft Madras, makes a charming window draping. One side has just been fully described, and the other in part. The length of the upper portion of the left curtain is easily obtained by measuring the distance from the pole downward to where the cord passes round the front of curtain. Find the distance from this point to the pole perpendicularly, and make the front line of curtain longer than the back, by the difference between these two sizes. The top consequently will be oblique. From the point mentioned to the opposite upper corner draw a line and sew a narrow caser on half this distance, beginning at the front. Pass a thin wire or cane, slightly curved, through this caser, supporting it in position with a thin twine from each end to the top architrave. Proceed as already described with the lower portion, making the two sides drape at diverse heights. A cord around the upper draping is a decided improvement.

Fig. 8. This is a design suitable for a corner window, or for two windows in juxtaposition, in which case the drapery would be made right and left. This is the simplest possible arrangement. Let the curtains be fixed merely to meet at the top as in Fig. 1, drape the right one as before described, the left one as follows: With the picture chain, find the length of the bottom curve connecting each end of pole, then the upper curve; these place, one along the back, the other along the front of curtain, drawing a line between the points. Next draw a stout thread through this, fastening it at the bottom. Now gather the curtain up as illustrated, and tie the thread around the end of the pole, and you have the result shown.

The above description will serve for Fig. 9.

It will be found in Fig. 6, and in other designs where the same style of draping is employed, that the inside edge of the curtain is inclined to turn away from the front. This can easily be corrected by pinning it underneath the festoon to the small horizontal rod.

SUMMER FURNISHINGS.

Art is taking nature more into reckoning than ever before in the methods employed in coloring and furnishing homes. Science, too, steps in and orders certain colors for the walls of living rooms that will prove either soothing or invigorating to the nerves of sight. The library, for instance, must have a soothing wall color scheme in deep grays or greens if one values his eyesight and wants to feel rested and not irritated.

In renovating a bedroom for the spring curly maple or birch forms a charming set for one who likes a wooden bed to match the rest of the room. An unpapered wall may be toned a soft gray and finished about 4 feet above the floor in a border of green outlined and possibly stenciled in gold. Panels of wood to correspond with the furniture may be set below this wide green border, and the room must have a daintily upholstered corner or window seat. Pretty and cheap drapery for this purpose may be had in the new flowered patterns of cotton velours, cretonne, denim and pungum, as well as in cheap silks. These range from 10 to 50 cents a yard, according to the quality. Velours give a velvet and pungum a silk effect, and the English flowered patterns are the prettiest.

Chairs with cane seats and one or two wicker rockers with pink and green cushions are admirable. The English dressing table admits of charming decorations, and a few floral china ornaments would give a spring-like touch. Over the bare floor have rugs sprinkled with soft gray and pink effects and the window draperies either of pink or with pink figures. A cool shade of pink should be the keynote of color in the room, and it is only prettily accentuated by the touch of green here and there and the soft gray walls on which two or three light water color pictures would look well.

If one wants to be in touch with the fad for forest green, the sitting room and morning room may be cheaply and charmingly furnished in it, to say nothing of the hall. It is restful to the eyes, artistic and spring-like in effect.

Forest green furniture comes in English patterns, both of the old and new Adam and Chippendale styles, and the American pieces are quite as lovely. Chairs of all sorts of odd shapes may be picked up that lend artistic forms as well as rich color to house decoration. The furniture is principally made of hard wood, but the same beautiful shade of green is made up into wicker and cane furniture, and comes either in solid color or is combined with red, pink or gold plaids. The red and green plaid chairs, lounges, tables and small pieces are extremely pretty and effective in fitting up a summery looking room, and are quite the newest things out. With these, as well as the other makes, draperies of most beautiful shades of green and gray are to be found in all manner of materials. Jute hangings are very pretty if one wants to be economical.

Prettiest of all, with a room furnished in forest tints, are portières of the rich Roman or East Indian stripes running crosswise. A Moorish corner makes another bright contrast, and the rugs must both contrast and harmonize with the rest of the room.

In fitting up a forest green room or hall the minor adornments must be chosen with discretion, and growing plants are almost a necessity. A pleasantly contrasting note of color must be introduced to avoid sameness, such as pink, red or some of the new heliotrope tints now in vogue.

Rugs appear in darker tones now than have been theirs for many years and the most acceptable colors for screens, wall drapery and wall coloring are found to be grays or mauves in the many tints to be had in them. These unobtrusive shades go with any sort of furniture, and a touch of the color scheme of any room may be added to them effectively.

In sympathy with this new taste come exquisite casts on plaques tinted blue, mauve or green gray, so softly tinted that the colors are hardly perceptible in the soft gray surface. The plaques, with their exquisite group of figures standing out in bold relief and dazzling whiteness against the gray background, are known as "cameo ware." The ware and its style of treatment are new and it may be had with very little expense.

Among the newest accessories to house adornments are yellow, burnished clay jars, umbrella holders, vases, ornaments, plaques and trays. Jonquils furnish both color and shape to the new yellow ware. A big, open jonquil holds a flowerpot with a palm or fern in it, or a bunch of umbrellas may stick inartistically out from among golden petals.

If a woman's means are so small that every penny counts for something and hardwood floors are luxuries beyond her, the up-to-date upholsterer can fit up a lovely yellow room at very little cost that for æsthetic beauty will compare very well with the silk hung and more gilded apartment of her more fortunate sister. Have the floor painted around the edges or stained a rich dark mahogany color for a distance of 2 feet from the wall. Cover all the rest of the floor with a deep golden brown denim of a shade of brown that will not readily show dust. The gimp used around the edges may be orange color. The denim will cost from 12 to 25 cents a yard, according to quality, and it is very wide and strong. The gimp will cost but a few pence.

Above the dashboard tack all around the wall one width of the wide burlap, which comes in all sorts of art colors, either plain or stamped with figures, at 10 cents a yard. The fashion now is to use flower-de-luce designs, and the goods for such a room must be of gold on burlap of a tan shade that will harmonize and contrast with the floor. The wall may be papered with a light ecru and gold design, and the upper border would look well finished off in yellow tulips or poppies, both stylish now for such purposes. A narrow gilt molding must finish the top edge of the burlap, and the ceiling would look best in a light cobwebby design of gold on cream paper. A picture mold of gilt must be fastened about 2 feet or more below the ceiling, and it will break the monotony of the wall.

There are chairs of white and yellow wicker to be had, and if these cannot be afforded old ones can be enameled in white and yellow. Cushions and scarfs of linen embroidered with yellow silk can be put to use in this room. Tulip or poppy covered pungum or lawn, at 10 or 15 cents a yard, may be hung at the windows in connection with white Swiss or lace curtains, and a touch of yellow can be added to the room in articles of use and of ornaments.

TAPESTRY.

As in and out of warp and woof
The tireless needle goes—
The needle strung with floss of blue,
With green where scarlet shows;
It stabs the weft but tenderly,
So that the wounds soon close,
Soft healed by threads of russet brown
Where yellow envious grows.

As in and out of warp and woof
The searching needle goes,
Uprising threads of lavender
Wherefrom deep purple flows;
It paints dun colored fantaisies,
Or glad things may disclose—
Two lovers locked in soft embrace,
Perchance they've kissed! Who knows?

Stolte & Warnke are a new firm in the upholstery business at 1601 Vliet avenue, Milwaukee.

The Battle Creek (Mich.) Mattress Company and the Stillwater (Minn.) Bedding Company have recently started in business.

Haircloth to the value of £118 was exported from the consular district of Bradford, England, during the month of February, 1898, as compared with £1,597 for the same month of 1897.

The building at 919 Broad street, Newark, N. J., is being altered for Morris Cohn. A shop for upholstery will be fitted out in the rear, and the building will have a driveway to Halsey street, as the lot extends right through the block. The store at the front is to be handsomely fitted out. The front section will be divided off from the rest of the store by means of an attractive piece of grill work, and the former will be used as a showroom for the display of wall papers, shades, draperies and upholstery. The rear part will be used as a stockroom. The front of the building will be painted in light buff, and the interior of the store will be decorated in ivory and gold.

On the 17th ult. fire caused a loss of $300 in William Rosen's upholstery shop at 83 Allen street.

The account of B. Walker & Co., of Nottingham, England, has been placed in the hands of A. Staheli who has an office at 458 Broadway.

Henry Batterman, proprietor of the well-known Brooklyn department store, has given $25,000 to the Bushwick and East Brooklyn Dispensary as a memorial of his daughter Laura, who died about six years ago.

Peter McLaren, of Rieser & Co.'s staff, started out again last week for a Western trip, and will interest the trade on the firm's strong line of fine laces, as well as in Nottinghams, Swiss goods and the ruffled curtains of their own make.

The Orinoka Mills will be an even more important factor than ever before in the trade of the coming season. The new lines of the mills will be on view next month in the New York salesrooms, corner of Fifth avenue and Seventeenth street, and should be seen by every buyer.

Manager Smith, of W. & J. Sloane's wholesale upholstery department, will have his new lines on view within a week or ten days, and they will be the most important he has ever shown, special care having been taken to make these offerings surpass all the previous ones of the department.

The firm of Schmitt Brothers, furniture dealers and upholsterers, 355 Fourth avenue, has been incorporated. The capital stock is $110,000 and the directors are Louis Schmitt, Pringle Mitchell, George Schmitt, Von Beck Canfield, Philip Schmitt and John C. Platt, all of New York city.

New invoices of Damascus brass goods, furniture, lamps, tables, chairs and curtains have been received during the past fortnight by Yardum Brothers & Co., 594 and 596 Broadway. These goods have sold so freely that the firm have hardly been able to keep their stock in good assortment, hence it will pay to view the new goods early. A splendid opportunity for inspection is offered at the spacious and finely lighted salesrooms of this enterprising firm.

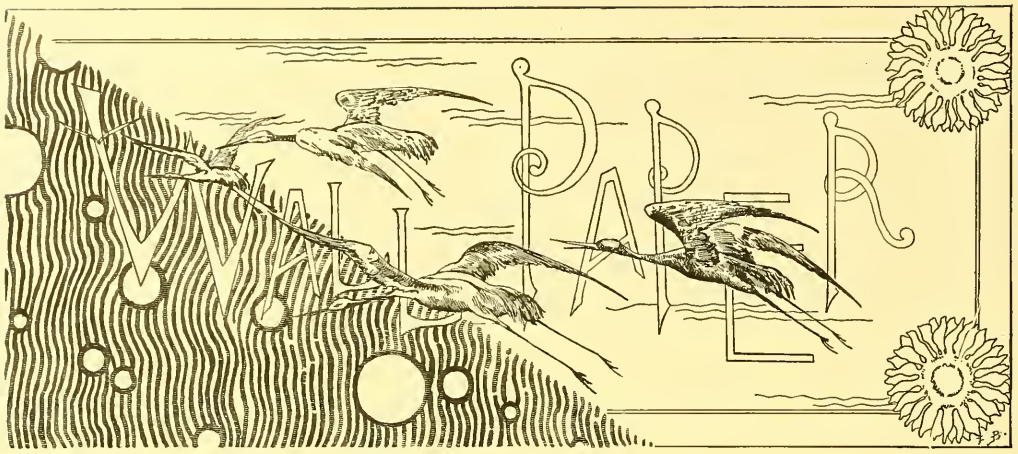
J. Prieser & Co., manufacturers of upholstered furniture, have removed from Orchard street to 94 Bowery.

The Wilkes-Barre Lace Company are now showing their complete fall line of new styles at the salesroom of the selling agents, Clarence Whitman & Co., 39 and 41 Leonard street. Many positive novelties and original styles are shown in the line.

J. A. Filer & Co., manufacturers of all grades of upholstery and drapery trimmings, fancy fringes, tassels, cords, &c., will remove their factory and salesroom from University place and Thirteenth street to 22 to 26 East Fourteenth street, about May 1.

S. J. Tellery & Co., the East India goods manufacturers, have removed from the Hartford Building to 18 East Seventeenth street, where they occupy an entire loft. They will carry a stock hereafter in their new quarters, which are being appropriately fitted up under the direction of Manager A. J. Blumberg.

Cohen Brothers & Co., 424 and 426 Broadway, have a wonderful display of bobbinet ruffled and frilled curtains. The line is almost endless, and yet every day something new is added. Mr. M. Cohen says that these goods are so beautiful and inexpensive that they will be the window drapery of the future. Their Nottingham house is now very busy making all kinds of nets and laces for the manufacture of these curtains on this side, and every steamer brings something new. Their facilities to produce the necessary materials for these bobbinet curtains are excellent, as they are directly connected with all the makers in Nottingham and are represented there by Mr. Chas. Hemsley, who has over twenty years' experience in the lace trade; in addition, they are making up the curtains themselves on the Broadway premises, which enables them to execute special orders without delay. Their window display is one unusual in the wholesale trade, being attractive and instructive to all buyers of this new drapery.



NEW WALL PAPER PATTERNS.

New spring wall papers, according to the New York Sun, contain no hint of the gilt tracery so long in vogue. Even the expensive drawing room papers show no gold in the design, and those intended for hall, library and dining room are in softly blended, quiet tones, in imitation of tapestry, cashmere and dragon-figured canvas. Papers for bedrooms are colored like fine chintz in homely direct blues, reds and greens, but the groundwork of one and all of these designs is lustreless and dull in finish. For the nursery come wall papers that are studies in bird and animal life, and fairy tale papers—a delight to child eyes, with the legends plainly indicated, and not too much detail to tire the understanding. For the living room there are substantial sanitary papers, comely to look at, and for all their dainty wood coloring and dull finish capable of being washed off in good earnest when soiled and of looking never the worse for it. For the bathroom the highly glazed tile papers (as much like Colonial and Dutch tiles as two peas) are shown, and to vary the choice tile papers in imitation of the French idea of their Flemish neighbors' wares are reproduced in amber and dull blue and delicate old rose. The figures and houses on this tile papering stand out as if embossed, the flowers look ready to be picked from the groundwork, and the highly glazed surface can be washed and washed again and show no sign of its reincarnation.

As for the den and studio papers, kept off to themselves, as if they were a little too unconventional and laxlaced to flock with the rest, the new patterns are especially unique and interesting. Peacocks of gorgeous dyes strut over the groundwork, but so embowered in foliage and barred with gratings that the downright blue greens and hints of rose color and gold, and velvet eye spots, seem subdued and only half revealed Heraldic devices are employed on some of these den wall papers, but not such symbols and coats-of-arms as are grouped formally on the leather colored hall papers and library papers. The fantastic in heraldry is dashed in with a liberal hand in these go-as-you-please designs that yet have method in them, but the formality is kept in the background and the coloring in every case is admirably blended and interwoven. Certain of these den studio papers are unequivocally Japanese, for all of their scope of symbol and coloring. Other patterns are as plainly Russian in character; others again Flemish, showing goats, peaked hats, flagons, half discernible legends, and the like. One novel pattern shows an adaptation of the bagpipes, kirtles and claymores of the Scotch, and an Italian blazonry wrought out in terra cotta, indigo blue and decided green has serpents and arched faces and monastic figures intermixed fantastically.

"But some won't have these studio papers, interesting as they are," says the salesman, and he straightaway produces an alternative. He unrolls a papering as much like green denim as anything that is not that especial thing can be, and hangs it over the slanting screen that does for a model exhibition board; then he gets a piece of molding shelf to define where the dado is to end, and gets a mingled green and ivory papering for the upper part of the wall and ceiling. "There," he says, "you have a papering that will be a charming and unobtrusive background for anything you want to hang upon it. A few tankards and quaint old mugs and cups on the molding shelf, a picture or two, or a plaque or crossed sabres on the wall, and there you have your room complete. Green is the great natural background for everything, restful to the eye, showing every object to the best advantage that is placed against it. On the other hand, artists and would-be artists and people who want a comfortable lounging room and have no trophies of travel or rich bric-à-brac to set it off with find great help in the florid, bold papers that give the necessary air of furnishing and color to the walls."

Papers representing tapestry are especially prominent. Some are as velvety and rich in appearance as old rugs, having all the subdued softness of tone and tint observable in those long woven Oriental productions. The groundwork of many of these papers is checkered over, or lined, or indexed to imitate the canvas on which the figures and garlands are worked. All the varying wood tints, the russet reds and forest greens of autumn leaves, blend in the pattern. Chinese patterns have more than a glow of yellow or gleam of purple showing out here and there, and even the rare old Gobelin tapestry has been imitated successfully. These papers are distinctive. Certain designs, intended for a grill room or dining hall, hint unmistakably of creature comforts, of the things that are offered up to man's appetite; other patterns are smaller, less bold in character and admirably suited to library or study. On first inspection you would never dream the admirably matched figures of the geometrical designs to be mere paper.

Imitation leather papers are also numerous. The rich gloss and warm coloring inherent in morocco and Russia leather upholstering are cleverly reproduced. These papers have the figures standing out from the groundwork as though embossed, and are intended for a library or hall, taking for granted the latter is light enough to admit of such decoration. Imitation of woodwork for paneling and wainscoting is also shown in wall paper. A design for use in drawing room or boudoir is in shaded crimson and rose. The groundwork of one pattern is of a lustreless, pale crimson, so dull as to look almost like a staining on a wood surface. Over this groundwork crimson roses clamber, roses velvety red and with all the bloom of the garden on their fresh petals. The effect is like an embossed paper in that the flowers appear to stand out in relief from the dull surface. A similar drawing-room pattern is in old rose, only the coloring is reversed. The deep velvet shade is the groundwork, and roses of paler tint stray over it. No hint of gilding or ornate finish appears in any one of the many new drawing room patterns displayed. Only in the Lous XVI. style of decoration, to which the gold is absolutely indispensable, does it appear, and then there is only the merest tinge on the edge of the garlands and ribbons, and the bulk of splendor is left to the moldings and panelings that divide the walls and ceiling.

The bedroom and dressing-room papers are freshest and daintiest of all. Delicate sky blue ribbons, tied together in bunches and mingled with scattered pink buds and blossoms, form the attractions of one pattern, and yet these are employed in stripes, and a half formal effect is obtained—an effect for all the world like our great-great-grandmother's best chintz bedspread, endowed with a satin-like sheen and intrinsic beauty, and treasured carefully only to be unearthed when some high and valued guest appeared who must needs take comfort in the "spare" room's benefits. A paper all in yellow and green, a dainty spring idyl, has blossoming vines clambering over a faintly tinted background. Another, bold in design, with nodding poppies on slender stems and a suggestion of wind swept grasses and breadth about it, is bound to be popular. A pattern hinting unmistakably of the prim linens and dainty sateens or tinted cotton draperies that must go with it, has maiden's blush roses running up in columns, and clustered crimson carnations for a note of more decided color. Papers with dull, steel blue grounds and quaint colored groupings and garlands are brought out to match, or rather to accord with the new dimity drapings and curtains; and perennial summer looks out from the green, all-over designs, patterned after the old time cretonnes, with brooks and bridges and lazy dawdling people reclining in leafy bowers under limitless skies. One Japanese pattern has quaint little ships and lakes and sandaled pedestrians wandering over it, done in violet and green on a gray ground. Gray grounds, with heliotrope and rose pink wreaths and emblems, are brought out to harmonize with the tinted cotton draperies.

Altogether the season's opening of wall papers and possibilities is a rare display. France sends the most effective, most subtly wrought out patterns, but the English makers, while they use stronger colors and bolder symbols, have great success with their designs.

Thomas Hannibal, upholsterer, Duluth, Minn., made a very attractive exhibit of upholstery goods, &c., at a recent bazar in that city.

"Housekeepers who have noticed that their bamboo furniture cracked and warped without any apparent reason may put it down to the heat of our living rooms," says an observing salesman. "Good preventive treatment is to wipe it occasionally with cold water, and apply a dressing made from equal proportions of linseed oil and turpentine."

The John Kroder and Henry Reubel Company's Boston branch office, at 564 Washington street, is in charge of C. W. Ellis, and the trade will find there quite a stock of goods which will enable them to have orders filled with the least possible delay. The office will in this respect be especially convenient for the trade of Boston and the vicinity.

SHOPPING.

"Where are the linens kept?" she asked,
"Downstairs," was the reply.
She sweetly smiled and grabbed her train,
And quickly hastened by.

Once down, she ventured to inquire,
"The linens, are they here?"
"Just three rooms over to the right
And straight back in the rear."

At last she reached the point proposed.
"The linens?"—like a crash
The answer came across the shop,
"They're six rooms over—Cash!"

Again she jostled through the crowd,
And faintly asked the clerk,
"The linens, please?" "Upstairs," he said,
With tantalizing smirk.

She reached the top, quite out of breath.
"The linens, sir?" she said,
"In the annex building, five floors up,
And then walk straight ahead."

Accomplishing the long ascent,
Her temper sorely tried,
She sharply asked the man in charge,
With wrath she could not hide:

"Will you tell me where the linens are,
Or if they're in the store?"
"We used to keep them, ma'am," he smiled,
But do not any more."—Ex.

A JUDICIOUS INVESTMENT.

The Best Economy in your Carpet Room

can only be secured by using the most perfect appliances, of the simplest design and the best construction.

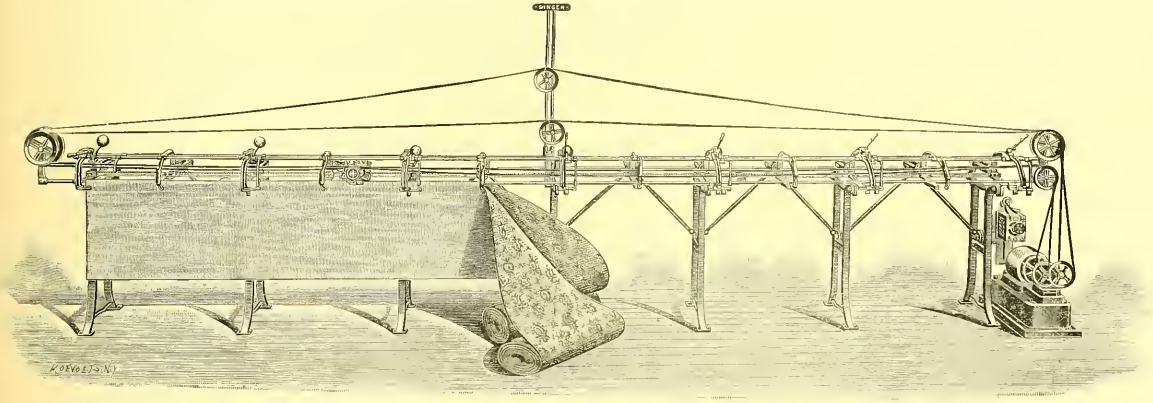
Experience Has Proven the Fact that the SINGER AUTOMATIC POWER CARPET SEWER will save its cost in one year to any carpet dealer having enough business to require a hand machine. THE SINGER AUTOMATIC is now in use by dealers who saved its cost during the first six months of its operation.

A TRIUMPH OF MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY, SURPASSING ALL OTHER DEVICES FOR ITS PURPOSE.



Truly automatic, requires less labor and sews 40 per cent. more carpet than any other machine on the market.
Requires least floor space, and uses any form of power.
Makes perfect stitch and seam, sewing any kind of carpet.

Automatic Matching and Clamping Device.

This device is absolutely unique, and secures perfect stretching and matching, without necessity for expert labor. It is simpler, swifter and in every way more effective than any other way of handling a carpet. The sewing machine works automatically on its track, following the operator from section to section as fast as each is matched and clamped, the action of the clamping levers automatically governing the movement of the sewing machine, thus saving a great deal of time. . . . . . .

This is not a Hand Machine Crudely Adapted to Power Operation.

Our Hand Machine is well known, and is still on the market, fully guaranteed to be the best and most practical in use.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms.

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked

Fine machinery, best materials, experienced hands, enable us to produce a line of Upholstery Fabrics not equaled by any other concern in this country. Our prices are as low as we can place on them. No quality like ours is offered at the same price.

We are making for SPRING of 1898 a line of fashionable Upholstery Fabrics that will meet the requirements of the masses as well as the classes. The FABRICS, WORKMANSHIP and STYLES in our SPRING line give highest value and actual worth.

We devote our energies to the production of trade making specialties suitable to the times. We only make that class of goods which embodies true merit, and insures satisfaction all around.

Our unequaled facilities and advantages enable us to offer the most complete range of styles, from the medium to the best grades, at exceedingly low and interesting prices.

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the

will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

BIGELOW CARPET COMPANY.

AXMINSTER, WILTON AND BRUSSELS

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven (at every repeat of the pattern) in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

THESE GOODS CAN BE HAD FROM ALL FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 49.

☞Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

DURING the past fortnight duplicate orders have come in fairly well. Retail trade has opened in the West, but is not entirely satisfactory in other parts of the country, especially in the large cities. Still it is to be remembered that, excepting in the country districts and small towns, the spring business of late years has been much smaller than that of the autumn, and this relative decline in spring trade is becoming more marked with every year that passes.

Manufacturers are preparing their new lines for the coming season, and it is evident that the possibility or probability of war will not be allowed to diminish the importance or attractiveness of their offerings.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

THE proverbial stupidity of the daily newspapers when they attempt to handle trade and technical topics was well illustrated recently when in referring to the suspension of work in a certain carpet mill several prominent papers said that it was due to the impossibility of getting hemp from the West Indies while war was threatened in that part of the world. As everybody in the trade knows, nearly all the hemp and jute yarns used for carpets are imported from Scotland, the raw material for the yarn being procured from East India, which is the chief source of supply for both hemp and jute. There is, moreover, an abundant stock of these yarns in the United States at present. It is possible that even the half-baked young reporters of the daily papers were aware of these facts, but ignored them in their characteristic eagerness to give a sensational twist to every story.

A WHOLESALER had one of the brightest and most impressive lectures on advertising read to him by a country merchant last week that he has ever heard in his life, says a Western paper. This merchant is not one of the ordinary merchants. He is a character in his way, a Hibernian, and with his full share of the proverbial wit. This merchant lives in a small city in the State and buys the better part of his goods in this city. He was in on a buying trip, and passing a wholesale house, he observed paper napkins in the windows. He went in to look at them, for he had sale for such things in his store.

"An' do ye have paper napkins to sell?" he asked of the wholesaler. He did have them, he said. "An' how the divil do I be knowin' that ye have paper napkins to sell if I don't come down here and happen to see them in the windy? Why don't ye till a man ye have paper napkins? Why don't ye advertise? Thin we'd know what ye had to sell." The wholesaler told him that he did advertise, which was true.

"Ah, yis," said the merchant, "an' how do ye advertise? Ye put a cut of yer buildin' in the paper. Now, what the divil do I be wantin' to see the cut o' yer buildin' for? I don't care for yer old buildin'. It's what's in yer buildin' that interests me. If ye have paper napkins say ye have paper napkins, and don't be a showin' us a picture of your big sthore. That's the way I'm a goin' to sell these paper napkins I am buyin' of ye. I put an advertisement in me paper at home to till the people of me town thet I have paper napkins to sell and the price they have to pay for thim, and be the powers they come and buy them." This wholesaler told me that he had more good advertising sense rubbed into him in ten minutes by this merchant than he had found in books in the past ten years.

It is a moot point whether the largest carpet now in existence is at the Carlton Club, London, or at Windsor Castle. Both of the carpets qualified to compete for the title are noteworthy, the former, it is asserted, having cost a sum (£8,000) equivalent to an annual income of £400—rather a large amount to be trampled upon—and the latter containing almost 60,000,000 stitches, and having occupied twenty-eight weavers during fourteen months to make.

One of the most remarkable of carpets will, it is announced, become the property of Dr. Nansen ere long, a number of enthusiastic Russian ladies having put in hand a carpet, embodying a map of the North Polar regions embroidered in silks in the design, which it is intended to present to the great explorer. The places visited by him during his great exploit are to be worked in silver and gold thread. Furniture and Decoration says: "School rooms are not usually carpeted, otherwise an enterprising weaver could adapt the idea by weaving huge carpets containing maps of the world or Great Britain and Ireland in their design, thereby imprinting an idea of space on the youthful mind which is not conveyed by an ordinary sized map. We commend the idea to makers of kamptulicon.

"Of carpets intended to be used as coverings for the floor, the one ordered by Napoleon III., and at present on the shelves of the tapestry factory at Gobelins, is doubtless the most valuable; it is, indeed, said to be worth £10,000, but the jeweled carpets belonging to the Shah of Persia, the Sultan of Turkey, and the Maharajah of Baroda are far more costly. Decorated with rare pearls and diamonds, both the carpets of the Shah and the Sultan are valued at £500,000 apiece, while the carpet, 10x6 feet, stored in the Maharajah's treasure room, is reputed to have cost £200,000.

"The latter carpet took three years to weave, but that is not surprising, for we are told that it is woven from strings of pure pearls, with a centre and corner circle of diamonds. It is interesting to note that the sum spent on this latter specimen of floor covering if converted into sovereigns would make a pretty little golden carpet 10x6 feet, the design embracing 11,272 reproductions of the Queen's head; as the carpet would contain seventeen layers of sovereigns, no one could cavil at its want of "pile." There would, moreover, be some £8,376 not utilized in the carpet. This sum alone would provide £100 a quarter to the owner. Personally we should prefer the latter carpet to the Maharajah's."

United States Minister Denby sends from Peking in answer to an inquiry the following facts relative to patents and trade marks:

"There is no patent office in China. There is no prohibition against the introduction of patented articles in this country.

"With regard to copyright, trade marks and patents, there are no treaties between the United States and China. Should disputes relating thereto arise between American citizens in China, they would be tried before the American consuls and decided according to the law of the United States. A patent held valid in the United States would be so held in China in all cases in which Americans are interested.

"With regard to native Chinese, they stand in all these matters in the same relation to American citizens as the inhabitants of any foreign country. The international recognition of rights to patents, trade marks, &c., depends entirely on treaties. In the absence of such treaties there is nothing to prevent American books being reprinted, American trade marks copied and native produce sold under them and American patented goods reproduced by native workmen. The native laws, however, give remedies for fraudulent representation or obtaining money under false pretenses. I have on several occasions applied to the Chinese Government to furnish protection against the fraudulent use of American trade marks. In each case energetic action has been taken by the local magistrates, and the perpetrators of the frauds have been punished and damages assessed.

"Beyond such preventive action, I do not see how under existing treaties and laws the Government of China can do anything."

W. D. Baker, of John Gay's Sons' selling staff, is to resume traveling over his old territory in Indiana and Michigan for the fall season. Here is the way he notified a customer of that fact:

"Dear ——:

"'And the cat came back because he couldn't stay away.' So says the song, and how applicable to my case, for under a kind disposition of Providence and the consent of my respected chiefs, I am to once more visit your lively city and incidentally call on the trade to show them the beauties we produce in the shape of carpets, viz.: Flemish Taps, Rajahs, Park Mills and other well-known brands. Presuming upon the friendship and kind courtesy shown me in the past by you, I come as a suitor for a share of your valuable business.

"My goods are fine, my prices right,
And as for patterns, they're out of sight.

"By the last phrase I do not mean literally not to be seen, but I use it in the usual language of the day, meaning unapproachable. I shall make my bow and sing my little song about the —— of ——, and, as the theatrical playbills say, 'We hope to earn your approbation and be the recipients of many an encore.'"

In their circular dated March 24 H. W. Hammand & Co., the Liverpool wool brokers, say :

The public auctions of East India wools in progress at the date of our last circular closed without further changes on the 18th inst.—the total quantity offered was 30,004 bales, of which 8,360 bales are now held over account importers.

Considering the condition of the trade generally and the undesirable character of much of the offering, the result of the series may be considered fairly satisfactory, in fact rather better than was anticipated. Competition throughout was rather quiet, but progress was much impeded by numerous and extravagant limits, to which the heavy withdrawals are mainly due.

Compared with previous sales' rates, good yellows ruled fully ¼d. per pound lower, otherwise clean wools generally were practically unchanged, except for some irregularity in white Kandahar; of this class, however, the bulk of the offering was faulty and wasty, and for most of the old wool held over from previous sales lower prices had to be accepted. Jorias, of which there was a small but good selection, were quite firm, and all clean blanket descriptions, such as Marwar and Jessulmere realized late rates. The cleaner parcels of yellow wools up to 6d. per pound benefited considerably by the demand from the States, but the uncleaned and heavy shrinkage wools were avoided—the total purchases amounted to 4,800 bales against 2,300 bales in January. Ginned whites and yellows were rather easier to buy, but grays were again in good demand, and most of the Bussorah held over from January was disposed of at full rates.

In the course of their circular on the same subject Hughes & Isherwood, wool brokers, Liverpool, say :

Really long, soft wool was exceptionally scarce, and thus readily made 7¼d. to 7½d. per pound, while at and since the sales we have made 7¾d. and 8d. per pound for a small quantity, solely owing to its merit and its scarcity. Undermarks were generally ¼d. per pound down; heavy, greasy grays were often ½d. to ¾d. lower, and almost unsalable. Of Bubruck there was a fairly large and good assortment, and prices were unchanged, whites bringing 6¾d. and 7d., and yellows 5¾d. to 6d. per pound. Vicanere whites ruled steady at 7½d. to 7¾d., but yellows—thanks to withdrawals in January—were in large supply and fully ¼d. per pound cheaper, pieces and grays being barely quotably lower. Pacputtan whites were only sparingly represented, and at 6½ to 7d. per pouud showed no change, but yellows and undermarks were barely steady. On the other hand Kolvi, Kulat and indeed all other medium Karachi yellows were in strong demand, and mark an average gain of about 5 per cent. Greasy parcels, however, of which there were far too many, afforded another proof of their unsuitability to the requirements of any section of the trade by again losing ¼d. per pound. Several shipments of nicely bred Bussora, fairly clean, which had been held over from January, sold at 5¼d. to 5½d. for the yellows, 4¾d. to 5d. for the black and brown, and 4d. to 4¼d. (chiefly 4¼d.) for the gray.

Already reduced or altogether removed limits have led to a few withdrawn lots finding buyers, and the total quantity sold at and since the auctions thus aggregates 21,469 bales, of which the Continent gets 3,200 bales, the United States and Canada 4,850 bales, and the home trade 13,419 bales. Withdrawals, therefore, finally figure at 8,360 bales; and adding to these 1,958 bales which have meanwhile arrived per Hispania, and 11,966 bales advised by Jones as afloat (including to-day's clearance of 5,500 bales), it will be seen that the supply in view for the May series already amounts to 22,284 bales.

DEATH OF JOHN L. HOUSTON.

AS we go to press we learn that John L. Houston, formerly president of the Hartford Carpet Company, is dead. The news comes too late to enable us to give further details in this issue.

E. T. MASON & Co., 28 to 32 Greene street, New York, have gone into the importation of Oriental rugs in addition to their regular lines of Japanese rugs and straw mattings.

JAPANESE auctions are conducted on a plan which gives rise to none of the noise and confusion which attend such sales in the United States. Each bidder writes his name and bid upon a slip of paper, which he places in a box. When the bidding is over the box is opened by the auctioneer, and the goods declared the property of the highest bidder.—Ex.

THE New York Carpet Lining Company report a good demand for their products in carpet lining, especially the medium grades, to which they devote particular attention. They will be pleased to send prices and samples on application to 308 East Ninety-fifth street, New York. Orders may also be placed with P. J. Donovan, their selling agent, 874 Broadway, New York.

THE H. B. Claflin Company are very much pleased with the reception accorded to their travelers who left last week for their filling-in trip. Duplicates have been coming in with remarkable frequency, and the season will beyond doubt prove to be one of the best in the history of the department. The Oriental rug and carpet departments are also doing an extraordinary business, and the cut order department has assumed a magnitude far beyond anything that Manager Winters anticipated.

THERE are some products of American manufacturing skill that have no superiors in the world. Among this class are the Smyrna rugs and carpets made by John Bromley & Sons, of Philadelphia, and sold by T. B. Shoaff & Co., of this city. In fabric, finish, color and permanency they have for years found no superiors. Manufacturers in other lines might take a valuable lesson from this standard and stalwart old house. While keeping up the fabric to its highest point, they let no opportunity pass to add to and improve their line of patterns.

PITT & SCOTT, foreign freight and express forwarders, 39 Broadway, New York, have published "Foreign Import Duties and Foreign Shippers' Hand-Book of Useful Information," which is a complete reference book, giving the rates of import duties levied by the different European governments on all classes of product and manufactures, and also containing other information of importance to foreign shippers and all others having business connection abroad. The price of the book is $1.50, and a discount of 20 per cent. will be made on all orders received before May 1. It will be ready for delivery in June.

Charles Wolf & Co., carpet and furniture dealers, are to remove on May 1 from Avenue B to 2735 Third avenue.

A. Pearson's Sons succeed the late Alexander Pearson in carpets, furniture, &c., at 59 to 63 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn.

The carpet and furniture store of Joseph Albert & Co., 251 and 253 First avenue, was entered on April 3 by burglars, who took $800 from the safe

The H. B. Claflin Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on their common stock, payable to-day, April 15. The quarterly interest on the preferred stock will be paid May 1.

A story has been passing from mouth to mouth during the past few days to the effect that a prominent dry goods jobbing house intends to give up its carpet department and that the manager has made a connection with a heavy carpet commission concern.

Charles F. Allen, carpet and furniture dealer, Grand street, Brooklyn, has secured an additional store 20x90 feet, and now occupies the stores and basements from 586 to 596, 100 feet front and 90 feet deep, including the entire middle building, three stories high.

Exports of carpeting and kindred goods from the port of New York during the past four weeks were as follows: Carpeting—Manchester, 25 rolls, $730; Mexico, 24 rolls, $705; Southampton, 3 rolls, $150; Antwerp, 7 pkgs., $97; Hamburg, 3 pkgs., $90. Carpet Sweepers—Hamburg, 48 cs., $635; British Australia, 7 cs., $144; Antwerp, 7 cs., $115; Glasgow, 6 cs., $90; New Zealand, 6 cs., $73; Rotterdam, 3 cs , $33.

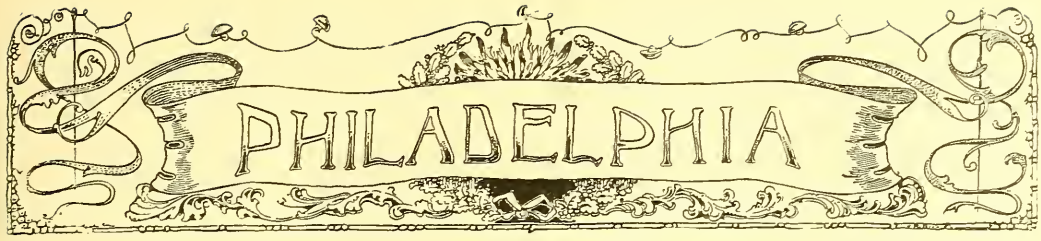
John J. Mahoney, Patrick Hassen, Nicholas Carlin and James Hallon, of Astoria, were held in $1,000 bonds to await the action of the grand jury on March 30 by Magistrate Smith in Long Island City, charged with burglary in the third degree. The furniture store of Simon Baumann, No. 2 Flushing avenue, was broken into a week before, and rugs and clocks valued at $40 were stolen. Detectives recovered the property buried in the sand and mud on Berrian's Island.

Max Kest keeps a small carpet store at 198 Stanton street, and lives in the rear rooms with his wife and two children. On the night of the 31st ult. fire broke out in the store just as the family was preparing to retire. In their anxiety to escape the parents rushed out of their apartments and forgot all about little Max, who was sound asleep. Once outside the parents missed the son, and immediately set up a shout to rescue "My boy! my boy!" &c. Chief Cook, of the Fire Department, hearing the cry, burst through the flames and smoke and rescued nine year old Max none too soon. The damage to the stock and building was less than $1,000.

A public hearing was given on the 7th inst. by Mayor Van Wyck upon the bill which recently passed the Legislature, providing for the repeal of the $250 annual license fee imposed upon local auctioneers and substituting therefor a State bond of $5,000 and a city bond of $25,000. The $250 fee which was imposed last year has been a source of much dissatisfaction among auctioneers, who claimed that it was an unjustifiable tax upon their business. The mayor will give another hearing before disposing of the bill.

Costikyan Frères have found the extension of their floor room at 139 Broadway greatly to the advantage of their trade, and have had notable success with the withdrawals they have made from the shipments for this season's trade. They have impartial testimony that their lots of goods in the various lines of rugs and carpets are among the choicest as to selection and condition in all similar goods landed in the country. That is where the buyer will find the best advantage in securing jobber's prices and having hardly anything in his purchase to diminish his profits, as is usually the case, and to avoid which the buyer has been compelled to resort to selection and pay a higher price. Costikyan Frères consider this notable improvement in their importations an important step forward in the wholesale trade of Oriental rugs and carpets.

The Dry Goods Alliance, of this city, was incorporated on the 12th ult. to deal in such articles as are sold in department stores. The capital stock is $25,000 and the directors are O. S. Putnam, of the Barnard, Sumner & Putnam Company, Worcester, Mass.; William G. Webber, of Wm. G. Webber & Co., Salem, Mass.; A. M. Church, of the A. M. Church Company, Troy, N. Y.; H. Horstmeyer, of H. S. Barney & Co., Schenectady, N. Y.; J. E. Sage, of Sage, Allen & Co., Hartford, Conn.; S. A. Howe, of Howe & Stetson, New Haven, Conn.; A. Reid, of Reid & Hughes, Norwich, Conn.; G. F. Hughes, of Reid & Hughes, Waterbury, Conn.; J. G. Howland, of the Howland Dry Goods Company, Bridgeport, Conn.; J. H. Bunce, Middletown, Conn.; C. L. Upham, of Ives, Upham & Rand, Meriden, Conn.; George L. Fordyce, of George L. Fordyce & Co., Youngstown, Ohio, and Jacob Shartenberg, of Shartenberg & Robinson, Pawtucket, R. I. The Alliance is already established in business as a New York headquarters for the above firms at 52 Franklin street, having been started some years ago. J. A. R. Husband is the local representative.



....Joseph Lomax's Sons have dissolved, and the business is continued by Joseph Lomax, his brother Ralph having retired.

....Mrs. Mary Watt, wife of Joseph Watt, of the carpet manufacturing firm of John Watt's Sons, died of typhoid fever on the 2d inst.

....Sydney Sykes, of the Port Hope (Ont.) Carpet Manufacturing Company, has been in town and has placed an order for several more power looms.

....A bust of George Draper, of Massachusetts, is to be presented to the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art by the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association April 16.

....Lawrence Collins has removed his Ingrain plant to the floor immediately above his old quarters. The change gives him more room and a much better light. Mr. Collins has most of his looms in operation.

....W. K. Smith, junior member of the firm of W. T. Smith & Son, has returned from the Pacific Slope to resume his duties at the mill. Wm. T. Smith, the senior member of the firm, expects to make a short trip South within the next few weeks.

....William Wright, the well-known South street carpet dealer, will soon remove to the building at the southwest corner of Nineteenth and Market streets. The building is 25x125 feet, has three stories, and will be occupied entirely by Mr. Wright.

....D. Jamieson's Sons have enlarged their offices and removed them to the extreme northern portion of their first floor, where they will be entered directly from the street. The "burling room" succeeds to the position formerly occupied by the offices. All their looms are running as usual.

....Ferd. Werner, Ingrain carpets, Hancock and Somerset streets, is extremely busy in filling recent orders and getting out his new fall styles. He reports a fairly good season, but could conveniently do more. His Pro-Brussels are really artistic in design and coloring, and are becoming more and more popular.

....William Henry Harrison Wallace, brother of John C. Wallace, dealer in carpet yarns, died on the 4th inst. at the age of fifty-eight years. Mr. Wallace was for sixteen years connected with his brother in the yarn business, although a member of the Philadelphia bar. He had served in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry during the war.

....John Watt's Sons' Hancock street, above Lehigh avenue, report a "first-class" season, and are now busily engaged in getting out new designs and colorings to be made in their popular "Herculean" Ingrains. In fact, so popular have these goods become that the Messrs. Watts have decided to make a specialty of them, and will be obliged to put in a number of new looms to meet the demand.

....McCallum & McCallum furnished the new law library in the city hall with a superb royal Wilton carpet, made at the New Glen Echo Mills. It is a modest design in gold, resting upon a ground of judicial green, corresponding with the other ornamentations of the room.

....Albert Graff, of Albert Graff & Co., is expected to arrive home from China and Japan in the course of a day or two. He comes by way of Vancouver, having sailed from Japan by the steamer Empress of Japan. Mr. Graff made large purchases of mattings while abroad, most of which are already on exhibition at 609 Chestnut street.

....The James Dunlap Carpet Company will build a new mill and boiler house at Fifty-sixth street and Lancaster avenue. The mill will be 102x310 feet and one story in height. The boiler house will be 50x50 feet. This increase in the manufacturing facilities of the company is an evidence of the rapid growth of the demand for its goods.

....A striking exhibition of color combination has been on exhibition in the easterly windows of McCallum & McCallum's store on Chestnut street for a few days. It consists of a carpet with a handsome shade of solid green for a centre, surrounded by a border of brilliant Oriental colors, in which bright crimson, black and gold are skillfully intermingled.

....Horace Wyman, of the Crompton-Knowles Loom Works, Worcester, Mass., called at their agency here a few days ago on his way home from a trip to the South. Mr. Wyman is favorably mentioned in connection with the power looms made by his company, which are producing the very high grade of Axminster carpets turned out by the Lowell Company.

....Samuel McGary, or Neppard, pleaded guilty in Quarter Sessions Court, this city, last week on a charge of obtaining furniture, carpets and other goods by false pretenses, and was sentenced to six months in jail. McGary had a store at Twenty-seventh and Dauphin streets, and obtained the goods on thirty days' credit. When the time had expired collectors called for the payment of the bills. They found, it is said, that the store was closed and that the stock had disappeared.

....A letter was received from Consul-General Lee on the 5th inst. conveying thanks for contributions made to the Cuban relief fund by department chiefs at John Wanamaker's. The letter, which was addressed to John E. Wilson, one of the chiefs, was as follows: "Please convey to the employees of Mr. Wanamaker my appreciation of their contribution to the destitute of this island. The amount, $200, will be applied where it could do most good. In great haste, very truly yours—Fitzhugh Lee, Consul-General.

....Edward L. Farr, of the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company, Camden, N. J., sailed for Europe March 23, and will be absent about one month. He will visit several countries on the Continent, after having called at the great burlap centre—Dundee, Scotland.

....The James Hall Carpet Company have had a very fair spring season on their Ingrain carpets, Pro-Brussels and Granites. They are at present making some improvements in their mill, including a new office and salesroom. Edwin W. Harrison, of the company, has attended to the road traveling, while John Hall looks after the manufacturing department.

....McElroy & Scholes report a most excellent business for the past season, better than any during the past five years. They are now having all they can do to fill duplicate orders, enough of which are on file to keep the looms running for an indefinite period. Joseph S. McElroy is now out upon his second trip of the season through Western Pennsylvania and Ohio.

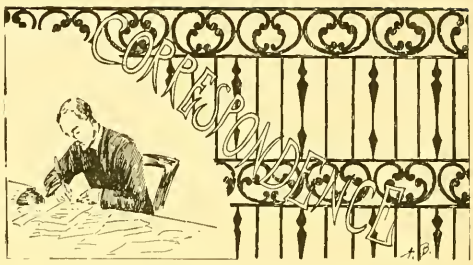
....Harvey & Clark, manufacturers of jute and Smyrna rugs, have been succeeded by the Ramas Carpet and Rug Company, in which company the firm of D. Jamieson's Sons are interested The product will be increased and larger sizes will be added to the line as soon as possible. The office of the new company is at 1732 Blair street, in the mill with D. Jamieson's Sons.

....Thomas Develon's Sons'Victoria Carpet Mills, Hancock street and Lehigh avenue, have found a ready sale for all their grades of Ingrains, and are now hard at work upon new effects for the coming season. Judging from a glimpse of a few of the new designs thus far completed, we have no hesitation in saying that the offerings will meet the approbation of all purchasers of first-class goods.

....C. H. Masland & Sons are hard at work upon their new offerings in their "Sevellan," patented weave, Amber Extra Supers, Fernbrook Extras, Savon Art carpets, Art Squares and all the other grades of Ingrain carpets made in their large mill. They will line up in the front rank with their new array of designs and color tints, made especially for the fall trade. We predict for them an unprecedented run.

....The new church edifice built by the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Germantown, has been handsomely furnished by McCallum & McCallum. The floors required 1,000 yards of 3-4 carpets, and the goods used were the Royal Wiltons made at the New Glen Echo Mills, Germantown The design in the carpet is well adapted to churches—being somewhat of an ecclesiastical character—while the colors are old gold upon an Indian red ground.

....John Davenport has started his new mill for weaving Tapestry carpets, and will eventually have fifteen looms in position. He proposes to manufacture 8 and 10 wire goods, and they will be full standard quality. The industry is something new for Mr. Davenport, he having been interested for a long time in the production of upholstery goods. His Tapestry machinery is located on the first floor of the western wing of his well-known Davenport Mills.



That Show Window Battleship.

New York, April 2, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

I noticed the description of a battleship in your issue of April 1, and take pleasure in inviting you to come to McClain, Simpson & Co.'s store to see in one of its show windows a ship which I constructed two weeks ago, and which has been favorably commented on by several New York daily papers.

General Manager, McClain, Simpson & Co.

Commission Men v. Salaried Salesmen.

New York, April 12, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

In your issue of March 1 we notice a very interesting interview on the subject of manufacturers placing their accounts in the hands of small commission men, and the evils thereby engendered to both the manufacturer and the salesmen. We heartily indorse the sentiments expressed by your correspondent, and think all manufacturers will find it will prove to their advantage to have competent salesmen, and to give them a reasonable circle of territory and time to cover it properly. Their returns will then be more satisfactory to both parties than those of some weak-kneed commission man.

It is natural for all merchants to buy their goods as low as possible, and their instinctive feeling is to bluff a commission man in a manner they cannot use with a good salesman.

The manufacturers should consider this and get proper salesmen to represent them, as it is much more pleasant to deal direct with a mill through a competent salesman than to be worried by small commission men, whose only interest is the commission on the sale then in sight.

Carpet Manufacture in Kashmir.

Srinagar, India, March 10, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

In your issue of February you were good enough to publish a short paragraph regarding ourselves, and we write to ask the favor of your correction of a small error which has crept into your notice.

We are in no sense "a new Oriental rug firm," Mons. H. Dauvergne having been practically the originator of carpet manufacture in Kashmir as a commercial industry some twenty-five years ago.

M. Dauvergne came to Kashmir about 1863, representing the great shawl syndicate, in which we believe A. T. Stewart held the American interest, and most of the finest of the Kashmir dress shawls made between 1863 and 1873 were to his design and order, and were shipped by him.

The four great centres of distribution of these goods were Paris, New York, London and Vienna. The very finest shawls were made in pairs and the design destroyed. The next class were made in sets of four pairs, one pair going to each centre ; these designs, too, were never repeated.

The shawl industry received a blow in the Franco-Prussian war, from which it never recovered. The Paris market was closed, and by the time it reopened fashion had changed, and the demand for these magnificent goods had fallen off immensely.

Hence in 1873 M. Dauvergne turned his attention to the manufacture of carpets, which had before only been made by the State and a few very small makers, working a loom or two each in their houses.

Last year M. Dauvergne retired from business, and has gone home to France to enjoy a well earned rest.

Our business is now controlled by Mr. Henry T. Harris, for a number of years past, associated with Messrs. Tellery & Co.'s business in Delhi.

We are now making carpets from the Vienna, South Kensington, Berlin and French collections of antiques, and are making the reproduction of these old goods our specialty,

H. Dauvergne & Co.

Obituary.

Alexander F. Crichton.

Alexander F. Crichton, general manager of the Planet Mills, Brooklyn, N. Y., died at his home in that city on the 9th inst. at the age of sixty-one years.

Mr. Crichton was a leading figure in the jute industry of this country for over a quarter of a century. He was born at Blairgowrie, Scotland, and came to New York in 1871; having relinquished the management of a large jute mill at Dundee to accept an engagement to equip and superintend the Planet Mills, Brooklyn, for the manufacture of jute and hemp fabrics, carpets, burlaps, &c. Two years later he went to Lewiston, Me., to take charge of a mill established there for the manufacture of seamless sacks. In 1877 he was engaged as constructor and manager of the Chelsea Jute Mills, New York. Four years afterward he became part owner and manager of the Kentucky River Mills at Frankfort, Ky., and remained in this position until 1881, when he returned to the management of the Planet Mills, and continued in charge of them until his death.

ALEX F. CRICHTON.

Mr. Crichton was a master of his trade in every detail. He served an apprenticeship in a machine shop, and then took a three years' course of study in mathematics and mechanical drawing in the Kensington (London) School of Art, from which he was graduated as a mechanical engineer. Referring some months ago to his early experience in the trade, Mr. Crichton said: "I was an apprentice in a shop in Dundee making machinery for the manipulation of flax, hemp and jute. The latter fibre was then being largely introduced as a substitute for flax and hemp. While the flax machinery then in use came the nearest to reducing the jute fibre to yarn, its comparative weakness necessitated and suggested a radical change in the internal construction of the various machines. It thus happened that in my apprenticeship I was brought face to face with the mathematical problem of what is the difference between flax, hemp and jute; the solving of which, and reducing same to practical utility, has been both a pleasure and a profit."

During Mr. Crichton's long connection with the jute industry he invented and introduced many devices for the economy and quality of production and the saving of labor. He was a member of the Brooklyn Masonic Veterans, De Witt Clinton Commandery, and Lexington Lodge, F. and A. M., the Manufacturers' Association of Kings and Queens Counties, and the St. Andrew's Society of the State of New York.

A. J. Smith.

Adoniram J. Smith, senior member of the firm of A. J. Smith and Son, Davenport, Ia., died at his home in that city on the 7th inst. Mr Smith was born at Columbus, N. J., in 1840. He went to Davenport in 1858, and was employed there as a clerk until 1881, when, with the late Francis McCullough as a partner, he bought the business of Daniel Gould, who had been his employer for eighteen years, and carried on the carpet and furniture trade under the firm style of Smith & McCullough until 1895. Mr. McCullough then retired, and Will G. Smith, son of the senior partner, entered the firm, the name being changed to A. J. Smith & Son.

Mr. Smith was an energetic and successful business man. He leaves a widow and two sons.

William H. H. Wallace.

The death of William H. H. Wallace, carpet yarn merchant, adds another to the sudden and unexpected demises which have occurred in the trade during the past six months. Mr. Wallace died on the 4th inst. from pneumonia after only a few days' illness. In fact during the previous week he had made his usual rounds among the carpet mills of Philadelphia in apparently ordinary health. The funeral occurred on the 7th inst., and an evidence of the great esteem and affection in which the decedent was held by the trade is the fact that nearly every carpet manufacturer attended, while letters of sympathy have been received by John C. Wallace, the decedent's brother, from every part of the country where carpets are woven or carpet yarns are spun.

William Henry Harrison Wallace was born in Philadelphia May 18, 1840, and was named for the popular Whig candidate for the Presidency, whose praises were then being sung throughout the land. He was educated for the legal profession, but some years ago joined his brother, John C. Wallace, in the carpet yarn business, and in that position had come in contact with almost every carpet manufacturer in the trade. His opinions on matters connected with carpet manufacturing and yarn operations were highly respected, and his even disposition endeared him socially to the manufacturing trade, to whom his comparatively early demise will long cause serious reflections upon the uncertainty of life. Mr. Wallace left a widow, but no children.

J. H. Tuchband, a traveling man for A. A. Vantine & Co., importers of Oriental goods at New York, committed suicide April 2, by taking poison at the Manning House, Windsor, Ont. Mr. Tuchband went to Detroit three weeks before, and secured sample rooms at the Hotel

Normandie. Before he could begin work he was taken with rheumatism, and had since been taking baths. April 1 he went to Windsor, and on the following afternoon he was found dead in his room.

The mercantile agencies announce the deaths of J. W. Horne, Iowa City, Ia., and C. G. Murphy, Centralia, Pa.

Mrs. Cornelie H. Gregg, wife of Robert G. Gregg, founder of the firm of Joshua Gregg & Co., this city, died at her home, 2015 Fifth avenue, on the 11th inst.

Harriet Mullins, wife of John Mullins, the well-known carpet and furniture dealer, died on April 8 at her home in Jersey City, the cause of death being paralysis. The funeral took place on the 11th inst.

Edward F. Mersick, of the old firm of English a Mersick, New Haven, Conn., died on April 8, aged sixty. The founder of the firm was ex-Governor English. They were widely known to the trade as buyers of carriage rugs and carpets. Mr. Mersick was a director of the Mechanics' National Bank of New Haven, and treasurer of the New Haven Chair Company.

CHICAGO

Chicago, April 9.

The stock of Henry Noee & Co., recently damaged by fire and water, was sold by auction last week. It was purchased by A. M. Rothschild & Co. and the Boston Store. Mr. Noee is now filling orders for cut carpets at 144 Market street.

A. J. Moore, who represents T. B. Shoaff & Co. in this territory, is looking after his trade here.

Evoy & Flanigan have moved their office from the fourth to the sixth story of the Ryerson Building.

Thomas A. Evoy, of Evoy & Flanigan, returned from his trip East to find his wife very sick. On this account he has been able to spend only a short time at the office since his return.

Walter J. Raymer, at the head of the American Pin Company's branch here, was elected alderman from the Fifteenth Ward last Tuesday. Mr. Raymer had the indorsement of the Municipal Voters' League.

Among the buyers who have been in town recently are Mr. Schuette, of Schuette Brothers' department store, Manitowoc, Wis., and Mr. Phœnix, of W. W. Bradley & Co., dry goods and carpets, Delavan, Wis.

Mr. Hockridge, of Arnold, Constable & Co., is in the city on his way East from Japan, where he has been buying mattings and rugs. E. G. Thomas, with a special line of carpets for the same house, has been in town.

It is understood that J. & J. Dobson will cover this territory from their home office after their contract with Evoy & Flanigan terminates next month, and that Frank B. Tinelli will resume calling on the trade in this section.

Last Sunday morning burglars entered the household furnishing establishment of Moore Brothers, 287 and 289 West Madison street, and stole 113 pairs of lace curtains and forty-eight pairs of tapestry portières. After several days' work the police arrested six men and one woman, and recovered thirty-nine pairs of portières and forty-one pairs of curtains.

INSTALMENT SALES IN ILLINOIS.

In our issue of the 1st inst. an erroneous statement was made regarding an important decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois in a chattel mortgage suit. The decision was in the case of Lucius B. Mantonya v. the Martin Emerich Outfitting Company, Chicago, and grew out of the sale of furniture by the defendants to parties who were running an apartment house and who abandoned it, leaving some of the furniture which had been purchased, and for which a note had been given, secured by chattel mortgage. The owner of the building, who attempted to seize the furniture for the rent which had not been paid, claimed that the chattel mortgage held by the Martin Emerich Outfitting Company was invalid on account of an Illinois statute, which provided that no chattel mortgage executed by a married man or a married woman on household goods should be valid unless joined in by the husband or wife, as the case might be. The mortgage in question had been signed by the wife only. But counsel for the company argued that the statute quoted had no application to the point at issue, because it related only to household goods owned by the mortgagor at the time the mortgage was executed, its chief intent being to prevent a drunken or profligate husband from mortgaging his household goods without the knowledge or consent of his wife.

In the course of his argument, counsel said: "Manifestly the Legislature could not have had in mind a case where a husband or wife, in order to obtain goods for household family use, bought them on credit, and as a part of the transaction of purchasing them agreed either that the title to the goods should not pass to the purchaser until the whole price was paid, or that any balance unpaid, or for which credit was given, should be secured by a chattel mortgage on the property itself, and where it was so done at the time of purchase, and before the goods had become household goods by actual use."

The Supreme Court took this view of the point involved, for it ruled concerning it as follows:

> It is true that the articles described in the mortgage are such as may be devoted to household purposes and become household goods, but that fact alone does not bring them within the provisions of the statute. That a husband or wife may purchase such articles and give a valid chattel mortgage upon them in his or her own name to secure the purchase price, notwithstanding the statute, is clear. In such case the mortgage lien is created before the property has become household goods, within the meaning of the statute. The object of the statute is to protect a husband or wife in the use and enjoyment of the family household goods against a profligate disposition thereof. It was not intended to operate as a means of hindering or preventing husbands or wives from purchasing goods for household purposes. The objection to the mortgage was properly overruled.

The judgment of the Appellate Court in favor of the Martin Emerich Outfitting Company was confirmed by the Supreme Court, not reversed as stated in our issue of the 1st inst., and a question of great importance to all Illinois dealers in carpets and furniture was thus finally settled.

William L. Whipple, Providence, R. I., has enlarged his store by taking in two more floors, each 28x48 feet, and will soon put in a new plate glass front with large show windows.

Beresford—King.—Arthur William Beresford, eldest son of J. H. Beresford, of Joseph Wild & Co., and Miss Alida Florence King, of Brooklyn, were married on the 5th inst.

Beuttell.—Henry Beuttell, American agent for John Crossley & Sons, will return from Europe next month. His son, H. Digby Beuttell, will return at the same time or possibly before.

Coutoor.—Harry D. Coutoor, credit manager for the Weeks Furniture Company, Woonsocket, R. I., is spending a couple of months at Asheville, N. C., for the benefit of his health.

Gibson.—A Whitby boy, who has made his mark in this new profession (advertising), Mr. F. James Gibson, advertising manager for the great Oriental goods house of A. A. Vantine & Co., New York, contributed an address on the subject matter, "Advertising," at the winter meeting of the Canadian Press Association in Ottawa. He was present on invitation as president of the Sphinx Club, an organization of the editors and advertising managers of New York, limited to fifty in number, of which he was the founder.—Whitby (Ont.) Chronicle, March 25.

Gulbenkian.—H. S. Gulbenkian, of the rug importing firm of Gullabi Gulbenkian & Co., returned last week from an important trip to India and the East in the interests of the firm.

Law.—Walter W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane, returned from Europe on the 5th inst. While abroad he spent most of his time in Greece, visiting places of historic and antiquarian interest. In Mr. Law's fine library at Briar Cliff Farm classic literature and history are especially well represented.

MacKay.—Henry MacKay, of Joseph Wild & Co., has been, with his family, spending a brief vacation in Washington. So conservative and loyal a gentleman as Mr. MacKay must have been startled at some of the utterances he heard this week.

Shaw—Janney.—Miss Anna Watson Shaw, daughter of the late Walter I. Shaw, for many years manager of Stephen Sanford & Sons' account, was married in the chantry of Grace Church, New York, at noon April 3, to G. Mason Janney, of Baltimore. The bride was given away by her uncle, Chas. H. Shaw.

Tinelli.—Frank B. Tinelli will resume traveling over his old territory through the West and Northwest with J. & J. Dobson's lines for the coming fall season, and will doubtless be warmly welcomed by his many friends in those sections.

Tinelli.—Lewis W. Tinelli has joined the traveling force of Alex Crow, Jr., and will represent the latter's Ingrains on the road during the coming season. He is a son of Frank B. Tinelli, of J. & J. Dobson's force.

Tobey.—One hundred patriotic Brooklyn women, most of them relatives of National Guardsmen, met at the Twenty-third Regiment armory on the 2d inst. to make preparations for war. The Women's Auxiliary Corps of the National Guard was organized to assist in the work of transporting the militia to the front, providing nurses, and furnishing to the militiamen such necessities as the Government does not provide for its defenders. On the board of managers is Mrs. Tobey, wife of B. H. Tobey, of the H. B. Claflin Company's carpet department. Mrs. Tobey represents the Fourteenth Regiment, of which her husband is major, in the newly organized corps.

Van Sciver.—J. B. Van Sciver, of J. B. Van Sciver & Co., Camden, N. J., is at present enjoying a needed rest on the slopes of the Pacific. Mr. Van Sciver is recognized as a most thoughtful and liberal employer, and his 250 workmen are continually loud in his praises. A few days ago each of those workmen received by express a large box, which, being opened, was found filled with luscious blood oranges from the groves of California. The gift was a most welcome as it was a most thoughtful one, and Mr. Van Sciver has scored another point with his grateful employees.

Yardum.—Besides being successful in their Oriental rug business the Messrs. Yardum, of Yardum Brothers & Co., are largely interested in the Baranca mines in Armica, Mexico. They became interested in these mines some two years ago, which have developed a richness in gold and silver ore far beyond the first anticipations.

THE NEW MAKE OF LINOLEUM.

The Trenton Oil Cloth Company are now prepared to show the samples of their linoleum, preparations for the manufacture of which have been in progress for several months past. The company will produce linoleum in five qualities of printed goods, designated as A, B, C, D and E, with plain linoleum in the usual grades, and also borders in the regular widths. The goods will be turned out in 8-4 and 16-4 widths exclusively. The line of patterns shows many novelties and radical departures from prevailing styles, and the company propose to present original ideas in designs and colorings.

Samples are being shown by O. F. Spate, the selling agent, who is temporarily located at 224 Canal street, New York, and the company are prepared to book orders for the fall season's delivery.

W. J. M. SUTHERLAND.

William J. M. Sutherland, whose portrait is presented herewith, is buyer of carpets and draperies for the firm of Smith & Murray, Springfield, Mass.

Mr. Sutherland was born in Scotland thirty years ago, and began his business life there as an apprentice in the dry goods trade. He came to the United States ten years ago, and secured a position in the store of Smith & Murray, who rank among the most prominent dry goods and carpet dealers in Springfield, with branch houses at Greenfield, Warren and Ware, Mass., and at Bridgeport, Torrington and Thompsonville, Conn. Mr. Sutherland is one of the best known buyers in the New York and Boston markets, and is considered an expert in the lines of goods he handles.

W. J. M SUTHERLAND.

H. Dauvergne & Co., of Srinagar, Kashmere, East Indies, are extensive manufacturers of Oriental carpets in wool and pashmina. They employ over 200 looms in their factories and use only vegetable dyes, no coal tar product being employed by them. They invite correspondence, and are certainly in a position to interest strongly every dealer in Oriental rugs and carpets. See their advertisement on page 103 of this issue.

A RUG AGREEMENT IN CHICAGO.

MANAGERS of the rug departments of the State street and Wabash avenue stores, Chicago, are congratulating themselves that a tone has been restored to the rug trade—at least, to a part of it. For a time there was no money in selling domestic Smyrnas, because prices were cut and slashed at such a reckless rate. It got to such a pass that the rugs were being sold for cost. Aaron Kline, Arnold Constable & Co.'s representative in Chicago, determined to brace up the demoralized trade if possible, and through his efforts all the State street and Wabash avenue merchants concerned assented to an agreement to make the price on 9x12 rugs $35, and to ask a certain price for each of the other sizes. As a penalty for breaking the agreement the mill men agreed not to sell to the merchant who cut the price. The scheme has worked well, I am told by the manager of one of the largest rug departments in the city. The price has been kept up, only one house cutting it, and while the merchant has been getting a fair profit for handling the goods, the sales have been nearly, if not quite, as large as before.

OVER THE "POND."

The Kidderminster Shuttle of the 2d inst. says: "Mr. H. K. Beatty, agent for the H. B. Claflin Company, is expected to visit Kidderminster next week. Mr. Beatty is on a grand tour, which includes Turkey, France, Germany and England, in search of rugs and textile novelties to the extent of $100,000, so rumor states."

The annual general meeting of the shareholders in John Barry, Ostlere & Co., Limited, manufacturers of linoleum, Kirkcaldy, Scotland, was held recently at Kirkcaldy, Mr. John Barry, chairman of the company, in the chair. The chairman briefly submitted the directors' report and balance sheet for the year ending January 31, 1898, and it was agreed that a dividend of 12 per cent. per annum for the half-year ending January 31, free of income tax, be paid on the ordinary share capital, making, with the interim dividend already paid, 9 per cent. for the year. The balance of £14,103 1s. was carried forward. The retiring directors, Alderman Sutton, H. T Peterkin and George Whyte, were unanimously re-elected.

The linoleum works of the Oxolin Syndicate at Mitcham, in the outskirts of London, were completely destroyed by fire on March 3.

Hirst & Roger, the Philadelphia Tapestry and Velvet carpet manufacturers, have had their plant running to its full capacity throughout the entire season. It is very evident from this fact that the trade appreciates the product of their mills. Their new location at Kensington and Allegheny avenues is admirably adapted to the manufacturing of carpets. They extend an invitation to the trade to call and see them in their new quarters and inspect their goods.

PACIFIC COAST NOTES.

San Francisco, April 6.

The carpet and furniture business is very quiet, and is liable to become more so if a good heavy rain is not forthcoming. Spring trade is very slow in awakening, and the war scare constitutes the principal topic of the day. A severe shock of earthquake visited this city and vicinity last week, and shook things to the foundation. The property loss about town was very small, the greatest amount of damage being the shock to people's nerves. Trade is so quiet that even the earthquake did not shake it up.

D. M. Crowley has opened a furniture store at Nelson, B. C.

Joseph E. Fredericks & Co. report very fair trade in all departments of their store.

D. N. & E. Walter, notwithstanding the general depression, have been very successful in securing many good orders.

A new business venture in Blaine, Wash., is that of Goodfellow & Wolton, who have opened a furniture store there.

The Charles M. Plum & Co. Upholstery Company report their fine carpet business as much improved over past seasons.

W. J. Cordes, owner of the carpet department in the Emporium, has established a rug department in conjunction therewith.

R. H. Chilton has sold out his furniture business at Spokane, Wash., and returned to his old home in Waitsburg, Wash.

Charles L. Beal, representing Thomas Develon's Sons, Philadelphia, is enjoying a good trade with that concern's excellent Extra Supers.

J. E. Field, probably one of the best known lace curtain and upholstery men in the business, has accepted the position of manager of the upholstery department of the Emporium and Golden Rule Bazaar department store.

S. L. Frost, Jr., a well-known furniture dealer of Marysville, Cal., passed away in that city a few days ago at the age of sixty-one years. He was born in Michigan, and came to California in 1859, and for a time worked on a farm near Honcut. Later he started in the furniture business in Marysville with J. J. Shaffer, the firm being widely known as Frost & Shaffer. In late years and up to the time of his death he had conducted the business alone. Mr. Frost leaves a widow and daughter.

The affairs of the San Francisco Furniture Manufacturing Company are again in the courts. Judge Slack has made an order finding that John C. Hughes, the former assignee of the company, is indebted to the corporation to the extent of $12,531. This was the case in which the corporation failed for $9,000, while the assets were estimated to be worth $42,989. Hughes was the assignee appointed in insolvency. He took charge at once and conducted the business. Last August, however, the creditors called upon him to resign, alleging that through his bad management the original indebtedness of the company had been nearly doubled. Hughes resigned and went to Tacoma, Wash., but before leaving filed certain vouchers with the court. The matter was looked into by Attorney G. R. Lukins, who obtained a copy of Hughes' bond, on which the sureties were F. W. M. Lang and E. H. Lang, who qualified for $35,000. He then moved that the statements made by Hughes be looked into. This was done, and it was found that the indebtedness was as given above. There is a possibility that the bondsmen of Hughes may be sued.

Golden Gate.

SAMPLE CARD OF INGRAIN TERRIES.

Alex. Crow, Jr., will increase his product of plain Ingrain terries for the fall season, enlarging his line of colorings over that of the past season. Mr. Crow will shortly send out to the trade a sample card showing a great variety of colors in Ingrain terries, the card representing a new idea in this direction. The fall lines in all grades of Ingrains produced by the Caledonia Mills are practically completed and will be on show by May 1.

THE SADIK RUG COLLECTION.

SINCE obtaining larger quarters the rug department of B. Altman & Co., this city, has become a highly important feature of that firm's great establishment. Altman & Co.'s reputation as dealers in reliable goods only, is maintained in its rug trade as carefully as in the other departments of the house, and in its offerings of Oriental rugs this feature of the firm's policy is particularly conspicuous, for the stock comprises some of the choicest and rarest rugs and carpets ever shown in this country, and the offerings generally are distinctly high in grade. This remark applies with special force to the celebrated Sadik collection which Altman & Co. have been so fortunate as to secure, and are now presenting to the inspection of connoisseurs and the public generally. Mr. Sadik, one of the most prominent rug collectors of his day, spent years in securing the rare and precious examples of the Oriental rug weaver's art which are now on exhibition in this department. The rugs in this collection comprise a variety of sizes, large and small, and range in value from $10,000 downward. Among the choicest pieces may be mentioned an antique Kirmanshah, a rare example of floriated design, an antique Sirdar, in which a dark ground of sapphire is elaborately wrought with arabesque lines in rose red; an antique Persian silk carpet, in which the design is that of the old Persian Triclinium, and an antique Sarak rug. Silk and mohair rugs are especially prominent in the collection, and many fine effects in Persian weaves are included in it.

We present below a cut showing the Sadik collection as arranged in the spacious room reserved for it under the direction of Mr. Jones, manager of the department.

FIRE IN A CARPET MILL.

FIRE broke out April 4 at about 3 P. M. in the Davenport Mills, corner of Hancock and Somerset streets, Philadelphia, and for a time threatened to spread through the entire building. It first appeared in the third story of the westerly building, occupied by Harvey & Clark, manufacturers of Smyrna rugs, and burned at a furious rate before the arrival of the fire department. The building was, of course, flooded with water, and the occupants of the stories below got the full benefit of it. The second story is occupied by Edward Ludwig, manufacturer of Ingrain carpets, whose goods were badly damaged by water. John H. Donlan, also a manufacturer of carpets, is in the same story with Mr. Ludwig, and came in for his share of the soaking.

John Davenport, owner of the property, occupies the first floor, and the flood came in a very inopportune time for him. Mr. Davenport is of the firm of Davenport & Hawley, who are just starting in the manufacturing of Tapestry carpets, and their factory is filled with new machinery and stock, including quite a quantity of printed yarns ready for the loom. Aside from the delay in the new enterprise, Messrs. Davenport & Hawley will experience some loss in damage to the new machinery, estimated at about $1,000. The mill will, however, be in full operation in a few days. Harvey & Clark's loss is $1,000, no insurance; Ludwig's loss is $3,000, insured; and Donlan's loss is $1,600, insured.

UPHOLSTERED HANDLES.

THE Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company have secured exclusive control of a patented process for covering sweeper handles with velour, or velvet, and it is apparent that the practicability of this feature will appeal at once to the trade and the consumer. These handles will be covered with handsome velour or velvet in variegated designs and patterns, and will be mounted with nickel caps and bands. These richly upholstered handles will not only be delicate to the touch, but will prevent the marring of furniture in sweeping under beds, tables and lounges, or when the handle tips over by accident, as often occurs.

These handles will add materially to a carpet sweeper display, and cannot fail to promote the sale of Bissell sweepers.

THE LONDON FUR SALES.

A LONDON paper says: "The public fur sales have just taken place, and although it was considered in well informed quarters that the prices of the furs generally would hold their own—the general range having been very low—the sharp rise which has taken place was not anticipated. Almost all classes of furs have increased in value. Hudson Bay and American marten (usually called sable) are fully 25 per cent. up, dark skins even 40 per cent.; but the prices of the common and cheaper sorts will rate about the same as last year. Mink is in great request for all countries, and is 25 per cent. higher. Skunk, another fashionable fur, is 25 per cent. to 33 per cent. up; but last year's values were extremely low, so that a rise in the value of this fur has not caused any surprise. White fox skins for dyeing in the present fashionable colors are on an average 30 per cent. higher, but they also were cheap last year. Black bears had a sudden rise, owing, it is understood, to large Government orders, but the common skins were priced much as usual. The Russian dealers take most of the beautiful silver foxes, but some fine skins were retained for home orders. On the whole, there has been a good rise on last year's exceptionally low prices. This has no doubt been caused by the Americans buying their own furs direct. Owing to the new regulations and duties on the furs belonging to people entering America, inhabitants of the United States are compelled to buy their fur garments at home instead of going to England or France for them.

THE TRADE IN ST. JOSEPH, MO.

An important commercial interest of St. Joseph is the furniture trade. Four large firms are engaged in that line, carry heavy stocks and occupy more floor space than furniture houses in larger cities. The retail trade extends for a radius of 300 miles, and the volume of the trade of St. Joseph will reach $1,000,000 annually.

The Louis Hax Furniture Company, now composed of Louis Hax, Sr., and Louis Hax, Jr., was established by the elder Hax nearly half a century ago. The store was then a small one on the west side of Market square, and from that humble commencement the present mammoth house has grown. Besides the retail furniture, this firm does a large jobbing business in carpets.

Next in point of age is the Weigel & Sons Furniture Company. This firm has been in business in St. Joseph for sixteen years. It also has had a remarkable growth, keeping pace with the city. Weigel & Sons began business on Third street, but the increase in their trade compelled a change in location, and they now occupy five floors on Sixth street, besides two warehouses.

Another firm that has had a remarkable growth is the Enterprise Furniture and Carpet Company. It has been in business in St. Joseph for seven years, for four years in the present location, on Sixth street, between Edmond and Charles, where it occupies six floors. The growth of the trade enjoyed by this house has also been wonderful. It was established on a much smaller scale at Felix and Market. By energy and application to business it has built up a trade to its present proportions.

Kirwan, the house furnisher, is also an example of what perseverance and business pluck will do. Besides furniture Mr. Kirwan carries a complete line of house furnishing goods. Ten years ago he started in a small way. His business has grown to such an extent that he now occupies six floors, 22x127 feet each, at 313, 315 and 317 North Third street. Mr. Kirwan is enthusiastic over the future of St. Joseph, and thinks it has started on an era of great prosperity.

All four firms mentioned report a demand for the highest grade goods manufactured, and say that the people of St. Joseph are evidently not suffering from hard times.

J. B. Brady & Co. are exclusive dealers in carpets and curtains, a line rather closely associated with the furniture trade. This house is among the oldest in St. Joseph and does a heavy and constantly increasing business.

BOSTON BUDGET.

proprietor and a competent force of assistants were in attendance to welcome their friends. In addition to the special display of furniture, &c., the store was handsomely decorated with palms and potted plants, and chairs and couches were arranged in the different departments for the comfort of the guests while they listened to an excellent concert by the Battery B Band, which was engaged for the occasion.

CELEBRATED THEIR FIFTH ANNIVERSARY.

On the 4th inst. Petherbridge & Burns, Pittsfield, Mass., had a formal "Easter opening" and celebrated at the same time the fifth anniversary of their entry into business. On this occasion there were music by Clark's Orchestra and souvenirs for the ladies; no goods were sold, but the members of the firm and their salesmen devoted themselves to the entertainment of their visitors. The firm is composed of William T. Petherbridge and Louis Burns, portraits of whom are presented on this page.

Starting in the spring of 1893 with a limited capital and in poorly arranged quarters, they began by making their store as attractive as possible, and from the start demonstrated that under the most adverse circumstances success may be won. From a small beginning the business has grown to its present proportions, they having done the largest business in furniture and general housekeeping goods in the county. The old store was crowded with goods, so that two years ago it became necessary to hire the adjoining store to accommodate their rapidly growing carpet trade; but even this was not enough, and in the middle of last December the firm decided that it was necessary to find larger and more modern quarters. They leased the stores 295, 297 and 299 North street—Burns' "Yellow Block"—which was altered so as to make it one of the largest, brightest and best appointed stores in the city.

The establishment includes three stories and basement, making a floor space of 26,000 feet—all the floors are connected with a freight elevator, so that goods are handled with expedition and care. In the basement are mattings, refrigerators, crockery, tinware, &c. On the first floor are desks and office furniture, sideboards, chiffoniers, hall trees, &c. On the second floor are dining room furniture, upholstered goods and odd pieces, tables, cabinets, dressing tables, chairs, cabinets, pictures, frames, &c., as well as a room where commercial men may show their samples, photographs, &c., and where the buyer may be free from interruptions—Messrs. Petherbridge & Burns have great regard for the comfort of the "boys on the road." The carpet and upholstery stock also occupies the southern section of this floor. The third floor is devoted to chamber furniture, bedding, &c.

Besides this building the firm have two large storehouses. A feature of the first floor of the store is the firm's office in black walnut and plate glass. Petherbridge & Burns are recognized as pace makers in the household furnishing business, and have thus far kept ahead in the race. Tact, push and principle have brought them on their way and earned for them the peerage which is now theirs.

NAIRN INLAID LINOLEUM.

The Nairn Linoleum Company, of Kearney, N. J., showed for the spring trade, in addition to their offerings in standard linoleum, a new line of inlaid goods, and their offerings for the coming season will comprise a number of new and highly attractive patterns in inlaid linoleum. The spring styles have proved very successful, having found a large and quick sale, and the new line is certain to be in even greater demand, special care having been taken in the production of entirely novel, original and handsome patterns. W. & J. Sloane are sole selling agents for the company.

A new industry in Japan is the manufacture of the cheaper grades of carpets out of ox hair. The raw material is obtained from as far as Korea in the north and Australia in the south. The future of the industry is considered to be very promising.

A VETERAN SALESMAN.

George A. Meinberg, whose portrait is presented herewith, is one of the oldest salesmen in the trade, having been a retail carpet salesman for the past forty-five years. On May 1, 1853, when seventeen years of age, he entered the employ of John Kennard, the predecessor of the J. Kennard & Sons Company, St. Louis. Mr. Meinberg, after forty-five years of service, still remains with J. Kennard & Sons and is hale and hearty withal. He says he well remembers the time when after selling a carpet to a customer he had to take it to the house in a wheelbarrow and then put it down on the floor.

Floor Coverings; Their History and Manufacture.

Printed Tapestry Carpeting.

The making of Tapestry Brussels by the method which has been described enables the manufacturer to produce handsome carpeting at a low cost, but the dyeing of the yarn is a delicate operation and the process of manufacture throughout requires much skill and care and the investment of a large amount of capital. For these and other reasons many attempts have been made to simplify the process and to reduce still further the cost of manufacture, but among all the improvements put forward in this line of invention during the past forty years or more, the conception of James Dunlap, of Philadelphia, has proved the most successful.

In the process patented by Mr Dunlap in 1891 the yarns are woven undyed, or dyed of a uniform basic color or tone, and they are woven like a Tapestry or Velvet carpet, that is, without a Jacquard machine. After the fabric is woven, with the pile cut or uncut, as desired, it is submitted to the action of a color printing machine somewhat similar to that which is used in calico printing, in which the fabric is wound on a large pressure drum or roller, and pattern rollers, one for each color and engraved to produce the design desired, revolve in contact with the face of the undyed carpet.

The idea of impressing a design upon an undyed carpet by means of block or roller printing devices was not a new one, but Mr. Dunlap's method of carrying it out was original and overcame an obstacle which had baffled all previous inventors. This difficulty was caused by the fact that a pile carpet, cut or uncut, is a comparatively soft, yielding mass, which, to be perfectly dyed, must receive the color not only on the tips of the pile, but down to the very roots and even into the back. Moreover, the color must be so applied that the yielding or wearing of the pile in use will not distort the pattern. Great pressure must be employed to force the color into and through the fabric, and the dyeing matter must be used in considerable quantity, but not so as to fly or run laterally in the pile beyond the exact limits of the particular figure of the pattern being printed at that point.

In Mr. Dunlap's process the carpet fabric, after being woven undyed in an ordinary Tapestry loom, is prepared for the reception of the dyes by dampening its surface with a mixture of oil, vitriol and other ingredients. The fabric is then dried by running it over hot cylinders. The dyeing is accomplished by winding the carpet around a large drum and then submitting it to the pressure of revolving printing rollers, one roller being used for each color. The designs engraved upon the printing rollers are cut to a certain depth, and then further and deeper cuts are made in the form of cells or cups evenly distributed over the entire figure. These cups receive the heads of the pile and the great pressure with which the roller is applied forces the color into their very roots. After passing the fabric through the rollers steam is forced into and through it from both sides, in order to drive the dye into it and at the same time to raise the pile, which has been forced down by the pressure of the printing roller.

In June, 1896, Mr. Dunlap obtained an additional patent for certain improvements on his original process, by which the various steps in it which have been described are performed continuously and automatically, instead of being more or less independent of each other. This improvement was accomplished by embracing in a single structure a printing mechanism, a steam chamber, a starching apparatus, a dryiug chamber and means for operating automatically and in concert the various parts of the structure.

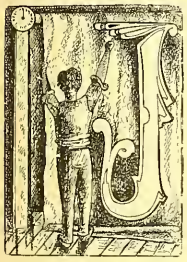
The grand opening of John McKeown's big furniture and house furnishing establishment on the 5th inst. was without doubt the most elaborate event that has taken place in Braddock, Pa. The big stores were crowded all day. The rooms were a bewildering mass of pretty things. Flowers, ferns, palms, potted plants, delightful music and happy, pushing, pleased crowds were the features. McKeown, who is the Napoleon of trade in his line in Braddock, and his zealous assistants were busy, happy and handled the immense crowds nicely. Thirteen hundred dollars given away as presents was one of the attractions.

FLEMISH TAPESTRIES AND RAJAHS.



John Gay's Sons, Howard and Norris streets, Philadelphia, are quite busy in filling duplicate orders, and the prospect is bright for a flourishing trade in the near future. Their new "Flemish Tapestries," like their predecessors, the "Rajahs," have taken a firm hold of the retail trade, and the demand for them is constantly increasing. The Messrs. Gay are looking forward to the time when they will quite rival "Rajahs" in popularity. The latter are well known to the retail trade, and have proved their title to the highest praise. Their success has been quite phenomenal, for they sprang into popularity on their first issue, and the large number of looms then put to work upon them have never been decreased. The Messrs. Gay claim that the secret of the success of these superb fabrics is their magnificent quality, and the claim is borne out by the number of letters from all parts of the country giving testimony to the superiority of the goods.

The phenomenal success of the fabrics in question is proof positive that quality, like blood, will tell in the long run, and the run of the Flemish Tapestries and Rajahs promises to be a particularly long one.

F. B. Bru Baker, American agent for Koch & te Kock, Germany, has secured the American agency for a German linoleum manufacturing concern, and will doubtless show samples next month, as also new fall patterns in Koch & te Kock's rugs.

Points for Advertisers.

The windows of the soul are the only windows for which the Hartshorn shade roller is not adapted.

It is not enough that the goods we sell shall please you at the time of purchase. They must continue to please you so long as they last; else we shall not be satisfied.

CHINESE MATTING MARKET.

Advices from Canton, dated March 14, say: "Some more settlements have taken place during the past ten days, and contracts to date are put at 220,000 rolls. We quote 1¼ cent on the lower grades and 1 cent in the higher grades over named rates. Any large line of common grades would be difficult of placing. Dealers have their straw crop fully engaged, and will have to count upon the new crop to a great extent with which to complete orders. Shipments from Hong Kong and Canton to New York from May 1, 1897, to March 5, 1898, were 228,975 rolls. For the same period in 1896 the shipments were 449,713 rolls

Thos. Caves & Sons will not offer any Tapestry carpets for the fall season, having concluded to take ample time to set up their machinery and prepare a superb line of patterns, which will be ready for the early spring season. They have about completed their fall line of Keystone Velvets, and will be ready to meet the incoming wholesale trade next month.

The special offerings of A. & M. Karagheusian for the coming fortnight include large carpets in Kirman and Persian makes. Some particularly attractive pieces in Kirmans are the sizes 21.5 by 11.9, green ground; 20.4 by 10.7, green ground; 17.4 by 13.5 and 17.6 by 12.3, both in red ground and green border. In fine Persian carpets are the sizes 23.5 by 14 11, blue ground and red border; 23.9 by 14.9, red ground and blue border; 21.2 by 13.9, blue ground and red border; 15.10 by 12.0, red ground and medium blue border. They also show medium antique Shirvans, very desirable for the dry goods department stores, which can be retailed at from $14 to $18 each. They call attention to their fine line of hall rugs. It should be borne in mind that the Messrs. Karagheusian are in a position to interest the largest buyers and they invite a comparison of their goods and prices with any other lines in the market. Read their attractive announcement on page 7.

An important announcement is made by Tefft, Weller & Co., the New York carpet jobbers, on page 17.

They will open a special sale of carpetings on Monday, the 18th inst., and quote astonishingly low prices on standard makes of goods, the lowest in some cases which have been openly announced this season. Moquettes and Saxony Axminsters are quoted at 62½ and 67½ cents; Smith Axminsters, 67½ and 77½ cents; F Taps, 42½ and 45 cents; B Taps, 45 and 47½ cents; Best Taps, 50 and 52½ cents; Extra Taps, 52½ and 55 cents, and other well-known makes of goods at correspondingly low prices.

As stated in the announcement, the sale is well worthy the attention of every buyer of carpets.

THE CARPET AND UPHOLSTERY REFERENCE BOOK.

On page 75 will be found an announcement from the Carpet and Upholstery Association, stating that their "Carpet and Upholstery Reference Book and Associate Reports" will be ready for delivery on May 15. This book is an adjunct to the special reports furnished by the association regarding the financial standing of dealers in floor coverings and upholsteries of every description, and contains a complete list of all dealers in the United States and Canada corrected up to May 1. G. B. Treloar, selling manager for S. Sanford & Sons, was in Philadelphia last week.

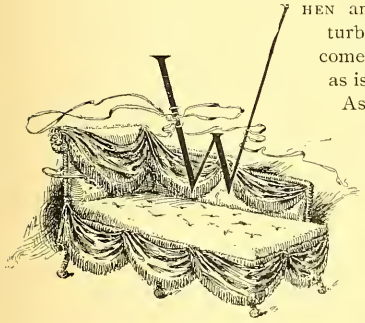
The W. M. Bray Dry Goods Company, Henderson, Tenn., has been succeeded by Bray Brothers.

The Norristown Carpet Mills, of Norristown, Pa., were sold on the 13th inst. by the sheriff. William F. Solly, attorney of the guarantors of a mortgage of $19,000, held by the Montgomery Trust Company, of Norristown, was the purchaser. The price paid was $1,000. The property cost the guarantors about $33,000, there being two mortgages against the property to that amount. Another incumbrance of $14,000, held by Philadelphia parties, is wiped out by the sale. The mills have been closed down since the disappearance of James W. Barker, who managed them.

The Hartford Carpet Company's lines of Wiltons, Brussels, Axminsters, Ingrains, Saxony carpets, Art Squares, &c., have found quick appreciation in the trade of the season to this date, as was to be expected from the highly attractive character of the offerings in all the grades The Saxony carpets and hall runners have been in great demand, and the Charter Oak Art Squares have also made a highly favorable impression. These squares are 3 and 4 yards wide, and the patterns comprise a wide range of new and artistic designs and colorings. See on page 10 of this issue the advertisement of Reune Martin & Sons, who show the company's lines at the New York salesroom, Hartford Building, 41 Union square.

UPHOLSTERY

The Fortnight.



WHEN any popular disturbance arises there come notes of alarm, as is always the case. As a matter of fact the season in upholstery goods has shown very good results. Retailers all over the country, with the inevitable exception of those who have suffered by floods, &c., report a good trade. In New York State, Buffalo, Rochester, Lockport, Jamestown and cities of that class, dealers say that they are doing an excellent business. It should be remembered, however, that the spring is their golden season. There can be no question that the trade for the last three months has been fully up to the average.

THE United States Consul at Ghent writes that in reply to 4,650 inquiries sent to the merchants of that vicinity 19½ per cent. did not reply and 268 did not indicate their commercial situation. Thus 25.57 per cent of the bulletins were without value. Of the rest 2,338, or 52.56 per cent., complained of overproduction.

A woman who found herself obliged to keep closed for a year at least a pair of folding doors at the end of a long parlor, confronted their hideous stretch of stained wood in despair for two or three weeks. The makeshifts of portières and a cheap grille did not appeal to her at all. Finally, a handy man was called in, canvas was stretched over the frame filled by the doors, the brass knobs needing removal to accomplish this neatly When this was done the entire wall was repapered and the room became much more attractive in consequence. The same method to cover a single doorway where the door must remain closed, can be much easier carried out.

"Among all the varieties of curtains that are manufactured—tapestry, chenille, lace, muslin, velvet, printed cotton, &c —very little in the way of innovation in the arrangement of design has been adopted," says R. T. Lord, the designer, in "Textile Industries and Journal of Fabrics." "We have the regular body pattern, with a border down each side and along the bottom; then the dado curtain comes more or less into use at various times, and cross-border patterns are also among the styles usually offered in the trade. The ordinary body pattern, with a border around the three sides, is at all times the most popular style of curtain. The dado is at a great disadvantage in these goods, from the fact that, being at the bottom, it is often gathered up by a curtain tie, and, where this is not the case, the position of the dado prevents what is often the best portion of the design from showing to advantage. It seems reasonable that the most ornamental portion of any article should be in such a position that it will attract the eye, and there is no doubt that this applies as much to a curtain as to any other decorative object. A frieze is a very effective method of ornamentation adopted by paper-hanging manufacturers, but this mode is never employed upon a curtain, although its position renders it highly suitable from a decorative point of view. We should think that a good, bold piece of ornamentation across the middle of a curtain would prove very effective, as it would be in a position most noticeable. But any curtain that goes out of the ordinary run entails extra expense upon the manufacturer, and, unless the new idea takes the market, much loss is the result. We have a simple idea for the production of a curtain, which can be utilized in three different ways, without incurring any extra expense beyond the first cost of cutting the cards, &c., for one curtain, and is shown in the cut presented herewith.

"Fig. 1 gives an example of a curtain design on the dado principle. In Fig 2 we show the ornament, forming the dado in the first figure, running across the centre of the curtain. Fig. 3 has the ornamentation at the top in the form of a frieze. Now, it is clear that any of these can be made from the same cards without alteration in any way, the only necessity being to weave as many repetitions of the body pattern as may be required in a curtain, then change to the broad border pattern, and back again to the body. Now, whether the pattern consists of a dado curtain, or one with a broad border running across the centre of the curtain, depends upon the position in which the piece is cut up. Cut across the bottom of the dado, this produces a dado pattern; cut across the top, it gives a pattern with a frieze, or cut across the middle of the body pattern, and the broad ornamental border will be in the centre of the curtain."

FERGUSON BROTHERS' HANDY HOUSEHOLD BOXES.

On page 94 of this issue Ferguson Brothers have some interesting illustrations and reading matter relating to their handy household boxes, which were referred to recently in The Review. These boxes are sold in nests of four. They are covered with handsome art cretonnes, lined throughout and fitted with ornamental brass hinges and handles. The many uses to which such boxes can be put will readily suggest themselves to anyone, as is proved by the great number of orders received for them.

Write to Ferguson Brothers for prices, &c. Their salesroom is at 494 Broadway, and their factory and offices are at 433 West Thirty-first street, New York.

Sofa pillows for some reason have taken on a very pronounced touch of card playing. It may be the extraordinary popularity of whist and progressive euchre that has made these cushions blossom out suddenly in hands of either, and even of poker and single cards, court and playing, reproduced with admirable exactness over a solid background. It is probable that such customs are intended for young men's rooms, but there is no telling. Since young women have taken to cigarettes, there is no reason why cards, and perhaps poker chips, should not be as much their insignia as that of their companions of the other sex.

NOTTINGHAM CURTAINS AND NETS.

The big assortment of Nottingham curtains and nets shown by J. S. Lesser & Co. will interest the largest buyers of these goods in prices and assortment.

Lesser & Co. might well be called manufacturers of the goods, as they have first call on the product of an American factory, and have close connections with the Nottingham manufacturers.

They show 150 different patterns in novelty and fish nets, and everyone of them in perfectly made and finished goods. They do not aim to sell the very cheapest nets, but give the medium grade goods at very lowest prices. They can interest all manufacturers of ruffled and insertion curtains in these nets.

Their range of Nottingham curtains in full size vestibule and sash goods is also notably large, the styles being gotten up under the personal direction of J. S. Lesser, who is an acknowledged expert on Nottingham goods.

It will pay to inspect the above-mentioned lines, as well as the firm's special drive in Swiss Brussels curtains, at their salesrooms, 473 Broadway, New York.

CHAT.

A new trial has been granted in the case of Gholstin and others against the American Upholstery Company, Atlanta, Ga., by Judge Lumpkin on April 1. The new trial will proceed at the next term of the court.

The window shade factory of Geo. H. Hees, Son & Co. on Davenport road, Toronto, Canada, was destroyed by fire on the 1st inst. The stock made up for the spring season was fortunately stored in their warehouse on King street, therefore enabling them to fill orders without interruption.

C. R. Culver, Yonkers, N. Y., has opened a rug and upholstery department under the charge of Mr. Roe, formerly with W. M. Whitney & Co , Albany, N. Y.

John Fahy & Co., Rochester, N. Y., have taken one of the stores vacated by Beadle & Mudge in North Main street, and will next month move from their old stand in State street.

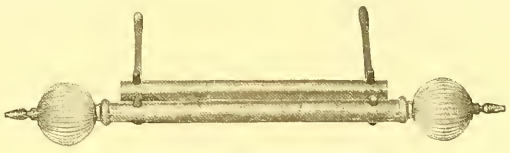
The Vermont Shade Roller Company, Burlington, Vt., has reduced its capital stock from 3,000 shares to 2,000 shares at $50 each, which brings it down from $150,000 to $100,000.

The Chas. T. Leonard Company, manufacturing shades and awnings at Minneapolis, has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000.

Parker Brothers, upholsterers, is a new firm at Paris, Ill.

A ROD FOR FRILLED CURTAINS.

Herewith we illustrate the new method referred to in the April 1 Review for hanging frilled or ruffled curtains. The double rod is made of half or three-fourths inch brass tubing, and the rear rod is fastened on the bracket about three-fourths of an inch behind the front rod. The bracket is 4½ inches long with a screw thread at end to fasten it to the window sash. The idea is to hang a half pair curtain on each rod, as shown in the illustration below. One curtain may be draped from the extreme right of the rod and the other from the extreme left, or almost any style of draping desired may be effected in a graceful manner. The double rod is made with extension tubes to enable extending it to a desired length. It is inexpensive and simple in its adjustment, therefore being appropriate in this respect as well as in others for frilled curtains.



DOUBLE ROD FOR FRILLED CURTAINS.

W. J. M. Gates, of Boston, Mass., who introduced the rod, has arranged to market it exclusively through Cohen Brothers & Co., 424 Broadway, New York, who are also extensive manufacturers of frilled curtains.

Sample orders should be sent in at once to the latter firm to obtain supplies for spring trade, and electrotypes will be furnished gratis.

DRAPING OF A FRILLED CURTAIN.

Another use for the much utilized spinning wheel was that seen the other day in the hall of a residence. The spokes had been removed from a large wheel and the place filled with a mirror, the outer rim of the wheel serving effectively as a frame.

The Philadelphia Tapestry Mills, in addition to making one of the largest lines of upholstery fabrics in this country, have the courage of their convictions. The trade can feel sure that the line of fabrics produced by them is always up to standard, and that the greatest care is exercised that the goods are thoroughly up to date.

H. V. Hieronimus & Co. is a new Chicago dry goods firm composed of H. V. Hieronimus and Hans Krueger. The house will have a lace curtain department.

Wm. Simpson, Sons & Co., Philadelphia and New York, manufacturers of the Gobelin art draperies, are using a new patented recording tag which is a remarkably good device. The tag is marked with little squares, each of which represents 1 yard in the piece When the goods are cut squares corresponding in number to the quantity of yards cut off are torn from the tag, which then shows at a glance how many yards are left in the piece. We advise our readers to write to Simpson, Sons & Co. for a sample of these tags and for further information regarding their art draperies.

On the 9th inst. Justice J. O. Dykman, of the Supreme Court in White Plains, N. Y., appointed Samuel B. Smith, of Mount Vernon, a receiver of all the property and assets of the firm of Robinson & Campbell, furniture dealers and upholsterers, which belonged to the firm on January 18, 1897, when a transfer and sale was attempted to be made by Edward A. Robinson of his interest in the firm property and assets to the defendant, William W. Campbell, and also of all the property of Campbell when a transfer and sale was attempted to be made by him to Hattie A. Campbell. The firm is ordered to deliver to the receiver all such property and assets as may be in their possession. The judge decides the above-mentioned sales or transfers as fraudulent and void.

Dearth & Case, furniture dealers and upholsterers, Pasadena, Cal., have dissolved partnership.

In poker work, or pyrography on velvet and plush, the design must be bold in its outlines, and the pile inside of the pattern is singed off with the platinum needle. Care should be taken not to hold the needle vertically, so as not to burn the ground of the material. It should be held more horizontally, but not too much, else the points of the bordering fibres will be scorched. A little practice is necessary before starting at a larger work. When the above is done brush off the hairs and lay in the colors as desired in the ground thus deepened. Bronze or gold may also be employed for this purpose, and looks still better.

THE UNIVERSAL CURTAIN POLE.

The merits of the Universal curtain pole, made by the Rome Brass and Copper Company, of Rome, N. Y., have been thoroughly proved with its extended use during the past year by leading houses of the country. In testimony of its adaptability and satisfactory working qualities the Rome Company have received many letters in its praise, among those testifying to its advantages being the Wm. Hengerer Company, Buffalo, N. Y.; Lucky, Platt & Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; W. V. Snyder & Co., Newark, N. J ; W. M. Whitney & Co , Albany, N. Y.; Chas H. Van Note & Co., Boston; the Reeves-Veeder Company, Schenectady, N Y.; New Haven Window Shade Company, New Haven, Conn.; Callender, McAuslan & Troup Company, Providence, R I.; Ewen McIntyre & Co., New Haven, Conn ; F. Loeser & Co , Brooklyn, N. Y , and many others. The prices of the Rome Universal pole are 7½, 8 and 9 cents per foot for the 1 inch size, according to quantity; 10, 11 and 12 cents per foot for the 1½ inch size, and 17, 18 and 19 cents per foot for the 2 inch size. The pole is shipped in any desired length, and sample cases will be sent at bottom prices. An illustration of the pole is given on page 92.

A CHINESE BEDSTEAD.

Almost interesting curiosity to be seen in an English furnishing house just now is the extremely quaint Chinese bedstead sketched herewith, which was looted after the battle of Pekin. It is richly inlaid with ivory and colored woods, and may be looked upon as a great rarity.

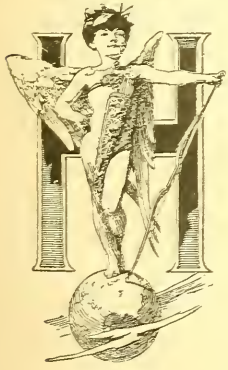
THE STEAMSHIP OR THE SLEEPING CAR.



Had Lowell lived to see the 14th of March, 1898, he would perhaps have changed in his "Vision of Sir Launfal" the famous line "What is so rare as a day in June?" On the evening of that March day I was on the steamship Guyandotte of the Old Dominion line, gliding smoothly down toward Hampton Roads. Below the sea was like glass; above the sky was studded with a million stars and all around the air was like that of May.

As we sat down to dinner I asked Captain Davis: "Do you remember what you were doing ten years ago to-day?"

"Not particularly."

"Well, on the second Monday in March, 1888, you were picking your way up this same roadstead in the teeth of the fiercest storm in the history of New York—the famous blizzard."

All the same," remarked Chief Engineer Portlock, "we berthed our boats during that week in good style. How the passengers reached their homes those nights is a matter of history."

Among the passengers on this most beautiful of March nights in many years were several commercial travelers. "I'm a little surprised," said one of them, whom I have met frequently afloat and ashore for many years, but who is now off the road, "that more of the men who have to make brief trips several times a year to Norfolk, Portsmouth, Washington, Richmond, &c., do not go down by this line. One can leave New York in the afternoon, get to Norfolk the next morning, have time—unless he has somebody besides customers to visit there—to take a run over to Portsmouth, and the next morning be at Richmond or Washington. I have long ago laid by the grip-sack and the sample trunk, but if I were still a commercial traveler I would travel no other way. In the summer months a pleasant, cool sail down the coast beats the stifling sleeping car out of sight."

The Old Dominion boats are all handsome, comfortable and well officered. The table is bountifully supplied and the cooking and service admirable. Here is a sample menu:

MOUND CITY MEMORANDA.

St. Louis, April 9, 1898.

Louis Renard, of the Trorlicht, Duncker & Renard Carpet Company, was last week elected vice-president of the Credit Men's Association.

Dugald Crawford, of D. Crawford & Co., has just purchased a choice piece of property on Locust street as an investment, for which he paid $14,000.

Byron Nugent, senior partner of B. Nugent & Brother, is confined to his home with a fractured wrist and sprained back, the result of a runaway of his pet horse on the 28th ult., with which he was out driving in his buggy.

The Trorlicht, Duncker & Renard Carpet Company have just completed the draperies for the new Columbia Theatre. The scheme is in true rococo style, and was designed by their special artist. The stage curtain, made of a rich shade of crimson plush, has at the top a handsome valance tastefully embroidered in gold tinsel. The proscenium boxes are all richly embroidered to harmonize with the stage curtain and the decorations of the theatre. This is one of the handsomest theatres in the country, and the Trorlicht, Duncker & Renard Carpet Company deserve much credit for their part of the contract.

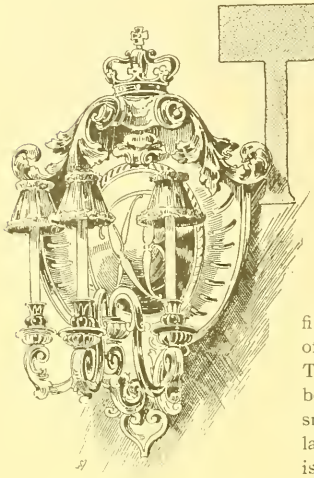
ROOMS IN A FAMOUS ENGLISH PALACE.



THE approach to Blenheim Palace, the historic home of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, is through Blenheim Park, which has an area of over 25 square miles. It is entered through a spacious Corinthian portal erected by the first Duchess in memory of the impregnable Duke. Two hundred feet away, before the palace, is a small series of connected lakes, which in one place is spanned by a high, arched, stone bridge of exquisite workmanship. Beyond this, and in the centre of the lawn directly fronting the palace, is a Corinthian column rising 130 feet in air, surmounted by a statue of the old Duke in Roman costume. At the base of the column, on a tablet facing the palace, is a long inscription eulogizing the deeds of the Duke, written, it is said, by Lord Bolingbroke. The other faces of the pedestal contain legends recounting the acts of Parliament passed in his honor, together with details of his estates and titles with those of his descendants.

A flight of marble steps leads under the portico between Corinthian columns, and above, in the pediment, are sculptured the armorial bearings of the Marlboroughs. The interior of the palace consists of vast, high studded chambers, smaller in the wings, and entered from a series of curiously connected halls. In the state rooms of the main buildings the ceilings have been painted by Thornhill, La Guerre and Hakewill, and sculptures, tapestry and valuable paintings abound. The state reception room, a picture of which accompanies this sketch, contains a pictorial story on tapestry of the battle of Blenheim, while over the fireplace is a portrait of John Churchill. In this room and in those adjoining it is one of the finest collections of tapestries in England, depicting the battles of Wynendael, Dunnewert, Lisle and Malplaquet. The state dining room, of which a picture is also presented, gives a fine example of these mural tapestries. And here over the fireplace is a full length portrait of Queen Anne, the patron saint of the Marlboroughs.

The library is particularly rich in good paintings, some of which are originals of the masters, others are copies; among the latter are 120 Teniers, transcripts from Bellini, Giogione, Mantegna, Correggio, Caracci, Titian, Tintoretto, Veronese, Giovane and others. Here, too, is a statue of Queen Anne, by Rysbraeck, which cost what would be more than $25,000 in gold. The saloon and duchess' sitting room contain a valuable collection of enamels by Leonard Limousin, Piere Raymond, Courteys, Laudin and others, comprising plaques, ewers, salt cellars and dishes for every conceivable use. There are a dozen miniatures of Mary Queen of Scots, and still others of Marie de Medici, Gabrielle d'Estrées, Arabella Stuart, Gerard Honthorst, Cardinal Mazarin, Lord Lauderdale and Dryden.

Another state room has over the fireplace the picture of the Duke's family group. In the same chamber is a huge symbolic wall painting by Sir James Thornhill, representing the Duke, in a blue cuirass, kneeling before the figure of Britannia, clad in white, holding a lance and a wreath. Hercules and Mars, emblem-bearing females, and minor symbolic figures go to make up the scene. It is reported that Sir James received 25s. per square yard for this painting.

In the drawing room is a portrait by Mark Gerards of the conspicuous Frances Howard, Countess of Essex and Somerset, who married that dolt Robert Carr. Here, too, is a host of Reynolds' portraits of the celebrities of his day, together with the famous portrait by Peter Paul Rubens of his second wife, Helena Forman. And there are also many stately dames from the brush of Vandyke, Kneller and Lely.

Among the curiosities of the China gallery are a teapot presented by the Duke of Richelieu to Louis XIV.; two bottles which belonged to Queen Anne, Oliver Cromwell's teapot, Roman earthenware, and a piece brought from Athens.

Many of the literary and artistic treasures of the palace date from the fifth Duke's era. He was one of the greatest art collectors of his age, at the same time the most prodigal gamester. And when the crash came and all but the entailed property was captured by the bailiffs he retired to a small bedroom in the right wing and there passed his remaining years. This bedchamber has been successively occupied by the later Dukes of Marlborough, who could not maintain the vast establishment around them.

But little by little the estate has been put to rights. The eighth duke, through his American marriage, was able to modernize the wings and set the grounds in order at an expense of $30,000. His son, the present duke, who married Consuelo, daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, of New York, could doubtless have kept up the establishment in a respectable manner, but with her millions he should be able to place the house of his ancestors upon a footing firm for all time. He is said to have expended already nearly $2,000,000 in improving Blenheim Park and Palace.

Baronial tapestry is the name given to dark, rich materials for portières and curtains that are patterned in the designs familiar in settings of old baronial halls. These show conventionalized tigers rampant, fleur-de-lis and other similar designs. They come in dark tones of green and red, and are effective not only as hangings, but to cover screen panels or for upholstering furniture.

A LUCKY BLUNDER.

One day in the autumn of 1856 a man was in search of a particular wool warehouse, situated in a certain street in the city of London. He had forgotten the number, and, not being familiar with the exterior of the building in question, he was somewhat puzzled. However, he "spotted" a likely looking place and entered; but, finding it to be a silk warehouse, instead of the woolen emporium he was looking for, he apologized and turned to leave.

At that instant his keen gaze lighted upon a pile of rubbish which strongly attracted his attention. He had never seen anything like it before. He inquired what it was, and was told that it was waste silk.

"What do you do with it?" he asked.

"Sell it for rubbish," was the reply; "it is impossible to do anything else with it."

The visitor felt it, poked his nose into it and pulled it about in a manner that astonished the London warehouseman.

It was neither agreeable to the feel, the smell nor the touch, but was simply a mass of knotty, dirty, impure stuff, full of broken bits of stick, dried leaves, dead silk worms and pierced cocoons. Nevertheless, in the end an offer of a halfpenny a pound was made for the "rubbish," and promptly accepted, the vender being naturally delighted to get rid of it on such advantageous terms.

Just an ordinary, everyday, commonplace blunder, such as we have most of us made more than once in our lives—the mistaking of one place for another. But it was a mistake that put £20,000,000 into the pockets of the man who committed it. For the blunderer was he who became afterward known to fame as Sir S. Cunliffe-Lister, merchant prince and mill owner; and from that evil-smelling agglomeration of silk waste was evolved, after ten years of patient experimenting, and the expenditure of more than £350,000, a new and beautiful fabric, known to all the world to-day by the name of plush.

SCHEMES FOR THE DOOR SCREENS.

By the expenditure of very little money, and no great amount of trouble, the ordinary door of an apartment may be made a distinctly important feature, from an artistic as from a utilitarian point of view, and to give some idea as to how this may be accomplished we present three schemes of comparatively simple type, but which might be carried out with the happiest results. The first, in the lower right-hand corner of this page, is the simplest, and consists of just a light framework of refined design, filled in with a couple of leaded or traceried glass panels, a painting or engraving, and a dainty silk curtain, running on a brass rod. The continuation of the end post, with its shallow bowl for flowers, and lamp above, is well conceived. The chair is, of course, a separate article, capable of being moved away as might be desirable.

In the second design, in the lower left-hand corner, the draping is made a more important feature. The portière is suspended from a stout, twisted cord or "cable," and the curtain at the side from the curved under part of the shieldlike woodwork, attached by means of small brass hooks and eyes. The chair is of the curule type, at once one of the most sensible and graceful handed down to us from ages long gone by.

The third is from the billiard room in the residence of Henry Martin, at Huddersfield, England, and the treatment of the doorway was designed by Geo. Faulkner Armitage. The comfort of an arrangement of this kind, which, with the curtains drawn, would, in the keenest winter, prevent the opening and closing of the door, minimizing the comfort of the room by the constant admission of draughts of cold air, can hardly be overestimated, while its appearance adds vastly to the beauty of the apartment.

Pyke, Williams & Co., who carry upholsteries in their dry goods store on West 125th street, are about to remove their business to 2807 and 2809 Third avenue, corner 148th street.

Cohen Brothers & Co., 424 and 426 Broadway, will be pleased to forward to all dry goods or upholstery dealers their illustrated sheets and cards, showing the different styles of window draping suitable for bobbinet ruffled curtains.

Among the legends displayed prominently in the front part of the Jay C. Wemple Company's store is one which says: "We are the only makers of 38 inch hand made shadings." The Wemple Company are sending out a new catalogue and will be pleased to mail one to any address in the trade upon application. They are extremely busy in all departments and the great resources of their large stock are serving to fill the wants of the trade very promptly.

The announcement that Arnold Staheli will handle the account of B. Walker & Co., Nottingham curtain manufacturers, was somewhat premature. Mr. Staheli says that, while he is considering the matter, he has not yet fully decided to take on the Walker goods in connection with the Swiss products of Staheli, Rietmann & Co. He sails for Europe within a few weeks and the question of his representing B. Walker & Co. will be decided when he visits that concern in Nottingham.

Men are making preparations on the west side of Columbus avenue, between Eightieth and Eighty-first streets, to lay the foundations of a ten story apartment house on three sides of a little one story building used as a shop by A. R. Maxwell, an upholsterer. Soon, if conditions be not changed by an armistice or compromise, the big building will begin to rise, inclosing the little shop in a tomb of brick and mortar. Mr. Maxwell was asked to move away, but his lease does not expire until next November, and he demanded as a consideration for his removal a sum larger than the builders of the apartment house were willing to pay. The house will therefore be built around the shop, and completed when the upholsterer's lease expires.

The business in King's Scotch hollands is a fair index of what jobbers expect for the next season. It is therefore a pleasure to announce that the custom house returns show that the receipts of these goods are larger since January 1 than for any corresponding period in the history of the house. The orders for future delivery have kept pace with the deliveries for immediate consumption. F. J. McCosker, the agent of the firm in the United States, is kept very busy nowadays.

William L. Childs, dealer in window shades, wall papers and oil cloths, has removed from Pearl street to 114 West Fourteenth street.

The Dry Goods Alliance, of New York city, has been incorporated to deal in such articles as are sold in department stores. Capital, $25,000; directors, O. S. Putnam, of Worcester, Mass.; Wm. G. Abraham Brill, doing business as A. Brill & Co., dealer in dry goods at Nos. 725 and 727 Sixth avenue, No. 1403 to 1407 Broadway and No. 1420 Third avenue, made an assignment on April 6 to Louis H. Bronner, giving a preference to Morris D. Bronner for $19,635 borrowed money. Mr. Brill was formerly in the employ of A. T. Stewart & Co., and started in business for himself in 1882, has had several partners since then and has been alone since February, 1894. Samuel D. Levy, his attorney, said the assignment was caused by unfounded rumors being circulated about his financial condition and a creditor taking out a writ of replevin. The liabilities are $60,000; nominal assets, $70,000; actual assets, $55,000. The sheriff received seven writs of replevin on the 6th inst. from creditors aggregating $4,115.

The Orinoka Mills, Philadelphia, have been doing a driving business recently, so much so as to keep some of their departments running until 9 o'clock in the evening.

The assignee of H. C. Kroh & Co., the former window shade manufacturer, has declared a final dividend to the creditors, making the total amount received by the latter about 33⅓ per cent. The total debts proved were $26,795.22, and the total net assets distributed were $10,578.66.

The firm of Henry W. Jenkins & Sons, fine furniture and upholstery, North Charles street, will have reached the end of its one hundredth year of business on April 23. A copy of the Federal Gazette and Baltimore Daily Advertiser of May 10, 1799, containing an advertisement of the firm, is on exhibition at the store. At that time the firm name was Combs & Jenkins, and the business was conducted at No. 17 Water street.

The house decorating establishment of H. E. Black & Co., North Charles street, which is nearly a hundred years old, has been tastefully remodeled on Colonial lines. A model drawing room, in crimson and cream, is on the second floor, the walls of crimson brocade, the ceiling of stucco relief, in Colonial design, blending from sienna brown in the frieze to chrome yellow in the ceiling. A model dining room adjoining this has a rafter ceiling, with oval fresco, the walls in green and gold Kartscha relief.

Charles Simon, one of the best known business men of the city, and senior member of the dry goods and upholstery firm of Charles Simon's Sons Company, died the 6th inst. at his home, No. 1302 Madison avenue. He retired from active business life in 1891 on account of failing health. He is survived by a widow and two children.

VERDICT FOR CREIGHTON & BURCH.

THE COURT GIVES AN EXPLICIT DECISION IN FAVOR OF CREIGHTON & BURCH IN CONNECTION WITH THE OLD SCRANTON LACE MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

At the March court term in Scranton, Pa., R. W. Archbald, presiding judge, rendered a decision in the case of Creighton & Burch v. the Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company in favor of the former, which confirms the legality of their judgment of $62,807.08 against the former Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company. The action grew out of an application by R. A. Blythe and Alexander Nelson, attachment creditors of the old Scranton Company, and Stephen Chappel, a stockholder, who asked for an opening of the judgment held by Creighton & Burch on the ground that Mr. Creighton was a director of the insolvent corporation.

The Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company was incorporated in May, 1891, with a stated capital of $260,000, which was increased later to $350,000. Part of this capital was machinery contributed by an English concern, the value of which was fixed at $80,000. It is stated that owing to the reduced tariff of 1893 on lace curtains the Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company suffered adversity, and was unable to obtain ready money to prosecute the business. Creighton & Burch, of New York, were the selling agents for the mill, and from time to time advanced money to the Scranton Company upon consignments of goods made to them. To secure them in these advances in August, 1895, it was agreed that curtains in course of manufacture and other property at the mill in Scranton should be set aside to them in pledge, which course was pursued for about a year, and large sums of money were loaned by Creighton & Burch to the company on the strength of this security. In July, 1896, Creighton & Burch were advised by counsel that the goods so pledged being left in the custody of the company could be seized by any other creditor, and therefore afforded them no security whatever. Upon this fact being brought to the attention of the directors of the Scranton Company a resolution was passed July 27, 1896, authorizing a bond in the sum of $75,000, with warrant of attorney to confess judgment, to be given to the Lackawanna Trust and Safe Deposit Company, trustee, as security for such sums as might be owing to Creighton & Burch from time to time, and upon its execution the goods then held in pledge were released. It was upon this bond that Creighton & Burch entered judgment, which judgment was contested by Mr. Blythe as an illegal preference.

The court states in its decision that the pressing needs of the company required that someone should favor it with loans, and had the directors been compelled to look to others less interested than Creighton & Burch it is doubtful if they would have been able to obtain as advantageous terms as they did from the latter concern. The court further states: "A preference there was, but it was a perfectly legitimate one, of which no one—stockholder or creditor—had the right to complain." It appears that on this bond of $75,000 Creighton & Burch had advanced sums which varied from amounts under $75,000 to as high as $125,000, according to the exigencies of the Scranton Company. At the time judgment was confessed the Scranton Company was indebted to them in the actual amount of $62,807.08, and execution was directed to issue for that amount.

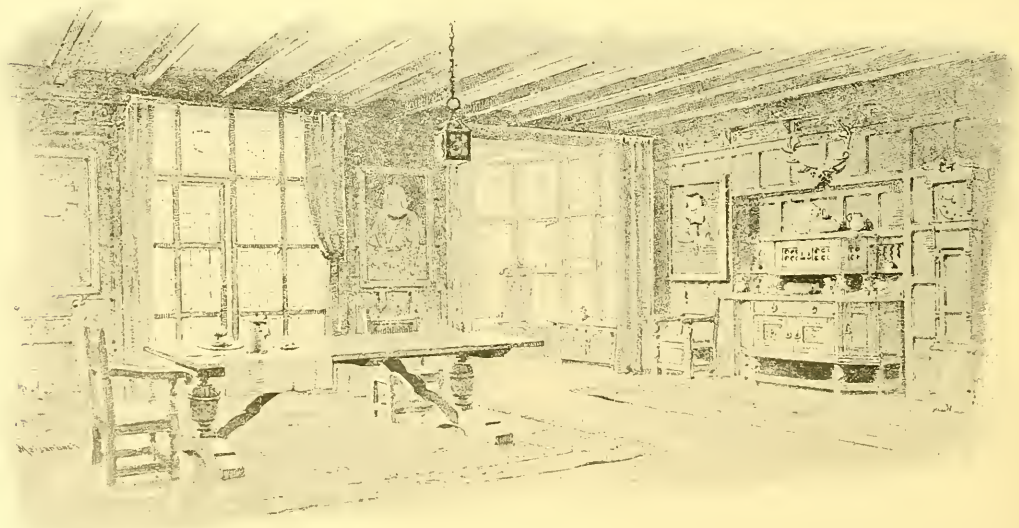
Another case before the court was that of the attachment of R. A. Blythe against the old Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company. Mr. Blythe obtained a writ of attachment for $11,161.52. The suit was instituted February 11, 1897, the amount being due for yarns and other merchandise delivered by him to the Scranton Company. It is stated that at the time the suit was instituted notes representing part of the indebtedness had not matured, nor had the term of credit upon the book accounts expired. On this ground alone the court states that Mr. Blythe had no right to the action, because of the immaturity of the indebtedness. Continuing the court's decision states:

"If the suit in its present condition goes on to a trial the plaintiffs are bound to be non-suited, and that is sufficient reason at this stage for relieving the defendants from the attachment part of it.

"This does away with the necessity of considering the merits of the proceedings as developed by the depositions, although we are satisfied that a discussion of them would lead to the same result. The plaintiffs have seized upon a few circumstances, and by a specious argument seek to give them the appearance of fraud. A consideration of the whole case entirely dispels this, however, and leaves the conduct of the officers of the company beyond question. * * * Further than this it is incredible if the directors of the defunct company desired to defraud the plaintiffs or any other of their creditors that they should turn around, as they did, after the interest of everybody had been wiped out by the sheriff's sale and offer to pay 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent. in stock of the concern as reorganized. Fairer treatment than this toward the creditors of a bankrupt concern is a very rare experience. The rule is made absolute, and the attachment is dissolved."

As will be seen by the above the action of Creighton & Burch and the directors of the old Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company is not only confirmed as entirely legal, but is evidently highly approved of in the estimation of the court. The present Scranton Lace Curtain Company was organized to acquire the plant and business of the old Scranton Lace Manufacturing Company, and includes the important stockholders of the old company with a few new additions. The settlement of the indebtedness of the old company on the basis of 50 per cent. in cash and 50 per cent. in stock of the new concern was accepted, we understand, by all creditors excepting Mr. Blythe, and since commencing business under the reorganization the company has been highly successful. The machines have been steadily occupied, and the product has been and is being very fully marketed by Creighton & Burch as sole selling agents, at 10 and 12 Thomas street, New York.



DINING ROOM IN AN ENGLISH HOUSE.

J. A. FILER & CO.'S NEW QUARTERS.

This firm has leased from May 1 next, the upper loft (over 200 feet long) in the Arlington Building, 22, 24 and 26 East Fourteenth street, near Union square, which will give it much more space than heretofore. The house has been steadily increasing its trade, and the present season's business has encouraged it to enlarge its facilities, so as to handle the fall season's trade with even more promptness, if possible, than in the past.

CAPTAIN POTTER HONORED.

The Ohio State Journal, of Columbus, Ohio, in its issue of the 8th inst. says: "The Columbus Republican Glee Club assembled at the home of Capt. W. S. Potter, at 70 North Twentieth street, last night, and presented him with a handsome gold headed cane in honor of his fiftieth birthday. Captain Potter is president of the club and one of the most popular presidents the club has ever had. The presentation was entirely a surprise."

Captain Potter is well known in the trade as a member of the wholesale and manufacturing firm of Schroth & Potter, window shades, curtains, portières, &c., Columbus, Ohio.

EVERYBODY WANTS THEM.

Cohen Brothers & Co., Nos. 424 and 426 Broadway, New York, are still very busy filling orders for the popular bobbinet ruffled curtains, which have had such a universal demand this season, and on which large duplicates have already arrived, showing that the public are in favor of this graceful window drapery.

Their line of novelty Nottingham curtains is something different from the ordinary machine made article, and buyers looking for style in this make should give them a call. Their line of plain and fancy nets by the yard is always kept well stocked. See their announcement on page 93.

The James Caven Company, proprietors of the Saranac Mills, have opened an office at 415 Broadway, corner Canal street, New York, in charge of Herbert Gardner, where their full lines may be seen. They also have an office at 147 Fifth avenue, Chicago, in charge of R. S. Brownlie.

Hunter & Whitcomb will increase their showroom space at 874 Broadway May 1. They will then occupy almost the entire seventh floor of the McIntyre Building at that address, and, besides obtaining more space, will have a better light for displaying samples than in their old salesroom on the fifth floor.

The Chicago office of W. E. Rosenthal, manufacturers' agent, has been removed from 147 Fifth avenue to the Monadnock Building, and the St. Louis office is now at 304 North Eighth street. W. E. Rosenthal is sole selling agent for Hyndmann & Moore, the Philadelphia tapestry and chenille manufacturers, and for the Matred Mills, manufacturers of curtains and upholstery fabrics. He is also sole Western selling agent for the Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company, the extensive producers of upholstery and drapery trimmings, rope portières, &c. The home office and headquarters remain at 458 Broadway, New York, as heretofore.

No. 24,788. Etching, Printing, &c., Rollers or Dies.—H. Lyon, Peter street, Manchester. November 5, 1896. Patent issued March 23, 1898.

Relates to the preparation of etched designs on metal rollers for use in printing or embossing calico, paper pulp, leather, velvet, or other material, and also to the production of such designs on engraved cylindrical steel dies. A copy of the design is drawn or otherwise produced on a sheet of transparent gelatine, or other flexible and transparent material; the surface of the roller or die is covered with a sensitized composition, and the flexible sheet is attached to the coated surface and exposed to the action of the light. After sufficient exposure the transparent sheet is removed, and the soluble parts of the sensitized coating are dissolved away. The roller or die is heated, or ink or varnish is applied to the insoluble parts of the coating, and resin, asphalt, or other suitable material, is combined with the ink or varnish so as to obtain a hard resist. The roller or die is finally etched and the resist afterward removed.

Charles G. Hutzler, of Hutzler Brothers, dry goods and upholstery, Baltimore, was at Atlantic City during the past week.

The furniture and upholstery firm of Launsbach & Chapman, Lansingburgh, N. Y., has been dissolved, Fred Launsbach retiring. C. H. Chapman continues the business.

NEW WALL PAPER COMBINATION.

WALL paper manufacturers held a meeting at the Manufacturers' Club, Philadelphia, on the 6th inst. It is said that the meeting was attended by representatives of the concerns that are operating independently of the National Wall Paper Company, and that they desire to form a combination by which the wall paper interests of the United States will be pooled. It is understood that this combination was first suggested by the National Wall Paper Company to the companies that are not allied with it. Since the National Wall Paper Company was formed about six years ago eighteen or twenty smaller concerns have sprung up, and profits all around have become smaller in consequence of the increased competition.

In order to improve this state of affairs a proposition is under consideration that all concerned pool their profits. It is said that if this combination is made it will yield about $6,000,000 profit next year, 55 per cent. of which will go to the national organization, and the remaining 45 per cent. to the outsiders, who have formed what they call a "club."

The Corry (Pa.) Upholstering Company, owned by Lambing & Carey, was burned out on April 7. Loss, $7,000; partially insured.

The new Velvet Ruff cord portière made by the Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company is selling freely, and indications point to a big run on the goods this season. Every dealer should have some of them in stock.

T. I. Birkin & Co. now have the machinery in their new factory at Chester, Pa., in operation and will be soon enjoying the advantages of their increased production of lace curtains and nets.

B. L. Solomon's Sons have found that their new location, Seventeenth street and Fifth avenue, is satisfactory beyond their highest anticipations. They have every convenience for displaying goods and the location is convenient for visiting as well as local buyers.

..Ficken Brothers, dealers in painters' supplies and wall paper at 1134 Third avenue, New York, have given a bill of sale of their entire plant to various creditors. Myers, Goldsmith & Bronner, attorneys for Ficken Brothers, said that the trouble was due to heavy expenses and big losses on wall paper which they were not able to sell at fair prices on account of cut in prices by others. They have been in business for fifteen years, will call a meeting of creditors shortly, and endeavor to amicably adjust matters by a compromise. The liabilities are $60,000; assets probably $40,000.

A JUDICIOUS INVESTMENT.

The Best Economy in your Carpet Room

can only be secured by using the most perfect appliances, of the simplest design and the best construction.

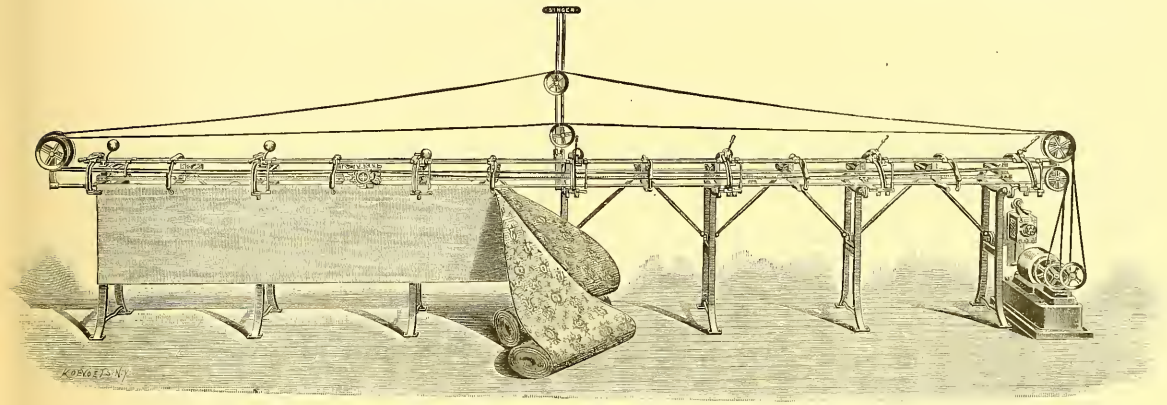
Experience Has Proven the Fact that the SINGER AUTOMATIC POWER CARPET SEWER will save its cost in one year to any carpet dealer having enough business to require a hand machine. THE SINGER AUTOMATIC is now in use by dealers who saved its cost during the first six months of its operation.

A TRIUMPH OF MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY, SURPASSING ALL OTHER DEVICES FOR ITS PURPOSE.



Truly automatic, requires less labor and sews 40 per cent. more carpet than any other machine on the market.
Requires least floor space, and uses any form of power.
Makes perfect stitch and seam, sewing any kind of carpet.

Automatic Matching and Clamping Device.

This device is absolutely unique, and secures perfect stretching and matching, without necessity for expert labor. It is simpler, swifter and in every way more effective than any other way of handling a carpet. The sewing machine works automatically on its track, following the operator from section to section as fast as each is matched and clamped, the action of the clamping levers automatically governing the movement of the sewing machine, thus saving a great deal of time. . . . . .

This is not a Hand Machine Crudely Adapted to Power Operation.

Our Hand Machine is well known, and is still on the market, fully guaranteed to be the best and most practical in use.

Wholesale and Commission Carpets,

BOSTON, MASS.

We offer to the Trade our usual standard lines of Carpetings for the Spring of '98.

As we were large purchasers of merchandise before the recent sharp advances, we are in position to quote, in all cases, the lowest market price, and in some cases offer inducements that mills and commission houses will not meet.

Our private patterns, especially in Wiltons and Brussels, are not surpassed either in variety of design or novelty in coloring.

If we, with our private patterns and colorings, have been able to secure some of the largest contracts given in this country, would it not PAY YOU to have our patterns represented in your stock.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms:

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the

will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

RUBBER STAIR TREADS.

Our treads are furnished either moulded or cut. The former are made with a border, and have the extra smoothness and finish peculiar to moulded goods. We carry the regular sizes in stock, 3/32 and 1/8 inch thick. In addition we have a very complete assortment of moulds for special sizes and thicknesses, and are prepared to supply on short notice treads for any and all purposes.

The cut shows tread in position, with metal nosing on edge of step. This protects both step and rubber and gives a neat finish, especially if brass nosings are used. We supply these last, and also galvanized iron nosings.

Cut treads furnished to order in all sizes and shapes. No charge made for cutting.

AXMINSTER, WILTON AND BRUSSELS

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven at every repeat of the pattern in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

THESE GOODS CAN BE HAD FROM ALL FIRST CLASS DEALERS.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 51.

☞Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

THE TRADE OUTLOOK.

THE coming auction sale of Smith carpeting is naturally the chief subject of discussion in the trade at present. Judging from the results of previous sales, it seems probable that the goods offered will be disposed of readily at satisfactory prices. The war is, of course, a new factor which tends to complicate the situation, but apparently the general impression in the trade is that the war will not be a long one, and that its termination is certain to cause a great revival in business. If, on the other hand, hostilities are prolonged beyond present expectations, it is equally certain that the cost of carpeting will be largely increased, and that goods bought at the figures now ruling will be an excellent investment. It is true that a prolonged war will reduce the demand for carpeting, but the injury to business, although serious enough, will be small indeed in comparison with the effect of the civil war, in which the nation was engaged in a struggle for its very existence.

Retail business is uneven, ranging from marked activity in some parts of the country to a condition not more than fairly satisfactory in others.

Most manufacturers have their new lines ready for the fall trade, and expect that the business of the coming season will begin quite as early as usual.

BOGUS BARGAIN SALES.

FOUR men were tried recently at Staffordshire, England, on a charge of defrauding "divers persons" by bogus bargain sales. In the course of his address the prosecutor read to the jury a handbill issued by the prisoners, which stated that a great salvage sale was proceeding subsequent to the alleged wreck of the Sea King, bound from Liverpool to New York with a general cargo. The attention of the public was directed in this to the £20,000 worth of goods saved from the wreck, from which they could choose great bargains. Further announcements dealt with sales of supposed bankrupt stocks of dealers in Manchester, whose existence and addresses were, it was alleged by the prosecution, non-existent. The story of the supposed fraud was that the four prisoners acted in concert, and were engaged jointly in what is known as the "pack" trade, representing themselves as the agents of a firm called Carr & Sons. They distributed handbills, and subsequently called at the houses and persuaded women named in the indictment to buy goods. The prisoners were found guilty and were sentenced to terms in jail ranging from twelve to eight months.

It is unfortunate that a dose of the same kind of medicine has not yet been served out to the men who conduct bogus auction sales of Oriental rugs in New York city and other parts of the United States.

TRADE COMMISSION FOR CHINA.

The officers of the Philadelphia Museum have arranged to send a commission to China. It will go at the suggestion and invitation of the Chinese Government officials, who are desirous of closer trade relations with the United States.

The commission is made up of three members. It will sail from San Francisco on May 19, will remain in China from ten months to a year, making the most careful and thorough investigations of all commercial matters in the great distributing centres of the empire. The members will be given an opportunity of traveling through the interior portions of China, and will be able to make investigations of the possibilities and future developments of the empire, enabling them to have complete reports to lay before the American business men and to give accurate information in relation to the country.

GREAT AUCTION SALE OF SMITH CARPETING.

W. & J. Sloane have notified the trade by circular that they will sell by auction May 3 and following days, at Nos. 37 to 41 East Eighteenth street, this city, about 15,000 pieces of Smith Tapestry, 14,000 pieces of Axminster, 6,000 pieces of Moquette, 6,000 pieces of Velvet, 1,500 pieces of Savonnerie and 600 pieces of Ne Plus Ultra carpeting; 5,000 bales of Moquette rugs and 900 bales of Ne Plus Ultra rugs.

Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell will act as auctioneers for the occasion. The goods will be on view in the warerooms of W. & J. Sloane until the 2d inst., when they will be placed in the auction room. The attention of the trade is called particularly to the fact that the sale will take place in the building on Eighteenth street, adjoining the premises of W. & J. Sloane, and not in the downtown auction rooms of Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell. For full details regarding the offerings see the colored insert in this issue. Past experience in these sales has shown that the goods are readily absorbed, the trade being prompt to take advantage of such opportunities.

In speaking of the sale Mr. W. W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane said: "We deprecate the idea of disposing of goods by auction, but we feel compelled to take this step by the exceptional trade conditions, resulting from the war and other circumstances. The sale will give the trade the opportunity to fix their own prices, as the goods will be sold without reserve. Notwithstanding the war cloud, we have unbounded faith in the condition of the country at large, and no fear whatever of any serious setback to the carpet trade or general business."

The patent rubber nosings placed on the market by the Knapp Rubber Binding Company have been favorably received by the trade. For covering the edge or nosing of stairs, where linoleum, oil cloth and rubber plates are used, they have no equal, as they prevent slipping, are noiseless and durable. They are made in 6-4 and 8-4 lengths, and in cut sizes of 18, 22½, 27, 36, 45, 54 and 72 inches. Samples and prices forwarded by applying to the Knapp Rubber Binding Company, 335 Broadway, New York. See the nosing cut on advertising page 103.

The quarterly interest on the preferred stock of the H. B. Claflin Company is to be paid May 2.

Gabriel Fried, dealer in carpets and furniture and auctioneer, has removed from 325 to 1315 Third avenue.

M. B. Evens & Co., carpet and furniture dealers, 379 Grand street, Brooklyn, have notified members of the National Guard and volunteers who have purchased goods on the instalment plan that they will wait for their money, and in case of death make their families a present of the goods.

Loeser & Co. and Abraham & Straus, of Brooklyn, have announced that members of the State militia in their employ, who serve with their respective regiments, will be paid their full salaries while in the army, and will be reinstated in their positions on their return. Hahn & Co., of Newark, N. J., have notified their employees to the same effect.

A movement has been started to raise a regiment of volunteers among the employees connected with the retail carpet and furniture houses of the city. A volunteer committee has been formed to take charge of the movement and it is expected that the plan will prove so successful that the regiment will be raised before long Many of the employees of Cowperthwait & Co., of Park row, have already volunteered to join the organization.

Sheppard Knapp & Co., of Sixth avenue, have caught the war enthusiasm and have on exhibition in one of their handsomely dressed windows a beautiful oil painting entitled "Jack's Return." The scene represents the homecoming of a sailor after the war is over, and he appears at the end of the village lane greeted by his wife and little ones, while the old and feeble grandmother sits beside her spinning wheel at the door of the cottage anxiously waiting for him to reach her that she may extend her welcome also.

Francis H. Loss, dealer in housefurnishing goods at No. 33 Murray street, made an assignment without preference to Augustus W. Weissman. Mr. Loss has been in business since 1873. Louis F. Doyle, the attorney, said that prior to the panic of 1893 Mr. Loss did a prosperous business, but since that time business has fallen off, owing to the large department stores gradually absorbing the retail business which formerly yielded him a good profit, and also to changes in the tariff laws, which cut off another profitable source of revenue. Mr. Loss was considerably indebted to the trade in 1893, but since then has paid off almost his entire indebtedness, using up his own capital and money borrowed from relatives. He has not secured confidential indebtedness, and his business liabilities are only about $3,000, with about $2,000 for rent. His assets will probably realize $1,200 to $1,500.

Blake Brothers, 110 Worth street, have their new fall line of Henry Holmes' Ingrain carpets and Art Squares ready for inspection, and are pleased to be able to inform the trade that their colors are stronger than ever and the entire line much better than in any former season.

Colfax Council No. 1,220 of the Royal Arcanum, whose membership includes a very large number of carpet and upholstery men, on April 18 passed a resolution to the effect that the council would pay the assessments of such members being members of the National Guard as were called upon to serve during the war between the United States and Spain.

A certificate has been filed with the Secretary of State setting forth that the Manufacturers' Association of Kings and Queens Counties has changed its corporate name to the Manufacturers' Association of New York. The annual meeting of the association was held on April 18, when a resolution was adopted commending President McKinley "for his steadfast adherence to public duty and the common welfare in the position he has maintained in seeking to secure peace with honor." The following officers and directors were elected: President, Ludwig Nissen; first vice-president, E. Dwight Church; second vice-president, Alfred C. Barnes. Directors (for three years)—J. Adolph Mollenhauer, Charles N. Chadwick, Frank J. Logan, A. J. Pouch, George F. Moon, William H. Miller, Sr., and W. C Bryant; (for one year) William P. Talbot and James F. Bendernagle.

Theo. A. Steenson has been engaged by the Art Square Manufacturing Company, 1720 North Second street, Philadelphia, and will have charge of all territory east of the Missouri River. He will visit the principal cities in ample time for fall orders, and later on will announce the location of a New York headquarters, which will be established for the convenience of visiting buyers during July and August. The Art Square Manufacturing Company make a specialty of Art Squares and are adding new machinery which will double their product and enable them to fill all orders promptly. They make seven distinct grades of Art Squares in all sizes, including Pro-Brussels, Extra Supers, Medium Supers and Unions, and the line will be replete with original and novel designs and colorings.

THE BARBOUR THREADS.

On the colored sheet opposite page 20A of this issue the Barbour Brothers Company call attention to their superior carpet threads, which come in spools or skeins, as required for machine or hand sewing, and have been long renowned for their strength, evenness and durability. For either carpet or upholstering purposes these threads are absolutely perfect. They are for sale by the jobbing trade generally and by the Barbour Brothers Company, whose New York store is at 218 Church street. Write to them for prices and other particulars.

VICTORIA EXTRA SUPERS.

Thomas Develon's Sons, Victoria Mills, Hancock street and Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, have their new samples out for the coming season, and as usual have superior attractions in designs, color tints and quality. A glance at their Victoria Extra Supers shows that the hand of the designer has not lost its cunning nor the shader his talent in the grouping of color tints. They are exceedingly attractive and will find a ready sale. The same may be said of all the grades of goods produced at the Victoria Mills.

....Chas. E. Horne, of Robt. Beattie & Sons, was here recently.

....Stone & Moffett succeed Robert Ferguson, dealer in carpets and furniture at Sixteenth and Federal streets.

....Wm. Henderson has his fall styles out, and will soon exhibit them to the trade. His "Columbia Brussels" far excel any former productions in that line. His looms are now running on duplicate orders, which are coming in rapidly.

....Henry Rath, Jr., has just finished an exceedingly prosperous season, with the exception that his looms are still running on duplicate orders, that have come in since the season practically closed. His new designs and colors for the fall trade will be out next month.

....The E. S. Higgins Carpet Company have removed from their quarters at 604 Bourse Building to the large and commodious room No. 606, same building. The company have fitted it up in an elegant and very convenient style. Robert M. Neall will be in charge of the office.

....Lawrence Collins, Ingrain manufacturer, is now firmly established in his new quarters, but has been obliged to put in new machinery in order to run his plant to its full capacity. His new offerings are decidedly rich in color tints, and elegant in design. They will be sure to please the trade.

....John & James Dobson are well sold ahead on all their productions, and are having considerable difficulty in filling their orders promptly. They report the largest output they have had for many years. Their cut order department is also pushed to the extremity of their capacity and orders are still flowing in.

....Swire & Scott have changed their office in the Bourse Building from 682 to 604, where they will hereafter have on exhibition their line of extra Ingrain carpets and Art Squares. They have also a very fine showroom connected with their mills, where Mr. Scott will be pleased to show their fine lines to all who call on him.

....Joseph M. Adams, the well-known yarn man, and member of the Select Council of Philadelphia, was entertained at a banquet a few evenings ago, given by his constituency and his many friends residing in his ward. The occasion was a very enjoyable one. Mr. Adams is widely known among the Ingrain carpet manufacturers of Kensington.

A large delegation of Philadelphia manufacturers visited the Commercial Museum a few days ago for the purpose of looking into its methods of introducing American productions into foreign markets, and to see also the innumerable samples of foreign wares on exhibition, showing the kinds of goods that are now being sold to the South American trade more especially. The carpet industry was represented by Robert Dornan, of Dornan Brothers.

....On April 14 Deputy Register of Wills Irwin granted the petition of Michael Mullen, a carpet dealer, claiming to be a creditor of the estate of Peter Treacy, deceased, formerly residing at 4855 Lancaster avenue, for letters of administration on his estate, in order to decrease a claim for debt. A citation was first served on the widow, Mary H. Treacy, to show cause why letters of administration should not be taken out by herself. Her answer was that there was no estate. Treacy died in November last.

....Thomas Caves & Son report a very flourishing condition of affairs in their two plants, all the looms being in full operation. Their new styles are out, and a handsomer show of designs and color tinting would be hard to find. The Velvets especially will be admired by all lovers of art in textile goods.

....Schofield, Mason & Co. are hard at work getting out their new samples of Wilton and Brussels carpets for the coming season. They are taking special pains with them, the result of which will be the finest offerings they have ever put forth for the consideration of the first-class trade of the country.

....Henry Holmes & Sons' Sherman Mills have been invaded by the grip. Arthur Holmes is just recovering from an attack of the disease, while the engineer, one of the warpers and the shipping clerk are all down with it. The senior partner is, however, in first-class condition, the mills are running to the fullest capacity, and goods sold are promptly delivered.

....Ellis A. Gimble, of Gimble Brothers, stated that his firm would see that ample provisions would be made for those enlisting in the United States service, if troops were needed and called for. "No members of the National Guard in our employ," said Mr. Gimble, "need have any fear that the firm will forget them. Their places will be kept, subject to re-employment upon their return. When the time comes we will also stand by them in other ways, and do our part to provide for maintaining the honor of the country in proportion as the circumstances then existing may require."

....John Wanamaker has written to the Secretary of War as follows:

To the Honorable the Secretary of War:

Though opposed to war unless honorably unavoidable, in the event of its coming I will, under your instructions, raise a regiment of Pennsylvanians for military duty and go with them for service.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

Mr. Wanamaker, after sending his offer to the Secretary of War, posted in his store two notices, one for the manager's office and the other for the timekeeper's desk, as follows:

Notice.—In order that our men may have easy minds in considering and arranging their affairs in the event of being called upon for military service, this notice is posted to say: First—That all the positions thus vacated will be open to return to when the military service is over.

Second—That all salaries will continue in full in such absence for actual service, and be paid to the authorized representative of their respective families.

Third—An insurance to the amount of $1,000 will be paid by the firm in the case of each death while any of our people are actually engaged in military service.

BOSTON BUDGET.

Boston, April 25.

Among the carpet men who may be called on to go to fight the Spanards is Harry Richmond, S. Sanford & Sons' representative here, who belongs to the crack Boston military organization, the Lancers. Mr. Nichols, of W. W. Corson & Co., has his name on the list also, as he is a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

I. W. Chick, of John H. Pray, Sons & Co., is home from his Southern trip.

Frothingham & Heffernan have the contract to furnish carpets for the large new Sweetwater Hotel at Bedford Springs.

Patriots' Day, the anniversary of the Lexington fight (April 19), which is a holiday in this State, was celebrated by D. B. Sears (of John H. Pray, Sons & Co.) and friends in a hunting trip to Marshfield. There are now fewer live ducks.

A fine show of rugs, &c., is made by Arthur Williams, Jr., & Co., at 42, 44 and 46 Franklin street, importers of East India, China and Turkish goods. They were formerly at 81 Franklin street, but now have much better quarters, nearer Washington street.

The Bigelow Decorative Company is a new concern that has established itself in the fashionable quarter of Boston, at 39 Newbury street, on the Back Bay. It will deal in carpets, rugs, mattings, wall hangings, antique and modern furniture, &c. The firm is composed of Stephen Lewis Hart, heretofore with Powers, on Boylston street, and Charles B. Bigelow, Jr.

W. H. Hervey & Co. have enlarged the scope of their instalment business, so that they will now sell a house completely furnished and receive payments in monthly instalments. In England there are several firms that combine a real estate and housefurnishing business by selling or renting houses and furnishing them throughout, but although doubtless long credit plays a prominent part in some or most of such transactions, Hervey & Co. are probably the first to conduct such business on the ordinary instalment basis.

F. J. B.

New England Notes.

J. A. Chandler succeeds Oakes & Chandler, carpets and furniture, Bangor, Me.

Lyman & Co , carpet and furniture dealers, Holyoke, Mass., are going out of business.

Articles incorporating the Royal Carpet Lining Company, Providence, R. I., have been filed with the Secretary of State by William A. Mauran, Suchet Mauran and William A. Mauran, Jr. The capital stock is $75,000.

R. B. Currin & Co. have opened a carpet and furniture store at 365 Weybosset street, Providence.

The Model Household Supply Company is a new instalment goods concern at Bridgeport, Conn. Ezra L. Wise is the proprietor.

Hundreds of people attended the opening of G. H. Oakes & Co.'s new carpet and furniture store at Bangor, Me., on April 11, and were greatly pleased with the transformation from the dingy and dusty old quarters to the present bright and shining interior. The stock corresponds with the improvements. Everything is new and attractive and Mr. Oakes is to be congratulated on the fine quarters and stock and an auspicious opening. The store was decorated for the occasion by a florist, and the ladies who attended were presented with a boutonniere as a souvenir.

NOTABLE PRODUCT OF INGRAINS, ART SQUARES AND RUGS.

The Bromley Brothers Carpet Company have all their lines out for the fall season, and they will soon be before the trade. Some striking designs and new departures in colorings will be noticed in the line of Extra Supers, C. C.'s and other grades, which will show that designers and shaders have evolved new creations.

Prominent in the new offerings will be the show of Art Squares. This particular branch of the business is becoming more and more important as the years go by. All the broad looms of the Messrs. Bromley have been in operation since October last and are still running full. Their line for the coming season is especially strong in style and general excellence, and will meet the approbation of the trade everywhere.

The Pro-Brussels carpets, which became a new feature with the Bromley Brothers a few months ago, are in great demand. The fact is they have struck a tidal wave of popularity, and three more looms are to be added to those originally placed in position in order to fill orders promptly. The new line of these goods is exceedingly fine and attractive.

The output of Smyrna rugs will be large and very noticeable. The firm have secured a new designer, skilled in the production of Oriental effects, and henceforth their offerings will be largely of that peculiar style. This is doing the right thing at the right time, as the demand for Indian, Persian and Turkish effects is on the increase. In this connection it is interesting to mention that the firm a few weeks ago introduced to the trade a representation of the battleship Maine in a rug.60x30 inches in size, and 1,600 were sold in three weeks.

C. W. Marshall retired from the force of Alex. Crow, Jr., and will represent Thos. L. Leedom & Co. in Southern Illinois, Missouri and Kansas.

J. & J. Dobson's office in Chicago has been closed, and A. L Carpenter, who was in charge there, has transferred his headquarters to the firm's New York store.

Obituary.

Charles Wyman.

Every representative of the carpet trade who visits the West knew Charlie Wyman, of Burlington. He was the eldest son of J. H. Wyman, the original founder of the house of Wyman & Rand, whose large mercantile interests in Burlington, Keokuk and Ottumwa, Ia., are well known. The news of his death on the 21st ult., at his home in Burlington, will cause most sincere regret. For eighteen years he was the office man of the large establishment at Burlington, and for the past seven years a member of the firm. He was thirty-eight years of age and leaves a widow and daughter He was a man of the highest and best ideas of business integrity, and was universally loved and esteemed for his many good qualities of heart and mind. In his early and untimely death business and social circles of Burlington have lost one of their best and most progressive citizens and the kindest and most generous of men. One of the leading papers of Burlington said on the afternoon of his death:

"No similar announcement was ever made in Burlington that will create such universal regret as the news that Charlie Wyman is dead. No man nor boy was ever better loved or more generally esteemed by all classes of Burlington people than he. Hardly in the prime of life, with a bright future before him, it seems a calamity that is almost impossible to understand and unusually hard to bear.

"For several months past he had been afflicted with a complication of catarrhal and lung troubles, and while his condition had been critical for many months, it was the belief and hope of earnest friends and his family that he would eventually master the disease that threatened his life. The best medical skill and the most careful nursing and the kindest and gentlest attention were used toward warding off the fatal end, but it availed nothing, and this afternoon he quietly and peacefully passed away."

James H. Peters.

Brief mention was made in our issue of April 15 of the death of James H. Peters, of Red Bank, N J., which occurred on April 13. The character of the man and his position in the community merit more than the passing notice then given. His death resulted from a malignant tumor with which he had suffered for two years. From the time that he was first attacked he realized that it would result fatally. He watched the progress of the disease with interest, but with wonderful courage and fortitude. He read all the medical books on the subject, and in the early stages of the disease he would frequently spend whole days in New York medical libraries discussing the phases of the disease and reading books on the subject. Notwithstanding that he knew he could live but a short time, he went about his daily work without any sign of fear or vexation. He got his business matters in such shape that it would be easy for the executor of his estate to close up his affairs

During the two months before his death the disease progressed rapidly. The tumor spread, and his shoulder and back became affected. For two weeks he had been delirious at times, and during his last days he had but few rational moments.

The business, which was the largest in Monmouth County, was started in 1844 by the grandfather, James H. Peters, who was succeeded by his son of the same name, who in turn left it to the last of the name.

He was a man of broad and liberal education, part of which was received at universities abroad, a student of art and literature, and had a fine library containing several thousand volumes, including many scientific works in French and German, both of which languages he spoke fluently. He was also a fine judge of pictures, and possessed some good examples of the various schools of painting.

The funeral services were held on April 15. All the business places in the town were closed from 2 to 4 in the afternoon, and the Presbyterian Church was crowded with sympathetic citizens.

John L. Houston.

John L. Houston, ex-president of the Hartford Carpet Company, died at his home in Thompsonville, Conn., on the 15th, of apoplexy. He had been in bad health for the past three years. About two years ago he went to Europe for the benefit of his health and remained there several months, but the trip gave him little relief, and in January last, soon after his return, he was obliged to resign his position as president of the company whose interests he had so ably and faithfully served for more than forty years.

Mr. Houston was born in Thompsonville, Conn., June 25, 1833. His father, John Houston, a dyer, came to this country from Kilmarnock, Scotland, having been engaged for the dyeing department of the mill of the Thompsonville Carpet Company. At the age of fourteen years John L. Houston entered the employ of the company as clerk. In 1852 the corporation failed and for a short time young Houston taught school. He then began to study law, but soon dropped his law books to take a position in a carpet factory at Norwich, owned by Governor Buckingham. The Hartford Carpet Company was organized in 1854 and Mr. Houston was engaged as assistant superintendent of its mill. The energy and ability shown by him in the discharge of his duties resulted in his appointment as superintendent, a position held by him for twenty-four years. In 1878 George Roberts, president of the company, died and Mr. Houston was elected as his successor. When in January last Mr. Houston resigned this position he was succeeded by George Roberts, the present president of the company, and a son of Mr. Houston's predecessor in the office.

Mr. Houston was a man of strong intellect and varied talents, which were not confined to his own particular line of trade. Although his educational opportunities were limited in early life, his leisure hours were so carefully improved that he could fitly be called not only a well read man but an accomplished one. His ability in recitations from the poets was well known, and in his selections from Burns his rendering of the Scottish dialect was especially clever. He was an excellent speaker, easy and fluent or forcible and incisive as the occasion required. His talent as an orator would have enabled him to attain a conspicuous position in public life if his ambition had led him that way, but, although he served several terms as a member of the State Legislature, he could never be induced to accept a nomination for Congress or any other political honors.

In the carpet trade he was an especially conspicuous factor. His familiarity with its technical details as well as its business side, his ready grasp of facts and figures and ability for concise yet comprehensive argument, rendered him an invaluable leader in the conferences and controversies at Washington in relation to tariff legislation concerning the carpet trade. He was a member of the National Association of Carpet Manufacturers, and his inability to be present at the conferences in Washington which preceded the passage of the Dingley tariff bill was a matter of great regret in the trade.

Although averse to prominence in political affairs Mr. Houston was very public spirited, and gave his services freely to institutions of a financial, local or philanthropic nature. He was a director in the National Fire Insurance Company, of Hartford; the Holyoke Water Company, the Thompsonville Trust Company, the Thompsonville and Suffield Bridge Company, and was for many years president of the board of trustees of the State reform school at Meriden, Conn.

Mr. Houston leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters. Col. James B. Houston, the older son, is assistant superintendent of the Hartford Carpet Company's mills.

At a meeting of the directors of the Hartford Carpet Company, held at Thompsonville, Conn., April 18, 1898, immediately after the funeral of the Hon John L. Houston, resolutions were adopted as follows:

The directors of the Hartford Carpet Company desire to put on record their deep sense of loss in the death of their fellow director and late president, John L. Houston, on the 15th inst.

Mr. Houston at an early age entered the employ of the Thompsonville Carpet Company, and this company, its successor, has had the benefit of his services during the whole of its existence thus far.

During this long period of forty-four years, in all his various relations, Mr. Houston has served this company with ability and fidelity. Mr. Houston was elected president in 1878, at a time when the conditions of the carpet business were beginning to change. It is not too much to say that these conditions required great ability and brought great care and responsibility, which he bore patiently and manfully.

The latter part of Mr. Houston's life was clouded with personal bereavement and failing health.

We wish to express our deep sympathy with Mr. Houston's family in their affliction.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased. Attest, George B. Newton, Secretary.

Burrows & Co , 343 Broadway, New York, have their fall line ready, and are offering entirely new designs in patterns in all sizes up to 9x12 feet. It is a great improvement over the spring line, as the designs and colors are much handsomer, and the line consists of forty different patterns. In Soudan rugs the company are making all sizes up to 9x12 in a large variety of patterns. This rug is particularly adapted for the jobbing trade, owing to its popular price.

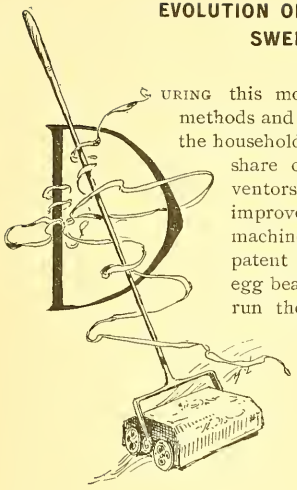
EVOLUTION OF THE CARPET SWEEPER.



During this modern age of improved methods and labor saving machinery the household has come in for a fair share of the attention of inventors and geniuses. We have improved washing machines, machines for washing the dishes, patent churns, baby carriages, egg beaters, pumps that almost run themselves, and numberless other devices that relieve the busy and often overworked housewife and mother of at least a share of her burdens, if not of her responsibilities. Even the broom has been supplanted, and instead of a back breaking operation, sweeping the carpets has become almost a luxury with the modern carpet sweeper.

The carpet sweeper—everybody knows what is meant by the term—is a combination of wheels, brushes, rubber bands and springs inclosed in a neat wooden box, which is propelled like a lawn mower by means of a handle. It is found in nearly every household, and is appreciated alike in the city and on the farm. According to a painstaking writer in the Michigan Tradesman, who has looked up the history of the machine, it is a Yankee idea, like many another modern invention, and was first brought out in Boston by a man named Herrick about 1858. The first sweeper was a crude affair, and if any of the original sweepers are still to be found, they would doubtless be looked upon as curiosities, as are the original solid tire, 50 pound, solid metal first make safety bicycles, compared with the up-to-date chainless. It was a germ rather than a finished product, and the foundation for future improvements rather than an article that could be recommended as having all the merits claimed for it as a labor saver. The original carpet sweeper industry, in spite of the crudity of the product, prospered until the war, and then, with more momentous questions before the public than how to save work in the household, it dwindled away and peacefully died.

In the early seventies interest in the carpet sweeper revived and factories were started in various parts of the country, and inventors began studying how the original idea could be improved upon. The seat of the industry in its revival was still in the East, but Western inventors were not neglecting the opportunities the household implement afforded for improvement. Several in Grand Rapids were studying it, and at other points midnight oil was being burned in experiments which would lead to a sweeper that would sweep. In 1876 M. R. Bissell was in the crockery business on Canal street, Grand Rapids, with his father. Among other goods handled by the firm were carpet sweepers, the old "Welcome," manufactured by a Boston firm. In looking over his stock one day, Mr. Bissell noticed one feature in the sweepers that could be materially improved, and he at once went to work to put his idea into execution. His improvement was a self-adjusting brush, and he began the manufacture of sweepers with this feature. He had the sweeper cases manufactured by Z E. Allen and the inner mechanism he had put together in the basement of the crockery store. This was in 1876, and the industry thus started soon outgrew its basement quarters. An old wooden factory at the foot of Erie street, on the canal, at Grand Rapids, was leased, and in 1882 a brick factory on the site of the present factory was erected. In 1883 the present Bissell company was organized, and this company has developed into the largest carpet sweeper manufacturing concern in the world.

In 1880 there were seven different carpet sweeper manufacturing concerns in Grand Rapids. They were the Bissell, the Grand Rapids, the Michigan, the Plumb, the Favorite, E. B. Clark and the Grand Rapids Brush Company. The Grand Rapids Sweeper Company was under the management of Charles B. Judd. The Michigan Carpet Sweeper Company was a corporation, with A. J. Reeves as president, and the others active in its management were Norman Cummings, William M. Robinson, Charles Cummings, Walter J. Drew and H. J. Felker, and Henry Spring was also interested as a stockholder. M. R. Bissell manufactured the Bissell sweeper and A. D. Plumb was the inventor and manufacturer of the Plumb sweeper. When the Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company was organized, the Grand Rapids and the Michigan companies were purchased and merged with it, and at a later date the Plumb factory was purchased. The Plumb acquisition was the most important to the new company because it brought to it the "broom action" patents, a principle in construction most vital to the efficiency of the sweeper. It is upon this invention, together with more recent improvements, that the fame of the Bissell sweeper has largely rested, but without the intelligent and persistent energy that the Bissell Company put into the business, even with the possession of this patent, the concern would not have been the success it has proven. The most essential of their later improvements are the "cyco" bearing device, dust proof axle tubes and anti-ravelling collector. The sweepers are made in twenty-five or thirty different styles and sizes, ranging from the baby sweeper, 6 inches in width, to the hall sweeper, 2 feet wide, and they are shipped to every part of the civilized world. It is estimated the world's demand calls for about 300,000 sweepers annually. Besides the Bissell are the Goshen Company, the King Carpet Sweeper Company and the Grand Rapids Furniture Company in Grand Rapids, and probably half a dozen others in different parts of the country. There are several factories in Europe and England, but their total product does not cut much figure in the market, their styles for the most part being patterned after the American product.

It is said that James W. Barker, the former proprietor of the Norristown (Pa.) Carpet Mills, who disappeared last November, was seen recently in Philadelphia, and that he had informed a friend that he had just returned from Seattle, Wash., where he was engaged in the hotel business, but contemplated soon returning to Norristown.

Treating Floors for Rugs and Carpets.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 15, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review

Referring to the article, "Treating Floors for Rugs and Carpets," on page 12 of your issue of March 15, I address you to say that I believe your readers will have a poor opinion of these directions should they follow the plan named in the article.

I conclude that the directions were written out by someone most loyal to the nailed down carpet theory, as the result would be a great disappointment to anyone who expected sanitary conditions in their floors or a surface which could be kept clean and presentable, because

First—If the "cracks are large" there is no possible way of filling them so but that the filling will work out. Neither putty nor thin strips of wood can be used with any satisfaction, as neither can be made to stay in.

Second—Whatever stain is used will quickly wear thin under the use to which floors are subjected, leaving bleached places which no repeated staining can hide unless of a darker shade throughout.

Third—The darker the floors the plainer will the dust show thereon, and a dark floor varnished as your article presents would drive the average housekeeper crazy to keep in any condition.

Lastly—Regarding the mixture of beeswax and turpentine recommended, I beg leave to say that beeswax never dries hard, and such a coating smeared over a floor would present a surface to which all dust and dirt would adhere, as no sweeping or scrubbing without chemicals would remove it. It would in time have to be scraped off the boards.

Beeswax is an animal wax, having none of the qualities which make a floor finish transparent to preserve the natural beauty of the wood nor the hard drying elastic quality which will polish so that nothing will adhere, permitting the floors to be wiped up with even a dry dust cloth.

In illustration of this quality of wax I send you a small sample of vegetable wax, such as is used in "Interior" wax for polishing floors or furniture, that you may compare it with a piece of beeswax.

The article in question is so contrary throughout to all modern methods of floor treatment, which are both sanitary and inexpensive, that I take this liberty of calling your attention to the absurdity of the plans proposed.

Vice-president of the Interior Hardwood Company.

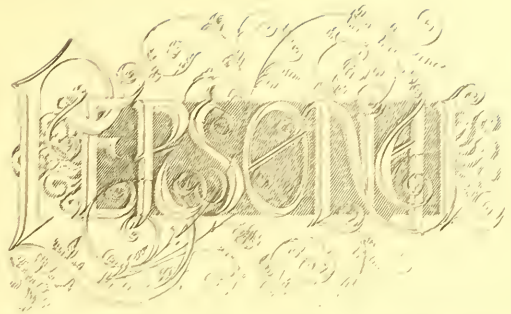
ARTIFICIAL INDIGO.

A few months ago the Badische Anilin und Sodafabrik, the large chemical manufacturing company whose works are located at Ludwigshafen, on the Rhine, Germany, put upon the market an indigo, synthetically prepared, which, as it was stated in a brochure issued to the trade at the time, was meant to enter into active competition with natural indigo.

The article is called "Indigo-rein," or pure indigo, and the market price is 17 marks per kilogram, or about $4.25 for 2 1-5 pounds. A writer in the Chemiker Zeitung, who has had wide experience as a practical dyer, seems to be less sanguine regarding the real value of the discovery than does the firm that holds the patents for the processes. He says that the natural or plant indigo is not pure indigo. In addition to "indigo blue" it contains "indigo red," "indigo brown" and some other constituents in varying proportions. This "indigo red" is present sometimes to the extent of 2 per cent., sometimes 10 per cent. The fact of this material being at hand enters into the calculation of every dyer. How much "red" is necessary in a given case depends upon the fibre, whether cotton or wool, &c., and whether the threads are thick or thin. Mr. Lang says emphatically: "If there is no indigo red in the dye vat there is not a good fixed indigo blue on the fibre."

Nevertheless, it is stated that the same firm is putting on the market substitutes for the other constituents of indigo, such as indigo red, and any dyer who is willing to learn should be able to mix the various materials in proportions to suit his yarn or his cloth with a certainty which is now out of the question in the indigo dyeing industry, owing to the variations in the quality of the natural product.

In Germany paper floors are enjoying a steadily increasing popularity, which is readily explained by the many advantages they possess over wooden flooring. One important advantage consists in the absence of joints, whereby accumulations of dust, vermin and fungi dangerous to health are done away with. The new paper floors are bad conductors of heat and sound, and, in spite of their hardness have a linoleum-like, soft feel to the foot. The cost is considerably lower than those of floors made of hardwood. The paper mass receives a small addition of cement as binder and is shipped in bags in powder form. The mass is stirred into a stiff paste, spread out on the floor, pressed down by means of rollers and painted with oakwood, satinwood or mahogany color after drying.



William Frederick C. Bonnet, president of the Bigelow Hartford Carpet Company, has been elected a director of the New Haven Railroad Company.

Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Chief Paper Clerk of the firm of Cornelius Bliss, in New York, sailed for Europe on the steamer Britannic on the 16th inst.

A NEW GRADE OF BEATTIE VELVETS.

The offering of Messrs. Beattie & Sons for the coming season will be on view this week in the Broadway, New York, salesrooms, occupied by the firm at 1170 Broadway. The line will be even more important and attractive than ever before, for in addition to the firm's famous high-class qualities, a new grade will be shown, intended to meet the demand for a velvet carpet at a popular price, but excellent in quality and in colors and to take in every way the place of the Brussels. This grade is called the Sterling Velvet and will be made in a line of plain colors.

In their high-class grades of velvets the firm [illegible] will offer a superb line of floral designs and [illegible] forms, well calculated to [illegible] reputation as manufacturers.

A LESSON IN BUSINESS TACTICS.

LUMPER failed once and lost his last dollar. He studied the thing over from every view, and concluded that his fatal mistake was in not advertising. He was a general favorite in the country town where he met with disaster. He held nothing out against his creditors, and his reward came in the shape of the postmastership. The income depended very largely on the number and value of stamps sold. Blumper determined that he would not fail again, at least from the same cause.

In the local paper there appeared a big display advertisement notifying the public that Blumper had the largest, brighest, newest and best selected stock of postage stamps in the country. He would sell them at the lowest figure, warrant them to be all that was represented, would sell them in quantities to suit the purchasers, guaranteed that they would carry a letter as far and as safely as any other stamp in the world, defied competition, and wound up by saying that he had the backing of the Government. As long as it was good he was good.

"It beat the band," said an old citizen. "We laughed at him and knew that he was the first postmaster that ever adopted such tactics, but he was a winner. It tickled the people almost to death, and there is no better way of getting their favor. They sent from 100 miles in every direction to buy stamps of him. Not a man came to town to do business or make a visit that did not have a commission to buy postage stamps of Blumper. He made a nice thing, is now in private business again and thinks an advertisement about as good as ready money.—Detroit Free Press.

AN IMPORTANT INSURANCE DECISION.

A FIRE insurance policy issued by the Continental Fire Insurance Company to Henry Thoesen, a carpet and furniture dealer on Third avenue, New York city, was transferred by the company's consent to George Solomon, Thoesen's general assignee, and soon after, on December 10, 1893, the building which was insured was destroyed by fire. In an action by Solomon against the company to recover the loss there have been three trials, though the only controverted question was whether the plaintiff had complied with the terms of the policy, which required that immediate notice of loss should be given. On the first trial the complaint was dismissed. After a reversal by the General Term of the late Superior Court, the second trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury. The referee before whom the third trial was had reported in favor of the plaintiff, and that decision has now been affirmed by the First Appellate Division by a divided court. Though fifty-three days elapsed before notice was given to the company, the referee found that by reason of special circumstances the delay was excusable and justifiable. The policy in suit, with others, was in a safe on the premises which were burned, and on account of that the plaintiff was unable to find or get at it until fifty days thereafter. During that time he had no knowledge of the names of the companies in which he was insured As soon as the policy was found, and the company's name and address ascertained, the notice of loss was sent. For six days after the fire the safe was buried in the ruins, and after it had been opened at the manufacturers the contents were put in boxes and carried in a truck, and placed in a vault for safe keeping. The fastenings of the packages had become scorched and the papers were disarranged. They were stuffed into pigeon-holes, and the policy had slipped between the framework of a pigeon-hole and the wall behind, so that it was hidden from ordinary observation. It was only found by chance, long afterward, although search had been diligently made for it. Justice McLaughlin, who gives the decision on appeal, holds that the finding of the referee that sufficient notice had been given should not be disturbed, especially as the company had had immediate actual notice from its agents, the fire patrol, so that it could take precisely the same measures for its protection that would have been afforded had written notice at that time been received from plaintiff. Justice Barrett, in a dissenting opinion, held that in any view of the circumstances, as presented by the plaintiff himself, there was inexcusable delay. To treat such a notice as given within a reasonable time was substantially to cancel the condition, or else to treat it as an idle or unnecessary ceremony.

Harvey Heiss, traveler for the Bromley Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia is in town, booking orders for lace curtains, portières and rugs.

D. N. & E. Walter & Co. report all lines complete, including trimmings. This firm reports its best trade as coming from the Northwest.

W. F. Patten has suffered a loss on his stock of furniture at Mount Vernon, Wash., as the result of a fire that destroyed two blocks of stores in that place.

The carpet business of the Charles M. Plum & Co. Upholstery Company is much improved, and the same may be said for the other departments of that establishment. Some important improvements have been made in this firm's store, which afford a better chance for display purposes.

If the present drought can be broken by a rainfall within the next few days there will be a chance for crops to take on new life and imbue business with the same. It is safe to say that the whole trouble with our commercial situation is caused by the shortage in the rain, which has materially reduced the previously bright outlook in the country.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS IN WURTEMBERG.

Few people buy carpets, except in the very cheapest grades. The floors of the better houses are parquetted in hard wood and covered with rugs. The word 'Teppich' means either carpet or rug, so that what is said of one applies to the other," says E. H. Ozman, United States consul at Stuttgart, Germany, in a recent report to our State Department in relation to the carpet, upholstery and furniture trade of Wurtemberg. Mr. Ozman says further: "Those able to afford it buy the handsome Persian and Turkish rugs, which are sold at about the same price as in the United States. Not a few Indian rugs are also sold, but they are, as a rule, less costly. There is little sale for Japanese rugs. The rugs having the greatest sale are made for the most part in Saxony. These are of wool and are durable. I have seen many of them in the United States, where they sell at prices generally, I should judge, a trifle higher than here. These rugs, though usually of patterns not in accord with American taste, are to be found in the best houses, and, in fact, in houses of all people in comfortable circumstances.

"The more costly grades naturally have better patterns. The best of these rugs, while they are well made, do not last as long as they should, for the German servant uses a stiff, wiry, broom-corn brush to clean them daily, instead of a carpet sweeper as in the United States, and besides gives them a very rough beating once or twice a week.

"It is the opinion of some retailers that a more or less extended trade in American carpets, to be sewed together with borders, could be built up here if the prices would allow them to compete with German rugs. It is impossible, without samples of each quality of rug, to give any accurate idea of the prices, and I might mislead the manufacturer.

"Plush, velvet, cretonne cheviot and cloth curtains are made in Germany, silk and cretonne ones in France, and lace ones in Germany, Switzerland, France and Belgium.

"The Germans prefer lace curtains, over which is hung a heavy plush or cheviot curtain in solid colors, with lambrequin trimmed with gold braid and fringed. A good quality of cheviot curtain retails for about $15, without poles or fixtures. These fixtures are much dearer than in the United States and are not so tasteful. I have seen but one brass pole for sale. Plush curtain stuff, in solid colors, 1½ metres (59 inches) wide, retails for 85 cents a yard.

"Cotton wash stuffs for the curtains used in the better houses are much higher than in the United States. For example, the common point d'esprit double width curtain stuff, which retails in the United States for 40 cents per yard, costs here 4 marks per metre, or about 95 cents per yard, and other cotton wash stuffs are in proportion.

"Feathers are used here in large quantities, and they are dear. The Germans, high and low, have feather ticks for bedspreads in winter. The poor people also use feather ticks instead of mattresses. All have in addition hugh feather pillows, two for each person. The beds are all single, and the spreads and other appurtenances are made accordingly. The cheapest feathers cost at retail 75 cents per pound. The same quality sells in the United States, judging from recent advertisements in the New York papers, at about 22 cents per pound.

"The cheapest mattress is of cotton and wool; it is hard and uncomfortable. Excelsior is used, also sea grass, and of course horsehair for the better class of trade."

INDIANAPOLIS ITEMS.

Indianapolis, April 25.

Chas. H. Peck, manager of the carpet, draperies and wall paper department of the Pettis Dry Goods Company, said his department would show an increase over last spring. In fact, since he took charge of it, seven years ago, it had shown an increase every year, He would rather see wheat at $1 and $1.25 and war, than at 40 and 50 cents and no war, facts which regulated things out here more than anything else, not that he wanted war at all, but from a business standpoint, war did not seem likely to cut much of a figure in trade.

Albert Gall secured the contract to decorate the ladies' parlors and new café at English's Hotel.

Albert Gall, Jr., said the fret and grille business was the best they had ever had, out of town orders being immense.

M. P. Harrison continues to supply the trade with his handy carpet roll tightener, and every dealer who gets one says that he would not be without it for ten times the cost.

The Taylor Carpet Company has had an excellent trade this spring. The war scare does not affect trade. It is the weather and crops which do so more than anything else.

Louis F. Smith, with L. S. Ayers & Co., has held some special sales in his department that have brought in good business. The art department is on the third floor and is a new departure, Ayers & Co. having bought out Ward & Co., of this city.

J. E. De Voss, in charge of the carpet department at the "World's Fair Store," reports trade as being very good with the better class of carpets. In fact he has cut up more in this line than ever before. The stock the firm carries is a large one and is kept in fine condition under the management of Mr. De Voss. J. F. G.

The Philadelphia office of the E. S. Higgins Carpet Company has been removed to Room 606, Bourse Building, where Robert M. Neall is in charge.

In this country and in the civilized world generally we are so accustomed to the circulation of coins that we are apt to forget that there are millions of human beings who know nothing whatever of coins, and conduct their transactions by means of cowries, brass rods, pieces of cotton or cloth and divers other articles. On the west coast of Africa brass and copper rods are in vogue, and form an important article of commerce from the Birmingham district of England. Recently an effort has been made to displace this form of currency by forcing the natives to use silver coins, but without success.—Ex.

A profit sharing plan has been decided upon by the firm of Davidson Brothers, dealers in dry goods, carpets, &c., Sioux City, Ia., and they will proceed to reorganize their business at once. The plan is to form a stock company, with a capital of $150,000, of which $80,000 will be retained by the firm, $20,000 for the employees, and $50,000 will be offered to the public in $100 shares, not more than one share being sold to each family. This latter stock will be a preferred claim upon all company property, will draw 6 per cent. interest, and if the holder is dissatisfied it will be bought in by the company after twelve months.

The mill of the Port Hope Carpet Manufacturing Company, at Port Hope, Ont., Canada, was the scene of a disastrous fire on the 12th ult., as a result of which, it is estimated, $3,000 worth of damage was done to contents thereof. The fire is supposed to have started in a room at the back of the factory, in which was stored a large quantity of yarn. Here about $750 worth of yarn was destroyed, with $200 worth of drugs, used for dyeing, besides samples of carpet and damage to empty looms. In the first story the destruction left its mark chiefly on the large stock of expensive patterns, which were rendered utterly useless. The firemen were on hand very promptly, but so tenaciously did the fire cling to the inflammable material that it was difficult to extinguish it. The rooms at the north of the factory on the first and second floors were the scene of the greatest damage, the workrooms escaping untouched. Mr. Sykes, who is connected with the management, said that the factory would start as soon as things were put in good shape again. The fire occurred at a season when there was a large number of orders to fill, and hence workmen were engaged up to 10 o'clock the night before. The loss on contents is covered by insurance, as is also that on the building.

"Oh, John, dear, isn't your Uncle George dreadful?"

"What's up, now?"

"Why, I called at his office to-day, and he was talking to one of his clerks upstairs."

"Nothing unusual in that."

"And, John, he told the poor man to go to—you know where—through the speaking tube!"—Pick-Me-Up.

THE SINGER CARPET SEWING MACHINES.

The automatic power carpet sewing machine and the hand sewing machine manufactured by the Singer Manufacturing Company are both perfect devices for their respective purposes. The Singer automatic power machine will very quickly save its cost to any carpet dealer. It secures perfect stretching and matching without the need of expert labor. It is simple, swift and accurate, working automatically on its track, following the operator from section to section as fast as each is matched and clamped. The action of the clamping levers automatically governs the movement of the sewing machine, thus saving a great deal of time.

For circulars relating to the automatic power or hand machine, address the Singer Manufacturing Company. The machines can be seen in operation at the company's New York stores, 561 and 563 Broadway, and at its Chicago salesrooms, 192 and 194 Van Buren street.

The price of this sweeper is $27 per dozen; terms, sixty days net; 2 per cent. ten days. The retail price is fixed at $3.50, thus yielding to the dealer a profit of 55 per cent. The Bissell Company also strongly recommend the use of their upholstered handles with this sweeper, which are supplied at an additional cost of $2 per dozen. These are retailed at 25 cents each, realizing a profit to the dealer of 50 per cent.

Another remedy for the omnipresent carpet moth, recommended by an authority, is to wring a cloth out of hot water, lay it on the carpet at the suspected place, and pass a hot iron over it. The heated steam will kill the insects at once.

THE MEMORIAL TO GEORGE DRAPER.

The ceremonies attending the presentation of a bust of the late George Draper to the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art took place in the school building at Broad and Pine streets, Philadelphia, on the 16th ult. The presentation was made by C. J. H. Woodbury, representing the donors, the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

Charles B. Harding, who, as representative of the Board of Trustees, accepted the gift, spoke as follows:

Probably the first conscious function on the part of the human being is the acceptance of gifts; it may be done awkwardly, but it is likely to be positive and without restraint. Most people hope that sooner or later, with abundant practice, they may, if they live long enough, graciously receive even the smallest gifts. But you bring us, Mr. Secretary Woodbury, a gift that is unique, and that will therefore fill a large historical place; and proud as we are that you have chosen this, our school, as its resting place, I do most heartily accept it for our Board of Trustees, our institution and the city of Philadelphia, and I beg you to believe that there is nothing wanting in our appreciation, however we may lack in its gracious expression.

That your association should have been so impressed at your meeting here last October as to pass these resolutions, so carefully and skillfully drawn, has been to us a matter of great gratification, and that you select the work of this school as the thing in Philadelphia to be honored by this remarkable memorial of your visit is an additional matter of pride. And if you shall go on in the spirit of your resolution that specifies such a school to be a "matter of the first importance" to your own association, and shall found, promote or foster any such thoroughly good and complete establishment in your own part of the country, we shall welcome it as an ally rather than as a rival. Too long, indeed, was the Board of Trustees, this Faculty, this Associate Committee of Women, engaged in a work that was practically solitary in the United States, a work in which they have had all the struggle, all the weariness, all the uncertainty of future that belongs to any great pioneer enterprise.

In another resolution your association declared "that to no more worthy object could there be devoted public funds, private munificence, or the power that comes from association" than the interests of such an institution. There is great keenness of discrimination in the order of association, for the ends in view, that has thus named the three great influences upon which alone such work depends for support and success, and it is right that the order should be "public funds, private munificence and the power that comes from association." But we have not been able to secure influence in the proper order. The work begun in a small way years ago was, especially for the textile department, first the power that came from association, and then came the aid of private munificence. This building in which you find us to-day is largely ours because of the handsome "private munificence" of one of Philadelphia's most successful and distinguished manufacturers, Mr. William Weightman. Everywhere you will find throughout the rooms here gifts of machinery, models and other appliances from private munificence. Of public funds the institution has had but a meagre and uncertain share. But we hope the day is not far distant when all education shall be regarded alike; that is, that the elementary branches of every kind of education ought to be a charge upon the public funds, with higher education depending in a measure upon the same support, largely assisted, however, by private munificence and specific pursuit of following technical education cared for by the "power that comes from association."

You have chosen this school for the place of honor to which to intrust the care of this handsome bust of your distinguished member, and, as I have said, you have hereby given a unique position to both. Some may think it is a far call from the Parthenon and Westminster Abbey to the halls of the School of Industrial Art. And I can imagine that hereafter people who go through these rooms, naming as they pass portraits, pictures and busts of musicians, poets, literati and warriors, may stop before this bust asking "Who is this and what was he that I do not know or do not recall the face?" It is a proud omen for the rising honor that belongs to the skillful man that ministers to the cheap, beautiful and plentiful supply of the second general need of the race (clothing, food being the first) that a hall is proud to receive this first of such monuments. And it is fitting that you should have chosen for this first erection the bust of a man who represents specially the power of thought as applied to his industry.

Such a man, whose intentions and improvement constantly keep a thorn in the side of all manufacturing industry by presenting what compels the installation of new machinery and methods, is a most useful factor in the promotion of the two great ends so desirable in manufacturing, "increase of production and lessening of cost."

In the days to come many a student in passing by the bust will take from it encouragement and stimulus in the thought that work well done for humanity in even those plain and peaceful lines taught in this school will receive the like proud and fitting recognition as does the life spent in devotion to literature, fine arts, statesmanship or war. In the name of our board and school and our city, Mr. Secretary, I again heartily thank your association for the distinguished mark of your kindly remembrance and your esteem you confer upon us to-day.

The preachers of Des Moines, Ia., are working to secure a Saturday half holiday for the working men of the city, pleading that the experiment in the East has been of great benefit to employers and employees.

Wiggins' carpet matting is the name of a new floor covering manufactured by H. B. Wiggins' Sons, Bloomfield, N. J., and soon to be offered to the trade through the selling agents, J. Spencer Turner & Co., New York. The basis of the new fabric is burlap backed by a stiffening material which makes it dust proof. The surface is dyed a fast color. The line now ready comprises seven solid colors, but there is no limit to the colors which can be used.

A NEW SEAMLESS RUG.

A NEW AMERICAN PRODUCT IN SEAMLESS CARPET RUGS, SHOWING ANOTHER ADVANCEMENT IN DOMESTIC MANUFACTURE.

We are pleased to give notice of the placing upon the market of the new rug product of Barnes & Beyer, Philadelphia, who have for some years been in the front rank of chenille curtain manufacturers. We have noted from time to time the progress of the concern in this new enterprise, and its accomplishment after many months of preparation, involving heavy expense, is another illustration of the enterprise and skill of domestic manufacturers.

The American trade have heretofore largely used foreign products in large sized seamless rugs of the Axminster or high pile character. One other domestic concern has made a high pile large rug during the past few years, and there are two factories which make whole piece rugs to order. The goods offered by Barnes & Beyer, however, are the first production in such a weave made in this country. They have named the fabric Khorasan, a very proper appellation, as in appearance and texture the product closely resembles the Eastern weaves. Barnes & Beyer will open their line on May 10 at their mill salesroom, Indiana avenue, below Front street, Philadelphia; at their New York salesroom, 337 Broadway, and their Boston salesroom, 564 Washington street, when they will display ten patterns, which will be produced in sizes 6 by 9, 7.6 by 10.6 and 9 by 12 feet. The range of effects will include Turkish, Persian and Indian reproductions of very rare and costly rugs, and also some lighter colored, large figured parlor effects The Khorasan rug has an exceptionally high and close hand woven pile, and is of superior quality in make and materials. The sizes are woven in one solid piece, and in the respect of wear will vie with the hand made Oriental fabrics.

A PATTERN IN THE NEW KHORASAN RUG MADE BY BARNES & BEYER, PHILADELPHIA.

It is fitting that the trade should give careful attention to this new offering, and encourage by liberal purchases the establishment of this practically new industry in this country. Barnes & Beyer have an extensive mill, and are prepared to increase the product of the Khorasan rug as the trade demands.

AUCTION SALES OF SMITH CARPETING.

FACTS AND FIGURES RELATING TO PREVIOUS SALES OF THE ALEXANDER SMITH & SONS CARPET COMPANY'S GOODS BY AUCTION.

The auction sale of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company's goods announced elsewhere in this issue will be the sixth in the history of the corporation, and may perhaps rank as the most important of them all.

The first sale held by the company took place June 2, 3 and 4, 1886. The offerings in the catalogue comprised 11,200 pieces of carpeting and 24,500 rugs and mats, but with duplicates the actual sales amounted to 26,139 pieces of carpeting and 58,766 rugs and mats.

The second sale of Smith goods occurred August 4, 1891, when about 6,000 rolls of a special grade of Moquette known as Nimes carpeting were disposed of.

The company's third sale took place November 10, 11, 12 and 13, 1891. The catalogue called for 43,391 pieces, including duplicates, but 63,721 pieces were sold.

The fourth sale was held December 6, 7, 8 and 9, 1892. The catalogue footed up 33,951 rolls of carpeting and 2,968 bales of rugs and mats. The sales by auction amounted to 33,767 pieces of carpeting and 2,721 bales of rugs, but a considerable quantity of goods named in the catalogue was disposed of at private sale before the auction.

The fifth sale took place June 6, 7, 8 and 9, 1893, when 36,664 pieces of carpeting and 5,066 rugs and mats were disposed of, the sales corresponding closely to the amount specified in the catalogue.

CHICAGO CARPET NOTES.

Chicago, April 26.

The Chicago carpet branch of W. & J. Sloane, of New York, will be closed Saturday. The news came as a great surprise to the trade. The reasons for the move are not known even to Manager F. L. Hardcastle, who received an order to close the office in the Champlain Building with the expiration of the month, when the lease expires, and go to New York to attend the Sloane auction sale. Mr. Hardcastle will hereafter travel from W. & J. Sloane's New York headquarters. Mr. Hardcastle and Mr. J. G. Taylor leave for New York Saturday. Mr. W. E. Eberback will remain here for the present. The office was opened here in 1892 by O. F. Spate. He was succeeded by M. H. Jordan, who in turn two years ago was succeeded by Mr. Hardcastle. W & J. Sloane's office at Kansas City has been closed, but the upholstery goods business of the company will be conducted as usual at both Chicago and Kansas City.

C. D. Hurley has gone East.

The local buyers are all off to the front—that is to New York to attend the sale.

Jacob Sladek, dealer in carpets and furniture at 689 Milwaukee avenue, has sold out to John Rosinski.

H. J. Siegel, of Siegel, Cooper & Co., was married recently. The bride was Mrs. Marie Vaughn-Wilde, daughter of Judge Vaughn, of Illinois, and widow of George M. Wilde, of St. Louis.

The J. V. Farwell Company, Schlesinger & Mayer and Montgomery, Ward & Co. have notified their employees that those among them who join the army will have special provision made for them in regard to salaries and the holding of positions.

W. E. Burgess, of the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company, had a birthday last Thursday. Which one it was Mr. Burgess refuses to state, and none of his friends can find out, but nevertheless they surprised him at his home, 125 Clarke avenue, Austen, and presented him with a handsome traveling case. Among them were several local carpet salesmen.

Most all the buyers leave here on Friday or Saturday for Sloane's sale in New York. They are J. C. Carroll, of the Chicago Carpet Company; Ed. Richardson, of O. W. Richardson & Co.; Chas. Birkle, of the Fair; Mr. Hollywood, of Siegel, Cooper & Co ; John Reddens, of J. V. Farwell & Co.; Mr. Ames, of Marshall Field & Co., and Mr. Litt, of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., with a few others.

Many of the large firms in Chicago have assured their employees that they will lose nothing financially by answering the call to arms. Here are some of the generous promises extended to employees who enlist: John V. Farwell, Jr., of the John V. Farwell Company, full pay to each man during his term of enlistment; $1,000 to his family in case of death; Marshall Field & Co., continuation of salary during term of enlistment, and Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., continuation of salary during term of enlistment.

There was quite a movement of Chicago carpet men to the front to-day. Mark Henry is quartermaster-sergeant of Troop B, First Cavalry, which was ordered out yesterday. He left last night with his command for Springfield. He is manager of Schlesinger & Mayer's carpet department Others to go from the same store were George R. Halden, W. E. Nesbitt, John Floyd and Clarence Tubery. Patrick Conway, from Mandel Brothers, and Chas. McCoy, from O. W. Richardson & Co , also went with their regiments.

Rudolph Scherer, representing Reeve's linoleum, is in town, and Frank B. Tinelli has received a royal welcome from his many friends among the trade, this being his first visit here in eighteen months.

OPENING OF SANFORD'S FALL STYLES.

The complete fall lines of S. Sanford & Sons' goods may be found at their salesrooms, 29 Union square, New York, on May 2. To say that the collection of patterns and colorings represents the height of advancement in carpet patterning is simply to anticipate what the most skillful buyers will readily avow. The reputation of the Sanford productions as quick and clean sellers grows stronger with each succeeding season, and their customers' adherence to the goods in any changes of the market is a crowning evidence of their great desirability.

Some new fabrics have been added which show novelty in weave and effects, while the grades of the past season will be continued. With the opening of the fall season Sanford & Sons are offering their Beauvais Axminster rugs in different sizes, from 27 by 54 inches to 9 by 12 feet. The trade visiting the city during the current fortnight will find a call at Sanford & Sons' salesroom a most pleasant duty, for these handsome goods are displayed in equally attractive surroundings.

I WILL PROTECT.

Under this flag W. T. Smith & Sons sail into the season. In their unique advertisement on another page they show a capital picture of Uncle Sam prepared for the carpet war. The illustration is well worthy of attention.

A rug expert says that the test for a good Eastern rug or carpet which is often employed by exporters in those countries is to drop a piece of red-hot charcoal upon it. If the singed wool can be brushed off with the hand without leaving the slightest trace of it, it shows that the carpet is of high quality.

THOMAS B. SHOAFF.

JOHN W. MILLER.

SHOAFF—MILLER.

JOHN W. MILLER RETIRES FROM TEFFT, WELLER & CO.'S TO BECOME A MEMBER OF THE FIRM OF T. B. SHOAFF & CO.

On May 2 John W. Miller, manager of the carpet department of Tefft, Weller & Co., becomes a member of the firm of T. B. Shoaff & Co., agents for John Bromley & Sons, of Philadelphia, the Roxbury Carpet Company, Boston, and Matthew J. Whittall, of Worcester and Palmer, Mass., and will take with him the Tapestry account of John Rippel and the Ingrains of David Jackson.

Mr. Miller was born in Ohio and in early business life was head of the firm of Miller, Jones & Co., at Springfield, in that State. The house dealt largely in carpets and he became well versed in the buying and handling of all grades of the goods. He has the credit of being one of the originators of the syndicate system of buying, under which several firms, by joining together in their purchases, could make the aggregate of their orders so great as to entitle them to discounts which none of them separately could obtain.

In 1881 he came to this city and opened the carpet department of Tefft, Weller & Co., which has become under his management one of the three largest carpet jobbing departments in the country.

He first handled Stephen Sanford & Sons' Tapestries, then those of E. S. Higgins & Co., and twelve or thirteen years ago began to deal in the production of the Alex. Smith & Sons' Carpet Company. For the past ten years the house of Tefft, Weller & Co. has disposed of an average annual amount of the Smith goods of about a million dollars, or say 50,000 rolls.

On the occasion of the special sales of surplus stocks they have ordinarily taken from 20,000 to 25,000 pieces, and have been for years the largest jobbers of Smith goods purchased from W. & J. Sloane. The department's annual sales have for some years reached $2,500,000. Even during the present year the sales have averaged $250,000 a month. Last year Tefft, Weller & Co. handled between $350,000 and $400,000 of Stinson Brothers' Tapestries and Velvets. Mr. Miller has managed to bring the department in touch with the largest houses in the trade, and instances are known where in a quiet way sales of from $25,000 to $75,000 have been made to a single house.

For some time he has been meditating getting out of the jobbing business, feeling that his training and experience would be of better use in selling directly for the manufacturers.

The decision to arrive at this result was finally reached six months ago, and the present arrangement is the consequence. The opening is one just suited to his wishes, as he will be in direct touch with Velvet and Tapestry mills, his specialty, and giving him the Roxbury 9 and 10 wire taps, and the Rippel 8 wire taps—thus enabling him to continue a big seller of this class of goods.

Tefft, Weller & Co. have positively decided to close out the entire department. They have been leading carpet jobbers, and are unwilling to handle the goods in any more restricted way. The closing out of their stock will be prosecuted with all possible dispatch.

The fall lines of goods handled by T. B. Shoaff & Co. are now ready, and can be seen at the warerooms, 935 Broadway.

An indignant Kansas merchant has brought suit against a local paper because he claims that by a curions typographical error it queered for him a big clearance sale. The advertisement read: "More furniture, bedding and rugs than we care to carry in stock." The intelligent compositor made it "bugs," and now "there's the devil to pay."—Ex.

One effect of the proposed blockade of the Philippine Islands has been to cause an advance of £7 2s. 6d. per ton from the price of Manila hemp in London about the middle of last week and a complete shutting down of business on this side. Prices here are entirely nominal, but are quoted at 6⅛ to 6¼ cents for spot, comparing with 4½ cents, the quotation a short time ago.

ROCK MILLS ART SQUARES.

Swire & Scott are all ready to show the fall patterns in Rock Mills Art Squares and Ingrains. In both Art Squares and 4-4 goods they are making five different grades, and in each department no better carpets can be found in the country. They have been especially fortunate this season in securing some extreme novelties in Art Square designs, and will show some patterns which are a long way off the beaten track. This is high praise when it is remembered that for years they have never fallen into mediocrity, and have always been noted for the originality and beauty of their goods.

THE NEWEST INLAID LINOLEUM.

The formal announcement of the placing of their new inlaid linoleum on the market is made by the George W. Blabon Company in this number. We noted in our March 15 issue that the company were about ready to offer inlaid linoleums to the trade, and since then they have put the finishing touches on their new lines and are prepared to show some six or eight different patterns.

The Blabon Company have made haste slowly in preparing their inlaids through a desire to obtain the very best methods of manufacture and to produce from the start goods which will be satisfactory in every way. The different colors in a pattern are inlaid with serrated or ragged edge joints, and the amalgamation of the cork mash and canvas foundation is produced by a process which the Blabon Company have proved insures the greatest possible solidity.

The patterns are of the tile order, and the mottled goods will doubtless be specially good sellers, owing to the greater color effects obtained. The company are prepared to accept orders, and now show the samples of inlaids at their salesrooms, 34 North Fifth street, Philadelphia, and 110 Worth street, New York.

Advices from Canton dated March 19 state that settlements in the China matting market remain at 220,000 rolls, the last figures reported, and that the market is strong with an upward tendency.

Mr. E. H. Weatherbee, of Arnold, Constable & Co., says that business has been satisfactory to date in their wholesale carpet department, for while the demand for carpeting has lessened in some localities, it has increased in others to a corresponding extent or more.

THE POTTER FLOOR OIL CLOTHS AND LINOLEUMS.

The fact that the fall line of floor oil cloths now offered by Thos. Potter, Sons & Co. succeeds a line which has been shown for the past year makes the new patterns of special interest to buyers. An idea of the changes in the line is given in the statement that the fall offerings contain about 75 per cent. of entirely new styles.

There are 12 new patterns in B rugs. In the extra grade of floor cloth there are 8 new patterns out of 23; in the No. 1's, 16 out of a total of 24; in the No. 2's, 17 out of a total of 25; in the No. 3's, 16 out of a total of 24; in Stars, 18 out of a total of 22, and of 15 patterns in No. 4's only 3 were made for the season of 1897. Some of the strikingly attractive patterns are No. 327 in the No. 1 grade; 317, original in design and coloring, a keywork pattern over marble, illuminated with two shades of red; in No. 2's, 946, showing a brown ground with a geometrical block in red, black and white, a very pretty combination of color and effects; 951, a small figure with geometrical effects.

In No. 3's, 779, a linoleum effect on a white ground with olive green and brown figures; 776, linoleum effect on a brown ground with white, red and medium yellow colors.

In Stars, 157 is a small figure, very tasteful; 159 is a large effect in grays, whites, olives and reds; 150 and 151 are floral effects, one on white ground with spring leaf effects, and one on ecru ground with fall leaf effects.

Taken altogether, the new line will surely meet with the approbation of the trade, and well maintains the reputation of Thos. Potter, Sons & Co. as leaders in original patterns

The new fall styles in the printed linoleum of Thos. Potter, Sons & Co. are ready for inspection, and will command encomiums as well as the firm's usual liberal share of orders That their search for new beauties in figure and coloring effects has been successful is readily apparent in comparing the fall line with that offered during the last spring season, and the firm have also kept up their system of liberality in the number of new patterns presented.

In the A grade there are 12 new patterns out of a line of 20; in B's 14 out of 26; in C's 10 out of 20; in D's 11 out of 22, and in E's 10 out of an aggregate of 18. The line presents a large number of staple styles with a generous sprinkling of radical departures. It is proper to remind buyers that all of the patterns shown in Thos. Potter, Sons & Co.'s color sample book of 1897 will be continued in the fall line of 1898, so that orders may be sent in as usual on these patterns. Some particularly attractive styles in A's are 1234, which is a small figure, very handsomely colored in shades of brown, salmon and dark red; 1230, a large effect in geometrical figures and medium colors—light olives, browns, reds and rubies.

In B's 764 is a Mosaic effect in a set figure in red and blue on a mosaic ground, which is extremely novel; 746 is a small effect in turquoise blue, white, brown and yellow.

In C's 172 is a staple style pattern in new figures very effectively colored; 170 is a combination of mosaic and geometrical effects in a rich combination; 168 and 169 are tile patterns, one in blue and white and one in black and white, the effect being radically new.

In D's 445 is a medium sized figure in plain colors, which will doubtless be a popular seller; 442 is a 4½ inch pattern, highly colored; 438 is a tile effect in handsome new colors

C. H. MASLAND & SONS' NEW THINGS.

The Amber Mills fall lines of Ingrain carpets and Art Squares are now ready for inspection at the warerooms of the agents, W. & J. Sloane. This mill has the largest Ingrain production in Philadelphia, beginning with the Savon Art carpets and Art Squares in 9 and 12 feet widths and in one piece, and running through every grade of Extra Supers, Super C. C., Extra Unions and Cottons, with stairs to match. The new line shows a wide range of handsome and salable designs in all grades.

A new feature for this fall is a handsome line of Medallion Art Squares, of a style not heretofore made in Ingrains.

DAVID JACKSON & SON.

David Jackson, the well-known Ingrain manufacturer, of Philadelphia, will this month admit his son, James K. Jackson, to an interest in his business, the firm becoming David Jackson & Son. For many years past Mr. Jackson's product has been sold through Tefft, Weller & Co., of New York, and now that John W. Miller, so long manager of the latter firm's carpet department, has entered the firm of T. B. Shoaff & Co. the Jackson account goes with him, so that the product will hereafter be distributed through T. B. Shoaff & Co., 935 Broadway, New York. Tefft, Weller & Co. sold the Jackson goods under the brands of Empire Extra Supers and C. C.'s, Stratford Supers, Eclipse Unions and Royal Cottons, which brands will be continued. The new fall lines are now in the hands of the new agents.

THE TRENTON LINOLEUM.

On page 17 the Trenton Oil Cloth and Linoleum Company announce the offering of their new line of linoleum. They state: "We place on the market a piece of linoleum equal to any now being manufactured," and they seek to turn out first-class goods exclusively. The samples may be viewed at the company's New York salesroom, 508 Hartford Building, 41 Union square, where O. F. Spate, the selling agent, will be on hand this week to meet the trade.

READY TO BUILD TAPESTRY LOOMS.

We learn that the M. A. Furbush & Son Machine Company are contemplating placing a new Tapestry carpet loom on the market. They have recently secured the patents for an improved Tapestry loom, and also have the patterns of a Tapestry loom which they formerly turned out. Speaking of the matter Mr M. A. Furbush said that his company were ready to-day to accept a fair sized order for Tapestry looms, and could execute the same in a reasonable time. He admitted that the company had under consideration the building of Tapestry looms in the near future to test the demand for same.

REMOVAL OF McCALLUM & McCALLUM'S NEW YORK OFFICE.

McCallum & McCallum's New York salesroom is now located in larger and better lighted quarters at 39 Union square, in the premises adjoining the well-known Hartford Building. They have a large room for general showroom, with excellent light, and a smaller room for a sample room and the office of Charles S. Price, their representative. The firm's New York office has been located at 1 and 3 Union square for several years past, and they were among the very first of the carpet houses to move from the Worth street district uptown.

Mr. Price will have the fall lines in Glen Echo Wiltons, Body Brussels, Extra Supers, Byzantine rugs, Arras Tapestries and Sakai rugs on view at the new showrooms, 39 Union square, this week, and invites the attention of visiting buyers.

THE THREAD COMBINATION NOT EFFECTED.

The proposed transfer of the Willimantic Linen Company to an English syndicate has not been accomplished, the war being the main obstacle to the deal. The arrangement first proposed was that the capital stock of the company, which is $2,000,000, should be taken by the syndicate at $31.25 a share, which would amount to $3,250,000, but it is said that the syndicate now offers to pay somewhat less than half of the price in cash when the stock is taken, and give the securities of the American Thread Company, which is to be formed, for the balance. The price agreed upon for the stock remains the same as under the original deal. The companies that are to be embraced in the American Thread Company are the Willimantic Company, the Merrick Thread Company and the Hadley Thread Company, of Holyoke; the William Clark Thread Company, of Westerly, R. I.; the Barstow Thread Company, the Kerr Thread Company, of Fall River; the Glasgo Thread Company and the Glasgo Yarn Company, of Voluntown, Conn.; the Warren Thread Company, of Boston; the Ruddy Thread Company, of Worcester; the New England Thread Company, the Boss Thread Company, of Bridgeport, Conn., and the National Thread Company, of Mansfield, Conn.

Charles Oswald, formerly with Philip Doerr & Sons, Philadelphia, has joined the selling force of Swire & Scott.

Albert Graff, of Albert Graff & Co., the matting and carpet wholesalers, has returned from his trip to China and Japan.

The Geo. W. Blabon Company are ready with their complete fall lines of floor oil cloths, printed linoleums and inlaid linoleums, and display the samples at their Philadelphia and New York offices.

Manager Coloney, of J. & J. Dobson's, is busy putting the finishing touches on his new fall line, and promises to have some extraordinary attractions in patterns and colorings. The firm's wide mosaics, or plain Velvets, have made a big hit, and a new shade of green has been added to the line for fall.

NEW POPULAR PRICED VELVET CARPET.

The "Sterling Plush," the designation given by Robt. Beattie & Sons to their new Velvet carpet, a fabric which is destined, in our estimation, to become a very popular seller, is now shown in a good range of patterns and colorings at the firm's salesroom, Constable Building, 111 Fifth avenue, New York. The Messrs. Beattie showed a few patterns in this new fabric during the spring season, and the goods were highly thought of by the trade. Their special attraction is that they give the Beattie touch of choice style in a fabric less expensive than the firm's regular high grade Velvets. The "Sterling Plush" has a close and remarkably even finished pile, and the nature of the fabric brings out the colorings with notable brilliancy and distinctiveness. The patterns and colorings have had the advantage of the skilled supervision of Charles E. Horne, and the same extreme care and liberality of outlay for designs have been devoted to them as to the high grade Beattie Velvets. The "Sterling Plush" fillings contain exceptionally well adapted features for filling purposes. As quoted in the announcement on page 27, they are "as clean as a Wilton"—that is, entirely free from streaks, presenting a solid, evenly colored and evenly finished pile. They are made in all shades. Beattie & Sons are prepared to supply cut quantities of the "Sterling Plush" fillings at 10 cents per yard advance over the roll price, and will send samples on application. In investigating fall products, carpet buyers must take due notice of the "Sterling Plush."

FEATURES OF POTTER'S INLAIDS.

The special feature of the Potter inlaid linoleums is to reproduce the appearance of stone tiling and inlaid floors, the method of construction and patterns being based on this idea. That the goods succeed in faithfully reproducing the inlaid tile appearance is thoroughly demonstrated in the line of patterns shown. The inlaid sections are clean cut, well defined, and contrast with each other, and the goods eminently fulfill their purpose. The trade may rely upon receiving in the Potter inlaid linoleum goods which are thoroughly seasoned and hard and will give the best possible wear. A good range of patterns is shown for the fall season.

P. H. Hanley, carpet and furniture dealer, is one of the bondsmen of Jersey City's new Street and Water Commission, and John Mullins is a bondsman for one of the new police commissioners.

Charles Lindenholme, manager of the carpet department of J. H. Little & Co., New York, is a patient at St. Luke's Hospital, a sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism. He will probably be under treatment for several weeks to come.

Most of the jute yarns used in the manufacture of carpeting in this country are spun in the United States. The raw material comes from the East Indies, and was at one time spun chiefly in Dundee for the American market, but there are now in this country a number of mills turning out jute yarn, among them being the Chelsea Mills, Dolphin Mills, Planet Mills, the Barbour Brothers Company and the Ludlow Manufacturing Company's mills.

UPHOLSTERY

The Fortnight.

Not unnaturally the excitement attendant upon the wholesale preparations for a declaration of war with Spain has served to disturb trade conditions.

Very little has been done among upholstery dealers during the fortnight, although the lace curtain end of the line has managed to dispose of some considerable amount of foreign goods. There appears to be a general feeling that the speedy revival in the values of American bonds and stocks indicates a belief here and abroad that the disturbance in trade conditions will not be of long continuance.

Meanwhile, on all sides, collections are reported to be excellent, and dealers find no difficulty in obtaining money to meet their obligations. Failures have been fewer than they were at this time a year ago.

The large New York retail dealers appear to have, with few exceptions, been the first to be affected by the scare, but the effect was speedily felt all over the country.

The manufacturers, jobbers and retailers of one class of goods are reaping a harvest through the war. Worsted bunting and flags are in most extraordinary demand, with small supply. Standard 18 inch bunting which a month ago was sold by jobbers at $5 rose shortly to $6, and is now quoted at $7.75 and $8. During the New York centennial celebration, which was purely a local affair, the same goods touched $12. Miles of cotton flags and red, white and blue stripes are being sold by the jobbers in cotton piece goods. There is also a brisk demand for Cuban flags, both in worsted and in cotton.

A correspondent writes to the Nottingham (England) Guardian as follows: "I suggest that on a convenient date once a year we hold in Nottingham a lace carnival, when Nottingham made lace may be used for decorating purposes. Social gatherings might be held, entertainments might be given, and a grand procession held and buildings decorated; at all of which Nottingham made lace might be used, for the benefit of the Nottingham lace trade and local charities; by this I mean some beautiful design might be shown. Many people might be attracted to the town, and Nottingham made lace should be known both far and wide."

The Duty on Plushes.—In reference to the case of W. & J. Sloane et al. against the collector at New York, noted in our issue of the 15th ult., the Treasury Department has issued a statement to the collector as follows:

"Treasury Department, April 20, 1898.

"Sir—The Department is in receipt of a decision of the Board of General Appraisers (G. A. 4123) in the matter of protests 29,975 of, &c., of W. & J. Sloane et al., wherein it is held that certain plushes composed of flax, chief value, are dutiable under paragraph 315 of the act of July 24, 1897, as 'plushes * * * composed of * * * vegetable fibre,' and not under paragraph 242 of said act as 'pile fabrics of which flax is the component material of chief value,' as classified by you.

"The Board of General Appraisers finds that the merchandise under consideration consists of plushes of which flax is the component material of chief value; that the term 'pile fabrics' is a generic term applied to describe certain varieties of manufactured goods, including plushes, velvets, velveteen, corduroys, and others; that the provision in paragraph 315 for plushes composed of vegetable fibre covers plushes composed of flax, and that therefore the enumeration in paragraph 315 for plushes composed of vegetable fibre is narrower than the provision in paragraph 342 for 'all pile fabrics of which flax is the component material of chief value.'

"In regard thereto I have to inform you that this Department does not concur in the conclusions reached by the Board of General Appraisers in this case. Paragraph 315 of the act of July 24, 1897, provides for 'plushes * * * and all pile fabrics * * * composed of cotton or other vegetable fibre.' Whether the term 'plushes' as appearing in said paragraph is a more specific designation than the term 'all pile fabrics' as appearing in paragraph 342 is, therefore, immaterial in view of the fact that the term 'all pile fabrics' appears in both paragraphs 315 and 342. In construing these paragraphs the question to be considered is, therefore, What kinds of pile fabrics are covered by these respective paragraphs?

"As stated, paragraph 315 provides for pile fabrics composed of cotton or other vegetable fibre, whereas paragraph 342 provides for 'all pile fabrics of which flax is the component material of chief value.' As between these two there can be no question but that the enumeration 'pile fabrics of which flax is the component material of chief value' is a specific and direct enumeration and is narrower than the enumeration 'pile fabrics composed of cotton or other vegetable fibre,' which latter may cover a variety of vegetable fibres.

"It is also to be noted that under the decision of the Board of General Appraisers, paragraph 342 would become practically inoperative, and would exclude therefrom a large variety of pile fabrics. In carrying the provisions of paragraphs 315 and 342 into effect, it must be presumed that Congress intended to put all pile fabrics of which flax is the component material of chief value under paragraph 342 at the rate of 60 per cent ad valorem, and that other pile fabrics, such as plushes, velvets, velveteen, corduroys, &c., composed of cotton or other vegetable fibre other than flax [illegible] value, were to be dutiable under paragraph 315.

"You are therefore hereby directed to file an application for review from the said decision of the Board of General Appraisers (G. A. 4123), in accordance with the provisions of section 15 of the act of June 10, 1890, and to continue to be guided by the views herein expressed in the classification of such merchandise. O. L. Spaulding, Assistant Secretary."

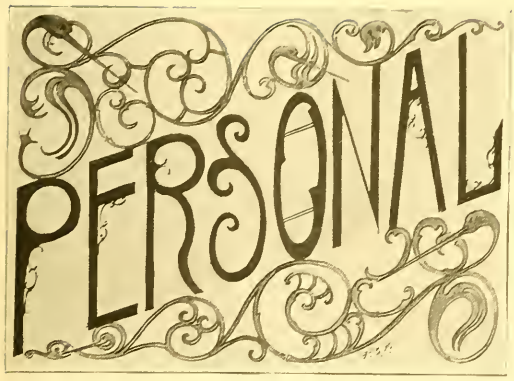
THE VELVET RUFF PORTIERE.

The Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company's new velvet ruff portière is likely to be in great demand. The ruff, instead of being wound around a rope, is part of the rope itself, and woven by a three-shuttle movement. It is made in three color combinations, and in about eighty styles in both single and double widths. The ruff portière is more durable than the ordinary style, because there is no displacement or sliding on the rope. It is shown with the many other novelties and specialties of the Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company at their headquarters, 639 to 643 North Broad street, Philadelphia, and their branch salesrooms, 458 Broadway, New York; 76 Channey street, Boston; 147 Fifth avenue, Chicago, and the Phelan Building, San Francisco, Cal.

Owing to a disagreement between the partners comprising the firm of Gately & O'Gorman the appointment of a receiver has been applied for, and a keeper is now in charge of the firm's store in Boston.

The bedrooms in a simply but very prettily furnished country home have as floor coverings squares of China matting, with the spaces surrounding them painted white. With brass trimmed white bedsteads, walls on which are light ground papers, with trailing sprays of flowers, and draperies of white muslin, the rooms have a delightfully fresh and dainty appearance. The white filling for the floor is easily kept clean, and does not show a little loose dust, as does the dark stained floor.

The keynote of the Japanese furnishing, which is becoming more and more recognized as the most artful of art, is its reserve. It never paints the lily or gilds refined gold. A single beautiful thing, if it be only a spray of cherry blossoms, is allowed to show its beauty unhampered by some other beautiful thing. The spray, perhaps, will be thrust in a tall vase of unobtrusive tint, and without ornamentation except, it may be, a line of gilt or a dash of just the color needed to enforce the loveliness of the blooms. The background is not forgotten, and the bit of beauty is set against the plain space best suited to develop it without obtruding itself. That will be enough for a corner of a room, and when the eye leaves it reluctantly, it will be to travel to some other complete arrangement, marked, however, with the same artistic simplicity. We, in our profuseness, spoil these restful and graceful effects, but we are learning.



Bradbury.—George T. Bradbury, who has so long been dangerously ill at Liberty, N. Y., will, if the weather permits, be brought this week to the hospital at Fordham, N. Y.

Mr. Crawford in attempting to reach the wire work at the front of the grand stand, which is designed to protect the spectators from foul balls, and thus reach the field, was overcome by the heat and fell through the crackling timbers to the ground, where he was rescued by a couple of the players.

He naturally takes a deep interest in the present war between the United States and Spain, and expects soon to be in a position to apply the knowledge of war which he gained by four years of hard study.

Since taking charge of L. S. Ayres & Co.'s department Mr. Smith has made many marked changes, which enable the goods to be shown to greater advantage.

A NEW WAY TO GET CREDIT.

Herman Cohn, Max Kaufman and George Russell, all of Brooklyn, N. Y., who are alleged to be members of a gang of swindlers who have been operating through the principal cities in this country, were arraigned in the Centre Street Police Court, New York city, recently.

Theodore Leopold, a dealer in brass beds at No. 175 Canal street, New York, charged Cohn with the larceny of four beds valued at $141. Kaufman and Russell were arrested as suspicious persons.

The men's plan was alleged to be to locate a man who had a legitimate right to a name the same as that of some business man with a long established record. The confederates would then ostensibly go into business in the same line as the business man. Goods would be ordered on credit and Bradstreet's cited as a reference. Bradstreet's does not give the street addresses of the firms about which it furnishes ratings. The firm from whom the goods had been ordered would ask Bradstreet's as to the standing of the firm. Bradstreet's, supposing that the real firm was meant, would respond favorably and the goods would be shipped, only to disappear.

Magistrate Crane decided that there was nothing criminating against Kaufman and discharged him. Cohn was held in $500 bail, and Russell was remanded to police headquarters.

Nick Lachance has opened an upholstery shop at Little Falls, Minn.

The Seattle (Wash.) Mattress and Upholstering Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000.

Henry W. Green & Co., the Philadelphia window shade manufacturers, are in the midst of their active spring business, and their large and well assorted stock of shadings, hollands, &c., is being freely absorbed.

Six new looms have been added to the plant of the New York Tapestry Mills, Fifth and Berks streets, Philadelphia. Ryan & McGahan, selling agents for the mills, will have their new line ready for showing at their New York salesrooms.

The Orinoka Mills will have their new lines of curtains, piece goods, table covers, couch covers, &c., ready for the trade early in the present month, and the offerings are certain to surpass in originality, novelty and attractiveness all the previous products of these noted mills.

FURNISHING A COZY CORNER.

Can we not conceive of the corner or fireside seat which shall be as rich and beautiful when the light of day paints it in relief and shadow as is the most perfect picture produced by the painter's skill, and composed with his unfailing regard for arrangement and balance? In justification of this idea I am reminded of the decoration which filled a vacant space in a sunny south room in the home of a friend whose capacity for discovering the beauty and utility of the material at hand, and of bringing the right thing for the place from the most unexpected quarter amounted to a talent. A long divan stretched from the chimney piece to the corner of the room, and stood back from a large window just far enough to give the light the chance to play a little hide and seek among the colors, lighting up the reds and yellows, throwing back the blues and leaving recesses in delightful contrasting shadow. Over the couch was spread a rug of figured velours. As many as six pillows were seemingly thrown at random along the entire length. These were covered with textures in odd Moorish designs. Japanese silks in rich reds and blues, and American silks in rainbow effects of soft warm coloring. The wall at one end and the chimney at the other, gave an inclosed space which made a headrest at either end possible. Closely stretched over the wall like a piece of tapestry was a bit of dark mahogany canvas, and hung in soft folds from the centre of this was a piece of an old Turkish shawl softly padded, giving an effect of warmth and adding much to the comfort of the divan.

A narrow mantelpiece was placed above the canvas, and underneath a low relief of plaster softened by a delicate yellow wash was placed as a sort of classic border. The soft draperies of the figures of "Dawn" and "Twilight" floated so delicately and airily over the white plaster that one was led to wander in dream fancies, while one's eyes were still open. And the breath of a few flowers in Japanese vases, standing on the shelf above one's head, led one also to dream of enchanted Southern bowers. Little plasters of the Milo or other Greek statues also make appropriate decorations for a narrow shelf of this kind.

The attractions of these cozy corners is in a great measure due to the choice of rich and harmonious coloring and to its adaptation to the other furnishings of the apartment. The educated eye demands a complete and harmonious whole as quickly as it discards that from a given part which strikes in it a discordant note.

TWO STYLES IN FESTOONS.

The treatment of window draperies, even when contrived in conjunction with the brass pole, is capable of a great variety of expression. The "over and under" valance which lends itself so gracefully to furnishings of a Louis Quinze type, may be rendered in many ways, and the inequalities of the swags and the alternate colorings of perhaps two or three different fabrics, all help to give a rich appearance at but a small outlay of time and material.

The employment of the brass pole, however, does not necessarily require an unequal or even a festoon drapery. The first of the two sketches shown upon this page, for instance, has a very pretty contrivance of small festoons fixed to a moderately stiff lambrequin. This latter serves as a shapely valance as well as narrow side curtain, for at the usual tie back position it is drawn in by a small band. The main curtains of the window work at the back of this.

The other suggestion is more suitable for bedroom decoration. It is designed with a broad double puckered cornice fixed upon a board whence hang the prominent festoons, and underneath these hang the principal curtains.

The Allegheny Upholstering Company, 230 North avenue, Allegheny, Pa., is succeeded by the Philadelphia Upholstering Company.

The C. A. Schmidt Company, manufacturer of upholstery trimmings, has removed from 50 to 52 Walker street.

Hoggson Brothers, upholsterers, decorators and dealers in fine furniture, will remove about May 1 from East Seventeenth street to 7 East Forty-fourth street.

S. J. Tellery & Co.'s new salesrooms in the Faulkner Building, 18 East Seventeenth street, afford them fine opportunities for the display of their very attractive and interesting goods, and these opportunities are certain to be effectively utilized by Mr. Blumberg.

J. A. Filer & Co.'s new salesrooms in the Arlington Building, 22 to 26 East Fourteenth street, are much more spacious than their old quarters, the change being made necessary by the great and rapid growth of this enterprising firm's business. See their new advertisement on page 65 of this issue.

Hunninghaus & Lindemann, the window shade manufacturers, report themselves as much pleased with the change of their salesrooms from Broadway to 79 Walker street. At the latter location they have more room, a much better light, and have also found that they are receiving more calls from the purchasing trade than at any former time.

The wall paper and window shade business of Sanders & Co. at Flushing, which has been carried on there for the past thirty years, is now conducted in the name of John Geddes, who has been the proprietor for many years. Mr. Geddes started in the employ of Sanders & Co. about twenty-five years ago. The building is resplendent with gorgeous new signs bearing Mr. Geddes' name in large gold letters.

The Merchants' Association of this city has practically concluded arrangements with the Quebec Steamship Company, which controls the line of steamers plying between this port and Bermuda, for reduced rates to New York for Bermuda merchants, to go into effect during the summer months of July, August and September. The steamship company put a reduced rate in effect last summer during the month of August for the benefit of the Merchants' Association and of the merchants of Bermuda. The Merchants' Association sent circulars to Bermuda announcing the reduced rates, and as the result of this co-operation on the part of the steamship company a very large number of merchants came to this city for the purpose of making their purchases. It is expected that a still larger number will come this summer.

Efforts are being made to revive the flax industry in certain parts of England, where it has fallen into desuetude, especially in the County of Lincolnshire. Flax is grown in Yorkshire, Essex, Suffolk and Somerset, the greatest portion coming from the East and West Ridings of Yorkshire. In 1897, in the whole of Great Britain there were under cultivation only 1,800 acres of flax; in Ireland there were 73,301 acres.

The Sash Curtain Rod and Novelty Company, of Providence, R. I., write us in reference to the double rod which is now largely used for hanging frilled curtains. They state that they have had the double rod, shown in their advertisement in this issue of THE REVIEW, on the market for several months past, and also that they were the first to make the double hook which holds the double rod. They will be pleased to send samples and quotations on the double rod as illustrated by them on application.

The proprietors of the Emporium and Golden Rule Bazar, San Francisco, Cal., have bought the stock and business of W. H. McNaughton, who conducted a curtain and upholstery goods department in their premises. Mr. McNaughton has notified his creditors that in paying for his stock the proprietors of the Emporium, &c., will make payments direct to his creditors, or to as many of them as will accept the terms he offers. These are that the entire proceeds of the sale shall be distributed pro rata among the creditors, provided that each creditor shall, on receipt of his share, give Mr. McNaughton a full release from all claims. Mr. McNaughton states that if this arrangement is carried out the creditors will realize not less than 70 per cent. of their claims. If it is not effected he will be obliged to go into insolvency.

It will be about twice as large as the one now occupied by the firm.

J. G. Valiant & Co., interior decorators, have completed further improvements in their building, No. 714 Madison avenue. The improvements have been rendered necessary by the large increase in the business of the firm. The front has been changed, and large plate glass windows take up 20 feet of the width of the house. The Boy (grabbing his hat)—I think I'll go, Gracie. I've been here two hours and you haven't smiled once.

The Miss (still grim visaged)—Don't go, Archie. I'd smile all right enough only I'm having my front teeth upholstered.—Ex.

W. P. Atwell, commercial agent at Roubaix, France, reports to our Government that the embroidery trade at St. Quentin is rather dull, some factories near there having closed. Prices of high class goods have increased. There have been large sales of window curtains and guipure laces at reduced prices, owing to the heavy production and dullness of the market.

A window shade operated automatically is a Berlin novelty. A U-shaped tube, partly filled with mercury, is connected with a bulb containing black wool and one containing air; and when the sun shines the absorption of the rays by the black wool causes the mercury to rise in the opposite side of the tube, closing the circuit of a motor that lets down the blind. When the sun is not out the mercury is level in the two tubes, closing a circuit that winds up the blinds.

A new production known as "Lisango," in other words a mohair velvet, was shown by Lister & Co , Limited, of Manningham Mills, Bradford, at the Furniture Trades Exhibition, held last month in London, England. It is especially commended for upholstery purposes, providing a surface which is not only extremely durable, but of rich and artistic appearance and easily kept clean. Large rolls of it were shown in various tints matching modern furnishing ideas, and in widths ranging from 24 to 72 inches

Marshall Field, the Chicago dry goods man, arrived in New York on the 28th ult. on his return from a trip to Europe.

Apropos of the photograph screens and various other methods suggested to arrange such en masse, an artistic photographer says that it is a mistake artistically to put these pictures together too recklessly. They should bear some symmetry of arrangement or at least some relation to each other.

A delightful circular table for a "den" has a segment cut out for a seat, that fits in and converts it from the library to the writing table at a very little loss of room. A single chair of scarlet leather studded with brass nails is a wonderful brightener to a library or sitting room whose rather dark furnishings may have grown a little rusty with wear.

The merging of the business of Hyndmann & Moore into an incorporated stock company will doubtless be shortly consummated, and, as stated heretofore in these columns, Mr. James Pollock, the prominent carpet manufacturer, will be interested financially and actively in the new Hyndmann & Moore concern. The firm now occupy three floors, 165 by 45 feet, with an additional space of 70 by 45 feet, their plant being located at Coral and Adams streets, Philadelphia.

The sheriff has received an execution from Kings County for $10,805 against Bernard Schaeffel, upholsterer and real estate operator, of No. 34 West Eighteenth street, in favor of the German-American Bank of Tonawanda, N. Y. The execution is on a judgment for deficiency on the foreclosure sale of eleven houses on Bergen street, Brooklyn, on which the bank held mortgages. Mr. Schaeffel's latest operation was the erection of four flats, Nos. 218 to 224 East Ninety-sixth street, but he transferred them three months ago to John D. Ritchie for $135,000; they were heavily mortgaged. Mr. Schaeffel has been in the upholstery business for twenty years.

Anderson & Tournier have succeeded the Laurence W. Frank Company, manufacturers of curtains and upholstery goods, Philadelphia. Laurence W. Frank commenced the erection of a mill a few months ago, but was obliged to retire from business owing to ill health and disposed of his interest to Robert Anderson, a well-known Philadelphia merchant. Jean Tournier was a member of the former Laurence W. Frank Company, and is the practical man of the new concern. They have a new mill and new machinery and show an attractive line of tapestry curtains and upholstery goods, the mill being located at Oxford and Mascher streets, Philadelphia.

War broke out early in Providence, R. I., John C. Merz, a German upholsterer, who has a little shop in Gano street, being very much interested in it. The other afternoon some patriotic boys hung out an American flag on a clothes pole and were saluting it with a small cannon. Merz rushed out with an axe and chopped down the pole, whereupon the boys smashed his windows, and were about to blow a bar of iron through the house when the police interfered. Merz made fast time in his retreat.

Stead & Miller have made extensive preparations for the fall trade by bringing out more than the usual assortment of new designs and colorings in their various grades of upholstery fabrics, curtains and table covers. The fall line will be completed by the middle of this month, and it is a part of wisdom for all jobbing buyers to view Stead & Miller's offerings. The new things will be found to be in harmony with the latest ideas in interior furnishings, and have the advantage of being prepared by William Milns, who is a member of the firm and a practical designer.

W. W. Foulkrod, of Hood, Foulkrod & Co., Philadelphia, and president of the Trades League, when asked how members of the National Guard would stand as to the retention of positions if called into the service of the United States, said: "Our firm has always taken the position that it was as much our duty to stand by our employees who were engaged in defending the country as it was theirs to answer calls that the Government might make for their service. We have, perhaps, a score or more among our employees who are members of the National Guard. When the State has needed their services we have not only given them leave of absence for whatever time was required, but continued their salaries while they were in its service. If they were called out by the United States everyone of our employees could rest assured that their positions would be held for them until their return."

WHY THE TAME GOOSE CANNOT FLY.

An Armenian legend thus accounts for the limitations of the domestic goose:

Once upon a time two geese agreed to take a long journey together. On the eve of their departure one said to the other: "Mind you are ready, my friend, for inshallah (if God will) I shall set out at sunrise to-morrow."

"And so will I, inshallah or not," replied the other.

Next morning the pious goose, having eaten his breakfast and quenched his thirst in the waters of the stream, rose lightly on the wing and flew to a distant land. The impious goose, however, found himself unable to spread his wings, and, after many vain attempts to fly, was caught and carried home by a fowler, who had observed his movements. And ever since then the tame goose has lost the use of his wings because he would not say inshallah, while the pious wild goose still enjoys his original freedom.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Herman C. Reese, Jr., son of Herman C. Reese, lace curtain refinisher, Jersey City, N. J., died suddenly at Tarrytown, N. Y., on the 20th ult.

George L. Brewer, who was president of the Hagerstown (Md.) Mattress and Upholstering Company until a year ago, when the plant was burned, died of paralysis on April 24, aged seventy five years. A widow and three children survive him.

CONTREXVILLE PRINTED VELVETS AND VELOURS.

The Contrexville Manufacturing Company's new line of printed velvets and velours for the fall trade will be on view on or before May 15, and will be the finest ever brought out by the company. The printed effects comprised in it will be shown in from four to ten color combinations, each style having seven different colors. In the line will be found a wide variety of designs, including Indian, Persian, scroll, floral, &c. If a sufficient quantity is ordered, patterns will be confined exclusively, and any special shades or colors desired can be supplied, as the company has its own printing, dyeing and finishing plant.

John F. Meader, the selling agent, has his office at 43 Leonard street, New York, and the trade are advised to communicate with him, for the Contrexville velvets and velours are certain to be in great demand. Mr. Meader says that the company's business in January, February and March last was more than double that of the same months in 1897, and that the looms are still working on duplicate orders which will keep them busy until the new season opens.

G. Emden, of Emden & Wormser, returned week before last from his European trip.

John Bromley & Sons have filed a bill in equity asking that W. T. Smith & Son be restrained from an alleged infringement on a patented design for Smyrna rugs.

Thomas Caves & Sons have just added to their plant the spinning and carding mills of the Canton Mills, Manayunk, and are fitting them with new machinery to meet the demands of increasing business.

Employer—You were late this morning, Henry.

Office Boy—Yes, sir.

"Did you forget to mention it to me."

"No, sir. But I didn't want to deprive you of the pleasure of being the first to speak of it."—Ex.

"I'm proud of you," said the head of the firm. "I have letters from all over Kansas saying that they have seen our samples. How in the world did you manage it?" and he patted the traveling man on the back.

"Cyclone."—Ex.

Customer—What is the price of this material?

Assistant—This is 2 shillings a yard, madam.

Customer—Oh, that is much too dear.

Assistant—But it is reduced from 3 shillings.

Customer—Is that so? I'll take ten yards.—Tid-bits.

LATE CARPET ITEMS.

Wesley H. Banta, of Van Gaasbeek & Arkell, returned last week from an extended trip to the India rug districts and Turkey. While in India Mr. Banta made arrangements for securing an increased production of India rugs.

On page 92 of this issue the Dolphin Jute Mills, Paterson, N. J., call attention to their offerings in carpet and rug yarns of all descriptions, which are made in standard grades and sold at lowest prices. The mills manufacture also upholsterers' webbing in a variety of grades. The New York office of the mills is at 115 Worth street.

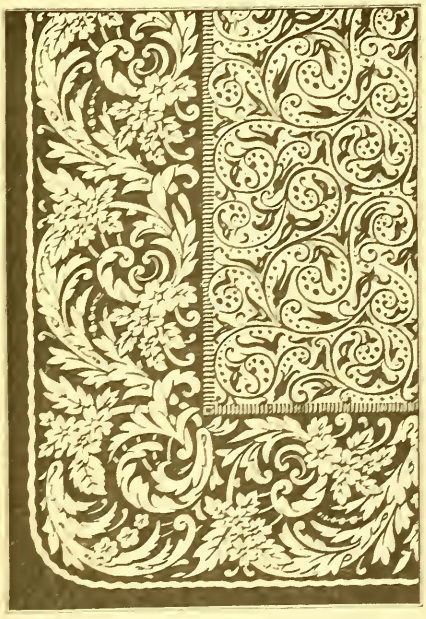
Joseph A. Phelan, who is connected with Sheppard Knapp & Co., New York, is a member of Company K, Thirteenth Regiment, Brooklyn, which is one of the volunteer organizations selected by Governor Black to go to the front.

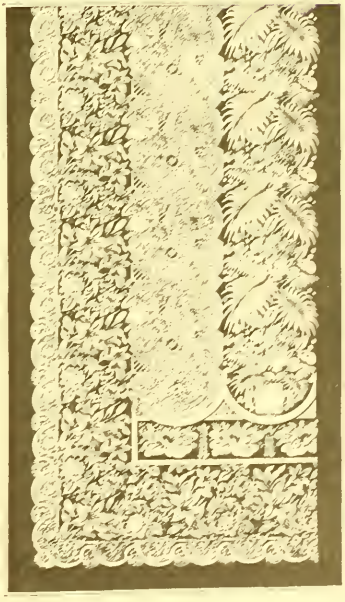
The Kidderminster (England) Shuttle of the 16th ult. says: "The death of Mr. William Jackson, Sr., the sole surviving partner of the firm of Hoyle & Jackson, of the Primrose Bank and Chamber Mills, Oldham, took place on the 26th ult. The business is to be carried on by his executors under the same style of Hoyle & Jackson and under the same management."

The business of Wm. Judge & Brothers will, we understand, be continued by the reorganized concern, to be headed and managed by the junior Messrs. Judge, sons of the deceased James and Robert Judge. The new fall line in all grades is ready and may be seen at the mill, Columbia avenue and Front street, Philadelphia. The concern will also have offices in New York, Boston, Chicago and doubtless elsewhere.

Ricker & Logan, the Ingrain manufacturers, 2411 Howard street, Philadelphia, have their fall line on view. They are now producing all wool Extra Supers in addition to their specialty of Unions and Cottons. The latter have been a notable success through the higher character of designs and colorings introduced into these grades than is usual with most manufacturers. As a consequence Ricker & Logan have sold their Unions and Cottons to some of the very best dealers in the country. Mr. Ricker, of the firm, is a skillful designer, and personally supervises the preparation of the lines, which advantage is shown in their productions. Mr. Logan is now ready to meet the jobbing buyers on fall orders.

Wm. T. Smith, of W. T. Smith & Son, is desirous of once more smelling powder and listening to the roar of great guns. He left for Key West on the 23d ult., and hoped to be able to take passage on a dispatch boat or some other vessel which would enable him to witness the expected bombardment of Havana. Mr. Smith served throughout the entire war of the Rebellion, entering the Fifty-seventh New York Regiment when a mere lad. His father, James G. Smith, also served throughout the war, participating in thirty-two engagements and being wounded several times. Speaking of his experience, Mr. W. T. Smith says that the grandest sight he has ever witnessed was the bombardment of Fredericksburg, and he avers that no matter how brave a man may be the singing of a 10-inch shell in his vicinity will, as Mr. Smith expresses it, "put the fear of the Lord in his heart."





DESIGNS FOR LACE CURTAINS.

FROM THE "JOURNAL OF FABRICS," BRADFORD, ENGLAND.

SETTEE VS. OTTOMAN.

Some months since we illustrated a folding settee. A further development of the principle which constituted the chief novelty of that invention is shown in the folding ottoman on this page, in which, by means of an extremely simple arrangement, a small settee, to accommodate a couple of occupants, can, at a moment's notice, be converted into a centre ottoman to hold four with comfort, provided, of course, that they be of the average size and weight. Fig. 1 shows the article in its normal condition; a simple and pretty settee, invested with a modern quaintness by the introduction of a dainty curtain suspended from a black iron rod by means of copper rings.

In Fig. 2 is indicated this settee when opened out to afford seats for four, in which position the curtain might be raised or drawn back to admit of free intercourse between the occupants of all the seats.

The ground plan, Fig. 3, leaves no doubt as to the mechanism of the reserve seating when in process of opening out for use, which, as will be evident, consists of an upholstered semi-circular framing which shuts in under the fixed seat from the back. This is attached in the centre to a rounded section of the middle back leg by a collar of iron or brass, which, being loose, allows the movable seat to revolve freely either into or out from beneath the permanent one. The extra support required to receive the movable framing when drawn out for use is provided by a supplementary leg and rail contrivance, hinged to the centre back foot of the settee. When not required as a support this can be shut flat against the back, and, if desired, the article placed against the wall. Manufactured in dark mahogany and upholstered in one of the many choice printed velveteens now obtainable, this piece of furniture should find a home in many a drawing room.

The annual product amounts in value to more than $100,000,000, and the factories of that place employ over 50,000 workmen on these goods.

The Board of Classification of the United States General Appraisers has handed down a decision regarding the status of plushes made of flax, under the tariff act of 1897. Such were assessed by the collector of the port at 60 per cent. ad valorem. The importers contended that the duty should be 47½ per cent. The board agreed with them and reversed the decision of the collector of the port.

Interior Decoration: The Treatment of Walls and Ceilings.

coloring, rubbed out or stippled effects. The skill displayed in the Japanese leather papers in design, modeling and treatment of the surface with metal and colors made them very popular, and they have been used in place and out of place, until we are rather overdone with them. A luxurious finish to a wall is covering it with silk damask or brocade, and this plan can be adopted with more propriety now the electric light is more general, and the dirt and discoloration from gas are got rid of. It may be treated as a continuous band round the room or introduced in the form of panels. In either case it should be so arranged as to have a solid back to prevent the accumulation of dust behind it. Lastly, I may refer to the hanging of real tapestry, which has a value beyond any other wall covering, either as covering the entire wall, suspended from the top or in panels. No other decoration is required, and a tinted white for the woodwork appears to give the best value to the tapestry colors. In a satisfactory scheme of decoration the three primary colors, yellow, red and blue, should be in some degree represented, not necessarily on the walls of the room, but supplied by the hangings and furniture. They need not, however, be represented in their primary condition, but in the form of secondaries and tertiaries. The most useful color for the background or walls is green, contrasting with the furniture of yellow or red browns, with blue introduced in the hangings. Yellow, being a primary color, cannot be produced by mixture of other colors; it is an advancing color, has great power of reflecting light, and, compounded with red, gives a range of warm colors, orange and brown. It diminishes in power by artificial light, and for that reason is difficult to make satisfactory for both day and night effects. It is a delicate color as a pigment, and is easily killed by admixture with other colors. It contrasts powerfully with black and may be represented by gold in a color scheme. Red is the intermediate primary coming between yellow and blue, and in like intermediate relation also as to light and shade, white and black. It is a most positive color, forming, in combination with yellow, the secondary orange tints, and with blue the secondaries purple, crimson, &c. It gives warmth to all colors, especially to yellow. In combination with yellow it becomes advancing, and with blue retiring. It is very much affected by the quality of the light in which it is viewed. Reds easily spoil one another side by side, and great skill is required to print one red on another satisfactorily. Red lights up by artificial illumination better than any other color. Vermillion is the pigment which most nearly represents this primary. Blue is the third primary, and is best represented by the genuine ultramarine, which is said to be a true color, neither inclining to yellow nor to red. Blue is a retiring color. The blues most used, on account of the high price of genuine ultramarine, are cobalt and Prussian blue, but the former inclines to purple by artificial light and the latter to green. These colors are very useful and pleasant in light tints for making greens and in distemper, but as blue lights up so badly it may well be represented in the color scheme by curtains or carpet. Having gone through the usual processes in the decorating of a house, I will proceed to consider the points which should influence us in settling on a decorative treatment, and will commence with the entrance hall. If the house is sufficiently large this often becomes a room, with its entrance lobby screened off and the staircase recessed from it or leading off from one side. It may contain an open fireplace, and the doors to the principal rooms open immediately out of it; it is therefore desirable that the color should be considered in reference to the adjoining rooms. As the sunniest aspects are required for the living rooms, that of the hall is likely to be a northern one, and consequently a warm coloring would be best—a high wall paneling or dark wall treatment to about the level of the top of the door architrave, with deep frieze of stencilled ornament in red tones, with an olive cornice and the ceiling a lighter tint of the same. There would be very little blue or cold color in this arrangement, and the fireplace might supply this in form of blue tiles on a white ground and the gray metal of the stove. The old-fashioned crimson, blue and green Turkey carpet would complete the coloring, with a surrounding of parquet floor, yellow stain being introduced in the window glass. The red coloring could be carried up the staircase above a wall paneling, repeating the handrail on the wall side, or in the absence of this a wood molding at this level, with the space below painted a greenish brown on a simple pattern of embossed paper. This gives a durable surface where the wall gets most wear, and the papering above may reasonably be left unvarnished, as, except on the score of durability, varnished papers have nothing to recommend them. The varnish changes color, and becomes in most cases very unpleasant, and is more susceptible to changes of temperature than an unvarnished paper, a sudden change from a cold day to a hot one covering the walls with moisture. An oil printed paper on an oil ground is a good substitute; it is pleasant in appearance, and can be sponged without harm. We seldom see the walls of a staircase paneled out in plaster or wood. It has a good architectural character, and it is astonishing what can be done with a few hundreds of feet of wood molding judiciously disposed on the walls. It is tedious making a drawing of the four sides of the stairs, so the best plan is to set out the panels on the walls with a piece of chalk. Everything above dado level can then be distempered. Duresco is a good material for the purpose, using the petrifying solution supplied with it. It is more expensive than ordinary distemper, coming between that and oil paint, but has the merit when hardened of being to some extent washable, and it is much less liable to discoloration from defects in the walls than ordinary distemper. It is also pleasant in appearance. The treatment of the walls of stairs suggested applies rather to old than new buildings.

In considering the horizontal divisions of the walls of a room I have in mind the ordinary house, with rooms from 10 feet to 12 feet from floor to ceiling. The necessary skirting, if with about 6 inches of plain face, is generally sufficient if of good thickness, with simple mold receding to the wall, thickness rather than height being required; this will keep the furniture away from the walls without considering what is called the chair rail, which should in most cases be lower than the back of a chair—from 2 feet 6 inches to 2 feet 9 inches to the top of it. The space between these two is best of wood, the face of it projected somewhat from the face of the upper wall. The skirting, plain or paneled face and rail, should either be of one color or harmonizing colors of the same depth of tone; to cut it up into thin lines is a mistake. Above this the wall may be plain and uninterrupted up to the frieze rail. This, with the frieze and cornice, about one-seventh the height of the room, should all be designed together and kept to about the same tone of color, of sufficient weight to look like part of the wall. In designing these moldings, mold the top of surfaces below the eye, and the bottoms of those above the eye. Another division as to height is to increase the frieze with rail and cornice to about one-fifth of the height of the room giving the extra space to the frieze, and if the room is very low, sacrificing or squeezing the dado. In a drawing room this plan will be found convenient, as pictures being generally small will not look well if skied, and the ornamental frieze furnishes and gives interest to the upper part of the wall. If there is height enough the cornice moldings can be moderate in size to form the starting of a cove or hollow, connecting this cove with other moldings to form the frame of the ceiling. The cove, so very general in the French work of the last century, is much out of fashion, but is undoubtedly serviceable in softening the connection between the decoration and walls and ceiling. If there is not height enough for a cove the cornice kept down a few inches from the flat of the ceiling will give an opportunity, adding recessed moldings and preventing the sagging appearance of an absolutely flat ceiling. For bedrooms the deep frieze arrangement is very suitable, either with or without the dado, according to the height of the room. It is a good plan, when arranging window casings and architraves, to break the cornice out so as to form a boxing for the top of the curtains. The breaks have a good appearance, give good shadows falling on the curved surface of the curtains, and prevent the accumulation of dust. Wall surfaces should be squared up; a narrow slip of paper over door or window architraves is best got rid of, also the long spandrel piece over an arch. It is better to break it forward with a vertical line and break the cornice over it. Soffits of arches should not be left plain as ceiling, but should be treated same as arched mold. These are points which cannot well be carried out unless done at the time of building. I have often had to ornament a ceiling where all the moldings have had to be suspended, as it were, on account of the fixed position of the cornice. In low rooms the plan of treating the whole chimney breast as a feature instead of applying the chimneypiece is a good one.

The division of the wall space in the dining room might conveniently be by a wood skirting, plain face and rail, to a height of about 2 feet 9 inches (pictures could then, if of large size, occupy the space up to the frieze rail), the cornice, frieze and rail, grooved for picture hooks, being one composition. The heavy, Early-Georgian type of cornice and dado always appears to suit a dining room.

DINING ROOM.

If it gets the morning sun the main filling of the walls might be a wall paper two tones of deep green, the ground being warm in tone, with a lighter and colder print. The paint a golden green, and the flat of dado a deep, rich red, inclining to crimson; cornice and frieze tones of citrine, and the ceiling a still lighter tone. If the owner of the house has any oil paintings they are likely to be hung in this room, and the question of the best background color has to be considered; this may very well be studied in the public galleries which we have access to, and that used in the entrance hall of the National Gallery appears to me the most satisfactory. It is a flock paper printed in two tones of a mellow, dark green, inclining to olive. It is there very pleasantly contrasted with dull red marble columns. Both the color and texture contrast well with the oil paintings, and give the very greatest value to them.

The decoration of the drawing room should be bright and cheerful, and should light up well. (Here light or white paint is in place.) For this room the mistress of the house must be consulted, and the various parts thought out with furniture, hangings and carpets, to make the picture complete when furnished and occupied. Should the lady be a brunette a cream paint and walls of a yellow tone may be suitable. If a blonde a bluish gray or gray green. The architectural paneling out of the walls of a room is but little practiced now, although nothing gives such size and dignity to an apartment, whether by framing with large panels or by painted styles and rails. The tendency of late has been to ignore symmetry and to indulge in corners and recesses, and small windows in odd places, by which a certain picturesqueness is obtained, but unbecoming crosslights are developed, and a mere prettiness without dignity is the result. There is little fear of stiffness in the drawing room, and when the furniture and upholstery come the severe lines of an architectural treatment of the walls will be pleasantly contrasted.

The deep frieze treatment for bedrooms is generally most convenient, and the chief characteristic of the coloring should be freshness. Here white paint, which in sitting rooms makes the furniture, hangings and carpets look dirty, is in place, and should be the standard of cleanliness and freshness generally in the room. The space above the picture rail looks quite well in plain distemper, but may have a running frieze in colors with good effect, and in the ceiling I would plead for a little ornamentation to relieve the absolute blankness, which is so very general. Color is too subtle and indefinite to talk about with advantage. Color is relative; there is no such thing as a bad color when regarded alone, as there may be a situation where that particular color would be the best in combination with others for its position A parti-colored suite will keep fresh longer than a suite of one color, and the same holds good in decoration. Contrasting colors enhance the value of one another, and it is quite possible by altering one color in a decorated wall or ceiling to give freshness to the whole, which before may have looked dirty and worn out. The colored decoration of a room should be the conception of one mind, and the plan I advise is to make your scale sketch and stick to it as you would to your one-eighth scale drawings in a building. In practice this cannot always be carried out, and it comes to doing the best you can under the circumstances. What I should like to impress upon all who are not in the habit of doing so is that a constant study of color brings great enjoyment with it. The critical faculty can be used everywhere. As you study old buildings to improve your sense of form and proportion, study natural objects for improving your color sense. The most unlovely object, if left alone, will be covered by nature with the most beautiful colors, and the book is open for our delight.

Wm Hill, formerly superintendent for Bradford & Budder, Philadelphia, has started in the manufacture of tapestry curtains, covers, piece goods, &c., at Mascher and York streets, that city. Mr. Hill's two sons, George and Roland, are associated with him in the business.

In some handsome libraries recently have been seen writing tables covered with velvet instead of felt, or even the polished wood tops. The velvet is always of some very dark, rich shade, and is put on with the narrow gilt band that is usually seen, and the effect of the velvet, with the high finish of the wood, and set out with the glittering appointments of the modern writing table, is exceedingly good.

James S Chalmers, Morris Benson's assistant in the upholstery department of Adam, Meldrum & Anderson, Buffalo, was recently married in Watertown, N. Y., to Miss Ada B. Connell. Before the couple started for Buffalo, on the evening of the wedding, a number of the bride's friends decorated their trunks at R. W. and O. R. R. with chenille and laces and they quietly handed a card to every passenger on the train. It read as follows:

YOU are requested to make the acquaintance of a NEWLY MARRIED COUPLE on board this train. The bride is attired in a brown suit. Give them a merry time. They are bound for Buffalo. See that they do not stop off at any intermediate station, but all join in that gentle refrain of—

"PUT THEM OFF AT BUFFALO."

To say that the bridal party were overwhelmed with attention during their journey is stating it mildly. All the world loves a lover. Mr. Chalmers' associates in the department made him some very handsome presents in the shape of furniture.

PATCHOGUE NOT BOMBARDED.

About midnight on April 18 the thriving town of Patchogue was rudely awakened from its slumbers by a tremendous explosion, which led some of the inhabitants to believe that the bombardment of the south side of Long Island was in progress. When at daylight they found the region at the lower end of Main street covered with lace curtains and the trees for hundreds of yards around decorated with the same materials, their fears were dissipated.

The Review representative reached the town soon after 10 A. M., and found everything going on at the Patchogue Lace Manufacturing Company as usual, although the results of the explosion were very evident.

The cover of one of the large vats in which lace curtains are boiled immediately after coming from the loom had been blown off by the failure of the safety valve to work. About a thousand pairs of low grade goods were in the boiler. The cover was sent through the roof of the bleaching house and the windows were also blown out. A 20 foot section of 6 inch iron pipe was thrown up a couple of hundred feet and on coming down was driven 3 feet into the ground. The engineer and night watchman had left the building a few moments before and no one was hurt. In fact the operators in the weave room a few feet away knew nothing of the accident, the noise of the looms preventing them from hearing the explosion.

The loss is not serious, as the repairs will not cause great delay, and the goods were all recovered and can be restored. It is, moreover, fortunate that the explosion did not happen in the day time, as the large force of girls in other departments might possibly have been panic stricken.

W. & J. SLOANE'S UPHOLSTERY OFFERINGS.

The offerings of the Oldham Mills in draperies and furniture coverings for the coming season are now on view in the wholesale upholstery department of W. & J. Sloane, and Manager Smith may well be congratulated on the superb lines comprised in these offerings. The goods afford a splendid illustration of the remarkable progress which has been made in the manufacture of upholstery fabrics in this country.

The lines of silk damasks and brocade are certain to attract special attention, being replete with new, original and highly effective ideas in designs and colorings. In all the higher grades period designs are a prominent feature, Louis XIV., Louis XV. and Louis XVI. being all represented. In cotton tapestries Mr. Smith shows a remarkably attractive assortment of novelties and specialties, embracing a wide range of new designs, each in four or five colorings, and equal in every respect to the French goods.

The demand for Oldham Mills fabrics is steadily and rapidly increasing. Last season was the most successful one in the history of the mills, and the looms are still running on spring orders.

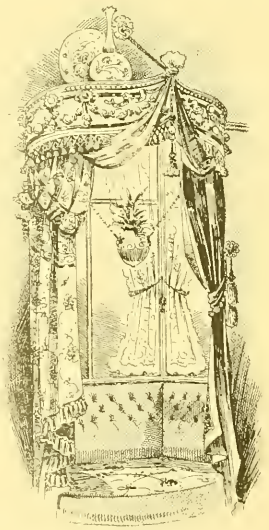
TRADE GOSSIP.

The new mill, 139 and 141 Oxford street, Philadelphia, constructed originally for the Laurence W. Frank Company, for the purpose of weaving high grade curtains, table covers, upholstery and decorative goods, has been completed and is now in full operation. The firm has been reorganized and the business will henceforth be conducted under the firm title of Anderson & Tournier. They have one of the finest and best equipped mills in the country, and have placed twelve of the latest Knowles looms in position. Mr. Tournier holds the same position as practical end man that he did in the first firm organization.

J. J. Davis is a new upholsterer at Memphis, Tenn.

The upholstery departments of Philadelphia are already complaining that they cannot get their usual supply of awning material for spring trade, because the Government has monopolized nearly all the duck looms in the county for the weaving of material for army tents.

A furniture and upholstery establishment has been opened at Charlestown, W. Va., by G. T. Knight.



ELABORATE ARRANGEMENT FOR A WINDOW.

To impart a cozy air to a room with a high ceiling, there should be no frieze, a picture molding ending the side wall finish about 18 inches below the ceiling line, and this space should be thrown into the ceiling scheme. This has the effect to take off materially from the height of the room.

Davis & Hancock, manufacturers of silk and tapestry curtains, table covers, &c., who are removing their plant from Bridesburg, Pa., to Mount Holly, N. J., are succeeded by the Davis & Hancock Manufacturing Company. On the 16th ult. the incorporators met at Mount Holly and organized by electing the following directors: Amos Gibbs, Charles Ewan Merritt, Robert L. Nixon, George D. Worrell, Mrs. Rhoda Hancock, Harry H. Cross and J. C. Davis.

A PAPER HANGING MACHINE.

Paper hanging by machine is the latest achievement. The arrangement used for this purpose is provided with a rod upon which the roll of paper is placed. A paste receptacle with a brushing arrangement is attached in such a manner that the paste is applied automatically on the back of the paper. The end of the wall paper is fixed at the bottom of the wall, and the implement rises on the wall and only needs to be set by one workman. While the wall paper unrolls, and, provided with paste, is held against the wall, an elastic roller follows on the outside which presses it firmly to the wall. When the wall paper has reached the top, the workman pulls a cord, whereby it is cut off from the remainder of the roll.

WALL PAPER NOTES.

..D. D. Shane succeeds Shane & Taber at Grand Ledge, Mich.

..E. M. Henderson, of Henderson & Co., Weedsport, N. Y., is dead.

..The Boston Decorative Company succeeds the Melrose (Mass) Wall Paper Company.

..The Hall Paint and Paper Company, Sherman, Tex., has changed its name to the Hall Paint and Furniture Company.

..John A. McLeod, dealer in wall paper, &c., Ironwood, Mich., is succeeded by the Ironwood Store Company, incorporated.

..Nicholas Maul, a wall paper dealer at 1104 Carson street, Pittsburg, was found dead in bed on April 20. Heart disease is thought to have been the cause of death. Maul was sixty-two years old and left a wife and four grown children.

..If it is desired to produce a really good and durable coating on wood paper hangings by the use of oil varnish, it is advisable to provide the wall paper, previous to varnishing, with a double coating of gelatine or starch. If starch is employed care must be taken not to use it too thick.

..A paste with which wall paper can be attached to wood or masonry, adhering to it firmly in spite of dampness, is prepared, as usual, of rye flour, to which, however, are added after the boiling 8⅓ grams of good linseed oil varnish and 8⅓ grams of turpentine to every 500 grams.

..A meeting of the creditors of Fecken Brothers, dealers in painters' supplies and wall paper, at 1134 Third avenue, New York, was held on the 15th ult. at the office of Myers, Goldsmith & Bronner, 309 Broadway. The firm offered to settle with creditors at 40 cents on the dollar, payable 10 cents every four months. The proposition was partially accepted, and was referred to a committee composed of J. S. Cory, Mr. Horner, of William Campbell & Co., and Mr. Meekes, of the National Lead Company.

..Wollner & Elliott, Marquette, Mich., who had been associated in business for eleven years, have dissolved partnership by mutual consent. Mr. Elliott continues the business in the furniture, painting and wall paper lines at the old stand, while Mr. Wollner will engage in the undertaking business on his own account.

..The business of Smith & Beaudry, Cortland, N. Y., has rapidly increased till larger quarters were necessary, and two small buildings in the rear of their store have been removed to make room for one large one, 26 x 42 feet, two stories high, which is nearly completed. It will be occupied by their large stock of wall paper, and their picture framing and molding business will also occupy part of the building.

..Justice O'Dwyer, in the City Court, New York, has handed down a decision adjudging Elizabeth Henderson guilty of contempt of court. He has appointed Theodore F. Hascall as referee to determine what punishment shall be meted out to her. The defendant at one time conducted a decorating business at 41 West 125th street. In December last a judgment for $267 was obtained against Miss Henderson by the Standard Wall Paper Company, and Sheridan S. Norton was appointed receiver for her property in the matter pending action in supplementary proceedings. Mr. Norton notified the defendant that she would have to turn over all her property to him, and also any collections that she might make from outstanding accounts. This Mr. Norton alleges she failed to do. Miss Henderson denies that she has collected money from outstanding accounts, and says that she has no property to turn over to the receiver.

THE NATIONAL WALL PAPER COMPANY.

R. D. Carey, a director of the National Wall Paper Company, was questioned recently by a reporter for a daily paper in regard to the action of the company at its meeting in New York lately. He said: "All the company's factories have been busy this year, and I am sure we have made more goods than last year, but the prices have been lower. I do not think there is any doubt that the books will show big profits, but we will have to wait until they are closed on June 30 to make sure before we declare any dividends. According to our charter we are compelled to earn a profit before paying indebtedness on bonds or stock. After the books are balanced by our own bookkeepers English expert accountants are called in to go over the accounts. If sufficient profit is then shown the dividends are then declared and a sworn statement filled with State officials. The company has been kept poor by being forced to buy up the plants of outside manufacturers. This of course takes a great deal of capital, and is one reason why nothing has ever been paid on common stock."

In regard to statements current to the effect that the company had defaulted on the interest on its bonds, President Henry Burns said: "The company has issued no bonds whatever, and has therefore not defaulted on the interest of same. The interest on its debenture stock, to which reference is probably intended, has been earned and paid to the beginning of the present fiscal year. Whether or not it has earned the interest on the debenture stock for the current year cannot be determined until the books are closed at the end of the year, and no interest is due or becomes payable until such fact has been determined."

No. 24,970. Drying Curtains.—J. Stewartson, Warwick road, Carlisle. November 7, 1896. Patent issued March 30, 1898.

The figure shows a cage, c, which may be lifted and lowered by any suitable means, and thereby enables the several curtain frames a to be withdrawn at one level on to the rail f, and as each frame is filled or emptied it is run back into its place on the cage before the cage is lifted or lowered for the purpose of drawing out other frames. Each curtain frame is supplied with a front board, a^1, which completely closes up the front of the cage when the frame is run in, and with flanged wheels g, which run upon the longitudinal rails b of the cage. To prevent the escape of heat from the curtain room as the cage is lifted or lowered, telescopic slides h, which draw out or fold together as the cage is lifted or lowered, are attached to the bottom of the cage and the floor, and a light wood or sheet iron apron, i, is fixed over the front of the top of the cage. This apparatus is applicable for use in steam laundries, dye works and curtain cleaning and finishing establishments.

The Philadelphia Tapestry Mills plant is extensive and well adapted to the requirements of their great business progress. Success is not often achieved by chance, certainly not so in this instance. The Philadelphia Tapestry Mills have secured a position in the front rank in the manufacture of upholstery fabrics by untiring industry and push, by that go-ahead activeness that is characteristic of American enterprise. There is nothing like doing one thing, and doing it well. The Philadelphia Tapestry Mills make upholstery fabrics; they live in an atmosphere of upholstery goods. They give all their time and thought to the improvement of quality and to the invention of some new ideas in design and finish. They announce that they have produced for fall, 1898, the largest and handsomest line of fabrics that have ever been offered by them to the trade.

A JUDICIOUS INVESTMENT.

The Best Economy in your Carpet Room

can only be secured by using the most perfect appliances, of the simplest design and the best construction.

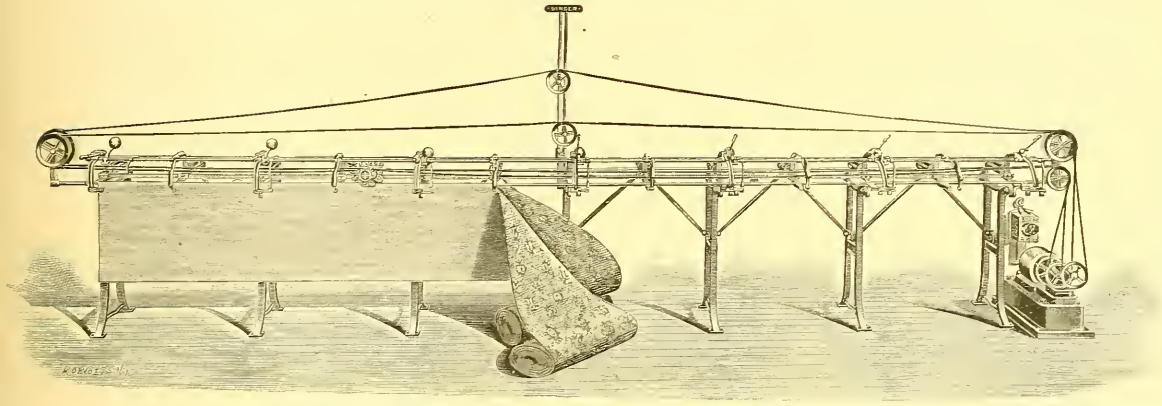
Experience Has Proven the Fact that the SINGER AUTOMATIC POWER CARPET SEWER will save its cost in one year to any carpet dealer having enough business to require a hand machine. THE SINGER AUTOMATIC is now in use by dealers who saved its cost during the first six months of its operation.

A TRIUMPH OF MECHANICAL EFFICIENCY, SURPASSING ALL OTHER DEVICES FOR ITS PURPOSE.



Truly automatic, requires less labor and sews 40 per cent. more carpet than any other machine on the market.
Requires least floor space, and uses any form of power.
Makes perfect stitch and seam, sewing any kind of carpet.

Automatic Matching and Clamping Device.

This device is absolutely unique, and secures perfect stretching and matching, without necessity for expert labor. It is simpler, swifter and in every way more effective than any other way of handling a carpet. The sewing machine works automatically on its track, following the operator from section to section as fast as each is matched and clamped, the action of the clamping levers automatically governing the movement of the sewing machine, thus saving a great deal of time. . . . . .

This is not a Hand Machine Crudely Adapted to Power Operation.

Our Hand Machine is well known, and is still on the market, fully guaranteed to be the best and most practical in use.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms,

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked

PHILADELPHIA, May 1, 1898.

We have prepared and are showing for Fall 1898 the largest line of Upholstery Fabrics that our mills have ever produced. The Buyer of Upholstery Goods may be absolutely sure that here he consults a line that is without a peer in completeness and perfection of assortment. He may be reasonably sure that all our goods represent as good, if not better, intrinsic value than can be found outside; otherwise experience, study and our ability to manufacture large quantities of goods have been of little avail.

Correct styles, skillful manufacturing and low price are sure guarantee of the satisfaction that can be depended on by buyers of our goods.

A magnificent collection of Table Covers, Curtains, Piece Goods and Couch Covers is offered for the Fall, and the styles shown here will not be found duplicated elsewhere.

It is clear that the buyer who does not know the great variety of goods that we are making has not been fully alive to what is going on around that should concern him.

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the

will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

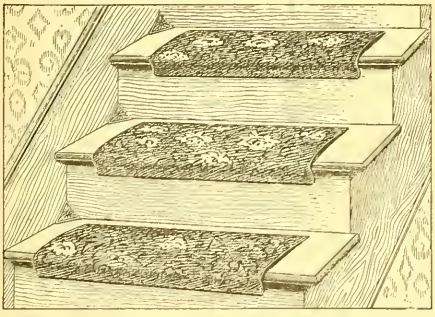
Patent Hardwood Stair Cover.



THE above cut illustrates our new way of carpeting stairs. The step and riser can be covered entirely or only as much as may be desired for fine finished hardwood stairs, as shown in the cut. RUBBER STAIR TREADS.

Our treads are furnished either moulded or cut. The former are made with a border, and have the extra smoothness and finish peculiar to moulded goods. We carry the regular sizes in stock, 3/32 and 1/8 inch thick. In addition we have a very complete assortment of moulds for special sizes and thicknesses, and are prepared to supply on short notice treads for any and all purposes.

The cut shows tread in position, with metal nosing on edge of step. This protects both step and rubber and gives a neat finish, especially if brass nosings are used. We supply these last, and also galvanized iron nosings.

Cut treads furnished to order in all sizes and shapes. No charge made for cutting.

BIGELOW CARPET COMPANY.

AXMINSTER, WILTON AND BRUSSELS

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven (at every repeat of the pattern) in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

THESE GOODS CAN BE HAD FROM ALL FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 57.

☞Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

It has been our custom to publish at this date the price lists for the fall season, but the conditions now ruling render it impossible for us to say much that is definite on this point at present.

Prices of Wiltons and Brussels remain unchanged. Values of Velvets and Tapestries are unsettled, awaiting further developments. But it is certain that the present suspense cannot continue long.

The Philadelphia manufacturers of Extra Supers say that as they did not advance prices at the opening of the spring season they see no necessity for following any reductions made now. They say that it is, moreover, impossible for them to do so on account of the increased cost of wool, which is beginning to be the dominant factor in the situation, all the old wool in their hands having been worked into goods.

The auction sale of Smith carpeting is referred to in detail elsewhere in this issue. The sale up to the time of its adjournment was a success, and there is no reason to fear that the goods still to be offered will not be readily absorbed at satisfactory prices—all things considered—as was the great quantity disposed of before the adjournment.

The manufacturers' new lines are ready as a rule and many of their travelers are now on the road. About June 1 prices of all carpeting will doubtless be settled definitely, and as business conditions generally are exceptionally favorable, there is no danger that the war, whether short or long, will interfere with the demand for floor coverings, but on the contrary there is every reason for believing that the fall trade will be of unusually large proportions.

COMPARATIVE STABILITY OF INGRAIN PRICES.

As noted in our editorial article, the decline in prices of Tapestries and Velvets finds the Philadelphia Ingrain manufacturers in a position where they must stand firm or make but a very little difference in their fall prices as compared with the ruling quotations of the spring season. This position is due to the narrow margin between cost and selling price, and it is beyond question that the cost is too near the latter to allow of any wild and abnormal fluctuation of the selling price. In this respect, therefore, Ingrain carpets to-day are as stable value in the stock of any dealer as any grade of carpeting, if not more stable.

For several years past, with the exception of the year 1897, the variations in a season have not been over 2½ cents per yard, while the variation of 1897, which resulted in an advance of 5 to 7½ cents per yard, was in favor of the the dealer as increasing the value of his stock on hand.

The stability of value in the all-wool Ingrain is owing to the set value of the wool contained in it. Whatever permanent basis of values is reached by carpetings within the next thirty days, we think experience will prove the correctness of our assertions regarding the stability of Ingrains.

THE LOWELL PRICE LIST.

The Lowell Company has not yet issued its new price list, but its Three Plys and Extra Supers are reduced 2½ cents a yard from the list of the spring season.

PATTERNS COUNT.

One of the best demonstrations ever given that there is a value in a pattern of carpeting was the experience of the recent big auction sale. The best patterns brought anywhere from 2½ to 15 cents per yard more than the poor patterns, and the activity in bidding on patterns which were known to be good sellers was very evident; in fact, many buyers seemed to be determined to secure the special patterns which they had marked for purchase, the consequence being that some numbers brought an exceptionally good price. This is evident by a pattern in Moquettes selling at 71 cents, a difference of 15 cents per yard from the lowest price of Moquettes.

This development of the sale is an encouragement to manufacturers to pay increasing attention to patterns and colorings, and while it is impossible for any concern not to turn out some poor patterns, yet liberality in design expenditures and the proper skill in the patterning department will certainly count in the manufacturer's favor.

ARNOLD, CONSTABLE & CO.

In the rug, Ingrain and matting department of Arnold, Constable & Co. the offerings prepared by Mr. Hockridge for the fall trade have never been equaled before in the history of the house.

In rugs two entirely new lines are shown, the Arlingtons and the Ellores. The Arlington rugs are made of Bigelow Imperial Axminster, in three sizes, as follows: 20x36 inches, 27x54 inches, and 36x63 inches. They are made by the Bigelow Company for Arnold, Constable & Co. exclusively, and comprise a choice assortment of new, original patterns in Oriental and floral styles. The Ellores are a new grade of Japanese wool rugs, made especially for the firm, in about a dozen sizes, in a variety of Oriental styles, reproducing the rich shades and other characteristic features of the Persian, Indian, Ghiordes and other noted Oriental rugs Lowell Daghestans in new patterns are as usual a prominent feature, as are also the Selkirk Wiltons, and the Hartford Axminsters in carpet sizes, these goods being shown only by Arnold, Constable & Co. A notable line of mohair rugs is offered, the goods being made in four sizes, with astrakan centres and silk mohair borders. Other makes of rugs shown include the Enoshimas, Nubias, Irans, &c., Japanese goods in blue and white and olive and white being a prominent feature.

In Smyrnas the offerings include two grades, the Westmorelands and the Royal Axminsters, both being shown in a wide range of new and handsome patterns. Sheepskin, goatskin and animal skin rugs are offered in a wide variety of grades and styles.

As especially extensive importers of Chinese and Japanese mattings, Arnold, Constable & Co. can offer very important inducements to the trade. They carry complete lines in all grades and can make immediate deliveries. Attention is called to their great range of patterns in Japanese staple cotton warps, and various novelties, and specialties in Chinese and Japanese goods, which are not to be found elsewhere.

JAS. & GEO. D. BROMLEY.

The new creations of James & George D. Bromley in the various grades of goods they produce are before the trade for the fall season. The mills of the Messrs. Bromley are prolific in special weaves, all of them being noted for quality, and their construction renders them wonderfully adapted to elaborate coloring and shading. The "Arals" and the "Agras" are still at the front and the new patterns will convince all buyers of first-class carpets that the hand of the modern designer has not lost its cunning or the shader his artistic taste in the combination of colors. Following close after the "Arals" and the "Agras" come the "Altas," the "Calmucs" and the "Aleppos," all fully up to the high standard of design and color always exhibited in the productions of the Albion Mills.

T. J. Keveney & Co., 898 and 900 Broadway, New York, are the sole agents for these goods. They are also on exhibition at Room 732, Witherspoon Building, Juniper, Walnut and Sansom streets, Philadelphia, where H. A. Davis is in charge.

Mr. R. P. Perkins, vice-president of the E. S. Higgins Carpet Company, says that the business of the company has been remarkably large, and that it has never before sold so many goods at this season of the year.

The Royal Carpet Lining Company, Providence, R. I., has been incorporated, as announced in the last issue of THE REVIEW. The capital stock is $75,000 and the incorporators are Wm. A. Mauran, Suchet Mauran and Wm. Mauran, Jr. Herbert Plimpton, 115 Worth street, is selling agent for the company.

He expects samples of linoleums to arrive this week, when he will offer them to the trade. Mr. Bru Baker has also become New York agent for Judge Brothers Carpet Company, and will cover the territory in New York State and Michigan.

Paul P. Filipachi, who has been in the wholesale Oriental rug trade for many years past, is now acting as a buying and selling factor in the New York market. His services are at the disposal of buyers in aiding in the selection and purchasing of Oriental rugs, while he also has intimate relations with several large importing houses, and can acquaint buyers with information as to choice lots and values. Mr. Filipachi may be communicated with at 18 East Seventeenth street, New York.

Some of "the boys" in Joseph Wild & Co.'s went over to Brooklyn one day during the past week to see the New Yorks take a ball from the Brooklyns, and they induced "Dan" Ward to accompany them. Now it is a long while since "Dan" had seen a professional game of baseball, and he had forgotten almost everything he ever knew about the sport. He pelted "the boys" with all sorts of questions about the different plays, but capped the climax when he asked why they had two catchers for one pitcher. He had mistaken Umpire Lynch, who was "close up" after two strikes had been called on the batter, for a second catcher. Now "the boys" are taking up a subscription to buy a book of rules for D. P. W.

Joseph B. MacElroy, of MacElroy & Scholes, the Philadelphia Ingrain manufacturers, put in a good week's work in New York during the auction sale and, as some one remarked, looked as fresh at the end of the week as at the beginning.

F. A. Norway, head of the carpet department of Wm. Donaldson & Co., Minneapolis, was the only buyer from that city attending the big auction sale. Mr. Norway secured a number of choice lots in carpets and rugs at low prices and hurried home to make a special sale of same.

Frank Schlegel, of the Chicago office of S. Sanford & Sons, made his usual semi-annual visit to the New York headquarters week before last. His stay was unpleasant, owing to having to undergo an operation for an abscess of the leg while in town. Mr. Schlegel is about, however, and will attend to his fall trip as usual.

David C. Litt, manager of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.'s wholesale carpet department, and his leading salesman, John S. Luthy, were early and late attendants at the auction sale during its entire sessions. Mr. Litt says his large spring trade found him prepared to purchase goods and that he will enter the fall season in good shape to compete for business.

Charles J. Lincoln, of the selling force of Thos. Potter, Sons & Co., and son of George M. Lincoln, head of John Wanamaker's New York carpet department, is now serving his country on the auxiliary cruiser Yankee. Mr. Lincoln was a member of the New York Naval Reserves, and is now fully enlisted in the United States naval service. He was among the first to volunteer and all who know him feel sure that he will make a determined fighter.

The State Commission recently appointed by Governor Black to represent New York State at the fair to be held in Omaha this summer called the Merchants' Association into conference recently at Dr. Depew's office in the Grand Central Station. The conference was called for the purpose of enlisting the interest of the Merchants' Association in making New York's representation at the Omaha fair a success and for the more direct purpose of helping the commission raise the funds required to make a successful representation on behalf of New York State. The Merchants' Association, through President King, agreed to co-operate, Mr. King pledging a subscription of $3,000 as the proportion of the Merchants' Association toward the fund which the commission wants to raise.

New Branch Station S of the general post office, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Howard street, was opened on the 9th inst. It takes in the district bounded by Broome, Sullivan, Canal, Church and Worth streets and the Bowery. It will be one of the most important stations in the city, and will greatly relieve the general post office. The Review office is in the new district, and our correspondents will facilitate the handling of our mail matter by adding "Station S" to our address.

Colfax Council, No. 1220, Royal Arcanum, which is commonly known as the carpet men's council, entertained the new Grand Regent on the 11th inst. The notice to members read as follows:

The old Melrose Lyceum, a Morrisania landmark at 2892 Third avenue, was partly destroyed by fire on the 5th inst. The flames spread with such rapidity that the entire fire fighting force in the Borough of the Bronx and strong reinforcements from Harlem were called out. The old building had long ceased to be used as a hall and was occupied by two carpet and furniture dealers—Anna Anderson on the first floor, and the second floor—the building has but two stories—was used by Peyser & Co., furniture dealers at Westchester and Third avenues, as a storage room. The fire destroyed the stock in Anderson & Co.'s store and ruined a large quantity of carpets belonging to Peyser & Co. For a time it looked as if the buildings on either side of 2892 would be totally destroyed and the whole block wiped out. The firemen worked hard, however, and after an hour's fighting had the blaze under control. The damage to Anderson's stock amounted to between $5,000 and $6,000 and to the stock of Peyser & Co. about $12,000. The building was damaged to the extent of $7,000.

ANOTHER AUCTION SALE OF SMITH CARPETING, MAY 31.

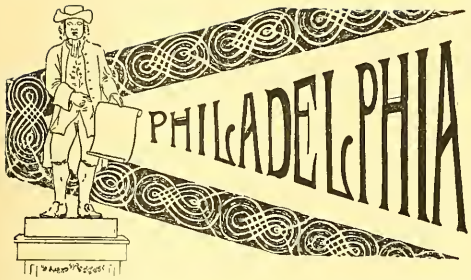
MR. WALTER W. LAW MAKES SOME REMARKS ON THE SALE AND THE PLANS OF THE ALEXANDER SMITH & SONS CARPET COMPANY.

The auction sale of Smith carpeting, which was adjourned on the 7th inst., will be resumed May 31, The offerings will consist of Moquettes, Axminsters, Savonneries, Ne Plus Ultra carpeting and rugs, Moquette rugs and mats, Tapestries and Velvets. The lots will be put up in such proportions as to be within reach of all, and enough goods will be added in all grades made by the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company to induce every buyer to be present, no matter what distance he may have to come. All the lots sold will be running patterns, those discontinued having been disposed of at the previous auction sale.

Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell will act as the auctioneers, and the sale will be held, as before, at Nos. 37 to 41 East Eighteenth street, beginning at 10 o'clock A. M. and closing at 4.30 P. M. each day, as announced in the official auction notice in this issue:

In answer to the questions of a Review representative regarding the sale, Mr. Walter W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane, said:

The sale of last week was very satisfactory to the Smith Company. Some of the prices were low, but they have no complaint to make of the general average. The purpose of the auction was fully realized in the readiness with which the trade purchased the goods. All doubt was dispelled of there being a ready market for the carpets of this company after the first two days. The gloom and uncertainty which the war cloud had cast over the carpet trade were far less influential than the revived condition of the country's prosperity. It was our conviction from the first that it only needed this belief to be put to the test and the result has fully justified our forecast. The country at large has always taken the Smith Company's fabrics freely, and now that their popularity is more firmly established than ever before we had faith enough and courage enough to let the trade at large put their own prices on them and are well satisfied with the result. It was a matter of regret that the whole of the lots could not be sold during the week, as we were anxious to have the verdict of the trade on our new patterns, which, after an experience of twenty-five years, we can truly say form the best line we ever had. Instead of resuming the sale on the following Monday it was deemed better not to tax our friends to remain in town over Sunday, and we therefore deferred the remainder to a future day, when enough will be added to the sample lots to make the sale worthy the attention of buyers from all parts of the country. This will undoubtedly be by far the most attractive auction sale ever held, as it will contain nothing but new and choice patterns and will take place on Tuesday, the 31st inst., and following days. We hope this sale, together with the daily sales now being freely made, will clean up our stock completely, but should there be any balance remaining on July 1 we shall have no hesitation in resorting to the same method for their disposal, it being a determination of the company to wind up the season free from stock, feeling sure that the revived condition of the country, together with the policy they will hereafter adopt, will prevent the accumulation of surplus—certainly to so large a degree as heretofore.



....George Burton, with John C. Wallace, the yarn merchant, is doing military duty as an aide on the staff of General Shaw at Mt. Gretna.

....Charles B. Fritz, of Fritz & La Rue, the Philadelphia Oriental rug and matting importers, arrived home from his trip abroad the latter part of April.

....George Kelly, the Market street furniture and carpet merchant, has demonstrated his Americanism in a very substantial manner by offering to arm and equip the Hastings Hussars of four companies, that have been organized by William F. Mannix.

....Henry Dickel & Son have put forth their new fall styles, and they are a step ahead of any of their previous offerings. They have already received calls from the Western trade, and their looms are all active. Their Ingrains are up to the standard in quality, while the styles are such as every first-class dealer should have.

....Walter E. Torr, captain of Company K, First Regiment of National Guards of Pennsylvania, and salesman for Ivins, Dietz & Magee, has gone into camp with his regiment, and will soon be ordered to the front. Frank Griffith and Harry Markley, connected with the same house, have also gone into camp with their regiments.

....Fort Orianna is the title given a war-like looking structure erected over the engine house of W. T. Smith & Son's mill. It was placed in position and the employees decorated the mill with flags after the news of Dewey's great victory. Mr. W. T. Smith has been in Florida during the past fortnight, but will doubtless return without having witnessed, as expected, the bombardment of Havana.

....James H. Billington & Co., whose store has been established for a long time at 425 Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, and who are well known to the textile manufacturers of this city as dealers in mill supplies, will hereafter attend to the supplying of the "parts," &c., of the Crompton and Knowles looms, so long and favorably known to the manufacturing fraternity. The change will greatly simplify the business of furnishing parts and supplies to those in need of them, as Billington & Co. have a large store and greater facilities for attending to that branch of business. The Crompton & Knowles Loom Works have an office adjoining Billington & Co.'s store, fully equipped for the convenience of the many friends and customers of the works. This office will be in charge of George A. Denny, of Worcester, Mass. We are pleased to see that our old friend James A. Fitzsimmons will still be identified with the works and will, together with J. M. Marco and James Buckler, make this office a headquarters.

HARTFORD CARPET COMPANY'S OFFERINGS.

Messrs. Reune Martin & Sons on page 17 of this issue call attention to the fall styles of the Hartford Carpet Company. No new grades of goods are announced, the company being quite satisfied with their fabrics, which have become so well known. Their Axminster line shows so radical a change that it is no wonder it stands alone and apart as compared with some goods of the same name and varying qualities. Striking designs and novel colorings—each complementary to the other, with variety sufficient for the largest business—combine to make this a line without which a stock is not complete.

In Brussels, Ingrains and Art Squares the same care regarding details is apparent in each pattern, and the result is such in variety and excellence as to become a marvel as the output of a single mill.

May this mill and its agents meet with the success they so well merit.

DORNAN BROTHERS.

The new offerings of Dornan Brothers' Monitor Mills, Howard and Oxford streets, Philadelphia, for the coming season are ready and will soon be before the trade throughout the country.

Many new and striking features will be observed in all the various fabrics the Monitor Mills are producing. Truly unique color effects have been introduced in the extra Ingrains which will surely win the favor of the trade. The other grades of Ingrains are not behind in design, coloring and general effect. In all that goes to make up attractive and truly artistic effects they will be found fully up to the better grades.

The new effects in the 4–4 Brussels are very artistic in both design and color combination. The peculiar construction of this new fabric admits of the introduction of any number of colors, and consequently effects are produced in them which vie with the best efforts in Brussels goods, from which they derive their name. The Art Squares, made in the same grade and quality, will find their place among the many other offerings in the same line. The border effects in these goods are sure to be favorably noticed by the first-class dealers in the retail line.

One of the specialties produced by the Monitor Mills is their superior quality of all-wool terries or solid colored Ingrain carpets. The variety of tints which they produce and the perfect purity and evenness of the colors are not often seen in this class of goods. Their success in this department is truly wonderful.

L. C. Waterman & Sons, Hanover, Mass., are extensive manufacturers of tacks for carpet and upholstery purposes, and have long been noted for the superior quality of their product. Write to them for prices, &c.

Dornan Brothers will show on the road for fall their new line of five-frame Brussels Art Squares in an assortment of ten handsome patterns and a great variety of colorings. They will be prepared to meet the demand for the goods as developed by the orders received.

CHICAGO

Chicago, May 9.

The affairs of the James H. Walker Company are again in the courts. Last week Frederick Vietor & Achelis, judgment creditors of the concern to the extent of $4,092, filed a bill in the Circuit Court, in which they sought to reopen the settlement of the affairs of the company. The defendants are, besides the company, William B. Howard, William A. Mason, Charles C. Lay, Irving I. Hartz and the executors of Columbus R. Cummings, deceased. It is alleged that preferences were made on the books to Columbus R. Cummings and W. A. Mason immediately before the application for a receiver, and the complainants contend that the profits from the sale of the assets should be applied to the reduction of the indebtedness of the company.

W. K. Smith will leave for New York in a day or so to get ready for his trip.

Frank Schlegel and Walter Treloar, of S. Sanford & Sons' Chicago office, returned from New York a day or so ago and are both busily engaged in getting their samples ready for the summer trip.

What is said to be the largest United States flag in the world is to be unfurled by John M. Smyth at his store on West Madison street. It is 75 feet long and 40 feet wide and contains 800 yards of bunting. On one side are large portraits of Washington, Jackson, Robert E. Lee and Grant, and on the other of Decatur, Paul Jones and Perry.

R. H. H.

JOHN GAY'S SONS.

At their Park Mills, Howard and Norris streets, Philadelphia, the Messrs. Gay have ready their offerings in Ingrains for the fall trade, and their agents will soon exhibit them to the buyers throughout the country. The new offerings are the result of special pains to create new and attractive styles. Aside from the old weaves, which are always good and fill the position for which they are intended most admirably, we wish to call the attention of retail dealers to the new fabrics lately put forth. The peculiar construction of the goods renders them not only extremely durable but especially adapted to the production of the most elaborate designs known, and enables the manufacturers to draw upon both ancient and modern art for their coloring and tint shading. The old-fashioned effects are completely surpassed in these new productions, as these admit of the introduction of any number of color tints without danger of partially destroying the outline of the designs by the appearance of stripes at the same time.

The Rajahs and the Flemish Tapestries have come to stay, and every season will give new proof of the wonderful improvement made in the production of Ingrain carpets.

The present offerings of the Messrs. Gay cover a wide extent of style and coloring, embracing the small figures in quiet, self-toned tints and extending to the larger designs which admit of an elaborate brilliancy of colorings so much admired in these days.

Obituary.

Frederick Griswold Walbridge, well-known to the furniture and carpet trade and among the Masonic fraternity, died in Malden, Mass., on the 28th ult. He was born in Wolcott, Vt., in 1828. He went to Boston when a lad and served on the U. S. Ship Ohio during the Mexican War. At its close he entered the employ of the well-known furniture and carpet dealer, W. P. B. He served in the Boston common council in 1874, 1875 and 1876, and in 1880 was elected to the board of aldermen. Mr. Walbridge was a prominent thirty-third degree Mason. He was Past Master of St. Paul's Lodge, Past High Priest of St. Matthew's Royal Arch Chapter, Past Eminent Commander of De Molay Commandery, Past Master of Lafayette Lodge of Perfection, and a member of the following bodies: Boston Council, Giles F. Chas. H. P. Lyman died on the 13th inst. at Greenwich, Conn., in the seventy-ninth year of his age. He was at one time general manager of the retail store of A. T. Stewart & Co., New York city, having superintendence of the carpet as well as the other departments. He was very efficient in this position, and was highly esteemed in the trade. He leaves three sons and one daughter.

Napoleon Bonaparte MacElroy, the old colored porter in the salesrooms of the Hartford Carpet Company, died in the Roosevelt Hospital on the 10th inst., of apoplexy, at the age of sixty-seven years. Max, as he was generally called, was well known to the trade throughout the country. He had been in the employ of Reune Martin & Sons as porter for about fifteen years past, and before that time he was a servant in the house of Mr. Reune Martin. He was born in slavery and came North after the war.

William McCallum, one of the best known designers in this country, died of bronchitis at his home on West Eighty-fourth street, New York, recently. He was born in Scotland about sixty-one years ago and was employed as a designer by John Lewis, of Kidderminster, whom he left to accept a similar position with W. & J. Sloane. About twenty-five years ago he entered the employ of the Bigelow Carpet Company and had since served that company with marked success. He was buried at Yonkers, where he formerly resided.

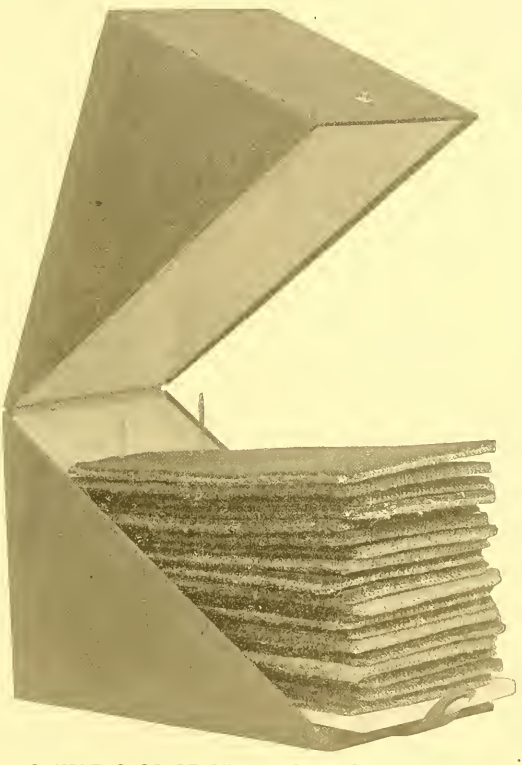
The folded paper carpet lining, manufactured by the Norwich Carpet Lining Company, Norwich, Conn., has special advantages which should secure for it the favorable attention of every dealer. Write to the manufacturers for samples and prices.

SKILLED BUYING AT THE AUCTION.

To observers at the big auction sale one of the most noticeable features was the exceptional skill and judgment displayed by Mr. Samuel M. Kennard, of the J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Company, St. Louis. While Mr. Kennard was not a leader in the bidding, he was most assuredly a leader in the buying, and doubtless purchased carpeting to an amount equal to that of any other buyer, if not surpassing others. You could seldom hear the auctioneer knocking down a lot to Mr. Kennard; he evidently waited for things to come his way and was frequently heard to mention that "I'll take the balance." Or, when the wants of others had been filled and the auctioneer would urge a bid for the remainder, Mr. Kennard would be induced to offer a price and would have the balance knocked down to him at less than the first lot. He bought very few goods during the first two days, but came very strong in the buyers' race toward the end, when the enthusiasm had quieted and the attendance had been diminished through many leaving for home.

Taken altogether the J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Company own the goods bought at the sale at the lowest average. Speaking of his plans to market his purchases, Mr. Kennard states that he is prepared to share any advantages gained with the trade, and his company are now ready to make quotations on all grades of Smith carpeting and rugs, which will certainly interest the closest buyers. The stock sheet of the house, made up to May 11, will be found on an insert sheet in this issue of THE REVIEW, opposite page 74, and orders will be filled immediately on any pattern listed, not alone of the Smith goods, but of the other prominent makes of 3-4 carpetings quoted. Retail dealers who wish to be on a competitive basis in prices can quickly secure supplies by ordering them from the J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Company, St. Louis.

LOWRY & GOEBEL, Cincinnati, Ohio, which firm is now composed of Justus and Arthur Goebel, report the spring trade as the best they have had for years. "Our cut order and house trade has been beyond our expectations," said Arthur Goebel to THE REVIEW man who called there recently.



SAMPLE CASE OF STERLING PLUSH FILLINGS.

DISTRIBUTED BY ROBERT BEATTIE & SONS, NEW YORK.

TEFFT, WELLER & CO.'S STOCK.

As announced on page 21 Tefft, Weller & Co., New York, have decided to close out their carpet department and are now holding a special sale of their entire stock. They intend to devote the space now occupied by their wholesale carpet department to other purposes, and must have the carpet rooms by July 1. As readers of our May 15 issue will remember, we stated that for many years past this firm have been the largest wholesalers of Smith carpetings, and consequently they held, when their special sale was started on May 2, a great assortment and stock of Smith Axminsters, Moquettes, Velvets, Tapestries and rugs. They have also other makes of Tapestries and Velvets, Ingrains in all qualities, Art Squares, rugs, mattings, linoleum, floor oil cloth—in fact everything required in a full assortment of floor coverings. During the past fortnight large lots of goods have changed hands in their department, and the unqualified statement that the goods must be sold is sufficient assurance that buyers will be given every inducement, even under the present abnormal conditions of carpet prices. If you cannot call at their department write for quotations to Tefft, Weller & Co., New York. Charles C. Jones, James C. Seymour and the other members of the force in Tefft, Weller & Co.'s carpet department have had a very busy fortnight letting out stock at close prices Mr. Jones says they have done a remarkably large business and that the indications point to a rapid absorption of even such an extensive stock as is yet held by the house.

SAMPLE CASES OF STERLING PLUSH FILLINGS.

We present herewith a picture of a new sample box which Robert Beattie & Sons are utilizing in introducing to the trade their new make of goods, the Sterling Plush fillings.

The box contains nineteen samples, in which all the most desirable colors are well represented. The Messrs. Beattie will supply these cases to responsible dealers who handle such goods as these fillings. Write to their New York salesrooms, Constable Building, No. 111 Fifth avenue.

FRANK D. GREENOUGH.

WE present herewith a portrait of Frank D. Greenough, who has been engaged by the Judge Brothers Carpet Company to represent them in New England.

Mr. Greenough has practically grown up among the carpet trade of New England. He started in the business in the carpet store of his brother, H. M. Greenough, who for some years was located at Tremont and Boylston streets, Boston. Subsequently he occupied a position in another Boston carpet store, and some four years ago became a traveling salesman through the New England district, for the past three years traveling with a line of carpet sweepers from Grand Rapids.

Mr. Greenough has an office at 564 Washington street and will shortly be on the road with the extensive and attractive Ingrain lines of the Judge Brothers Carpet Company.

In mattings their offerings comprise an immense variety of grades and styles which will well repay inspection.

WILLIAM MORRIS' Salem Oil Cloth Works, Salem, N. J, are well represented in the offerings of floor oil cloths for the coming season. The new line comprises a number of standard patterns and a large variety of new and handsome styles which are certain to be in great demand. Buyers should see the line as soon as possible.

THOMAS H. LYNN & SON, manufacturers of cocoa mats and matting, Trenton, N. J., offer for the fall trade a great variety of these goods, which are well and favorably known in the trade. The Messrs. Lynn are experienced manufacturers who are familiar with the demands of dealers and well equipped to meet them satisfactorily.

OPPOSITE page 21 of this issue Albert Graff & Co., 609 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, offer to the trade their purchases at the recent auction sale of Smith carpeting. The goods consist of Velvets, Axminsters and Moquettes, and they will be sold at but a slight advance on the auction figures. Graff & Co. also offer a large line of Tapestries in 7, 8, 9 and 10 wire goods at less than the ruling prices; also a full assortment of Moquette rugs and a big line of straw mattings at exceedingly low prices.

A YALE RUG FOR THE "YALE" CRUISER.

WHEN Sheppard Knapp & Co. learned that the steamship Paris had been purchased by the Government to use as a cruiser and that the ship's name would be changed to Yale, they immediately presented to Captain Watkins, the former commander of the vessel, and now the second in command, one of their handsome emblematic Yale rugs, in which the word Yale appears in yellow on a blue ground. The gift was acknowledged by Captain Watkins in a letter, as follows:

NEW YORK, May 2, 1898.

MESSRS. SHEPPARD KNAPP & CO.:

Dear Sirs—Tnank you very much indeed for the beautiful rug you sent me. I did intend to come and thank you in person, but as we sail this evening I have not been able to spare the time.

Yours truly, FREDK. WATKINS.

JOHN GAY'S SONS have issued a novel and attractive circular calling attention especially to their new lines of Rajah carpets and Flemish Tapestries for the fall trade. A feature of the circular is the handsome engraving called "A Comfortable Dream." Write for one.

It manufactures all sizes of hand made rugs and chenille Axminster carpets to order in special designs and colorings.

THE THREAD COMBINATION.

There will be two thread trusts, one being the English Sewing Thread Company, which owns 60 per cent. of the American Thread Company's common stock, and the other is the Coats Thread Company.

The American Thread Company was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey about six weeks ago. It is capitalized at $12,000,000, of which $6,000,000 is in common and $6,000,000 in preferred stock. It will also have a bonded indebtedness of $6,000,000 more, which will be in 4 per cent. bonds, making a total capitalization of $18,000,000.

The new company was formed to buy up the stock of the following companies: The Willimantic Thread Company, the Merrick Company, the Hadley Company, the Case Thread Company, the William Clark Thread Company, the Barstow Thread Company, the Glasgow Thread Company, the Glasgow Yarn Mills, the New England Thread Company, the Ruddy Thread Company, the National Thread Company and the Warren Thread Company. The shares are to be at a par value of $5 each, as in England £1 shares in companies are the most popular.

The English Sewing Thread Company was formed last fall. It will take 60 per cent. of the common stock of the American Thread Company and thus control it. The new combination will manufacture cotton, linen, silk, wool and other threads. The preferred stock of the combination will pay an interest of 6 per cent. and the common stock whatever it may earn.

The Coats Thread Company, which bought up the Clark Mile End, the Clark O. N. T. and other thread companies, is the oldest thread combination. It had been competing very keenly with the English Sewing Thread Company in the English market, and hereafter the three new combinations will make arrangements by which all can run on a paying basis.

THE TRADE'S BIG CARPET LINING MILL.

A view of the Union Carpet Lining Company's extensive plant is given herewith. The improvements and additions to the plant since 1890 have been notable. Within two years a mill has been erected for the manufacture of comfortables and new storehouses have been built. These improvements consumed about all the available land held by the company and caused them to purchase recently a four acre tract adjoining. The plant is a model one in every respect for the manufacture of carpet linings of all grades, comfortables, and for the wool and cotton business of the company.

AN IMPORTANT LAWSUIT.

A case of much importance to merchants was tried recently before Judge Rufus Smith, of the Superior Court, at Cincinnati. Louis Stix & Co. some months ago brought suit against the Alms & Doepke Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, for amount lost on a bankrupt firm, it being alleged that the loss was due to misleading information given to Stix & Co. by the defendants.

On their side of the case Stix & Co. alleged that Fromlet & Ward, who were merchants at Mansfield, Ohio, unsolicited, came into the store of Louis Stix & Co. in September, 1895, and selected a bill of goods, giving as reference the Alms & Doepke Company; that Mr. Stix called personally upon the Alms & Doepke Company and was told by Mr. Remke (their credit man) that the risk was a very good one, that Fromlet & Ward were average prompt payers and that their firm would be glad to sell them all the goods they could; and that Mr. Remke also introduced Mr. Stix to Mr. Burdsal, a son-in-law of Mr. W. H. Alms, the president of the company, who in the past waited on this firm, and he also recommended the risk in the highest terms.

An inquiry was also made through the Credit Clearing House, which is a mercantile agency compiling information given by the members themselves, and it is alleged that on the blanks furnished by the Credit Clearing House the Alms & Doepke Company claimed to have no security for their account and reported this firm as average prompt payers.

At the trial it was charged that the Alms & Doepke Company was secured by personal indorsement at the time the inquiry was made.

It was also alleged that the Alms & Doepke Company, exclusively, had been supplying this firm with their dry goods and notions since they were in business, but that during the last visit of this firm to Cincinnati, six weeks before the failure, for the first time, they did not sell them, but they (Fromlet & Ward) opened new accounts with Louis Stix & Co., the John Shillito Company, Isaac Fuller's Sons & Co. and H. & G. Feder, of Cincinnati, all of whom, it is alleged, inquired of the Alms & Doepke Company and received favorable information, but six weeks later this firm (Fromlet & Ward) failed, giving the Alms & Doepke Company a chattel mortgage preference, and the unpreferred creditors received absolutely nothing for their claims.

The judge, in his charge to the jury, stated: "If the Alms & Doepke Company had given Louis Stix & Co. false information, knowing it to be false, and if Louis Stix & Co. relied in part or in whole on this information, they should find for the plaintiff." The jury did not agree.

WHY ?

Why is a carpet dealer like a sailor ? Because he often has to tack.

Why is a carpet manufacturer like a baker ? Because he deals in rolls.

Why is a carpet dealer like a farmer ? Because he is posted in regard to "sprouts."

Why should a carpet dealer never be without "a light"? Because he makes so many matches.

Why would a carpet dealer prefer canvas to steam on his boat ? Because he likes big sales.

Why is a carpet dealer well informed regarding current events ? Because he always knows what is on the tapis.

Why does a carpet maker illustrate an old adage when he makes a mistake ? Because "as he sews so shall he rip."

The New York Belting and Packing Company elsewhere publish some facts relative to rubber matting which will be of value to dealers who wish to be posted as to the qualities of goods they handle.

RIFTON MILLS VELVETS.

In regard to the offerings of the J. W. Dimick Company's Velvet carpeting and Wilton rugs for the coming season, which were referred to in our last issue, it is worth while to call special attention to the large number of entirely new patterns in the fall line. Mr. J. W. Fitzgerald has devoted particular care to the preparation of artistic and original novelties in designs and colorings, and the result is the finest and most extensive line ever shown by the company.

It is said that Japan's rug industry employs 10,000 people.

PACIFIC COAST NOTES.

San Francisco, May 6.

Fake Turkish rug sales continue in this city unabated. About every other week some vacant store takes on a big muslin sign in front with such labels as "Auction of Oriental Rugs," on account of the return of Nanki-Poo from Constantinople, or some other Bluebeard town. After a few days another sign will appear giving an extravagant excuse for the wonderful sale. It is strange how people will bite and patronize these transient concerns, instead of spending their good money in a house with an established reputation. The old proverb is certainly true : "All the fools are not dead."

Geo. W. Malim has opened a furniture store in Santa Monica, Cal.

Smith & Gibson have moved their furniture store in Porterville, Cal., into new quarters.

D. M. Crowley has disposed of his furniture business at Nelson, B. C., to A. W. Purdy & Co.

M. E. Jamison has bought out Bailey & Gibson, furniture dealers of St. Anthony, Idaho.

Ackerman & Kohn, the agressive proprietors of the carpet department of the California Furniture Company, are doing their share of trade.

The Northwestern travelers of D. N. & E. Walter Company are doing especially well. Trade in other sections of the coast is quiet.

Dod Schindler has resigned his position as manager of the Emporium furniture department. His future plans are not known at present.

W. F. Cordes, of the carpet and furniture department of the Emporium, is keeping his end of trade up very well. It is said that he never sleeps.

R. A. Cornelius, representing the Jay C. Wemple Company, of New York, has been doing finely on this coast with opaque shades and shadings; and why shouldn't he, as his house is the oldest in the business?

The Wisconsin Furniture Company, of Salt Lake, Utah, is suing H. C. Edwards to collect $232.13, alleged to be due because of the neglect on the part of the defendant to collect a claim for the company.

The San Diego (Cal.) Furniture Company is in troubled waters. D. N. Walter, of San Francisco, to whom it assigned, will take charge of the business for the creditors, who will probably receive their claims in full. The liabilities are placed at $10,630.22, with assets at $14,771.73.

Golden Gate.

GREAT mills of the E. S. Higgins Carpet Company are represented in the offerings of the coming season even more strongly than ever before, the lines of each grade being larger and the great number of entirely new patterns being a notable feature. Uniform standard is another highly important point which the company has always held in mind, and the goods now shown are in this respect in full keeping with the company's record.

The offerings consist of the Extra Quality (three shoot, high pile) Wilton Velvets, the Sultan high pile Velvets, Wilton back 10 wire Tapestry, Double Star Tapestry, Three Star Tapestry, Imperial Three Ply Ingrains, extra heavy 14 pair Extra Supers, Standard Extra Supers and C. C.'s., &c.

WHAT OUR COUSINS ARE DOING.

M. Nairn & Co., Limited, the noted floor oil cloth and linoleum manufacturers, Kirkcaldy, Scotland, are building another large factory which will form an important addition to their extensive plant.

During the month of March, 1898, there were exported from the consular district of Bradford, England, to the United States, carpets and rugs to the value of £1,231, as against £2,569 for the same month of 1897.

At a recent meeting of the directors of M. Nairn & Co., floor cloth and linoleum manufacturers, Kirkcaldy, it was unanimously agreed, after paying a dividend of 10 per cent. to the ordinary shareholders, to set aside £1,000 to be divided among the employees who had been with the firm during their jubilee year 1897–8. The bonus will be paid over to the workmen with their next fortnight's pay. The firm has also given £500 as a nucleus toward forming a permanent pension fund.

A meeting of the shareholders of John Crossley & Sons, Limited, was held at Halifax, England, recently to consider the following resolution:

That pursuant to Section 3 of the Companies' Act, 1880, there be returned to the holders of the 118,797 ordinary shares of the company of £5 each, now issued and fully paid up, the sum of £1 per share, in reduction of the amount paid on each such share, and to the intent that each such share shall be deemed to be paid up to the extent of £4 only and be liable to a call of £1.

The resolution was agreed to without dissent, but the chairman stated that under the act it would require confirmation at a second meeting, which was fixed for the 13th inst.

Trade in Kidderminster.

The Kidderminster (England) Shuttle of the 23d ult. said:

Looms are well employed in all departments of the carpet trade Manufacturers, however, declare that the trade is troublesome owing to its miscellaneous character. In some cases orders and requirements cannot be met in the very limited time allowed by dealers, and embarrassments ensue. This should act as a warning to buyers in the future not to defer placing their orders so late as has been done this season. The urgency of some of the orders renders overtime necessary, although the actual volume of trade does not warrant such a course. The demand for Brussels is certainly increasing and in some quarters buyers declare that squares are in less demand than formerly, furnishers now insisting upon having the entire floor covered. So far as the carpet trade is concerned, the war between the United States and Spain in Cuban waters will not have much effect. The Cubans have done scarcely any business with carpet manufacturers, while the Dingley tariff act has checked English trade with America, only "specialties" being obtained from British makers.

Local spinners are better employed than for some time past, and prices are steady. In the wool market the outbreak of hostilities will no doubt lead to a waiting policy among dealers, for no one as yet seems to know what the commercial effect of the war on wools will be and which direction values will take. It is possible that certain classes of wool suitable for war material may improve, but on the other hand higher classes may have to give way. In the general trade of this district it is not apprehended that much difference will be experienced. Cotton is increasing in value, and will, it is expected, continue to rise.

E. W. Sutton, manufacturer of carpet lining and stair pads, 53 to 57 Sedgwick street, Brooklyn, New York, is in a position to offer strong inducements to every buyer. Mr. Sutton has every facility for meeting the demands of the trade and invites dealers to write to him for prices.

SCHOFIELD, MASON & CO.

The offerings of Schofield, Mason & Co. for the coming season are in full keeping with their especially conspicuous position as manufacturers of Wiltons and Body Brussels. The new line is shown in the Delaware and Tacony grades, and in a very extensive range of new, artistic and original designs and colorings, which should be seen to be appreciated.

McCLEARY, WALLIN & CROUSE.

For the fall trade McCleary, Wallin & Crouse are showing the finest and most extensive line of Smyrna rugs ever produced by them. The goods are shown in three grades, namely, the Imperial, a superior quality; the Mohawk, a high class standard, and the Amsterdam, a popular grade. In every grade all sizes are shown, including carpets, and the designs and colorings are especially notable for originality, novelty and attractiveness. Buyers should see the line early, and it is now on view in the warerooms of W. & J. Sloane, who are the sole agents.

ALDEN SAMPSON & SONS.

The fall offerings of the old established and extensive floor oil cloth manufacturing firm of Alden Sampson & Sons are now ready for inspection at their New York store, 58, 60 and 62 Reade street, and the line is shown also by their New England agents, W. W. Corson & Co., Boston.

The offerings embrace a variety of grades, and the assortment of patterns is especially extensive. The firm have always paid special attention to the production of new and artistic original patterns, and in this respect the new offerings surpass all previous ones of the firm.

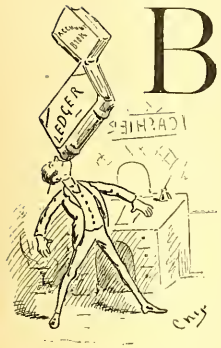
Buyers who are looking for salable, handsome styles will find that the line of Alden Sampson & Sons will amply repay inspection.

ROXBURY CARPET COMPANY.

For its famous specialty, Tapestry carpeting, the Roxbury Carpet Company can always command a very liberal share of the trade of every season, and in its offerings for the fall trade the company is in a position to interest buyers even more strongly than ever before, for in addition to its line of choice 10 wire goods it has brought out an entirely new line of 9- wire Tapestries in a highly attractive assortment of patterns. The line of 10 wire goods is also especially strong, containing a superb range of new and beautiful effects in designs and colorings, and offering an admirable illustration of the perfection which the manufacturers have attained in this branch of the carpet industry.

The lines are shown by T. B. Shoaff & Co., the agents, at 935 Broadway, New York, and 611 Washington street, Boston.

WHERE LITTLE THINGS COUNT.



BALANCING THE BOOKS.

Bookkeeping has been reduced to such an exact science in the big metropolitan banks that the clerks are expected to strike a correct balance at the close of each day's work, no matter if the transactions have run into the millions of dollars. When the books fail to balance, the whole force of the bank is put to work to discover the error, and no clerk starts for home until it is discovered, whether it amounts to 2 cents or $2,000. Generally a quarter of an hour will bring the mistake to light, but sometimes the hunt is kept up until late into the night.

Such a search was being conducted in a New York bank located in the vicinity of Wall street. Forty-five cents were missing. At 6 o'clock not a trace of the errant sum had been discovered. Dinner was sent in for the whole force from an adjoining restaurant, and after half an hour's rest the search was again taken up. Midnight came, but still no clew, so sandwiches and coffee were served.

"Hello!" said a clerk. "The Blank National people are working to-night, too. Guess theyr'e in the same box."

Sure enough, the windows of the bank across the street were brilliantly lighted. The incident was soon forgotten when the wearying hunt after that elusive 45 cents was resumed. Shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning, as they were about to give up for the night, a loud rapping was heard at the front door of the bank.

"Hello! Hello! What's the matter," called the cashier through the keyhole.

"Matter, you chumps. Why, we've got your blamed old 45 cents! Come along home to bed!"

Ouside stood the crowd of clerks from the neighboring bank. It appeared that, in making a cash transaction, one of the banks had paid the other 45 cents too much. As a result half a hundred men had worked for the nine hours, and the search was only ended because a bright clerk, noticing the light in the bank opposite, shrewdly guessed the cause, hunted up the cash slip and discovered the error.

JOHN CROSSLEY & SONS.

Henry Beuttell, American agent for John Crossley & Sons, Ltd , Halifax, England, has now on view for the fall trade, at his New York salesroom, 109 and 111 Worth street, extensive and particularly attractive lines of Wiltons, Brussels, Velvets, Tapestries, Wilton Daghestan rugs, bordered seamless carpets in Wilton, Brussels and Tapestry, and Tapestry rugs and mats.

Buyers who are looking for choice desirable styles not to be found elsewhere are advised to see Mr. Beuttell's offerings.

REEVE LINOLEUM.

The fall line of the R. H. & B. C. Reeve Company's linoleum is now on view. It is shown in five grades and in five widths, 4-4, 5-4, 6-4, 8-4 and 10-4, and in a skillfully varied assortment of new and handsome patterns. Among the new styles will be found a number of choice designs from mosaic floors and panels in the new Government Library at Washington. In several of the new designs the motives are from Florentine and French mosaics, reproducing not only the finest details of the stone work, but also the rare old tints of red, green and blue peculiar to Florentine mosaics. The patterns comprise also oak, scroll and carpet effects, the latter being especially interesting. The trade will find the complete line on view in the general salesrooms of the company, 801 Hartford Building, 41 Union square, New York, where Rudolph Scherer is in charge; and also at 602 Bourse, Philadelphia; 713 Penn avenue, Pittsburg, and 916 Market street, San Francisco.

FRIES-BRESLIN COMPANY'S SMYRNAS.

As manufacturers of Smyrna rugs and mats the Fries-Breslin Company have acquired a reputation which renders their semi-annual offerings especially important factors in the trade of every season, and the new line they are now showing for the fall trade is in full keeping with this fact.

It comprises three grades, the Empress, Monarch and Oriental, the Empress being made in all sizes up to 12x18 feet, and the Monarchs and Orientals in all sizes up to 9x12 feet. Each grade contains a great variety of new and standard patterns, which are unquestionably quick sellers, for the Fries-Breslin Company know just what the trade wants and have every facility for meeting the demand.

The line is shown at the mills, Camden, N. J.; the New York office, Hartford Building, Broadway and Seventeenth street, and by W. W. Corson & Co., at 564 Washington street, Boston.

WHITTALL WILTONS AND BRUSSELS.

Thomas B. Shoaff & Co., sole agents for M. J. Whittall's famous Wiltons and Brussels, have his new line for the coming season on view in their salesrooms, 935 Broadway, New York, and 611 Washington street, Boston.

The offerings include the Victoria Wiltons and Brussels, Whittall Wiltons and Brussels, Edgeworth Brussels and Assyrian Wiltons, and in each grade the trade will find an abundance of novel and original effects, prepared expressly for the fall trade. Whittall carpeting ranks among the highest class of Wilton and Brussels goods, and the samples now on view are in full keeping with Mr. Whittall's reputation as an originator of choice, novel and artistic designs and colorings.

John Watts' Sons, manufacturers of Ingrains, Hancock street, above Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia, are ready for the fall trade with new lines of their popular Hercules Ingrains, C. C. Extra Supers, half wool Unions, quarter wool Unions, and Cottons in all grades. The Messrs. Watts' offerings are the most attractive they have ever shown, and will amply repay inspection.

BOSTON BUDGET.

Boston, May 10.

Representatives of all the leading carpet houses in this city were in New York last week attending the Smith auction sale, some to buy and others to keep an eye on the trade and see what was done. Having met their customers from the East in the metropolis, few Gotham traveling salesmen have been over here this week.

Mr. Metzger, of the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company, has been in Boston the past week. .

Retail houses report a fair trade, and a few have had a run on mattings, owing to special advertising.

Joel Goldthwaite, who has been ill for some time, is able to be out, and was seen on the street Saturday last.

Robert Develon, of Thos. Develon's Sons, was in Boston to-day arranging for a New England agent for their goods.

The upholsterers of Boston have voted to keep all their members in good standing in the union who enlist, and in case of accident or death all benefits will be paid.

The Institute of Technology was damaged by fire on April 28. The loss on the building amounts to about 25 per cent. of the insurance and the loss on contents foots up to about 20 per cent. of the insurance.

A. McArthur & Co., 16 to 26 Cornhill, have notified their employees that all among them who enlist will receive full pay while they are in the service of their country and will be reinstated in their positions when they return. The employees have shown their appreciation of the firm's liberality by presenting to it a handsome flag which is now swinging to the breeze.

L. C. Chase & Co , the well-known plush and blanket manufacturers and bicycle tire makers, with offices at 129 Washington street, suffered a severe loss by fire this evening (May 10). The flames originated on the fourth floor of their building. Besides the fire damages, the goods of Chase & Co. were thoroughly wet down, and their total loss will be $8,000 or $10,000.

Some of the carpet and furniture dealers have notified their employees that in case they enlist in the services of their country their positions will be retained for them, and the C. E. Osgood Company further announces that patrons having unsettled accounts who may enlist may have payments omitted during term of service, and in case of total disability receipts in full will be given by the firm.

Among recent deaths was that of Frederick G. Walbridge, which took place at Malden, Mass., April 28. He was well known in the carpet and furniture trade in this city and its vicinity. Mr Walbridge was born February 14, 1828, in Wolcott, Vt., and came to Boston when a lad. Entering the employ of W. P. B. Brooks, he in time became a member of the firms of W. P. B. Brooks & Co., Brooks & Walbridge Brothers and Walbridge Brothers. He formerly resided in this city, but removed to Malden in 1892. He left a widow and one son, Percy E. Walbridge. The funeral was attended by a number of representatives of of the carpet and furniture trades. F. J. B.

New England Notes.

The Wm. H. Post Carpet Company, Hartford, Conn., has leased the store next east of its present premises, corner of Haynes street, and will occupy it as an addition to its store. This is one of the most conspicuous locations in Hartford. The partition between the two stores is to be removed, which will about double the capacity of the store and afford a window of about 70 feet. The large increase of business necessitates more room, hence these improvements.

The People's Store Company, East Douglass, Mass., has sold out.

C. W. Wright, Pittsfield, Mass., is building a five story brick structure 100 x 40 feet, and will move into it in August next.

Gately & O'Gorman, carpet and furniture dealers at Worcester, Mass., have made an assignment to O. H. Carpenter and Walter M. Lindsay, of Boston. A deputy sheriff has placed James E. Forrest in the store as keeper. The firm has stores in several other cities, and the assignment is said to involve a large amonnt. The proprietors of the business have been Mrs. Margaret E. Gately and James F. Suttle, of Boston, the former having full proprietorship of the Worcester branch, with Edward E. Dodge as manager. The cause of the assignment is understood to be an action of contract brought by John P. Gately against Mrs. Margaret E. Gately.

The Guy Furniture Company, Worcester, Mass., has recently made extensive alterations and has added new stores, thereby making its floor space double what it had been. The entire Eaton, Silman and Sawyer blocks are now occupied by the firm. To fittingly commemorate the opening of these new stores a grand opening was held on April 26. The Worcester National Band was in attendance, and in the Silman and Eaton blocks graphophone concerts were in order. The casual observer is likely to be mistaken at the amount of room one would think there was behind their store front. There are seventeen floors in all, including four basements, and the second and third floors of the spacious building corner of Park street and Allen court. Three new elevators take the customers over all parts of the main store.

Dunlap Carpet Company, printed Velvets and Tapestries and the new "pure worsted yarn" goods; Hodges Fiber Carpet Company and Farr & Bailey, oil cloth and linoleums.

McCutcheon.—Harry McCutcheon, of Hardenbergh & Co., Brooklyn, is with his regiment, the Forty-seventh, of Brooklyn, at Camp Black, Hempstead, N. Y.

Quinn.—Thomas Quinn, son of Pat Quinn, the veteran porter of the Lowell Company, is a lieutenant and acting captain of a company in the Sixty-ninth Regiment, N. G. N. Y., now in camp at Hempstead, L. I.

Storer.—E. G. Storer, formerly with W. & J. Sloane, is now a member of the selling staff of Sperry & Beale.

Wills.—H. O. Wills has left O. W. Richardson & Co., Chicago, to take charge of the general store of Biggs & Pollard, Espanola, N. M.

LOWELL COMPANY'S CARPETS AND RUGS.

Besides the lines of Wiltons, Axminsters, Brussels, Three Plys and Extra Supers, the offerings include a notable novelty in a choice line of Wilton rugs called the Bagdads. These goods are shown now for the first time. They are made 9x12 feet, and other sizes will be added to the line. The patterns comprised in them are admirable specimens of high class designs and colorings, and the great success of the line is beyond question, buyers who have seen it having shown their appreciation of it most promptly and decidedly.

On page 93 of this issue F. P. Bhumgara & Co., importers and manufacturers of East Indian wares, call attention to an important and novel offering in a line of East Indian cocoa fibre squares, made in carpet, rug and mat sizes. In Ingrains they show an immense line, comprising Extra Supers, Extra Super C. C.'s, Wool fines, Unions, Terries, &c. In every grade a large variety of new and handsome patterns will be found, and the line is in all respects the finest ever brought out by Leedom & Co.

The line of Art Squares includes those well-known grades, the "Arabian," "Dundee," Standard Extra Supers, C. C. wool fillings and Unions and the new Medallions in a wide range of new and artistic effects. The Medallions are choice all wool goods, made in three sizes, 3x3, 3x3½ and 3x4 yards, and in a particularly handsome line of patterns.

Smyrna carpets, rugs and mats are always a highly important feature of Leedom & Co.'s offerings, and the line they now show is the finest they have ever produced.

The wide and liberal appreciation which the products of Leedom & Co.'s mills have found in the trade is clearly shown in the fact that all the firm's looms are still running to fill duplicate orders.

The fall offerings are on view at the mills, Bristol, Pa.; the New York salesrooms, 115 Worth street, where Samuel Thomas, of the firm, is in charge; at 221 Fifth avenue, Chicago; 67 Chauncy street, Boston, and the Flood Building, San Francisco.

IRON CITY ITEMS.

Pittsburg, May 9.

The carpet and furniture trade of the Smoky City has improved considerably during the week past, and a good May month is hoped for, April business not being what it should have been.

An event of the past week of interest to the trade was the sale of the furnishings of the magnificent Hotel Henry, which opened its doors to the public with a great flourish of trumpets about a year ago and closed them under the sheriff's hammer on the 5th inst. D. F. Henry, of the D. F. Henry Company, carpet and furniture auction house, of Pittsburg, owned the building, and bought in the entire furnishings for about $8,000. They are said to be worth fully $100,000. As his judgment is over $22,000, the other creditors may get nothing.

Dain & Dashbach the Smithfield street carpet and furniture dealers, suffered a loss of about $10,000 as the result of fire last week, which originated in the basement in the packing department.

The C. H. Rowe Company opens the big East End Dry Goods Store the present week. This establishment is the first "big" store in the East End, the wealthy residential portion of the city. The company has a paid in capital of $150,000. E. B. Jeffcoat, late with Jos. Horne & Co., assumes charge of the upholstery and drapery department. The general management is in the hands of F. W. Green, of Syracuse, N. Y.

Edmundson & Perine opened their large new stores the past week.

Al Legheny.

The firm will show extensive lines of Lowell Brussels and Wiltons, and Bigelow, Hartford and Lowell Axminsters in new, original designs and colorings, prepared expressly for Arnold, Constable & Co., and shown exclusively by them. Schofield, Mason & Co.'s Brusssls and Wiltons will also be shown in both private and open patterns, and Stinson Brothers' Velvets and Tapestries are also included in the offerings.

H. Dauvergne & Co., manufacturers of Oriental carpets in wool and pashmina, at Srinagar, Kashmere, East Indies, invite correspondence and indents from the trade. Dauvergne & Co. are running over 200 looms in their own factories and are in a position to offer special inducements to all who handle Oriental rugs.

Dickey & McMaster, manufacturers of the popular Granite Ingrains, have their new line for the fall trade on view at their mills, Second and Huntingdon streets, Philadelphia, and at the office of Blake Brothers, their selling agents, 108 Worth street, New York. The new line is replete with novel and attractive effects, well calculated to maintain the great popularity of their Granite Ingrains, Damasks and other grades.

CURRENT CARPET CHAT.

Probably 30,000 people visited the storerooms of Edmundson & Perrine, 635 and 637 Smithfield street, Pittsburg, on May 5, the occasion being the reopening of their model establishment. Their complete line is shown at 564 Washington street, Boston, and their New York office is in the Hartford Building, Broadway and Seventeenth street.

John H. Pray, Sons & Co. announce that their fall lines in private patterns of Wiltons and Brussels are now complete and ready for showing. There is probably not a line of high grade goods in this country that is more widely distributed than these, and while the patterns and colorings are selected with the idea of attracting the best class of trade, they also have a large number of styles that are suited to a medium class trade, who want somewhat brighter effects, yet are willing to purchase the best quality fabric. Even in these times Pray reports a large business, one far in excess of last season, especially in their cut order Wilton department.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT FROM JOHN H. PRAY, SONS & CO.

The following announcement is made by John H. Pray, Sons & Co., Boston, and is pertinent to the present condition of the carpet market:

"During the present temporary, as we believe, readjustment of values on carpetings we are prepared to make prices on all grades, and can furnish same immediately from stock.

"Send us your duplicates on Lowell Brussels, Lowell Extras, Whittall Brussels, Roxbury Tapestries and Smith Tapestries.

"As doubtless most of our customers have already a sufficient quantity of old patterns, secured through the medium of 'auction sales,' 'surplus stocks,' &c., we would say that our fall lines will be largely made up of new, desirable patterns and colorings, selected and to be distributed in such a way that a retailer can control a pattern, and thereby secure a profit.

"If this seems to be a reasonable principle, we shall be glad to show our lines to our friends and answer correspondence.

"Our new private patterns in Wiltons and Brussels are now ready. The line is unsurpassed in colorings for medium and high class trade."

The statement that they are prepared to make prices on all grades of carpetings has a clear meaning in coming from such a responsible source, and their customers and other buyers may rely on filling their present wants at competing market rates.

Among the buyers in Philadelphia last week were David C. Litt, accompanied by John S. Luthy, of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.; Alex. T. Primm, Jr., of J. Duncker, of the Trorlicht, Duncker & Renard Carpet Company, St. Louis; P. M. Gallahue, of D. P. Erwin & Co., Indianapolis; Mr. Schneider, of Alms & Doepke; Mr. Spielman, of the Geo. F. Otte Company; Justus Goebel, of Lowry & Goebel, and R. J. Bonser, of Cincinnati. As a rule all reported having had a good spring trade and being in shape to order goods for fall.

Three men stole a truck load of valuable Turkish and Persian rugs, valued at $15,000, on the 14th inst. The truck was in front of the store of Costikyan Fréres, an importer at No. 139 Broadway, New York, and the driver was in the store when the three men jumped on the truck, and one, seizing the reins, drove off. This action was not noticed by anyone in the store, and the men went up to Mulberry street, where they sold rugs valued at from $50 to $600 apiece for $10, $5, or whatever they could get. When the absence of the truck was discovered by the Messrs. Costikyan's driver the police were notified. Detectives found the truck on Mulberry street, and one of the three men peddling the rugs from it. Most of the rugs were still in the truck, but rugs valued at about $2,500 had been sold. About $2,000 worth of these were recovered, some from an Italian tenement at No. 114 Mulberry street and others at No. 166 Hester street.

GREAT SALE OF SMITH CARPETING.

SIXTH AUCTION SALE OF THE PRODUCT OF THE ALEXANDER SMITH & SONS' CARPET COMPANY.

The auction sale of Smith carpeting and rugs announced in our last issue was opened on the 3d inst. The sale was held on the street floor of the new building at Nos. 37 to 41 East Eighteenth street, adjoining the premises of W. & J. Sloane. There was a large attendance of the trade, every section of the country being represented, and especially the West. Promptly at 10:15 o'clock A. M. Mr. John Christopher Wilmerding, of the auction firm of Wilmerding, Morris & Mitchell, began the day's proceedings by stating the terms of sale, which were approved notes at four months for all sums over $100, and for sums under that amount cash without discount. Mr. Wilmerding then introduced Mr. Walter W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane, who made a short address as follows:

JOHN CHRISTOPHER WILMERDING.

Gentlemen of the carpet trade—One word before we commence, to remove any apprehension that we are looking toward lower prices for carpets.

The day for low prices has gone by. Manufacturers are now using wool that has paid the new duty, increasing the cost of the manufacture of carpets from 7½ to 15 cents per yard. This is true, I know, of the Smith Company, who have for the last three months been using entirely wool on which the new duty has been paid. Besides this, we are now offering a much smaller quantity of goods than we have usually sold at these special sales—certainly less than half the amount we sold six months ago. Take, for instance, Moquette carpets; you took from us in the first part of November 23,500 pieces, and we only offer now 5,500 pieces, the looms that made them formerly having been altered to make the new Axminster fabric, which is being offered to you for the first time to-day. It is an uncommonly good fabric; the price has been fixed at a low rate, and we commend it to your favorable consideration. Moquettes have had during the last few months a most unprecedented sale, and they will hereafter be sold more nearly on a basis of the price list which has been current than they have been sold under the pressure of the enormous sale of the last six months.

With the country in a revived condition, as is shown by large increase in savings banks deposits and railroad earnings, higher prices for nearly every commodity and wheat at unparalleled prices, it is inevitable that the demand for carpets and the prices of carpets must keep step with the general advance.

The reality of war is to-day far less detrimental than the apprehension of it was a few weeks ago to us as a nation given wholly to the avocations of peace. Why should we be afraid with 75,000,000 of united people to measure our strength with a nation of 17,000,000 —more than one-half of whom cannot read or write? The victories that we are rejoicing in to-day are but the forerunner of business bursting into activity.

Take counsel, gentlemen, of your courage, and not of your fears, for this nation is surely moving on to a period of prosperity on a broader and sounder basis than ever before.

The first lot on the catalogue was then put up by Mr. Wilmerding. It consisted of three pieces of Velvet and one piece of border, and was knocked down to Sterling, Welch & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, at 68 cents a yard. The duplicates of this lot brought the same price. One hundred and thirteen lots of Velvets were sold, and then followed about 125 lots of Saxony Axminster. After them came the F Palisade Tapestries. The sale continued until 4 o'clock P. M., with an intermission of half an hour for luncheon. The afternoon sales were conducted by Mr. John Currie Wilmerding, whose vigorous, dashing style is familiar to the trade. At times the goods sold rather slowly—a fact due chiefly to the smallness of the lots and the consequent extra effort required to distribute them.

It would be unnecessary to describe the proceedings of the five days in detail. It is sufficient to say that the prices realized throughout were fair, speaking generally. The old or unpopular patterns brought very low prices, but almost all the really desirable offerings were disposed of at a fair price, and the competition for duplicates was very keen. By Friday it had become evident that it would be impossible to finish the sale on the following day, and as many of the out-of-town trade did not wish to remain in New York over Sunday, it was decided to adjourn the sale on Saturday afternoon and resume it later in the month. The proceedings were therefore suspended at about 2 o'clock P. M. on the 7th inst., the last lot sold being No. 1814, a short length of Ne Plus Ultra carpeting. On the sale of this lot Mr. Paul Heubner, of W. & J. Sloane, announced that the new patterns of Saxony Axminster which came next on the catalogue would not be offered then, but that the sale would be resumed in the near future. As announced elsewhere in this issue it will reopen May 31 next.

JOHN CURRIE WILMERDING.

At the time of our going to press the exact quantity of goods sold has not been ascertained, but it is safe to say that about 55,000 pieces of carpeting were disposed of apart from the great quantity of rugs distributed. There is little doubt that when the goods which remain on the catalogue, with probable additions, are disposed of, the sale will rank as the greatest in the history of the carpet trade.

Observations at the Sale.

The progress of the great sale was an interesting study. There is no question that the official news of Commodore Dewey's great victory had a stimulating effect on the first day, and the consequent buoyant feeling aided in obtaining the prices which went beyond even some sanguine expectations. A great surprise to many buyers was the prices obtained for Moquettes, which averaged about 61 or 62 cents. This was doubtless owing, in the first place, to the offerings being much less in quantity than was anticipated, and also to the excellence of patterns, some patterns going as high as 71 cents. One well-known buyer told us that he had anticipated buying Moquettes certainly under 50 cents, and had advertised them to retail at 58 cents the week previous, in order to have as clean a deck as possible. He said it was lucky for him that the weather was stormy during the two days he advertised Moquettes at 58 cents, because fortunately, the sales made at that price were very light.

The jobbers considered the arrangement of the catalogue as more in favor of the retail buyer than of them, and would have preferred to have the original lots in larger quantities. The J and E rugs, the Ne Plus Ultra rugs and the large sized seamed Axminster rugs all went freely, and after the price was made by knocking down the original lot there was a great scramble to get duplicates.

Many buyers were shut out by their inability to attract the auctioneer's attention before the duplicates were all sold, and it was demonstrated that a much larger quantity of rugs would have been taken up than was offered.

A feature of the sale was the low price brought by the first lots of plain Velvet fillings, as demonstrated by the fact that the retail department of W. & J. Sloane became active bidders for the goods, which raised the price 15 or 20 cents a yard over the first figures obtained.

It was a trying week on the buyers who remained throughout the sale, as the task of giving close attention to purchasing judiciously was an ordeal to the nerves of even the coolest buyer. Those who had the patience to hold out profited, as on one day, when the sale was prolonged until 5:30, prices certainly went lower because of the tired out condition of the audience.

The representation of both buyers and sellers was one that occurs under one roof only on such an occasion, as we certainly have not seen together so many members of the trade since the Smith sale in 1893. The rear of the salesroom witnessed greetings between men who meet but very infrequently, and about all the leading manufacturers and salesmen paid a visit to the auction room at some time during the week. With very few exceptions the visitors in no way interfered with the sale or diverted the attention of buyers, as everyone realized the propriety of holding aloof from the buyers during the progress of the sale. During intermission and after sale hours, however, buyers were greeted by the sellers and doubtless considerable business resulted through the presence of so many purchasers in the market.

A rumor has spread persistently that the project of distributing the production of the large 3-4 goods mills through periodical sales of this character has been broached. The idea is said to be that the importance of these sales will attract the buyers to the market and save the expense of traveling salesmen. We have found it impossible to ascertain whether this project has been discussed or not, but some of the large manufacturers assure us that they would not even consider such a proposition.

The absence of some important buyers from the sale and the fact that many present did not purchase to an extent commensurate with their standing, together with the semi-official statements as to what other manufacturers were doing, rather prove the conclusion that other manufacturers of Velvets and Tapestries were making concessions on surplus stocks to meet as far as possible auction conditions.

While we do not desire to prophesy or make statements to affect the action of buyers, yet we cannot help believing that the prices ruling at the auction or at private sale during this month constitute a temporary condition. It is settled by the very best authority that the prices obtained at the auction, and which were made for surplus stocks of other manufacturers to meet the auction, are far below a profitable basis.

Such prices would not at all be possible under the present cost of carpet wools if it were not for wools free of duty being represented in the goods sold. These old wools, if not already entirely exhausted, must soon be totally consumed, and it only requires a plain arithmetical calculation to prove that carpets made from wools paying a duty of 50 per cent. must certainly be sold for more money than when made from wools free of duty.

Humor of the Sale.

The clever witticisms and sayings of John Christopher Wilmerding and John Currie Wilmerding were in evidence to the entertainment of the company.

When a lot of goods was offered a second time a bid came from a Chicagoan, and immediately a New Yorker offered more. The auctioneer, turning to the Chicago buyer, said: "It isn't yours; Chicago is big, but Greater New York beats you."

A voice came from the crowd: "Cannon, of Newark, one lot." "This is no war," said Wilmerding; "cannon don't go here."

As a group became noisy John Christopher Wilmerding said: "Don't be so obstreperous. Listen to me: I have been a tenor; to-day I'm a baritone." (He had a cold.)

Shortly after the sale commenced a lot was knocked down, the bidder holding up his hand. "What is your name?" shouted Wilmerding; but no response came. "What is your name?" he reiterated in impatient tones. "Marshall Field & Co." was the response. "Oh! I beg your pardon, Mr. Ames," said the auctioneer; "I could not see you." And a general laugh resulted.

"I cannot see that man over there; he looks like a colored man. R. H. White, did you say? Well, he is a white man."

When the 9 by 12 Moquette rugs were being sold there was a great scramble to get in, and many efforts were made to attract the auctioneer's eye, some very amusing in the choice of words. "Am I a dog?" said the crier; "why don't you whistle at me?"

A buyer was somewhat angered at not succeeding in getting a lot after making strenuous efforts to attract the eye of the seller, so he said to John Currie Wilmerding: "Why don't you look this way some time?" "I am looking there now," was the response; "what do you say?" "Oh, yes, you look this way when the thing is no good." "Yes, I'm looking at you," responded Mr. Wilmerding, and the laugh was on the buyer.

Miss Nora Judd, daughter of C. B. Judd, of the Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company, will be married next month to Mr. Charles Powers, who is a member of the Grand Rapids office staff of the Bissell Company.

Senator Krum's mileage book bill has been signed by Governor Black. It provides that every railroad operating more than 100 miles of road in this State shall issue mileage books having either 500 or 1,000 coupons attached, these books to be issued immediately upon application. They shall entitle the holder or any member of his family or firm or any salesman of his firm to travel for a number of miles equal to the number of coupons detached by the conductor.

The line of medium all wool Supers shown by Henry Rath, Jr., will command attention for the exceptionally large assortment of patterns as well as the beauty of same. Mr. Rath has exercised excellent judgment in the selection of fall styles, and presents a line which for beauty and originality is equal in every way to the full Extra Super productions. No. 963 in Mediums is an exceptionally handsome pattern in a large scroll and is made in fourteen different shades. His lines of Unions and Cottons also contain an ample variety, the majority of which are new this season. The goods can be seen at Mr. Rath's mill salesroom, Fifth street and Columbia avenue, Philadelphia.

J. & J. DOBSON'S FALL LINES.

The fall patterns in J. & J. Dobson's various lines are completed, and contain additional demonstrations of this firm's careful attention to patterns and colorings. The new effects are original conceptions, and make the lines altogether different from those of other manufacturers, while the firm have adhered to the plan of improving rather than diminishing the quality. Their specialties in Mosaics, the seamless Velvet carpets and in 11 wire Crown Tapestries are fabrics which will repay attention from every buyer throughout the country. The Crown Tapestry has the closest pile of any tapestry produced, and the effects in design and coloring are equally high class.

Their other productions are Royal Wiltons, Crown Axminsters, A A Velvets, Imperial Velvets — which are doubtless unsurpassed for value and good selling features —A Body Brussels, B Body Brussels, A A Tapestries and XXX Tapestries. The fall goods are on show at the Philadelphia, New York and Boston offices, and will be displayed to the trade on the road this month.

EMPIRE EXTRA SUPERS.

In contemplation of the important change in their methods of distribution, David Jackson & Son gave extra efforts to the preparation of their fall lines. The result is an offering which in variety and attractiveness places their goods in a strong position as competitors for trade. As the line will doubtless go before many new customers this season, we might add that David Jackson & Son are among the oldest Ingrain manufacturers in Philadelphia, and their goods have been marketed for several years past through Tefft, Weller & Co., of New York, under the brands of Empire Extra Supers and C. C.'s, Stratford Extra Supers, Eclipse Unions and Royal Cottons.

The fall samples are in the hands of the sole selling agents, T. B. Shoaff & Co., 935 Broadway, New York.

George Van Dyne will soon be among his customers with the fall lines of Wm Henderson's Ingrains. He introduced the goods to his trade during the spring season with satisfactory results, giving additional evidence that Mr. Van Dyne can always rely upon obtaining a due share of trade. He will be strongly fortified with handsome patterns for fall.

Granite Ingrains have been very free sellers during the past season, their style, appearance and durability, combined with the very moderate price, appealing to consumers especially throughout the West. The goods are made by the James Hall Carpet Company, Dickey & McMaster, John Watt's Sons and others in Philadelphia, and it will be to the advantage of buyers to examine their merits.

F. G. Rogers, 1015 Filbert street, Philadelphia, was among the important purchasers at the big auction sale and is now offering such purchases at a nominal advance over cost price. His assortment is replete with attractive patterns in Axminsters, Moquettes, Velvets, Tapestries and rugs, and dealers desiring immediate deliveries of carpeting at lowest market prices should communicate with him.

PHILIP DOERR & SONS.

A strong assortment of radically new patterns in all wool Extra Supers has been brought out by Philip Doerr & Sons for the fall trade.

That value and preference are placed on patterns must be acknowledged by all buyers, and in this respect the Doerr Ingrains give as much for the money as any make of goods in the market, and a great deal more than many makes.

Another point in purchasing these goods is the reliability of quality, a feature it is wise to bear in mind, especially in a market of disturbed prices. The firm's line of Unions is of the same attractive nature as the all wool Extras, and the fall patterns cover the field of newest furnishing ideas.

The lines may be seen at the mill, Fifth street and Columbia avenue, Philadelphia, and at the New York office in the Hartford Building.

THE KHORASAN RUG.

The new Khorasan rugs made by Barnes & Beyer will be ready for inspection at the firm's Philadelphia and New York offices this week. As stated in our last issue the Khorasan is an entirely new production in a one-piece carpet of high quality, made in sizes 6x9, 7.6x10.6 and 9x12 feet. As the only fabric of the kind produced in this country it will be certainly interesting and profitable for buyers to give particular attention to viewing these goods.

T. B. SHOAFF & CO.

As selling agents the firm of T. B. Shoaff & Co. have long held an especially conspicuous position, and their offerings for the fall trade are even more extensive, varied and attractive than ever before.

They show as sole agents Roxbury Tapestries in both ten wire and the new nine wire grades, the latter being offered this season to the trade for the first time. John Rippel's eight wire goods are an additional and new attraction in the Tapestry offering. In Wiltons, Brussels and Plush carpets, Shoaff & Co. show the complete lines of M. J. Whittall. In Ingrains they offer the very popular lines of David Jackson & Son, and they show, as usual, John Bromley & Sons' immense product of Smyrna rugs and carpets in new and standard patterns.

Shoaff & Co. expect a big fall trade, have evidently made ample preparations, and there is no doubt that their expectations will be fully realized.

An agent in Canada is wanted to represent a manufacturer of Smyrna rugs, chenille and tapestry curtains and table covers, lace curtains, &c. An agent for Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas is also wanted by the same concern See our "Special Notice" columns.

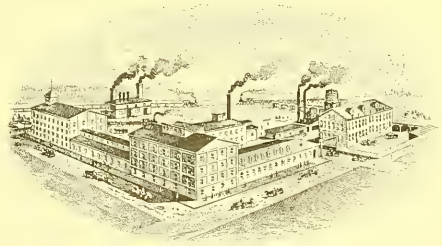
E. L. Farr, of the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company, returned from a six weeks' trip abroad on the 3d inst. He speaks very warmly of the manner in which he was entertained by Mr. Shepherd, of Kirkcaldy, and other manufacturers in Scotland and England. He also visited Paris and a few points on the Continent.

THE JUDGE BROTHERS CARPET COMPANY.

The carpet manufacturing firm of Wm. Judge & Brothers has been succeeded by the Judge Brothers Carpet Company, incorporated under the laws of Pennsylvania with an authorized capital of $150,000. The officers of the company are Wm B. Judge, president; I. C. Kerkeslager, vice-president; James Judge, treasurer and manager. The directors include the above named officers and Isaac Wilde, Albert Schofield, Andrew Flanagan, Joseph M. Adams, Henry G. Reineke and R. B. Judge. The Judge Company are ready with their fall samples of Ingrains, and have made arrangements to distribute their goods more widely than heretofore. They will be represented in New York State and Michigan by F. B. Bru Baker, with office in the Hartford Building, New York; F. D. Greenough in New England, with office at 564 Washington street, Boston; by C. S. Sanderson in Chicago and the West, and by David Neeld in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Washington.

TRENTON LINOLEUM.

The first offerings of the Trenton Oil Cloth and Linoleum Company, of Trenton, N. J., are on view, and prove that the company possess high skill in their designing and coloring departments. They have had the courage to introduce positively new ideas, with the result that their line is a contrasting and individual one and in this respect alone is worthy of attention. The designs are well divided among tile, geometrical and floral effects and there is exceptional novelty in the figures and color combinations.



WORKS OF THE TRENTON OIL CLOTH AND LINOLEUM COMPANY.

There are fourteen patterns in A quality, fourteen in B's, twenty-seven in C's, sixteen in D's and sixteen in E's, an assortment affording excellent opportunity for selection.

The line is now displayed by the selling agent, O. F. Spate, Hartford Building, New York, and will be shown on the road.

In the face of the auction, John H. Pray, Sons & Co. distributed a large number of Roxbury Tapestries on satisfactory terms and prices to their customers. It was a shrewd move on their part to keep their customers in line on goods they supply, rather than to run the chances of their swinging over on other makes of Tapestries, as the result of inducements by other manufacturers. Pray's people are in close touch with the Roxbury Mill, and whenever there is anything worth knowing or having on these goods they are in evidence.

WM. HENDERSON'S INGRAINS.

Wm. Henderson, the Ingrain manufacturer, was pleasantly surprised this month by the revival of duplicating, showing that some dealers were cutting up goods. His spring season has been very successful, and he considers it the best in several years. The Columbia Brussels, which are a heavy weight Ingrain showing Brussels effects, have had a big run, and Mr. Henderson has accordingly increased the assortment of patterns for the fall season. The lines of Extra Supers, C. C.'s and Unions are completed, and will be shown on the road very shortly. They are now on view at the mill, Fifth street and Columbia avenue, Philadelphia.

H. B. CLAFLIN COMPANY'S CARPETS AND ORIENTAL RUGS.

In the carpet department of the H. B. Claflin Company the offerings of Manager Winters for the fall season embrace an immense stock of floor coverings of all descriptions, including Wiltons, Axminsters, Brussels, Velvets, Tapestries, Ingrains, At Squares, Smyrna rugs and mats, linoleum, floor oil cloth, straw mattings, &c. The offerings comprise careful selections from the products of the leading manufacturers in their respective specialties, and also a number of makes controlled exclusively by the H. B. Claflin Company.

The especially strong feature of this season is the enlarged rug department, which will offer not only the exceptionally extensive assortment of domestic rugs as usual, but also a very extensive line of Oriental rugs and carpets selected in the Orient by H. K. Beatty, the company's representative there.

Keefer & Coon, Philadelphia, are ready with their fall lines, including their new Art Squares, which are made in their patent weaves. They report the continuation of duplicating on spring business, and also look for an active business this fall.

If the devotee of Bacchus whose predicament is pictured in the accompanying illustration had had his staircase furnished with patent rubber nosings, there would have been no doubt about his ability to reach the next floor. These patent rubber nosings are noiseless, prevent slipping and are durable and reversible. Send for samples and descriptive circular to Knapp Rubber Binding Company, 335 Broadway, New York.

Voice from above—Are you coming upstairs, dear?
"I—hic—dunno yet."—Life.

The E. R. Artman-Treichler Company, Philadelphia, were important purchasers at the Smith auction sale and have received shipments of their purchases quickly, owing to their nearness to New York. They are consequently able to offer auction goods this week and deliver them at once, and Mr. E. R. Artman assures us that he will make the prices low enough to interest any buyer.

FARR & BAILEY MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

The spring trade of the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company, Camden, N. J., manufacturers of floor oil cloths, was very satisfactory, and Mr. Farr says that the permanent favor of popular priced floor oil cloths is well demonstrated.

The new fall line of patterns is completed, and a larger portion than usual will be shown for the first time, including several new rugs.

It should be remembered that this company stand in the front ranks in regard to large production, and have one of the biggest and best equipped plants in the country. It therefore pays to consult them.

HIRST & ROGER'S VELVETS AND TAPESTRIES.

With the increased facilities of their new mill Hirst & Roger are in shape to fill orders satisfactorily, and their fall line of patterns in Velvets and Tapestries is a much larger and stronger one in every way than any previously offered by them.

Their seven wire "Spring Garden" and eight wire "Wissahickon" Tapestries are noted for their exceptionally brilliancy of coloring, and have proved popular selling goods. They make a worsted faced Velvet which was brought out last season and which is shown in an increased assortment of patterns for the fall. The mill and salesroom are at Kensington and Allegheny avenues, Philadelphia.

Thos. Caves & Sons displayed their fall line of Keystone Velvets in New York during the week of the auction sale in a temporary office in the Hartford Building, and Thos. Caves, Jr., reports placing good blocks of his fall productions. The fall line is certainly a very handsome one, and should be viewed by all large users of Velvets.

The arrival home of Mr. C. B. Fritz from his purchasing tour to the Orient enables Fritz & La Rue to interest early fall buyers of Oriental rugs and carpets, and we strongly advise the trade who will visit the Eastern market within the next fortnight to consult this firm on their offerings and prices at their headquarters, 1128 and 1130 Market street, Philadelphia.

It was remarked that John H. Pray, Sons & Co. were noticeable on account of their small buying at the recent auction sale. Both F. S. Chick and Mr. Cole were on hand to keep in touch with the sale and take advantage of any opportunities that might arise. Mr. Chick jokingly remarked, when asked why they were small buyers, that the situation was too complex for him, and that it was a good time to follow out the old adage, that when a man does not know what to do he would better do nothing.

The plant of James Pollock & Son, Philadelphia, has been running to fullest capacity throughout the spring season on their celebrated Damasks and Venetians, and also on Ingrains, the season doubtless being the best one they have experienced in several years. Besides making the best qualities of Damasks and Venetians, Pollock & Son are noted for the promptness with which they fill orders, a feature which is of importance to large buyers especially. Fred Scheck is doing excellent service, as usual, in their selling department.

THE "ARLINGTON" RUGS.

The new "Arlington" Axminster rugs, made by the Bigelow Carpet Company, and sold by Arnold, Constable & Co., are certain to be in great demand. They are made in the Imperial Axminster grade, and in three sizes: 26x36 inches, 27x54 inches and 36x63 inches. The patterns cover a wide range of Oriental and floral styles, and in designs and colorings as in fabric, these rugs well maintain the high reputation of the manufacturers.

THE IVINS, DIETZ & METZGER COMPANY.

The Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Co. are ready with their fall offerings of Wiltons, Brussels, Ingrains, Art Squares and Bundhar Wilton rugs. The trade have learned to look for extra choice effects in this company's offerings, and will certainly be well satisfied with those which will be presented to them for the fall season. The collection, as usual, is replete with original ideas in designs and colorings, which, combined with the high qualities of the fabrics, always make the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger goods of more than usual value and desirability.

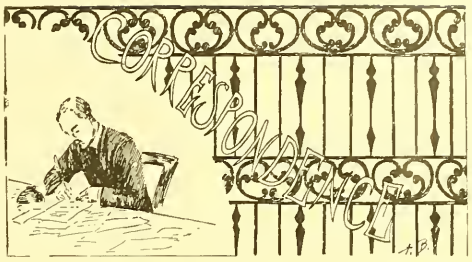
JOHN DUNLAP & SON'S INGRAINS.

John Dunlap & Son will hereafter be represented in Chicago and a portion of the West by Evoy & Flanigan, with office at 186 Market street, Chicago, where their new fall lines are now on view. The salesmen of Evoy & Flanigan will also display the samples on the road shortly. John A Cole & Son will represent Dunlap & Son in St. Louis and the Southwest. Otherwise their representatives throughout the country will be the same as last season.

The Messrs. Dunlap have prepared their usual large assortment of Ingrains in the great variety of grades made by them from all wool Three Plys down to Cottons. We can assure buyers who have not yet handled the Dunlap productions that they can order with the certainty of being thoroughly satisfied in quality and styles, as the firm's reputation is of the highest as manufacturers of salable and reliable goods.

W. W. Fish, who owned the building in which Heyland & Brown carried on their dry goods and carpet business at Elmira, N. Y., and who bought the stock at mortgagees' sale, has decided to continue the business, and was in New York last week buying goods.

The big six story brick block at the southwest corner of Bank and Lake streets, Cleveland, Ohio, was gutted by fire on the 6th inst. The northern half of the building was owned by the Bradley estate and the southern portion by the Root & McBride Company, wholesale dry goods. The fire was confined to the former, but the stock of the Root & McBride Company was damaged by water and smoke. The total loss will amount to about $125,000, fairly covered by insurance. The fire resulted from an explosion of chemicals in Beeman's chewing gum factory, on the fifth floor of the Bradley end of the building Nearly a dozen manufacturing concerns occupying the several floors suffered losses ranging from $5,000 to $25,000.



How Will Auction Sales Affect Traveling Salesmen?

The recent auction sale of Smith carpeting has presented a serious question to many carpet travelers. How will such sales affect the traveling salesmen representing other manufacturers of carpets?

As a traveling salesman let me ask one question. Out of the 10,000 carpet dealers in the United States, how many attended the late auction sale to purchase their goods? The merchants of the far West and East cannot spare the time to attend such auction sales twice a year, and past experience has taught them that they can deal with all reputable traveling salesmen to as good an advantage as they can by visiting the New York and Philadelphia markets.

Some years ago the Bigelow, Lowell, Hartford, Roxbury, E. S. Higgins Carpet Companies and many others endeavored to sell all their respective products at their salesrooms in this city, but the results soon convinced them that to distribute their goods satisfactorily it was necessary to employ salesmen to visit the trade, who would not call on them. That is the mode of doing business to-day and the manufacturer who is waiting for the trade to call on him for his wares, finds himself at the end of the season with a large surplus stock on hand that he has to sell at a sacrifice.

The manufacturers who are foolish enough to think of withdrawing their traveling representatives and depend on other methods to dispose of their productions, I fear will regret the experiment. The manufacturer who relies on the jobber to distribute his productions will find out his error, as there are many merchants who will buy only from the direct representative of the manufacturer, and the manufacturer cannot at all times rely on the jobber handling his goods the following season. Prices, patterns, &c., have their effect, and he will find that his brother manufacturers have in the meantime visited his former trade, introduced their lines to him, and he has lost their business.

The bulk of the carpet business to-day is done through the traveling representatives of manufacturers, with the exception of the jobbers, who will always come to the open market to make their selections. Hire proper traveling representatives to cover sufficient territory and trade will flourish and prices will be maintained.

Philadelphia.

John Dunlap, Sr., of John Dunlap & Son, Philadelphia, who has been ill for several months, is happily recovering and is now able to be out.

L. Lautenslager, manager of the Pittsburg Dry Goods Company's wholesale carpet department, reports their first season's experience in this line as entirely satisfactory, and that the cut order department is developing very rapidly. Mr. Lautenslager was in New York during the auction sale.

In preparing for the fall trade dealers should bear in mind the rug fasteners manufactured by the Kingston Rug Fastener Company, 546 Washington street, Boston. Their line includes the new invisible fastener and their latest style, the self-locking fastener, which requires no sewing on, and can be secured to rugs or carpets in an instant. Write to the company for samples.

THOS. DEVELON'S SONS.

The Bagaria Wilton Ingrains brought out by Thos. Develon's Sons last season have met with high favor, as anticipated. For the fall season the line of Bagarias will be larger and new effects of the weave will be shown. Many dealers have found in these goods an opportunity to realize an excellent profit through the fact of the fabric being uncommon and from its similar appearance to the higher cost 3-4 goods.

The Akola Ingrain is another patent weave of high quality and showing Brussels effects. The Akolas have been on the market for several seasons, and their great durability and stylish effects have made them favorite sellers.

That the Victoria all wool Extra Supers are superior high grade Extras is readily acknowledged by all who have handled them. The Messrs. Develon have shown rare skill and taste in the selection and preparation of new patterns for the fall season, so that the pattern critics of the trade will find their artistic ideas well anticipated in the fall line.

Other productions of the Victoria Mills are Imperial Extra Supers, a popular priced all wool Extra, C. C. Extras in Victoria and Imperial qualities, Unions, Cottons, hall and stair Ingrains to match.

The samples are now on view at the Philadelphia, New York and various branch offices.

B Beatty goes as a lieutenant in the same regiment, and Louis Grief as a corporal in the Twenty-second Regiment. Major Tobey is well known and very popular in the carpet trade, and is one of the most efficient officers in the New York State Guard.

GLOBE MILLS EXTRAS.

"Best Quality Only" has been the legend nailed to the mast of Thos. Huston & Co.'s reputation ever since they have been in business. This firm occupy an almost exclusive position in the trade, as their entire product is all wool Extra Supers. The result is that the single minded attention given to the goods assures superior effects in designs and colorings, as well as a superior quality of fabric. The proportion of novelties introduced for the fall season is exceptionally large and the adherents of Globe Mills Extras will have every opportunity for judicious selections. Samples are ready at the mills, Trenton avenue and Dauphin street, Philadelphia.

KIRKCALDY LINOLEUM COMPANY.

Herbert Plimpton, as sole agent for the Kirkcaldy Linoleum Company, Limited, is showing their fall lines as prepared for the American trade at his office, 100 Worth street, New York. The company rank among the most extensive manufacturers of linoleum, cork carpets, &c., in the world, and their offerings for the coming season well deserve the prompt attention of buyers who are looking for sterling quality of fabric and choice new artistic patterns, including novelties and specialties which cannot be found elsewhere.

George Wehn, of George Wehn & Son, the Pittsburg commission agents, was in town during the week of the auction sale.

Arthur L. Halliday, the noted designer of carpets and upholstery goods, has been well employed in the preparation of new styles for the fall offerings. Mr. Halliday's studio is in the Cooper studio building, 107 East Twenty-seventh street, New York.

Mr. Groetzinger, of Pittsburg, Pa., wishes us to contradict the statement current that his firm style has been changed to Edward Groetzinger & Co. The name remains E. Groetzinger, and there is no intention to form any company in connection with the business.

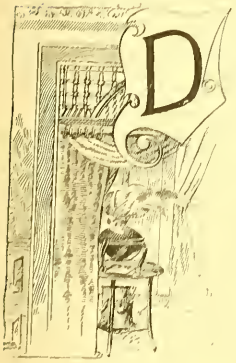
Buyers visiting the city for the large auction sale can well afford to anticipate their wants in Oriental rugs by selecting from the excellent assortment of A. & M. Karaghensian, 365 and 367 Broadway. The stock of this concern is new, and comprises very choice pieces, which can be obtained at lowest market prices.

A successful designer of carpets or wall papers always has his sketch book in his pocket, and is continually looking for some new idea or effect. Students should not confine themselves solely to the drawing of flowers, but should sketch scrolls, geometrical figures, trees, vines, vegetable forms, landscapes, and so forth.—Art Amateur.

David Jackson & Son, Philadelphia, show a line of about forty different patterns in their Empire Extra Supers, and each pattern is made in a variety of different colorings. They have also a very good assortment in their Stratford Extra Supers, Unions and Cottons. T. B. Shoaff & Co., their sole agents, have the line on show in New York.

UPHOLSTERY

The Fortnight.



Domestic manufacturers of lace curtains have their fall season well under way, the travelers having been out for some few weeks past. Orders are reported as good notwithstanding the war conditions, and the experience of the past season should remind buyers that they must order goods early to obtain satisfactory deliveries.

The manufacturers of upholstery piece goods have their lines now before the jobbing trade, and the largest makers seem to be recording fairly satisfactory commencement orders. The assortment of new patterns and colorings is generally large and reflects the highest credit upon the makers.

Complete lines of chenille and tapestry curtains and table covers will not be ready until about June 1, as the buying of draperies is always later than that of upholstery piece goods.

CUSHMAN BROTHERS & CO. JOIN THE COLUMBIA SHADE CLOTH COMPANY.

An important event in the window shade trade is the acquisition of the selling agency of Cushman Brothers & Co.'s window shade product by the Columbia Shade Cloth Company.

The entire product of Cushman Brothers & Co.'s window shade factory will hereafter be sold through the Columbia Company on the same principle as the latter company have been distributing the output of the Minetto, Meriden, Opaque, Penn and Western companies, and Hees, Macfarlane & Co.'s products.

The store of Cushman Brothers & Co., at 121 and 123 Kingston street, Boston, has become the Boston salesroom of the Columbia Company.

THE HYNDMAN & MOORE COMPANY.

As outlined in previous issues, the business of Hyndman & Moore, the well known curtain and upholstery manufacturers, has been incorporated under the title of the Hyndman & Moore Company. The president of the new company is John Moore, the vice-president Mr. Hyndman and the treasurer James Pollock. The productions of the new company consist of Tapestry curtains, table covers and piece goods; chenille curtains and table covers and linen velour curtains and piece goods. The linen velours, which are those formerly made by the McIlwain Manufacturing Company, are well known throughout the trade and will be continued by the Hyndman & Moore Company in the usual large assortment of colors. The curtains and table covers made by the old concern of Hyndman & Moore have been noted as good sellers and always reliable in fabric. The new company will have 115 power looms, placing their plant in the front ranks as regards production, which is an increase of one third over their former output. The increased looms come through the addition of the late McIlwain Company's plant and of the looms formerly operated by the Horner Brothers Company, the latter having been recently purchased from Jos. H. Bromley. The complete fall lines in all grades are now in the hands of the sole selling agent, W. E. Rosenthal, 458 Broadway, New York, and may also be seen at the branch offices in Chicago and St Louis and at the mill, Coral and Adams streets, Philadelphia.

FLAG WINDOW SHADES.

The store windows of the Jay C. Wemple Company, in New York, are hung with translucent shades showing a representation of the national flag. The company will execute orders for flag shades in any size.

COZY CORNER FOR A SMALL ROOM.

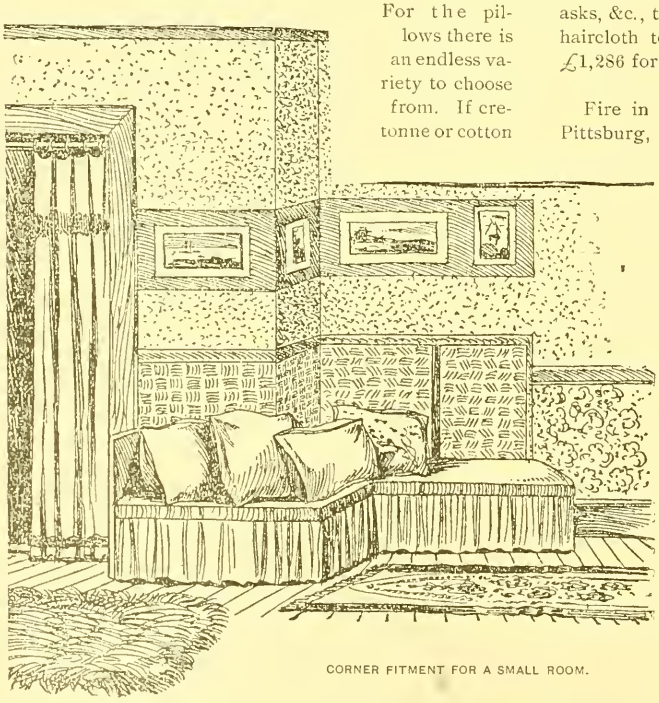
Most of the cozy corners that are seen can be used only in large rooms. As many who live in small apartments still have a longing for one of these attractive nooks, the one given in the illustration may serve as a hint if nothing more. To the young couples having but little furniture it will also serve to help beautify the little nest. All that is required is a bench that will fit around the corner as a foundation on which to build. The rest is a matter of individual taste. Pretty cretonnes and cotton stuffs, Japanese crapes, heavy linen embroidered in outline—in fact, almost any material that fancy dictates—will serve for covering couch and cushions.

First make a valance of ruffle of any of the goods selected and tack to the bench, so that the cushions when in place will entirely cover the edge. It may be either simply gathered or laid in large double box plaits, as preferred.

The cushions must fit the seat perfectly. Above the bench to a height of about 3 feet tuck Chinese or Japanese matting on the walls in panels, secured by strips of picture molding that will harmonize with the rest of the woodwork in the room. At a distance of a foot above the molding stretch and paste some cartridge paper. The color of this must depend on the color scheme of the corner and room. A dull blue or gray, sage green and terra-cotta all make excellent backgrounds. Upon this hang some well chosen etchings in white or oak frames.

For the pillows there is an endless variety to choose from. If cretonne or cotton stuffs are used for the cushion and frill, then the same idea must be carried out in the pillows. But if tapestries are used, they may be of silk or wool, or in fact almost any goods that one may fancy. The squares that come for this purpose of tapestry in soft, dull colorings and quaint designs are very effective. On the floor a rug of Eastern make, be it a genuine Oriental or a Japanese jute, can be laid to good effect whatever the color scheme may be. The colorings and designs of costly rugs are so well reproduced in the inexpensive sorts that one can easily be selected to harmonize with almost any furnishing.

Such a corner if carried out with good taste and an eye to artistic effects of color cannot fail to be an attractive feature in any room, and will add much to the cozy, homelike feeling of an apartment.



CORNER FITMENT FOR A SMALL ROOM.

Cheney Brothers, South Manchester, Conn., the largest firm of silk manufacturers in the country, have announced that for every man in their employ who has volunteered they will pay $25 a month toward his family, or to those who have sisters, brothers or parents dependent on them, and will also see that they will not want while the men are away. Besides this, each man who passes the examination will be insured for $2,000, the firm paying the premiums. In case of death the families will be the beneficiaries.

During the month of March there were exported from the consular district of Bradford, England, to the United States tapestry, damasks, &c., to the value of £58. During the same month haircloth to the value of £293 was exported, as against £1,286 for the same month of 1897.

Fire in the building occupied by Dain & Daschbach, Pittsburg, Pa., on the 2d inst. damaged the furniture and upholstery stock to the extent of 15 to 25 per cent. of the insurance.

An excellent porch curtain for piazzas that are somewhat limited in size and may not harbor the useful rattan screen is made of striped cotton canvas, like that used for awnings. This is fringed on the lower edge, and is put up to the upper cross beam of the porch railing by brass rings. Through these rings runs a manilla rope, by which it is easy to adjust the curtain. This is a better shelter than the bamboo piazza shade, as it not only tempers the sunlight, but keeps off a strong wind or a sudden summer shower that may try to interrupt some piazza festivities.

"Hello, Jerry; got your new flat all fitted up?"

"Not quite. I say, do you know where I can buy a folding tooth brush?"

GREATER NEW YORK

Joseph Huhn, the veteran furniture dealer and upholsterer, Brooklyn, has removed from 58 Court street to 134 Livingston street.

Charles Jagnaschek, who until a year ago had an upholstery shop on Myrtle avenue, near Nostrand, Brooklyn, where he was burned out, without insurance, committed suicide on May 3 on account of business reverses.

The residence of L. K. Phillips at 830 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn, was entered by burglars on the night of May 1. They ransacked the house, sat in the library, smoked cigarettes and ate sandwiches and pies. Mr. Phillips says the thieves carried away wedding presents, jewelry and silverware valued at more than $1,000. Mr. Phillips is engaged in the upholstery business at 629 Park avenue, New York.

Fire in the upholstery shop of John Kesser, at 351 Third avenue, on the 10th inst., ruined $2,500 worth of the dealer's stock and did some little damage to the house in which the shop is situated. It is supposed that some person stepped upon a match and accidentally ignited the upholstery materials. Ruby Lippman, one of Kesser's employees, was burned about the face and was taken in an ambulance to his home at 25 Market street.

Fire in the window shade factory at No. 173 Canal street shortly after noon on May 4 created a panic among the employees of the place. The blaze started on the fourth floor of the building, which is a five story brick structure, occupied on the ground floor by J. Fred Cowan, agent for the Empire Metallic Bedstead Company, and by T. M. James, window shade manufacturer, through the remaining floors. There were forty or more girls employed in making window shades on the fourth floor. They made a rush to the rear fire escape, and while some scrambled down to the street, others were drawn to the roof by the firemen; still others entered the windows of an adjoining building, and then proceeded in safety to the street. The firemen had a brisk fight, and it was necessary to send in a second alarm before the fire was extinguished. The four upper floors were gutted. Mr. James' damage is about $7,500 from fire and water. The bedstead company will lose about $3,000 from water, and the owner of the building, the Jarvis estate, will lose about $1,500. Fischer & Denhert, manufacturers of upholstered furniture, and Frederick Goll, New York representative of the Adams & Westlake Company, suffered more or less by water. The losses are all covered by insurance.

Exports of shade rollers from the port of New York during the past four weeks were as follows: Liverpool, $160 pkgs., $2,254; London, 32 pkgs., $515; Glasgow, 16 pkgs., $277.

S. Lustig, who has been with Ludwig Brothers, of Fourteenth street, for many years, has leased a building at Third avenue and 107th street, and will shortly embark in business for himself carrying a line of dry goods, upholstery, &c.

H. J. Button has removed his office from 43 Leonard street to the Hartford Building, 41 Union square, where he will continue to represent, as before, the Trenton Oil Cloth and Linoleum Company (as now styled) in table and enameled goods.

Unable to find work and for a week with hardly any food in the house, Henry Lee, forty-seven years old, an upholsterer, of 744 East 167th street, took carbolic acid on the 2d inst. His wife found him half conscious in his bedroom. When the Fordham Hospital ambulance surgeon arrived Lee was dead. The man leaves two young children. The widow has absolutely nothing and is in a pitiable condition.

George W. Cole, dealer in antiques, curios and bric-a brac, at No. 19 East Fourteenth street, made an assignment on the 12th inst. to Charles Perkins, without preference. Mr. Cole was employed in this line for ten years, and began business for himself in May, 1888, claiming to have a cash capital of $15,000 and also to have an interest in real estate on Fifth avenue. Rollins & Rollins, his attorneys, said that the assignment was caused by the depression in his line of business in the past few years. They could not state the amount of the liabilities or assets at present.

Thomas Stone, who has established himself in the engraving business at 177th street, near Boston Road, has a plant equipped with the latest improved machinery, and employs only skilled workmen. Personally Mr. Stone is the only artist doing this work in the city, and he has had a wide experience in all the branches of engraving rollers for the printing and embossing of textile fabrics, silks, calicoes, plushes and corduroys of all descriptions. Wall paper embossing rollers are also a specialty of his, as well as rollers for oil cloth and paper. He guarantees first-class work and is well and favorably known to the trade.

Benjamin Fitch, doing business as B. Fitch & Co , manufacturer of bedding and dealer in furniture at No. 27 West Forty-second street, and Nos. 433 and 435 West Forty-second street made an assignment on the 5th inst. to Clarence L. Goldenberg, manager of the New York office of Kemble & Mills, giving preferences for $3,693; to William Wilkens & Co., $1,496; A. F. Brunier & Co., of Baltimore, $1,500; Taylor & Ellis, $297 ; the H. B. Claflin Company, $300, and M. P. C. Meyers, $100. Mr. Fitch has been in business over twenty-five years. He became embarrassed in April 1896, and made an assignment, with liabilities of $61,000. He made a settlement with creditors, it is understood, at 60 cents on the dollar, and has since been endeavoring to recuperate, but business has not been so good as expected. Frederick G. Fischer, attorney for the assignee, said that the liabilities were $25,000, the nominal assets $40,000 and actual assets probably $20,000. A writ of replevin was issued to Deputy Sheriff Gilligan on the same day by Myers, Goldsmith & Bronner against the assignee for $741, in favor of the H. B. Claflin Company.

The furniture and upholstery firm of Henry W. Jenkins & Sons, which is one of the oldest and best known in this city, celebrated the centennial anniversary of its existence the 5th inst. at Mullin's Hotel. The guests included members of the firm and their employees and invited friends. The Globe Tapestry Mills, Philadelphia, have been purchased by William G. Grange, and will in future be conducted in his name and under his management. Ryan & McGahan, 85 Leonard street, New York, will continue to represent the mills, and will soon have the new line on display at their showrooms.

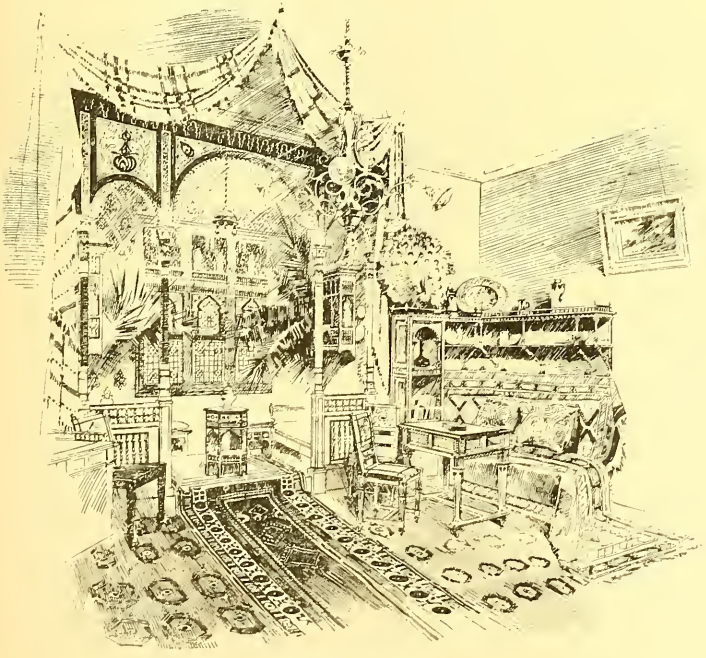
Geo. E. Lackey, sole selling agent for the Bromley Manufacturing Company, has their fall lines of lace curtains and nets, tapestry curtains and table covers, chenille curtains and table covers, linen velour curtains and piece goods on view at the salesrooms, 415 Broadway, New York.

As manufacturers of tapestry and chenille curtains and covers the Bromley Company have long held a very high position and in the manufacture of lace curtains they have now become exceptionally conspicuous. Their line of lace goods comprises an immense variety of patterns, which well illustrate the perfection which this industry has already reached in the United States, and the offerings in tapestry and chenille goods are admirably calculated to show the remarkable resources of the company in their designing and manufacturing departments. The most exacting buyer is certain to find in these lines all that he could possibly require.

The Western Shade Cloth Company, Chicago, has increased its capital stock to $30,000.

The Philadelphia Tapestry Mills are showing for the fall of 1898 a most comprehensive line of curtains, table covers, couch covers and piece goods, which for variety, style and individuality exceed any of their previous efforts. They understand the art of making upholstery fabrics which are thoroughly up to date (goods that are ready sellers) and they place on them a small price. These are essentials that should not be overlooked by progressive buyers. It will be to the interest of every good buyer to see their lines before placing his orders.



AN ORIENTAL CORNER.

SUMMER DRAPERIES.

Draperies this season are more attractive than formerly, and the floral designs are more varied in character, so that a greater choice can be obtained at lower prices and in patterns to suit all places. In silkoline there are many new decorations, both in light and dark shades, in which stripes of red, yellow and blue are happily combined. Simple hangings in this same texture, many of white backgrounds, have bow knots and garlands of running vines and blossoms; others are in delicate greens, old rose and all-over designs of conventional figures.

With thin goods the striped muslins with lace trimmings are very popular. According to a writer in the Art Amateur these fabrics are treated in small bunches of moss rosebuds, tied with a delicate French blue knot. To complement these are figured muslins of different colors, a zigzag thread of the cotton running the entire length in schemes of pink roses and lilies of the valley, while others are gracefully decorated in yellow blossoms. These simple draperies can be utilized for country houses in the way of sash curtains, summer portières and the like.

In crêpes for seaside purposes there are designs in excellent patterns for any room. Among them are those on white backgrounds, in which the larger sized flowers, such as poppies, chrysanthemums and peonies, take the lead. In these cotton goods the texture indicates a silken appearance and they are in every color. In cretonnes the variation is even more picturesque than those for hangings a year ago. These fabrics are more decided in patterns and combined with conventional forms, designs in which there are the lightest of pinks, cream yellows, bluish grays and olives delicately set off by salmon pinks. Of course in these textures there are endless varieties, each design being one suitable to some prevailing scheme. Cretonnes this season vary greatly, from the narrow stripes, which form a pattern of large stripes, to plain effects in backgrounds of solid tints. In these goods flower designs are pre-eminent.

The Bee Hive Dry Goods Company, Fort Wayne, Ind., has been incorporated.

Nels Nebelong has opened in the furniture and upholstery business at Ottawa, Kan.

Wm. M. Chase, for six years past with Stetson Foster, has opened a store on the second floor at 296 Boylston street, Boston, where he will deal in furniture draperies and paper hangings.

SCHROTH & POTTER.

This is one of the most enterprising firms in the shade and curtain trade. Starting a few years ago at Columbus, Ohio, in a small way, they have been enlarging and branching out until to-day their trade extends all over the country. A Review representative was shown over their new building by Mr. Potter. It is four stories high, with a basement, and is 30x188 feet. It contains over 30,000 feet of floor space. The spacious offices are all finished in handsome quartered sawed oak. The second floor is devoted to curtains and piece goods. On the third floor the Emrich strips are made. The fourth floor is used as a workroom, which contains several appliances to get the work out better and quicker than in the ordinary way. The building is well lighted and equipped with all the modern improvements. A picture of it is presented herewith.

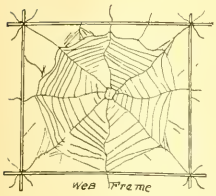
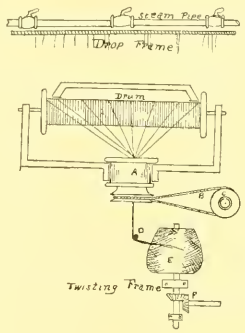
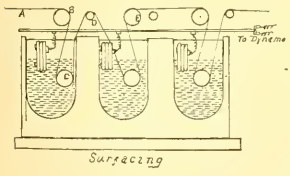
SPIDER SILK DRAPERY FABRICS.



An industry has recently sprung up which consists of the farming of spiders for the purpose of securing their cocoons and webs for manufacture into drapery goods. The spiders selected for spinning are of those orders in which the species are natural web or cocoon builders. "Sedentary" spiders spin good threads and construct webs of proportions in which to catch their prey. The "Clulrona" spider builds cylindrical nests, the "Tegenaria" a horizontal web, and the "Theridion" lays its silky strands in all directions. The plans adopted to obtain the product in good form are quite unique. The fly catching spiders are provided with set frames across which they form their webs in course of time, as in the first view in the annexed diagram. The classes of spiders that form long stretches of single strands promiscuously are allowed to gather upon a wide, horizontal metallic slab, which slab can be heated at proper time by means of a steam pipe. When the temperature becomes uncomfortable the spiders drop off spinning a line of silken material which can be gathered and twisted with others into a substantial thread for cloth making purposes. The spiders are permitted to ascend and repeat the operation many times daily. These strands need only be arranged regularly on a cylinder and fed into a revolving tube and twisted, as shown in the drawing of the twisting process.

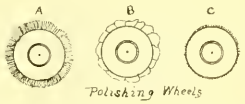


The webs and cocoons, however, must be unwound and straightened so far as is possible, and all that cannot be paralleled goes to waste. In the twisting process the steel whirl is hollow and is twirled some 400 times a minute by the cylinder C and the belt F. The partly rolled and twisted strands pass around the guide D to the bobbin E, the latter being turned by the gears at F.



The final twisting of the material is done on a regular twisting frame. The boucle or looped effect is made in the twisting by employing intermittent motions or similar movements to the rolls of the twisting frame. The intermittent motion is accomplished by using gears in which part of the teeth are blank. The interval of stopping thus procured gives the yarn the desired loop effect.

Fast dyes are not possible on these spider silk threads, so a sort of plating is put upon the surfaces. The plan of the plating or surfacing device is shown in the next drawing. The yarns enter at A, pass over roll B and down through the liquor to C, up over D and E and into the next department, then out in the order shown. Ordinary plating salts are used, and with them the dye is deposited by means of electric currents. Care is taken to have the deposit of nickel on the work tenacious and adherent, and a point is that the slower the rate of deposition the more adherent and tenacious the deposit will be, but if the current is too weak the deposition will be too slow, and also the solution may crystallize on the anodes, while on the other hand, if the current is too intense the deposit is apt to burn—that is, the deposit will be a dark gray or black color with a rough surface; hence to work the solution properly a moderately intense and uniform current is used. During electrolysis both the sulphate of nickel and the sulphate of ammonia undergo decomposition, sulphuric acid and ammonia being set free at the anode; this sulphuric acid forms an equivalent quantity of sulphate of nickel by its action on the anode, which it dissolves; free ammonia is liberated, some of which is left to accumulate.



The yarns are now taken from the nickel dye bath and rinsed in cold water, then boiling water and then dried in hot boxwood sawdust; then polished on an unbleached muslin buff (running 2,500 to 3,000 revolutions per minute), followed by finishing on the wheels shown in the next diagram, in which A is a first wheel, made of a bristled surface, B a cloth wheel and C a plush or felt wheel. The yarns are flexible in this state and ready for use.

For upholstery purposes the tacks manufactured by L. C. Waterman & Sons, Hanover, Mass., are well and favorably known in the trade. Price lists, &c., will be promptly furnished on application.

Chas. W. Breneman & Co., the Cincinnati window shade manufacturers, have worked more hands and turned out more goods than they ever have since starting in business. In fact, their city has enjoyed a very heavy wholesale trade this spring.

The building, 129 Washington street, Boston, was severely damaged by fire on the 7th inst. L. C. Chase & Co., the plush manufacturers, occupied three floors, and their loss is estimated at $46,000. The goods of the Wakefield Rattan Company, occupying the street floor, were slightly damaged by water.

The store of the Denholm & McKay Company, Worcester, Mass., has been remodeled and enlarged. The third floor is devoted to carpets as before, but the main furniture department on the fourth floor has been enlarged by the addition of a large salesroom for parlor furniture. This room is lighted by incandescent lamps entirely. The upholstery department has been enlarged and fitted with new fixtures throughout.

Obituary.

W. P. Uhlinger.

W. P. Uhlinger, the pioneer Jacquard machine and ribbon loom manufacturer of this country, who died at his home in San Diego, Cal., April 16, at the age of seventy-five years, had been in ill health for some time, but nevertheless his death was unexpected by his family and friends.

He was born April 10, 1823, in the town of Schaffhausen, Switzerland. He served as an apprentice in the shop of his father, who was a Jacquard machine manufacturer, and had known and worked with J. M. Jacquard, the original inventor of the celebrated machine which bears his name. Somewhat later the subject of our sketch traveled over the continent of Europe, as was the custom in those days, working from time to time in various establishments in his line and perfecting his knowledge as he went along, devoting his time especially to the manufacture of ribbon looms in Basel, Switzerland, and to Jacquard machine manufacture in Lyons, France.

W. P. Uhlinger

On June 22, 1848, he came to America and secured employment in the establishment of the Wm. H. Horstmann Company, of Philadelphia, as their head machinist. While there he constructed a number of fringe and trimming looms, and the Jacquard machines necessary for that business. In the latter part of 1850 he launched out into business for himself in a modest little factory on Master street, Philadelphia, in a room about 25x60 feet, on one floor, with a blacksmith forge in the cellar. His force at the start consisted of three men, and a two horse power engine was sufficient power to operate the entire machinery, which was composed chiefly of an engine lathe, a drill press and a circular saw. In this modest establishment was made the first iron Jacquard machine ever built in this country, as the old Swiss and French machines which had been in use previous to that time had been made entirely of wood, even using wooden hooks, &c. Here also were constructed the first fringe and ribbon looms made in the country, some of which are in active operation to-day.

In 1853, the quarters then occupied becoming too small, Mr. Uhlinger removed to Cadwallader street above Oxford, the force at that time comprising twenty to twenty-five men. It was here that Mr. Uhlinger added knitting machines to his output, and of these machines he constructed a very large number. In 1856 the building on Cadwallader street was struck by a wind storm and the plant almost entirely destroyed. Nothing daunted, however, Mr. Uhlinger transferred his business to 1619 and 1621 North Second street, and made a new start. During the war he made a large number of brass cannon for the Government, also manufactured quantities of pistols, drums and war supplies of various kinds, besides carrying on his regular line of business. In 1866 a larger shop was built on Columbia avenue near Mascher street, and shortly thereafter Mr. Uhlinger added improved patent school furniture to his output, and he had at one time 120 hands employed on this work alone. Owing to unfortunate business ventures in 1874 he failed, but started up again in a very small way in 1875 in the old Disston Saw Works, on Canal street above Front. From this time on until his retirement from active business he enjoyed unusual prosperity, building up his works from almost nothing, until he had a plant with a force of 200 employees.

In 1876 he invented and put on the market the first of his direct acting engine driven hydro extractors, and the success of this machine was at once so apparent that he was awarded a medal and diploma by the Centennial Exposition held in Philadelphia in that year. These machines are now widely known and extensively used, not only in this country but also abroad. His improved type of Jacquard machines manufactured at that time also contributed largely to his success. He also perfected and brought out the first power machines for punching and lacing Jacquard cards, which proved immense labor savers in their several fields. On July 1, 1889, Mr. Uhlinger retired from active business and disposed of his entire interest to the firm of Schaum & Uhlinger, who had established themselves in a similar line of business in 1887. The works of W. P. Uhlinger and Schaum & Uhlinger were consolidated and moved to the large building now occupied by the latter firm at Second street and Glenwood avenue.

Since his retirement Mr. Uhlinger had spent his time in traveling and enjoying a well earned rest. He was a member of the Franklin Institute and of the Phœnix Lodge No. 130, F. and A. M.

The fall line of Stead & Miller's upholstery piece goods is now on view at their mill salesroom in Philadelphia, and at the New York office, 115 Worth street. Their complete line of curtains and table covers will be ready very shortly.

Color Harmonics.

USING color for textiles we cannot proceed exactly as when painting a picture, because we find the intensity of a color will vary much, according to the class of material or body which may be reflecting it; any body which has a polished surface will enrich a color, while a dull body will have just the opposite effect. Suppose we take pieces of silk, cotton and wool and dye them to the same depth of shade, we shall find the color on the silk much more brilliant than the others, while the wool will be brighter than the cotton. If we look at a Terry velvet, i. e., a looped pile, we find it answers to the dull body, and comparing it to a cut velvet pile, which is smooth and has more points from which to reflect the light, we find the cut pile gives a much richer and pleasing color. Again, compare a Brussels carpet with a Wilton or Axminster carpet and you have further good examples. It is very evident, in making color combinations, we should consider the material we are using, as well as the use to which it has to be put. What will do for a floor or wall will not generally do for dresses or suits.

In the making of textiles we are dependent upon three chief factors for their decoration, viz., weave or order in which the threads are interlaced to give stability to the fabric, design or form, and color. We may decorate by any of these means, but the most beautiful are those where they are combined.

In cotton color plays a very important part, the combination generally being of a softer and not so pronounced types. In silk we can show color off to the best advantage, because of its high lustre, as well as fineness with which the fabric can be made; it enables the fabric to be ornamented as near perfection as is possible, examples of which are seen in court trains, dresses, ribbons, handkerchiefs, ties, &c.

What is color? To answer this we must go into the consideration of the light theory, according to a writer in the Warehouseman and Draper. Color is reflected light; the surface of an object simply reflects back the light which falls upon it from a luminous body. This reflected light is motion, which is made up of innumerable waves of light traveling at 192,000 miles a second; thousands of these waves strike upon the eye per second of time, and so set vibrating a sensitive skin behind the eye we see, which is called the retina. This retina is covered with a fine network of nerves, all meeting in one special nerve, known as the optic nerve; this connects with the brain, giving it a knowledge of motion, and this the brain turns into sight. All light is primarily from the sun, and so all the colors are separately reflected colors, the sum total of which is the white sunbeam. All bodies have no color of themselves, but they possess certain powers of absorption and reflection, so on the light falling on them they absorb certain colors or portions of the ray of white sunlight and reflect others, which are the colors we see. A white body has the power to reflect nearly all the colors in equal degree, and so it appears white; a black body appears so because it absorbs nearly all the light in equal degree. If you see red it is because the body absorbs all but the red portion. These waves strike on the eye in waves of light of varying length. When they are 1-34,000th part of an inch it gives us red; when they get smaller, say 1-41,000th part of an inch, we get orange, and as they get smaller we get the other colors of the spectrum. The colors of the spectrum are violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange and red, similar to what we see them in the rainbow.

The basis upon which all textile colorists can work is not the light but the pigment theory, or the results that we know we do get by mixing pigments or paint. We divide all color into primary, secondary and tertiary classes:

Primaries—Red, yellow and blue.

Secondaries—
- Green, by mixing blue and yellow.
- Orange, by mixing red and yellow.
- Purple, by mixing red and blue.

Tertiaries—
- Russet, by mixing orange and purple.
- Citrine, by mixing orange and green.
- Olive, by mixing purple and green.

Each of these colors may be given a tone by allowing one of the colors in the mixture to be in excess of the other. For example, a yellowish green may be made by having more of the yellow than the blue present in the mixture, or a reddish purple by having more of the red than the blue in the mixture. A tint may be got by mixing white, thus making it possible to make soft colors, varying from almost white up to the full color. A deeper shade is given to a color by adding black, but in so doing the color must suffer, losing its intensity somewhat. Red is a very brilliant color, conveying a sense of warmth. It is one of the most useful colors for textiles, but requires very careful application; if used in large masses care should be taken that it is so placed that the other colors in the combination do not suffer—it is so strong as to have the power to injure them. Generally, it is found a very little has the power to give the necessary amount of warmth or cheerfulness to the combination. For dress fabrics it is seen to the best advantage when used as a small line in a stripe, or as an overcheck to a check formed by other colors, and as small specks or spots in figuring.

Blue conveys a sense of coldness; it is this fact which makes pale blue dresses a comfortable and fashionable shade in hot summer weather. It always appears to recede, and disappears from view sooner than any other color, except purple, by distance. It is one of the most useful colors that can be used, because of the number of soft, pleasing tints and shades that are got from it. By mixing blue with red we get purple tones, and with the addition of white, and excess of blue or red as required, we get the heliotrope and crushed strawberry shades which have been so fashionable.

Yellow always conveys a feeling of lightness, and appears to advance toward you. It is certainly the lightest and purest of all the primary elements, and when placed along with dark colors is extremely vivid, so if used on black or dark grounds must be in very small quantities. When combining with white or very light colors larger quantities can be used, but in that case, because of its exceeding lightness, it has a tendency to look thin, so it must be with the idea of giving a tint rather than a full tone. Because of its exceedingly vivid character we generally find it used as a decorative color, to give light or character to other colors in a combination, for instance, as a line, in stripes, checks, or in spots. If the repeat of the system of coloring is only a small one, then the line or spot should be a small neat one, but if a large pattern, then the line may be made bolder with advantage.

The secondary colors are much more used than the primaries, because they are not so pronounced in character; the primary colors may be said to be the extremes of colored light, while the secondaries are nearer the happy medium; but still some of them are too strong to use in their full intensity in very large quantities; they are most useful when reduced to tints or tones, and can be used as the basis of color combinations, with the primaries to brighten them up. When looking at the solar spectrum we saw that the eye had the power to distinguish the seven colors, and take them all in at once—the eye is then perfectly at rest; but should you withdraw any of the primary elements, i. e., red, yellow and blue, after a time the eye will begin to tire and long for the color which is absent, causing the remaining colors to suffer in intensity, and appear rather dim. The color which is absent is known as the complementary. The complementary color to red is green; to yellow is purple; to blue is orange; to green is red; to purple is yellow, and to orange is blue. For example, if you look at a bright blue for a time it will appear to lose part of its power; it is because of the absence of the complementary orange; but now look at orange, and it will appear very bright, and on again looking at the blue it will appear as brilliant as before. Chevreul, in his fine book on color, gives a very good example of this, which may be remembered with advantage by all who have to arrange or match off colors. He says a man was matching off a number of red silk ribbons, and after having passed seven or eight shades, complained they were not as bright as formerly; it was from the lack of the green complementary. A green ribbon was now shown him, which rested the eye, and again looking at the red ribbons pronounced them right, and if anything more brilliant.

One of the chief things in all combinations is that the contrast shall be distinct and of a well balanced character, i. e., it shall not be too strong, as is the case when very loud colors are placed together, without any neutralizing color between them; nor should it be too light, as is the case when tints are combined which are very near each other, or tones which are near in character or weight. We may divide all contrasting colors into two classes: First, by means of tints of the same color, as for example, light and dark brown, or light and dark blue; second, by combining different colors or tones, as red and green or yellow and purple. The first of these, i. e., contrast of tints in the same color, is the most extensively used of any system of coloring in textile, the reason for this being the soft and pleasing effect produced. They are simple in character, but the very simplicity gives the beauty, because there is nothing obtrusive about them, and the balancing of the light and dark gives repose. A dark color placed against a light one causes both of them to become intensified by contrast, the light color will appear lighter, and the dark one darker. To test this, cut two pieces of cloth, say, one of a very light gray and another of a dark gray, and place them side by side; the light will appear lighter and the dark darker. It is still more clearly seen by making stripes of, say, a quarter of an inch of each shade. It is noticed just at the place where they are in contact there is the greatest difference, gradually shading away to the centre of the stripes. Looking at the second class, where we have contrasting color, as distinct from tints or tones of the same color, we also find each color has a modifying influence on the other. Suppose we place stripes of red and yellow together, we find they do not appear the same as when separated; the red appears slightly violet and the yellow slightly green. It is because of the absence of blue. This acting on the red gives a violet tint, and on the yellow a green tint.

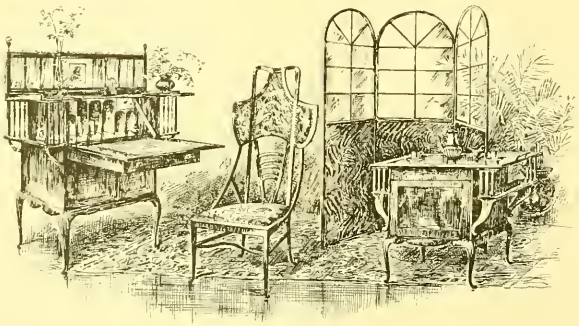
When colors are placed together which are complementary to each other they become intensified by contact; for instance, green is the complementary of red; place them together and they look richer. This applies in regard to all colors which are complementary to each other. But if you place together two colors which contain the same common element, such as yellow and green, they suffer somewhat—the yellow is not as pure in tone, and the green is flatter; or combine yellow and orange, it will not give a good combination, because the yellow element is too evident, detracting from the red in the orange composition.

Black or dark colors affect light ones materially, as well as light ones affect dark ones. Chevreul gives a very good instance of the effect of colors on black. He says a certain firm of merchants instructed a firm of printers to print black spots onto pieces of red, bluish violet and blue fabrics. When they submitted them to the merchant he complained that the spots were not black as ordered, but those upon the red cloth bore a greenish tinge, upon the bluish violet a dark greenish yellow tinge, and upon the blue cloth a copper tinge. To convince the merchant they were black, he cut pieces of white paper which covered the ground, leaving the spots exposed; the black now assumed its proper depth, thus proving that one color has a direct influence on another, and also that the eye, blinded by a prevailing color, is inclined to see its complementary. Light colors placed on a dark ground have a decided effect on each other, especially if the color happens to have much brilliance; for instance, red placed on a black ground causes the black to appear somewhat rusty; blue causes black to appear deeper, but it shows the blue off to advantage by contrast.



SOME ENGLISH FURNITURE.

Black and white are very useful for neutralizing any bad effects which may occur when placing colors together which detract too much from each other. They represent the two extremes, i. e., light and darkness, and have a neutralizing influence over all colors in which they are placed in contact. A combination of all the three primary colors in all their strength would be generally found to be far too strong, but this will not be, providing they are put together in their proper quantities, because the three colors themselves constitute harmony. But it is the strong contrast between the three colors which is objectionable; this can be neutralized by the introduction of white and black. Separate the two bright colors, red and yellow, with black, and the red from the blue with white, and this strong contrast is broken, providing the masses of each are not too large. This combination would certainly be too lively for general wear, but it is right for a number of other purposes where gay coloring is required. It is a useful rule to follow—that if you are in difficulty with two colors in combination, break it with the introduction of black or white, as they may be required. Harmony, in regard to color in textiles, is very difficult to define in laws; it certainly is that which gives us pleasure. It is not possible to say that certain quantities of colors should be in every combination to produce it with such a multitude of tones, tints, colors and hues of colors as we have. Calculations of this sort are not of any practical value; it must depend upon personal judgment or taste. Colors combined, such as yellow and green, yellow and orange, red and purple, which possess the same common element, do not look well together; while a color and its complementary, such as red and green, blue and orange, yellow and violet look well together, providing the massing and depth of color is considered.

AN ENGLISH ROOM.

Richardson & Perkins, manufacturers of and dealers in lace, muslin, nets and novelties in curtains, and Boston agents for W. H. Fletcher & Co., New York, report a very good business. They have their office and manufactory both at 30 Kingston street.

F. Laring Foster, furniture dealer and upholsterer, Bar Harbor, Me., has removed to new quarters in the Higgins Building on Main street.

SPECIMENS OF ENGLISH FURNITURE.

Several illustrations of English furniture and fitments are presented on this and the opposite page. In the Empire suite for a bedroom the severely classical character is relieved by chasing and metal enrichments. The sketch represents a genuine Hepplewhite bookcase in mahogany, inlaid with satinwood; the cylinder fall incloses a secretaire, fitted with mysterious drawers and secret recesses, and the glazed doors in the upper part would protect any valuable volumes. The easy chair is of Sheraton design, made of mahogany, delicately carved. The unique Empire clock has a revolving dial, and the oval table is made of satinwood, and has two flaps finely inlaid with festoons, and classic heads in medallions with shell ornament in the centre.

In the library shown the shelves and cupboards are of oak stained green. Well designed copper handles and hinges give brightness, and copper plaques and decorative pottery add pleasing color effects.

In the Louis XVI. room an archway of wood leads into an anteroom with a cozy corner. In the square window is a fitted seat upholstered in velvet.

The Geo. S. Stewart Company, of Norwalk, Ohio, manufacturers of grills and fretwork and fancy novelties, have been compelled to work overtime. They have built a very handsome office building opposite their factory.

The A. R. Maines Manufacturing Company, Los Angeles, Cal., has discontinued the manuufacture of bedding supplies and and gone extensively into bicycles.

J. S. Lesser & Co., 473 Broadway, New York, show for the fall trade notable lines of novelty nets and fish nets, comprising over 150 different patterns. These are all well made and finished goods, deserving the prompt attention of buyers In Nottingham curtains the offerings of Lesser & Co. are especially large and interesting. They show full size sash and vestibule goods in both foreign and domestic makes. In Swiss curtains they offer a big line, in which buyers will find very strong inducements.

PEGAMOID LEATHER.

The wonderful attributes of pegamoid are doubtless known only in a vague way to those who have not seen the articles treated with pegamoid. The word "pegamoid" itself signifies a secret method of treatment by which any comparatively hard surface fabric is rendered waterproof, its durability is increased and it may be cleaned of all stains and dirt.

So far the main application of pegamoid to an upholstery material is in the pegamoid leather. There have been several substitutes for leather produced in the past, and, without in the least disparaging the substitutes most largely used at present, we may say that pegamoid leather has all the desired attributes of real leather for upholstering and decorative purposes and is free from the shortcomings of real leather when used in this direction.

At the superbly appointed offices of the American Pegamoid Company, 11 Broadway, New York, are shown various rooms in which the walls are hung with pegamoid leather and the covering of all furniture and screens is of the same material. The effect is certainly artistic, as the goods are produced in a great variety of colors and the great durability and utility of the material are fully demonstrated. One of the severest tests is to throw a quantity of ink on the walls or over the furniture and allow it to dry. The use of a sponge, saturated in water, very quickly removes all traces of the ink or of any other soil.

Cretonnes treated with pegamoid are shown in the piece and also in covered furniture, the advantage of pegamoid treatment being to set the colors positively and to render the surface capable of being cleaned to look as good as new. It also increases the durability of the color, rendering it to all purposes entirely fast.

The attributes of pegamoid applied to awning stripes, window shades, bed ticking and to silk, as well as cotton faced upholstery fabrics, are obvious, and it has been demonstrated that the result in the preservation of the fabrics is marvelous.

The consummation of all arrangements for producing pegamoid fabrics is necessarily a lengthy task, as it would be almost impossible for one concern to produce every kind of fabric in which pegamoid may be utilized. The Pegamoid Leather Company is, however, prepared to deliver pegamoid leather in a number of different style finishes and in all leading colors. The upholstery trade have already taken hold of this material freely, and arrangements have been recently completed by which Marshall Field & Co. have secured control of the sale of pegamoid leather for Chicago. Mr. Thomas L. Seymour, who has spent many years in the carpet and upholstery trade, is in charge of the selling department, besides being a stockholder in the company. He will be pleased to send samples of pegamoid leather, with all particulars, on application to the Pegamoid Leather Company, 11 Broadway, New York.

Cohen Brothers & Co., 424 and 426 Broadway, New York, have received this week several new laces and insertions specially manufactured for bobbinet ruffled curtains. These are made of very superior quality yarns, and will wash and launder like new. They are Point de Saxe and Maltesse, and are exact copies of very expensive laces.

..William H. Roll's Sons' wall paper establishment at Indianapolis was burned out a few weeks ago. Loss, $13,000; insurance, $11,000.

..The stock in the Janeway & Co. Philadelphia branch of the National Wall Paper Company, at 621 Market street, was damaged to the extent of $35,000 by fire on the 11th inst. Insurance, $20,000.

..The Ficken Paint and Oil Company, of New York city, was incorporated at Albany on April 29, to deal in wall paper, paints, &c. The capital stock is $10,000, and the directors are Adrian H. Jackson, Herman Anspacher and Peter C. Heidelberger.

..Spencer Plantz, who conducts a wall paper store at 81 West Main street, Rochester, N. Y., has disposed of his stock of goods to George Weldon and James Z. Weldon, who will hereafter conduct the business under the firm name of Weldon Brothers. The consideration for the transfer was $1,431.

..A permanent paste for paper hangers may be produced by dissolving 1 ounce of alum in one part of warm soft water. When cold add flour to make it about the consistency of cream, then add half a thimble of resin and half an ounce of sugar of lead. The above are the proportions for a bucket of paste.

..The large factories of the New Brunswick Tire Company and Janeway & Co., wall paper manufacturers, at New Brunswick, N. J., are near each other. The front of each commands a view of the front of the other. A week ago each factory put out a flag from the main pole. Then one factory put a flag from a window. The increase was met by the opposite building, and the rivalry has gone on from day to day until now the front of each building is fairly swathed in patriotic bunting. The rivalry is keen and each day subscriptions are offered by the employees and the heads of the firm to purchase more flags. Some the windows of the factories display from three to eight flags, and the whole town has become interested in the manifestation of patriotic ardor.

WHOLESALE AND COMMISSION CARPETS,

BOSTON.

During the present temporary (as we believe) readjustment of values on carpetings we are prepared to make prices on all grades, and can furnish same immediately from stock.

Send us your duplicates on—

LOWELL BRUSSELS,
LOWELL EXTRAS,
WHITTALL BRUSSELS,
ROXBURY TAPESTRIES,
SMITH TAPESTRIES.

As doubtless most of our customers have already a sufficient quantity of old patterns secured through the medium of "Auction Sales," "Surplus Stocks," etc., we would say that our Fall Lines will be largely made up of new desirable patterns and colorings, selected and to be distributed in such a way that a retailer can control a pattern and thereby secure a profit.

If this seems to be a reasonable principle, we shall be glad to show our lines to our friends and answer correspondence.

Our New Private Patterns in Wiltons and Brussels

are now ready. The line is unsurpassed in colorings for medium and high class trade.

W. E. ROSENTHAL,

SELLING AGENT,

458 Broadway, NEW YORK.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms:

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked

Office of

PHILADELPHIA TAPESTRY MILLS,

Cambria and Ormes Streets.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1, 1898.

We have prepared and are showing for Fall 1898 the largest line of Upholstery Fabrics that our mills have ever produced. The Buyer of Upholstery Goods may be absolutely sure that here he consults a line that is without a peer in completeness and perfection of assortment. He may be reasonably sure that all our goods represent as good, if not better, intrinsic value than can be found outside; otherwise experience, study and our ability to manufacture large quantities of goods have been of little avail.

Correct styles, skillful manufacturing and low price are sure guarantee of the satisfaction that can be depended on by buyers of our goods.

A magnificent collection of Table Covers, Curtains, Piece Goods and Couch Covers is offered for the Fall, and the styles shown here will not be found duplicated elsewhere.

It is clear that the buyer who does not know the great variety of goods that we are making has not been fully alive to what is going on around that should concern him.

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the

will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

THE SECRET OF WEAR IN RUBBER MATTING

is elasticity—not so much as in rubber bands, but enough to let the matting give when the foot strikes and lessen the blow. Ordinary matting is made of a poor quality of rubber, brittle and stiff. The foot lands heavily, and rapidly wears away the rubber or breaks it off.

In our mats, matting and step-treads we use a tough, elastic rubber, which yields to the foot and saves itself, springing back into shape as soon as the pressure is removed. Two grades: Spider—excellent quality and a good wearer; Double Diamond—superior quality and an exceptional wearer Call or write.

We wish to announce to the Trade that, beginning with the Fall season of 1898, we propose to carry in stock a large number of patterns of both our first and second grades of

Yours truly,

Specialties in PILE RUGS for the ensuing season:

BUNDHAR WILTON RUGS.

(9 X 12 CARPET SIZES AND UPWARD.)

In the Bundhars the trade will secure a very heavy lock weave fabric of strict Oriental effect, both in color and design, but free from the objections which exist in many minds to the rug products of servile countries.

BUNDHARS IN BODYS, STAIRS AND BORDERS.

Some of the foremost retail houses in the United States have given the Bundhar their unqualified indorsements, the consumer being uniformly delighted with the wear resisting qualities disclosed after the Bundhars are in use.

FRENCH WILTON RUGS.

These popular and elegant coverings are shown for Fall in sizes up to 4.6 x 7.6, and possess furnishing qualities which appeal to high-class trade on sight.

The new designs are based largely on difficult Oriental subjects, and the effects produced are as delicate as those observed in antique Persian Rugs, for which hundreds and even thousands of dollars each are demanded. A remarkable line of French Wilton Rugs is now ready for inspection.

BODY BRUSSELS.

In addition to the above we have ready a large range of carefully selected designs in "I. D. & M." Extra Quality Body Brussels and Gem Quality Body Brussels.

TRUSTWORTHY INGRAINS.

Also our usual large variety of Ingrain Carpeting, including Patent Columbians, High Standard I. D. & M. Extra Supers and all other grades, all of uniform quality and high intrinsic excellence from end to end.

ART SQUARES.

Our Fall offering in Extra Super and Terry Art Squares will more than maintain their high prestige, a remarkable variety being offered..

All the patented Hardwick weaves in Rugs: also in 3-4 and 4-4 widths. Infringements will be vigorously prosecuted.

BIGELOW CARPET COMPANY.

AXMINSTER, WILTON AND BRUSSELS

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven (at every repeat of the pattern) in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

THESE GOODS CAN BE HAD FROM ALL FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 55.

☞Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

A WAITING MARKET.

UNSETTLED values in Tapestries and Velvets continue to be the chief feature in the trade situation, and this uncertainty is both unexpected and disappointing. Last spring and fall most dealers bought goods largely and wisely, it seemed, in the anticipation of an advance in prices which appeared to be assured by the new tariff, with the higher duties placed by it on wool and other raw materials of the carpet industry. But the present season has opened with prices unfixed in both Tapestry and Velvet carpeting, and those travelers who have gone on the road have found a large proportion of the trade disposed to delay purchases on these goods until values are settled.

Prices of all wool Ingrains have been fixed at a reduction from last season, the decline being 2½ cents or less per yard. Wiltons and Brussels remain at the same prices as last season, and in linoleums, floor oil cloths, Smyrna rugs, cotton Ingrains, &c., the changes, if any, are slight.

The auction sale of Smith carpeting, which was adjourned on the 7th ult., was resumed on the 31st ult. and is now in progress. We give in this issue a report of the proceedings at the sale up to the time at which we go to press, and a complete account will appear, of course, in our issue of the 15th inst.

It cannot be said that the trade situation is satisfactory, but we believe that the present conditions will last but a short time. The country is prosperous, and the demand for carpeting must increase accordingly. All the reports of general business during the past month were favorable. Consumption has increased, and in many directions production is being pressed to meet the demand. Bank clearings—one of the best tests of business—have been especially large during the past month, and last week they were a third greater than in the same period of last year. Railroad earnings show a great increase, and the iron trade, which also ranks high as a business barometer, shows remarkable activity and strength.

These facts point surely to a great coming demand for carpeting, which is always a feature of prosperous times, and all that is now needed to assure prosperity to the trade is that certainty of stability in prices which cannot much longer be delayed.

THE SECOND BIG AUCTION.

THE SALE OPENED ON MAY 31 WITH A GOOD ATTENDANCE. PRICES RULED LOW.

The continuation of the auction sale of the Alex. Smith & Sons Carpet Company's carpetings and rugs, postponed from May 7, was opened at 10 A. M. on the 31st ult. at 37 to 41 East Eighteenth street, New York. The audience well filled the seating capacity of the room and was about the same in numbers as at the previous sale. The terms and conditions of the sale were as follows:

Terms and Conditions of Sale.

Approved notes, satisfactory to the sellers, at four months, payable in the city of New York for all sums over $100; all sums under $100—cash without discount. Four per cent. discount for cash in ten days. Three per cent. discount for cash within thirty days. No discount allowed for cash after thirty days from date of sale. Sellers reserve the right to demand cash before delivery.

Goods damaged or disagreeing with sample, the entire lot to be returned, unless an allowance can be mutually agreed upon, and when goods are reported for claims of any description and buyer and seller disagree the subject of complaint must be decided by arbitration, the decision to be binding on both parties.

The delivery of the goods to be conditional until the terms are complied with. The sellers claim the right of delivery within thirty days from date of sale.

Notice.—All bills must positively be settled either by note or cash within ten days, or when requested. All settlements must be made with W. & J. Sloane, Selling agents, Broadway and 19th street.

Where Carpet and ⅓ Border Are Sold Together:

Moquette border, Saxony Axminster border and Smith Axminster border will be charged 3½ cents less than body.

Axminster border, Savonnerie border and Extra Velvet border will be charged 5 cents less than body.

Velvets border, Best Tapestry border and Extra Tapestry border will be charged 3½ cents less than body.

B Palisades border will be charged 2½ cents less than body.

The only difference in the terms as compared with the May 3 sale was the offering of 4 per cent. for cash in 10 days and 3 per cent. in 30 days, the sellers reserving the right to demand cash before delivery.

In opening the sale Mr. W. W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane, spoke as follows:

We take pleasure in calling your attention this morning to the continuation of the catalogue we offered about a month ago, which we were unable to complete then without asking you to remain in town over Sunday.

This catalogue is not made up of surplus stock which has been left over from a season's sales, but it is made up entirely of the newest and best patterns of carpet which have been prepared for the coming season. We have received since the last sale more than a usual indorsement of the excellence of the patterns that have been prepared, and we can truly say that after an experience of twenty-five years in placing these goods upon the market no line of patterns has ever been placed before you of equal merit with these. We therefore ask your attention to them with confidence.

About all the leading jobbing and retail buyers at the former sale were present and there were a large number of new faces representing retailers from distant parts of the country who were not in attendance a month ago.

The first lot offered was No. 1815, comprising two pieces of pattern 531 F Palisade Tapestry. It was knocked down to Darling & Co., of New York, at 35 cents; the next lots brought 33, 35½, 33, 33½, 32½ in succession, the average of 17 lots being 33.13 cents. The highest price on the first 17 lots of the F's was 35½ and the lowest 31 cents for a stair, the lowest body F being 32½.

The first lot of B Palisade Tapestries brought 35 cents, and the average for the first 31 lots was 38.75 cents, the highest price being 41 and the lowest 35 cents.

The first lot of Best Tapestry sold at 45½ cents, that being the highest figure in 42 lots, and the lowest 42, the average of the first 42 lots being 44.23 cents.

The first lot of Extra Tapestry brought 46½ cents, the highest price in the first 9 lots being 47 and the lowest 45, the average being 46.05 cents.

The first lot of Velvets brought 63½ cents, the average for the first 27 lots being 61.19 cents, with highest price 65 and lowest 57½ cents.

The first lot of Wilton Velvets went at 83 cents, the average of the first nineteen lots being 84 cents, with highest price 95 cents and lowest 77½.

The first lot of Moquettes sold at 56 cents, the average of the first fifteen lots being 58.68 cents, with highest price 60½ and lowest 55 cents.

The first lot of Smith Axminsters brought 59 cents, the average of the first twenty-two lots being 58.46 cents, with highest price 62 and lowest 55 cents.

The first lot of Saxony Axminsters brought 57 cents, the average of the first fifteen lots being 54½ cents, with highest price 57 and lowest 52½ cents.

The first lot of Savonneries went at 70 cents, the average of the first twenty-one lots being 77⅛ cents, with highest price 88 and lowest 70 cents.

There was a tendency among the jobbing buyers to refrain from bidding except when a balance was put up, in which case their offers were 2½ cents or more under the first knock-down price of the lot. The jobbers would also take some lots of patterns at the first knock-down price where they evidently wanted the pattern being sold.

The prices and bidding slightly improved as the sale progressed on the 31st ult., and the F Palisade Taps. seemed to go slower than the other goods.

When bidding was dull or the prices ruled low the auctioneer and Paul Huebner on the stand would remind the audience that if they wanted the goods they would have to bid. This was to counteract the tendency to let a few people do the bidding and then pick out lots from the duplicates.

As before, good patterns brought higher prices than the undesirable ones, the greens and reds always being in demand.

The result of the sale on Tuesday indicated that all the goods offered in the catalogue would be taken up although it might require more time and harder work on the part of the crier.

We noted that some dealers, both wholesale and retail, who were present at the May 3 sale and did not purchase were among the buyers on Tuesday.

The F Palisade Taps came up again in the afternoon, and the average price of eighty-three lots was 33½ cents.

The first lot of New Axminsters brought 61 cents, the average price of ninety-two lots being 53⅓ cents, with 61 cents the highest and 50 cents the lowest price.

The first lot of E rugs brought $1.20, with $1.20 the highest and $1.12½ the lowest, the average of nineteen lots being $1.15.

Second Day's Sale.

The sale on Wednesday, June 1, opened with lot 2,200 in E rugs. Out of 1,125 lots 385, or about one-third, were sold on the first day.

The first lot of E rugs on Wednesday brought $1.15, with $1.15 the highest and $1.05 the lowest in 34 lots, the average being $1.08½.

The first lot of large Axminster rugs, 12.4x11.4 feet, brought $12.75, with $14 as highest and $11 the lowest, the average of the seven lots sold being $14.16.

B Palisades opened at 38 cents, and the highest price in seventy-three lots was 40 and lowest 35, with an average of 37½.

Saxony Axminsters opened at 51 cents, and in 91 lots the highest was 53 cents and lowest 49 cents, with the average 51½ cents.

Velvets averaged 59.27 cents, the highest being 62½ cents and lowest 57½ cents.

Savonneries averaged 77.18 cents, the highest being 92 and lowest 69.

Ne Plus Ultra 4-4 rugs averaged $4, the highest being $4.12½ and lowest $4.

J rugs averaged $2.27½, the highest being $2 40 and lowest $2.20.

E rugs averaged $1.10, with highest $1.16½ and lowest $1.06, in 33 lots.

Moquette mats averaged 59 cents, with highest 61 and lowest 55½ cents.

It will be noted that prices were generally lower on the second day and that the only goods which showed an advance over the May 4 sale were the large Axminster rugs, which averaged $14.16, as compared with $12.50 at the first sale, and Savonneries.

The E rugs dropped 5 to 10 cents on Wednesday below the Tuesday prices.

The attendance kept up well on Wednesday, there being 350 to 400 buyers in the salesroom The goods were being all taken up, as every lot and duplicates catalogued were sold before taking up the next lot.

The majority of the goods up to the afternoon of the second day was bought by retailers and was widely distributed over the country.

The jobbers were using great caution in bidding and purchasing, aiming to secure their goods at lowest prices, and with few exceptions all bought something. The indications on the afternoon of the second day were that everything on the catalogue would be sold.

The total quantity of carpeting comprised in the catalogue was about 48,000 rolls, with 3,165 bales of E rugs, 372 bales of J rugs, 541 bales of large Axminster rugs, 261 bales of Ne Plus Ultra rugs and 2,156 bales of Moquette mats—a total of 6,495 bales of rugs and mats. The catalogue was so arranged that each grade of carpeting would be represented in every day's sale.

Regarding the wisdom of holding these two large auction sales the other manufacturers of Taps. and Velvets generally decline to give an opinion.

They say they cannot control or direct the action of the Smith Company or W. & J. Sloane, having no right to interfere in another man's business methods.

They are using their own best judgement to hold their trade, and believe values of Taps and Velvets will be shortly settled on a stable basis.

The sale will probably be ended Thursday afternoon or Friday morning and a full report of the closing days will be given in our June 15 issue.

REGULAR PRICES FOR TAPESTRIES AND VELVETS NOT YET FIXED.

Prices of Tapestries and Velvets on regular new fall goods have not yet been fixed. S. Sanford & Sons, E. S. Higgins Carpet Company, Roxbury Carpet Company and Stinson Brothers all say they have not settled on regular prices, but will doubtless do so very shortly. S. Sanford & Sons say that the interregnum of special prices will continue until regular figures are decided upon. That is, they are making prices on the goods offered, but do not intend to continue these prices and may change them any day.

Mr. R. T. Perkins, vice-president of the E. S. Higgins Carpet Company, was asked his opinion in regard to present prices and the policy of his company, and in answer said: "During the past four weeks we have been clearing out stock—that is, cleaning out last season's goods, just as we usually do in May and November of each year. When the situation is more settled we shall make prices and send our salesmen on the road."

THE WORCESTER COMPANY'S NEW CARPET RUGS.

The Worcester Carpet Company are offering for the first time for the fall season a line of Wilton rugs in Oriental and Indian styles, made in thick Wilton fabric in sizes from 27 by 54 inches to 15 by 18 feet. The great variety of sizes will enable dealers to fit almost any room, and the Worcester Company have very ably met the demand of the times in the line now offered. The patterns will be found altogether original and different from any other makers. The Wilton rugs are shown by T. J. Keveney & Co., selling agents for Wm. Jas. Hogg & Son, 898 Broadway, New York, and communications addressed to either New York or Worcester will provide opportunities for viewing the samples.

THE TAFT CARPET SEWING MACHINE.

One of the special features of the Taft carpet sewing machines is their adaptation to thread the using of which is a saving to the dealer. The number of Taft machines now in use and the satisfaction given by them thoroughly prove all the claims made, and the fullest opportunity is given for testing the merits of the machine before consummating its purchase. Write to J. C. Taft, 40 Friendship street, Providence, R. I., for all particulars.

Another invention in carpet fabrics is to go to the credit of Harry Hardwick. He was granted a patent, No. 604,320, on May 17 for a new pile fabric, which is described in our "Patent" column.

Siegel, Thorwitz & Cahn open to-day (June 1) at 873 Broadway, Brooklyn, under the style of the Mutual Furniture and Carpet Company.

I. Snapman, Van Alst and Newtown avenues, Astoria, has disposed of his dry goods stock and will continue only in carpets and furniture.

The fire which broke out in the saloon at 142 Greenpoint avenue, Brooklyn, on the morning of the 21st ult. spread to the store of the M. Schulz Furniture Company, at 138 and 140 Greenpoint avenue, which sustained a loss of $15,000.

George M. Wright, assignee of Albert B. Hilton, lately doing business as Hilton, Hughes & Co., has notified creditors to appear at Special Term of the Supreme Court of New York County and City, Part 1, June 20 next, at 10:30 A. M., to attend the final settlement of the assignee's accounts.

Lazard Frères received a shipment of 4,262 rolls of mattings on May 20 per steamship Gerard C. Tobey, from Hong Kong. Other shipments of mattings on the same vessel were consigned to Brown Brothers & Co., 712 rolls; Lin Fong Company, 1,158 rolls; Muller, Schall & Co., 195 rolls; Winter & Smillie, 159 rolls, and to order 1,509 rolls; total of 7,995 rolls.

In our last issue it was said that John M. Smyth, the Chicago carpet and furniture dealer, had unfurled before his store the largest American flag in the world, the dimensions being 40x75 feet. We have since learned that there is a larger flag, which is owned by Arnold, Constable & Co., of this city. It measures 50x75 feet. It was hung across Broadway from the firm's building during the Presidential campaign of 1896.

President Henry Siegmund, of the Furniture and Carpet Store Employees' Association of Brooklyn, reports progress in the movement for closing the stores at 6 P. M., excepting Mondays and Saturdays. He says very few are now open. "We are endeavoring to persuade the public to purchase before 6 o'clock at night, and respectfully ask all labor organizations to impress their members and their wives and families with the duty of helping us. We trust that the Brooklyn clergy also will aid us to secure a little more time for recreation and home culture."

The police of the Elizabeth Street Station have recovered the remainder of the rugs stolen on May 13 from an express wagon in front of the store of Costikyan Frères, 139 Broadway. Most of the property was returned to the owners the same day, and the remainder of the stolen property was found in tenements in Mulberry and adjacent streets. The total value of the stolen property was only $1,200 instead of $15,000, as originally reported. The daily papers distorted the other facts as well, in connection with the theft, to suit sensational ideas.

J. G. Burrows & Co., 343 Broadway, are selling agents for P. J. Murphy & Co., of Camden, N. J., the well-known manufacturers of floor and stair oil cloths and oil cloth rugs. The fall line is now on show at the salesrooms of Burrows & Co , and fully maintains the reputation of Murphy & Co. in both patterns and colorings. The jobbing trade should inspect this line, as the firm state that they are prepared to offer exceptional values.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

BOSTON BUDGET.

Boston, May 25.

A patent decision has just been rendered in which J. R. Leeson & Co., of this city are deeply interested. The application for protection was upon a system of winding yarn for knitting and other purposes. The case has been under consideration for more than five years, and the favorable decision of the patent commissioner declares that "The patent which is the subject of this application is an invention of a character which, under the public statutes, is entitled to protection. It is true that the invention is a very simple one, but it is not an obvious one, and it moreover appears to be very valuable." The Universal system of winding to which this applies is revolutionizing the winding of fine yarns, and is being rapidly adopted by up-to-date mills, being now in successful operation in some of the most important yarn spinning establishments in the country.

CORPORATION LAW IN MASSACHUSETTS.

The following law passed by the Legislature of Massachusetts applies to all corporations in that State whose capital is $100,000 or more:

An Act Relative to Certificates and Returns of Corporations.

Be it enacted, &c., as follows:

Section 1. STOPPING FRAUDULENT ADVERTISEMENTS.

The new law intended to prevent "fake" advertising in this State does not please everybody. A Philadelphia paper in criticising it says:

From now on we shall look for fun in New York State, as this law is calculated to produce it if anything can. John Jones, the grocer, who declares that his strawberries are the very best in town, will be liable to suit from Smith, the other grocer, who claims that his are far better, and that Jones' contrary statement was a willful misrepresentation. The one fact which will defeat this bill and make it a dead letter from the very start is the fact that values are largely matters of opinion. A man may conscientiously believe that a given piece of merchandise is the best possible to produce, and may say so in his advertisement. Notwithstanding his sincerity he may be wrong, and the competitor who knows it will have a perfectly good case against him for misleading the public. Another weakness is the lack of competent definition for the word "misleading." Suppose a New York woman reads one of John Wanamaker's advertisements. By that advertisement she forms a mental picture of a silk skirt which is advertised. She goes to the store prepared to buy and discovers that the skirt is greatly inferior to her mental picture of it. She claims that the advertisement misled her. It seems to us that she would have a good case, even though the advertisement had been perfectly fair and that her expectations were unreasonable. These contingencies and a hundred others will certainly arise under this law, provided it is enforced. Probably the main reason why it can never be enforced, however, is the fact that limitless dishonesty can be practiced by the big stores, both in the way of personal representations to customers and in advertising, which can never be detected. Take a department store employing 1,000 salesmen. Who can watch these to see that their representations are honest? One of the most prevalent practices of the department stores is to advertise articles at "$2.98, worth $4." Often these claims of quality are lies, yet what an endless process to run them down and adjudicate them all in the light of staple market values! Such goods may be worth the sum named by certain standards and not worth it by others. Who is to say what standard will be applied? Staple articles are worth what they will bring in the open market, yet there are various considerations which add to value, such as antiquity, association with notables, and so on. Our idea is that this law will be made practically inoperative by the department stores themselves. The backers of the honest advertising law have banked on the belief that several of the big stores would watch their competitors, and thus help in the law's enforcement. But this will probably not be so. This law may succeed, but we shall be exceedingly surprised if it does. The only form of dishonesty which can be made a matter of legislation is dishonesty that takes a public and tangible form.

It is possible that the law will fail for the reasons given in the foregoing paragraph, but it is not the less true that if it were enforced in a reasonable manner, according to its plain intent, it would put an end to many kinds of imposition which are now entirely unchecked. The fraudulent auction sales of Oriental rugs could be quickly stopped under this statute, and if they are not ended there will be good cause to suspect that certain police officials and magistrates in some cities are shielding the promoters of these swindles for reasons best known to themselves.

The sale of domestic goods as of foreign manufacture would also be prevented, and the credit due to our own manufacturers could not be taken from them, as it so often is now, by selling their product as imported goods to satisfy the demands of the ignorant or prejudiced class that always prefers the goods with foreign labels.

OBITUARY NOTES.

A. C. Zeigler, for several years a salesman in D. G. Hendricks' carpet store at Chester, Pa., died suddenly on May 10 at his mother's home, near Rehersberg, Berks County, Pa. Mr. Zeigler seemed hale and hearty until about three months ago, when a serious kidney trouble developed, which compelled him to quit work and go to his mother's home to recuperate his health. Instead of improving, his condition grew worse until his death. He leaves a widow and one child. His agreeable manner, steady habits and prompt attention to business made him a valuable aid in Mr. Hendricks' establishment.

MR. HARDWICK'S LATEST INVENTION.

Patent No. 604,320, dated May 17, 1898, just issued to Mr. Harry Hardwick, of the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company, of Philadelphia, represents a phenomenon in 3 shoot high pile Wilton fabric, astonishing in its technique and admitting of almost unlimited design and color effects.

The ordinary Wilton carpet has the reputation of being about the best carpet in the market, all things considered. A special size and quality of carpet worsted is used, and it is generally well beaten up on the 3 shoot plan, while the 4, 5 or 6 frames of heavy worsted running through the middle of the fabric and appearing only at intervals on the face of the carpet, as the design may dictate, supply a bind unsurpassed by any other tufted carpet fabric. But on account of the expense more than four or five frames are seldom used, and for the same reason an ordinary height of pile is adhered to, so that while Wilton is a very desirable fabric in every other way for large rugs, such as 9x12 feet, &c., it lacks height of pile and variety of color. It is these two objections particularly that are overcome by Mr. Hardwick's new invention, for, in addition to its retaining all the ordinary advantages of the Wilton fabric, there is added by Mr. Hardwick's process a luxuriously high pile, and an almost unlimited number of frames of color are at the disposal of the designers, enabling the manufacturer to produce rugs in carpet sizes, 9x12, &c., desirable in technique, pile, design, color, style, effect, weight, &c.

We predict a large demand for this fabric, appearing as it does just at this time when such goods are particularly sought after.

P. J. Murphy & Co., Kaign's Point, Camden, N. J., show for the fall trade an excellent line of floor oil cloths, including rugs and stairs. The goods are standard quality, and are shown in a large variety of new and original patterns.

HARTFORD CARPET COMPANY.

In both Wiltons and Brussels will be found a wide range of superb artistic effects in designs and colorings. The same remark applies to the Axminsters, which are shown in an extended line replete with novel, original and choice effects which cannot fail to find quick and wide appreciation.

In the Ingrain and Art Square market the product of the Hartford Company is always an especially conspicuous feature, and its lines for the coming season are larger and in every way even more attractive than ever before.

Saxony carpets and rugs and chenille rugs are also shown in enlarged and especially attractive lines. The Saxony carpets have already won great favor in the trade, and the new styles shown in them and in the rugs show that the manufacturers are determined to maintain and enhance the excellent reputation now held by these goods.

JOSEPH WILD & CO.'S FALL OFFERINGS.

Among the semi-annual offerings to the trade those of Joseph Wild & Co. cover a field so wide that no dealer in floor coverings should fail to see them.

The firm are very extensive manufacturers of linoleum, table, stair and shelf oil cloths, Smyrna rugs and mats, Art Squares, cocoa matting and mats, Napier matting, goat skin rugs, sheep skin mats, &c. In linoleum they offer both the inlaid and printed goods in an immense range of new and standard patterns. Their inlaid linoleum has been especially successful, being manufactured by a new and improved process which produces goods superior in quality and especially attractive in patterns. In Smyrna rugs and mats and Art Squares the offerings are particularly large and important, the manufacture of these goods having been a very prominent feature of Joseph Wild & Co.'s business for many years past. All grades are represented in the lines and a great number of new patterns have been added, making altogether an assortment well calculated to meet every possible demand of all classes of trade, and satisfy the most exacting critic of designs and colorings.

Another conspicuous feature of Joseph Wild & Co.'s establishment is their Oriental rug department. They are large importers of these goods, and their facilities and connections in the Orient enable them to present exceptionally strong inducements to buyers. Their present offerings are the most extensive and interesting ever made by them, embracing an immense range of makes and grades in both modern and antique goods.

The firm's lines are shown at their New York headquarters, 82 and 84 Worth street; their branch office, 611 Washington street, Boston, and by their travelers on the road.

ARNOLD, CONSTABLE & CO.'S SELKIRK WILTON RUGS.

In the rug department of Arnold, Constable & Co., the new line of Selkirk Wiltons in carpet sizes is an especially notable feature. The sizes range from 6x9 up to 11x13 feet and the assortment of patterns is particularly extensive and attractive, over thirty different effects being embraced in the line Among the new designs, one is a large medallion in several colors on a plain ground; another is a Ghiordes all-over pattern and a third is an exact reproduction of a rug shown at the Austrian Exhibition of Oriental rugs and regarded as the best patterns in that exceptionally choice collection. In the line are included also some fine two tone effects in eight or ten shadings of red, blue, green, pink, &c. Altogether this line is one certain to make a highly favorable impression. See Arnold, Constable & Co.'s new advertisement on page 2 of the cover.

THE BATTLE OF MANILA BAY.

The following poem appeared first in the Brooklyn Eagle of the 14th ult. Its author, Robert Kidson, is well known in the trade and is now connected with the retail carpet department of Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn. Some years ago Mr. Kidson was a frequent contributor to The Review.

I.

We steamed into Manila Bay with lights all out and dark,
The garrisons on either side awoke and whispered "Hark!"
The throbbing of the engines was all the sound we heard,
Save the throbbing of our beating hearts which loud within us stirred;
For ho! to be a sailor lad upon that glorious night,
For the morrow was upon us, and we hungered for the fight.

II.

We passed the foes on either side, which scarce a shot or shell,
The enemy was treacherous, we knew his tactics well;
The waters of Manila Bay were mined with deadly care,
We knew not what the end would be, or how the fleet would fare;
But on we steamed to meet the foe, reckless of fort or mine;
Our coolness was American, the vengeance was divine.

III.

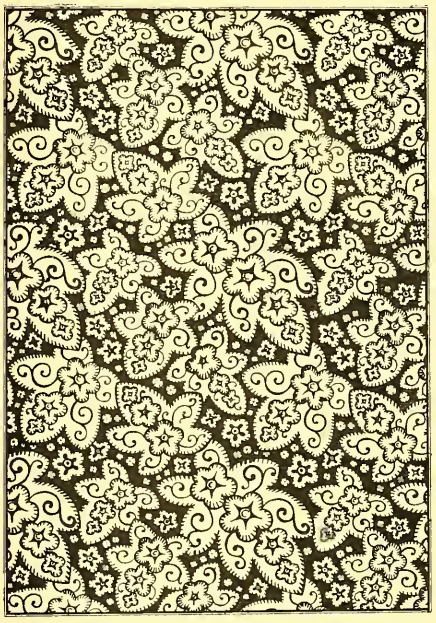
Oh! retribution may be slow and centuries ensue
Ere years of cruelty will end and tyrants get their due;
For who shall say we craved a war? 'Twas that the hour had struck!
The hour of doom for cruel Spain! the rest was Yankee pluck;
Lord! how the cannon roared and shrieked midst shot and angry shell,
And how we cheered "Old Glory" in the very teeth of hell!

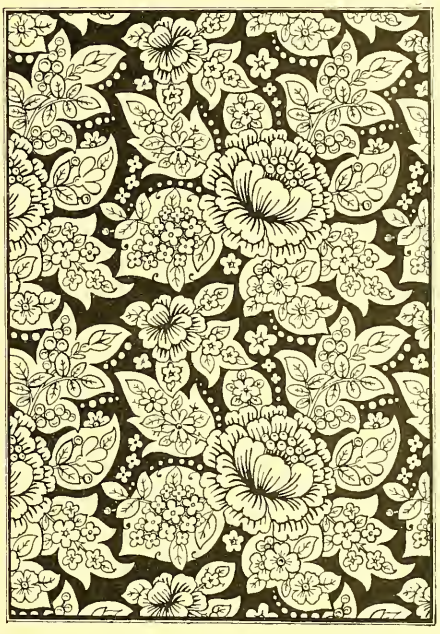
IV.

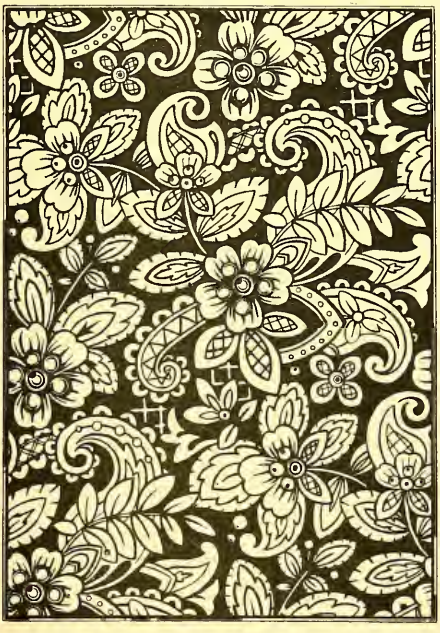
At last the intrepid Dewey withdrew his little fleet,
The cloud of smoke uplifted and oh! the air was sweet!
We looked to meet the foe once more, the dozen ships of Spain,
But they had gone below, my boys, to join the gallant Maine;
'Twas ho! to be a sailor upon that first of May!
And live to fight again, my boys, and shout on Dewey day!

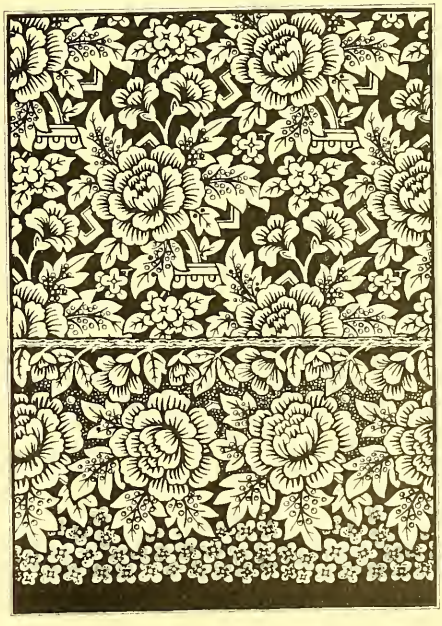
Robert Kidson.

The fall line of Smyrna and Soudan rugs and carpets made by the Newfield Smyrna Rug Company is ready for inspection and the samples are shown by J. G. Burrows & Co., the sole agents, 343 Broadway, New York. The line includes rugs in all sizes from door mats to 9 by 12 carpets. The large sizes are made in carpet patterns, a new feature exclusive with the Newfield Company, and the favor with which this innovation has been received indicates that the product will be freely taken up. Between forty and fifty patterns are shown in animal, Turkish and Oriental designs. Jobbing buyers will find it to their advantage to view the line before placing fall orders.









DESIGNS FOR CARPETS.

FROM TEXTILE INDUSTRIES, BRADFORD, ENGLAND.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

Prison labor is the cause of much contention in certain trades abroad, as well as in this country. Recently at Parkeston, England, about ninety dozen cocoa mats, imported from Belgium, and valued at between £300 and £400 sterling, were piled in a heap on the banks of the Stour, and set fire to, together with a quantity of cigars, bottles of varnish and other mixtures containing spirits, which were not worth the duty chargeable. The occasion was the first enforcement of the "Foreign Prison-Made Goods Act" of 1897. The act provides that "goods proved to the satisfaction of the Commissioners of Customs, by evidence tendered to them, to have been made or produced wholly or in part in any foreign prison, jail, house of correction or penitentiary, except goods in transit or not imported for the purpose of trade, or of a description not manufactured in the United Kingdom," shall be added the table of prohibitions and restrictions of the Custom's Consolidation act. That is, they may be seized by the customs officers and disposed of in any way they may think fit. The parties who moved the commissioners in this case were the representatives of the Mat and Matting Manufacturers' Association, and the mats seized and burned were made at a penal colony in Belgium, and consigned to England at prices with which, it is alleged, free labor cannot possibly compete. The necessary evidence having been obtained as to their origin, various consignments of the mats were retained in February, and the manufacturers concerned having entered into a bond to indemnify the customs if any mistake had been made—the bonfire referred to took place.

A clerk in a Springfield (Mass.) store had sweet revenge the other day on a woman who had annoyed him. She wanted to look at baskets, and for that purpose the clerk took from the shelves a large assortment, until all but two were scattered over the counter. The woman did not want to buy, so she turned away, making the excuse, "I only came in to look for one of my friends."

The clerk felt rather exasperated, and replied, "Madame, if you have the slightest idea that your friend is in either of those two baskets still on the shelves, I shall be pleased to take them down for you to examine."

A business man well known as a large and skillful advertiser says:

"I consider advertising through circulars a very poor method and a very expensive one. As part of an advertising campaign a well written circular, sent out periodically, has its uses the same as have other links in the long chain of modern advertising methods. Its strongest point is that its issue can be limited to a select list of prospective customers, and bearing a two cent stamp it is not always without benefit.

"But the idea has been so awfully overdone. Thousands upon thousands of houses use circulars, and the daily mail is burdened. The sight of one has become an eyesore to the recipient. The mail carrier seems to be afflicted in the same way, for he tosses it on the table like a thing he hates—and have you not often completed his intent by sweeping it pell-mell into the waste basket?

"They cost $20 a thousand to mail, and 20,000 times more time to prepare than you have time to waste. When you compile them you think fondly of their merit, and wholly fail to remember that you tossed aside nine in ten of those received yesterday without so much as looking at them.

"Will your circular meet with a better reception? You say, yes, because you intend getting up an attractive one; good paper, good type, elegant half-tones, a sort of souvenir that will be preserved. No doubt, you yourself have in your time received some pretty ones—now, candidly, how large is your collection of souvenirs? And where are they? Do you brush your elbows against them every time you plunge into your ink bottle, or are the real pretty ones locked away in your bottom drawer, serving out a penance of oblivion worse than that of the cheap and nasty ones you consigned without ceremony to the rag man's heap?

"At one time, a long while ago, I prepared an expensive circular, thinking that if gotten up in supreme taste it would be preserved and do a deal of good. The next noon after they were mailed, my junior partner visited a friend to whom one had been directed, and found the recipient's infant son, who had been left in the inner office while mamma made a hurried call, contentedly sitting on the floor tearing it to tatters. It was a pretty pamphlet, you know, full of pictures, and given to amuse the lad.

"No matter how attractively prepared, the result of the best observation is that they remain unappreciated. And how expensive! The $100 invested compiling and floating them—I like the term 'float' with reference to circulars—might be spent to better advantage in a steady advertisement, even though a small one, in a good paper. Compared with the best circular ever written a good ad. is so cheap as to distance it in every way."

One of the pleasant incidents connected with the departure of the Sixty-ninth Regiment from Camp Black for the South was the presentation by J. H. Mullins, the Brooklyn carpet and furniture dealer, of two service swords, belts and scabbards and two sets of spurs to Major Thomas Lynch and to Adjutant Gilgal. Adjutant Gilgal was formerly salesman for many years in Mr. Mullins' establishment and has been a member of the Sixty-ninth Regiment for a dozen years or more. He was promoted to the adjutancy from first lieutenant of Company K some time ago. Major Lynch is an intimate friend of Mr. Mullins.

Chalk is one of the most important crude materials brought to this country for manufacturing purposes. It enters largely into the manufacture of oil cloth and wall paper. It is one of the few articles used in the trades which come almost exclusively from Europe. Some chalk beds have been discovered in the United States, but the expense of transporting it is too great to make the home product a successful competitor with the foreign article. It is found in the bank of the Thames River, at Dieppe and near Copenhagen, and is shipped to this country in its crude condition. There is no duty on chalk and it usually comes as ballast in bulk. About 125,000 tons came to the United States last year.

There is nothing complicated about its preparation for the market. It is placed in huge grinding machines, where it is ground in water and then floated off into vats, where all foreign substances and impurities are precipitated. The water is then drawn off by a series of filtering operations and the soft residuum is dried by steam heat and exposure to the air. By means of burr mills and belting the white substance is then reduced to a powder, packed in barrels and shipped for use.

IMPORTANCE OF THE ERIE CANAL.

The Merchants' Association has addressed a letter to Governor Black on the subject of the improvement of the Erie Canal, in which it says:

We believe that canal improvement should be made by the State itself. We believe also that there is no time to be lost in commencing that improvement. If that most magnificent of waterways can be brought up to the standard to which it ought to be brought, it can serve (even better than it has served in the past) as the great regulator of freight rates to and from the seaboard lying at the foot of the Hudson River.

Were that canal system placed in a position where it can be more of a factor as the basing point from which freight rates could be determined, both east and west bound, the railroads traversing the State of New York, which have their termini at or near this port could be placed in a position where they could refuse to continue the present system of arbitrary differentials now existing, which enable roads not having their termini at New York, but serving other cities primarily, to divert traffic from the metropolis to those cities.

Eugene H. Hill, designer and card stamper, makes a specialty of artistic novelties in Ingrains. Mr. Hill's studio is at 2203 Hancock street, Philadelphia.

Exports of Chinese matting from Hong Kong and Canton to the United States during the period between May 6, 1897, and April 14, 1898, amounted to 231,957 rolls. For the corresponding period of the season of 1896-7 the exports were 475,917 rolls.

On page 6 of this issue John Gay's Sons make some statements of interest in regard to their new lines of Flemish Tapestries, Rajah art carpets, Park Mills Extra Supers, plain Terries &c. Write to the Messrs. Gay for their sample book containing thirty different colors in Terries.

The fall line of the James Hall Carpet Company is now ready. It comprises Pro-Brussels, Ingrains, Damasks, Venetians, Granite Ingrains and Domestics and is the most attractive ever shown by the company. The Pro-Brussels are an especially strong line and the Unions are also a very notable feature. The Washington Mills' Pro-Brussels and Unions are specialties of remarkable attractiveness, but the company manufactures other grades of Ingrains also. Dealers will benefit themselves as well as the James Hall Carpet Company by looking at this new line before placing their fall orders. It is on view at the mills, northwest corner of Front street and Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia.

PACIFIC COAST AND FAR WEST ITEMS.

San Francisco, May 18.

The carpet and furniture business is moving along like a slow freight train. There is no denying the fact that trade has nearly reached a standstill which is almost without a precedent. There is a possibility of things looking up a little bit later on, as a heavy rainfall a few days ago has materially changed the complexion of California's prospects. The long drought worked a great many hardships on the farmer.

This is the point of mobilization for all troops bound to the Philippine Islands, and it is becoming quite common to see the boys in blue marching through the principal thoroughfares at all hours of the day from the depot to the camp grounds. The Government has issued an order for 1,000,000 rations from the merchants of this city, and the fact that over $250,000 will be circulated in town is a very pleasant thing to contemplate. All lines of trade not directly benefited will be so indirectly.

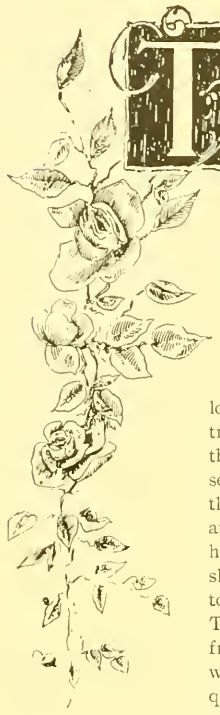
A Scotchman claims that he has discovered a process by which jute can be so treated that it can be mixed with wool and be scarcely discernible from the wool. Hitherto the bleaching of jute has made it too white to allow its being mixed with wool in blankets, but this difficulty has been overcome. It is claimed for the new process that the strength of the jute is not impaired. At present the jute is treated in Dundee and sent to England to be manufactured.

FUSSY CUSTOMERS AND WORRIED DEALERS.



Talking to a Sun reporter recently about the troubles of his trade, a large carpet and furniture dealer said: "It seems to me sometimes that our big stores are run primarily for the convenience of shopping women, and, in the background, the firm gets a little profit, if it may. Certainly the shopping women do not hesitate to demand the most extraordinary concessions.

"A woman came into the carpet department the other day to look at floor coverings. She was extremely hard to please, and finally the salesman said that he would send home to her a roll of carpet that she might spread it on the floor and see if it harmonized with her hangings and furnishings, it being, she explained, very difficult for her to carry their coloring in her eye. This was done, and a second visit from the customer followed. She wasn't quite sure that the shade was quite right, and would we mind sending up another roll which showed a little darker design? This was done, and the day after she came in enthusiastic. The carpet was perfectly suitable in every way, and we might go ahead and make it up.

"It was a handsome Moquette carpet, and the room was large, with several deviations from regularity. Measures were taken and the order finished at the prescribed time. It left the house one Thursday morning, and was put down before night. On Friday she appeared at the store. In a few moments the salesman who had conducted the proceedings thus far sent for me. I found the woman in one of the most difficult moods we encounter in customers. She threw herself absolutely on our mercy. She said that we had done everything in our power, and she had supposed that the carpet was a perfect success; 'but, she said, 'instead, it is absolutely intolerable. On the floor made up it looks very different from what it did on the floor spread out. It cheapens everything I've got in the room, takes the color out of some things and gives to others a most unaccountable glare. Why, when I enter that room a feeling of nausea comes over me. I cannot describe it, but I cannot live with that carpet Now what will you do about it?'

"The question was rather a poser to me, for she was a good customer, and I knew that the firm would want to do everything possible. I suggested that it would be cheaper to have an inexpensive new papering put on the walls, which was possibly the cause of this æsthetic disturbance. But no, she had just had new paper put on; that could not be changed. The carpet must come up, and she would never have another one down there. She would have a hardwood floor. I suggested that we would like to furnish her estimates on the hardwood floor, but this she would not listen to until we could do something with the carpet, as she could not afford two floor coverings. Well, in the end I sent for the carpet. I agreed to deduct the value of the laying and making from her bill, and the carpet I would attempt to sell. We did make an effort, showing it to several persons, but the fact that it had been a misfit aroused everybody's suspicion, and we could not dispose of it. Finally we sent it to an auction room, getting about half of the selling price. On referring the matter to the firm it was decided that half of the loss should be borne by the house in order to hold the customer, although there was not the slightest blame on our side, and we had done more than we were really expected to do in an effort to please the woman."

THE BISSELL COMPANY'S TOY CARPET SWEEPERS.

The Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company has issued the following circular:

To The Trade:

The phenomenal sale of Bissell's toy sweepers for the season of 1897 was due to two important facts—namely, quality of the goods, and ridiculously low prices.

Now, as we regard the distribution of these little sweepers throughout the homes as one of the best advertisements we could possibly have, and that their use will stimulate the demand for our regular domestic size brands, we have concluded for this season to waive all profits in the sale of toy sweepers, depending entirely for our benefits in an advertising way.

We quote you prices, as follows:

Bissell's Little Jewel, listing at $6 per dozen; Bissell's Little Queen, listing at $3.50 per dozen; Bissell's Child's, listing at $2.50 per dozen; Bissell's Baby, listing at $2 per dozen; Bissell's Little Daisy, listing at $1.50 per dozen. Terms, sixty days net; 2 per cent., ten; delivered in gross lots or more to points east of the Missouri River.

As our domestic size sweepers stand at the head in their class, so does our toy line eclipse anything of the kind offered on the market to-day. While reducing our prices, the quality of the goods will be strictly maintained, and we desire to further assure you that prices herewith named on our toy line are guaranteed.

It must be remembered that the above prices are made on the best constructed, best finished, best selling line of toy sweepers on the market, hence should not be compared with prices offered on inferior tin toy machines, which do not possess a single meritorious feature in common with our goods. If you want a tin top toy sweeper we can supply it, and at a price that will save you money. We strongly recommend, however, that you only buy our high grade toy sweepers, which contain our best construction and bear our name.

We should be pleased to furnish you a quantity of circulars as per inclosed, as well as electros for illustrating our toy line in your catalogue. Trusting that we may have your instructions to enter your order for your wants in toy sweepers for the season of 1898, and hoping to hear from you soon, we remain,

Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company,
By T. W. Williams.

Arnold, Constable & Co.'s lines of exclusive patterns in Lowell, Bigelow and Hartford Axminsters form a superb collection of choice artistic designs and colorings, in fact the finest as well as the largest assortment of such goods ever shown by Arnold, Constable & Co. The firm's offerings in Stinson Velvets and Tapestries are also of extraordinary attractiveness, the Messrs. Stinson having surpassed all their previous efforts in their new line.

Floor Coverings;

Their History and Manufacture.

Smyrna Rugs.

SMYRNA rug is simply a chenille Axminster fabric with the wool distributed on both sides, instead of only on the face. The goods were at first a by-product of the factory of the Messrs. Templeton at Glasgow. This firm were the original manufacturers of the chenille Axminister carpeting, and from the waste chenille they made what they called an Afghan rug, which had a double instead of a single face. The goods were woven only in hit or miss or mottled patterns, and the Oriental and other effects now the prevailing styles in these rugs originated in this country.

The double faced chenille fabric was first made by European manufacturers of shawls, and it was these shawls which suggested to carpet manufacturers the idea of making a floor covering of the same material.

Robert Beattie & Sons were pioneers in the manufacture of Smyrna rugs in this country. They were perhaps the earliest manufacturers of them, and they were certainly the first to make them in any considerable quantity. They made them at first by sewing together breadths of chenille carpeting, and sewing on a border, which was woven with separate corner pieces to avoid mitering. The goods were made in one size, 6x9 feet, and sold as "Turkistan" carpets.

Most of them were bought by Joseph Wild & Co., and it was this firm that suggested to the Messrs. Beattie the idea of reproducing Oriental patterns, a Ghiordes rug being selected as the first to be copied.

Sheppard Knapp, of Sheppard Knapp & Co., believes that Job Pearson made the first piece of chenille carpet in this country. Mr. Knapp advised Pearson to put a border on the carpeting, and thus produce an imitation of an Oriental rug. Mr. Knapp was the first to advertise these goods as "Smyrnas," and at his suggestion application was made for a patent on them, but for some reason it was refused.

Since the starting of the industry in this country, which was about twenty years ago, many important improvements have been made in the process of manufacture. In the factory of to-day the dyed yarn is first taken to the cop winding macnine and wound on cops, which then go to the weft weaving room. The pattern which is to be reproduced in the weft is drawn and colored upon the design paper in the usual manner, but is then cut into strips, which are called papers. Each strip is a double paper, each paper representing one shot in the setting loom.

The operative at the weft weaving loom begins her work by placing one of these strips before her as her guide in throwing the shuttles containing the weft yarns. The warp is composed of four cotton threads, but by the movement of a cam in the loom these threads are twisted in the weaving operation so as to make two double threads instead of four single ones. When the pattern on the first strip has been reproduced in the weft the weaver takes the strip which comes next in order in the design, and continues in this way until the entire pattern has been woven. The chenille, which during the weaving operation has been wound on a beam, is then taken to the cutting machine, in which a number of small circular blades fixed on a revolving cylinder come in contact with the chenille as it passes over another cylinder and cut it into narrow strips. As quickly as it is cut the twisted threads in each strip cause it to twist itself into the fur-like shape characteristic of chenille fabric. The strips after passing through the cutting machine are wound on cops, and are then ready for the setting loom, in which the warp is cotton thread and the chenille fur the weft, with a shot of jute yarn between each strip as filling. From this loom it emerges in the form of rugs, the pattern on the design paper being exactly reproduced in the woven rug. From the loom the rug goes to the shearing machine, where the surface is made even, and it is then fringed and finished. The fringing operation formerly required a great deal of hand labor, but all or nearly all of this work is now done by machines

BUNDHAR WILTON RUGS.

IT is interesting to notice how the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company manage to score in the carpet size rugs boom. They are said to have no specially wide looms, but it is a fact that they are doing a remarkably large business in their Bundhar Wilton carpet size rugs. In the first place the Bundhar, patented by Mr. Hardwick, is particularly suitable for a rug fabric. It lays smooth on the floor and the tufts are well locked in the fabric, even close up to the selvedges, so that in the places where the edges are brought together to form the seam the perfect matching, careful hand stitching (every stitch being made by hand) and neat and perfectly tufted selvedges give the Bundhar Wilton rugs the appearance of being entirely seamless, and after being in use for a few days they actually pass as seamless rugs.

Furthermore, the designs, colors and general appearance adhere so closely to the Oriental style that it is really difficult to distinguish one from the other, and the Bundhar Wiltons will readily be accepted in the consumers' apartments as genuine Oriental rugs.

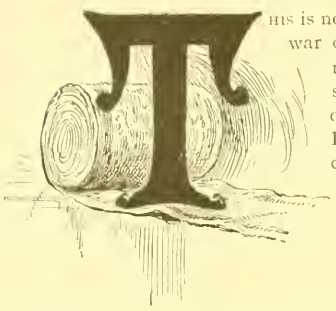
THE Goshen Sweeper Company, Grand Rapids, Mich., have recently made a reduction of 10 to 15 per cent. on all their high grade carpet sweepers, and have also added to their cheap line a new grade called the "Eureka." The trade have shown their appreciation of this reduction in prices by sending in very liberal orders. The company have added two new salesmen to their force and business is very active. They believe that the fall trade will be unusually good.

A GLIMPSE OF THE WAR.

WHAT A RUG AND CURTAIN MANUFACTURER SAW ON A TRIP TO KEY WEST AND A CRUISE IN A DISPATCH BOAT.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE THE CARPET AND UPHOLSTERY TRADE REVIEW.)

PORT TAMPA, Fla., May 18, 1898.



THIS is not a letter about the war on prices, but a few notes of what I have seen and experienced on my trip to the front. Leaving New York city on the Savannah Line steamer, the first intimation that we had that we were in actual war was when our steamer had a narrow escape from being blown into the unknown future by running within a few feet of a submarine mine off Sandy Hook. The feeling of relief after the stern of our ship had passed the danger point cannot be described.

Our voyage was very pleasant until we arrived off Cape Hatteras, when we ran into a gale. On the third morning out the passengers were thrown into wild excitement by the discovery of three steamers, and as the Spanish Armada was expected to be on a rampage off our coast, the possibility of hanging to the yardarm or walking the plank was suggested to some of our passengers, and it was quite amusing to see the different dispositions made of valuables, one passenger putting his watch and money in the belly of a codfish, and others hiding theirs in different parts of the ship.

A railroad journey to Jacksonville and a visit to the trade showed me that the war had completely paralyzed all business. Merchants said that they had never experienced such a sudden and complete falling off of business, and while the war lasts they expect to place orders only for such goods as they require for immediate delivery.

A run from Jacksonville to Palm Beach and Lake Worth, and a lay over for a day to pay a visit to these celebrated watering places, and a fine bicycle ride, well repaid me for the short time spent here, and I heartily recommend a business man seeking a few weeks' rest from business cares to run down here. The climate and the tropical vegetation are a revelation to any Northern man not having visited places of this kind. I asked a typical Southerner: "What do you people live on down here?" The answer came quick: "We live on sick Yankees in the winter time and sweet potatoes in summer."

A day's run to Miami brought us to another beautiful tropical garden, the Miami Hotel, the river and the splendid harbor being the chief attractions. Here we met the twenty-one Spanish officers and men taken prisoners. They were all well treated by the residents. In fact the writer thought the attention lavished on them was entirely out of place. They were taken into a hotel, one of the ladies there playing selections on the piano and others serving them with refreshments. Colonel Cortijo, who told the United States soldiers that if he were searched that he would starve himself to death, very gallantly took off a decoration from his coat and presented it to the lady who was playing the piano, and he then cut off the gold buttons from his coat and gave them to the other ladies.

From Miami we took the steamer to Key West, the seat of the war. This island is situated eighty-three miles from the mainland and ninety-two miles from Havana, and is our base of supplies and operations for our navy. It is three miles wide and six miles long and is very poorly fortified, having only one new fort and several old ones. The new fort is but partly completed, and should the Spanish fleet come into this harbor they would make short work of the defenses and destroy the town. It is a hot war town, with everything wide open. Water is scarce and sells at 10 cents a gallon, and no rain has fallen for five months. There are no wells and the town is supplied by rain water drained and stored in cisterns. The Government has put up large condensers, and when in operation will be able to condense 40,000 gallons per hour. When water is scarce it is brought from Port Tampa in a water tank steamer. The weather is hot and everything is covered with white dust; the streets are unpaved, and the only rapid transit is by mule cars, clothesline reins being used for driving. The conductor of the car on which the writer rode stopped at a Cuban cigar store, bought a cigar, lit it and enjoyed his smoke. He then stopped at a private house long enough to eat a square meal. Fare 5 cents, and journey complete when you get there. The merchants here report a booming trade and the hotels and private boarding houses cannot accommodate the rush. The grub consists of razorback hog and rice.

By the courtesy of Mr. Holland, the United States marshal on the celebrated filibuster Three Friends, I had my ambition gratified by a run over to Cuba. Starting away in the evening, the run was made in about six hours, which brought us to the blockading fleet off Cardenas. The first blockader we ran up against was the gunboat Wilmington, and as it was dark and no light was visible on the boat, a powerful searchlight was turned on us and we heard the call through a speaking trumpet, "What boat is that?" We had the pleasure of looking up the lane of the searchlight and seeing the ugly muzzle of a 6 inch rapid firing gun pointing directly into our faces. A quick response, "Three Friends," and running up a red and green light only saved us from a taste of the real stuff. When they were satisfied we were not a Don boat, the questions "What news? Have you any papers?" came quickly, whereupon we gave them the news of Dewey's victory. The crew could not restrain themselves. They quickly lowered a boat, and we passed in twenty-five newspapers and some boxes of vegetables of different kinds. This experience was repeated from port to port until we arrived early in the morning opposite Matanzas, where we were treated to the splendid sight of the gunboat Montgomery bidding the Dons good morning by opening upon them with all her guns and knocking down every vestige of earthworks which had been thrown up. Nearly every shell either plowed through the works or burst over the works, and in less than three-quarters of an hour their guns were either dismounted or had been deserted. I have seen some good shooting in the civil war, but for perfect and accurate firing I never saw it equaled, and as I told an officer, "You can hit a tomato can five miles away."

After leaving Matanzas we skirted along the coast until we came opposite Havana, and had a peep at the grim walls of Morro Castle. When our navy opens fire upon this fortification you will see the old thing crumble like a pack of cards. The blockade at this port is complete in all its details. A bird can hardly fly across without being seen by some of our ships. From Havana we headed for Key West, and experienced some hard weather. The Gulf Stream, which runs four miles an hour, and the southerly wind coming in contact with each other make a hard sea, and one which tries the sea legs of a landsman. From Key West we took the steamer Mascot to Port Tampa, on board of which was the Key West militia, a handsome body of brave young men who will certainly be heard from when they go to Cuba.

At Port Tampa we visited the regulars and inspected all the camps. There is perfect discipline. The men are in good health and are spoiling for a fight, and are willing to go at any time and place, feeling sure that when they can get a crack at the Dons they will make short work of them.

From Tampa we returned home, well satisfied with the three weeks' experience at the front, and believing that if our Government will only push things to an issue that we can celebrate a double event on the Fourth of July.

GLEN ECHO CARPETS AND RUGS.

The superiority of Glen Echo carpets and rugs in quality and designs has never been more thoroughly demonstrated than in the fall offerings now open to the trade. The collection in new things was completed last week, so that everything to be shown for the fall may now be seen at the Philadelphia salesroom, 1012 Chestnut street, or the New York salesroom, 39 Union square. The patterns in Wiltons, Body Brussels, Extra Supers, Byzantine Rugs, Arras Tapestries and Arras Art Squares show the uncommon, novel and beautiful effects characteristic with McCallum & McCallum, which are the result of courage to produce bold departures, liberal expenditure in patterning and the skill coming from long experience of both the firm members and their staff.

FALL LINES OF RUGS, ART SQUARES, CURTAINS AND TABLE COVERS.

W. T. Smith & Son's line of goods for fall trade is now complete and ready for inspection at their New York office, 337 Broadway. Buyers visiting the big auction sale are particularly invited to call there. This firm have taken exceptional care in bringing out new patterns in Smyrna rugs, Art Squares and chenille goods. A complete new line of new colorings is their strong point in Art Squares. Their Regent and Gold Eagle grades of rugs are kept up to the standard, both in quality and designs.

FARR & BAILEY COMPANY'S NEW ILLUSTRATIONS.

In this number will be found a view in colors of the extensive floor oil cloth works of the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company at Camden, N. J. The representation as regards the number of buildings and extent of ground covered is faithful, and when the trade realize that these buildings are filled with the latest and best machinery buyers can understand that the Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company are in a foremost position in competing for trade in floor oil cloths.

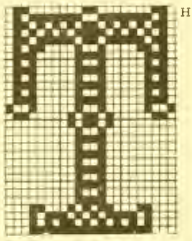
John Watt's Sons' Herculean Ingrains are shown for the fall season in an enlarged variety of patterns, and indications point to an active fall trade on these popular priced and attractive goods.

McCallum & McCallum's jobbing department is well fortified with a stock of Tapestries and Velvets to meet competing quotations, and the firm as usual assure their customers that they will supply these goods at lowest prices.

The Fries-Breslin Company are showing a war reminder in a new Smyrna rug depicting the American and Cuban flags supporting a shield. The flag colorings are brought out in striking contrast to the rest of the design.

SHOCKED DESIGNERS APPEAL TO THE LAW.

THEY OBJECT TO "POPULAR EFFECTS" ON THE FRONT OF THEIR BUILDING



THE artistic soul of Arthur M. Rose, the carpet designer, has been harrowed for five months past by the persistence of F. Klaber, a tenant of the Rose Building, in using a sign having a sky blue ground with gilt letters, a combination condemned by Mr. Rose as entirely out of harmony with the front of the building, which is a delicate symphony in pale orange yellow with occasional dashes of green and pink. Mr. Rose is determined that this truly artistic pattern shall not be marred by any "striking popular effects" such as might delight the eyes of a Bowery carpet dealer; and as Mr. Klaber is equally determined to have his own way in this matter, the law has been invoked to settle the dispute.

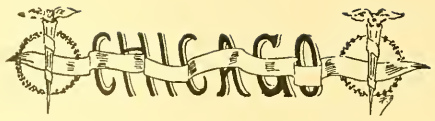
The scene of the "merry war" is the building at No. 121 West Forty-second street, this city, owned by Arthur M. Rose & Co. This firm occupy the upper part and the ground floor is held by Mr. Klaber, agent for a piano company, who claims to have a five years' lease. When Mr. Klaber first hung out the offending sign he was mildly notified that such a shock to all æsthetic ideas could not be permitted; but as he paid no attention to this remonstrance it is alleged that Rose & Co. ot once instructed Billy, the janitor, to deface the sign with benzine. This was done under cover of night by someone, but Mr. Klaber immediately sent for the painters again, and the result of their work was again destroyed on the following night by someone's benzine and brush. The fight went on in this way for several weeks, and the painters were hoping to make a small fortune from their daily job when Klaber finally appealed to the court. Learned counsel were engaged on both sides, and old and musty records were dug up, and the rights of landlords and tenants were gone into at length.

Justice O'Gorman, in the Tenth Municipal Court, last February held that the landlord was justified in protesting against the disfigurement of his building. This did not deter Mr. Klaber, and again his painters were at work. But again the benzine brush was plied, and at last Rose & Co. secured a summons from Magistrate Brann, in the West Side Police Court, to restrain Mr. Klaber.

Magistrate Brann listened to the case on the 25th ult. Elaborate maps of the premises were spread before him, with each brick and post tinted in appropriate colors.

"I am willing to end all this litigation," Mr. Klaber said, "by painting the store front as the landlord desires; but as to the sign, I stand on my rights as a tenant. I have a five years' lease of the premises, and they have been trying to turn me out ever since I came in there. They serve me with a dispossess notice promptly on the second of the month, the day after I receive my rent bill, and I shall refuse to recognize it until this question is settled. I'll paint my sign any color I please. I'll paint it blue or red, or even put it into Scotch plaids," he continued, defiantly.

Magistrate Brann reserved decision until June 8.



Chicago, May 25.

F. L. Hardcastle, with W. & J. Sloane, has opened temporary headquarters in the Silversmith Building on Wabash avenue. Mr. Eberbach is now on the road, and Mr. Hardcastle and Mr. Taylor will follow him.

E. H. Churchill, who travels West for the Read Carpet Company, has been in the city. Mr. Churchill was formerly employed by the Chicago Carpet Company as a salesman.

Mandel Brothers' new store it is expected will be ready for occupancy next week. The firm will have one of the most attractive store fronts in State street, and Manager Weber, of the carpet department will do his share toward its attractiveness by filling up one of the windows in the new part with an artistic show of carpets and Oriental Rugs.

The travelers are slipping out one by one, and next week will see the town deserted by them. Some of them have made short trips to nearby points, and the report is that buyers are somewhat indifferent to anything but war news.

Within a year Schlesinger & Mayer will occupy the half block bounded by Madison street, Wabash avenne and State street. They have just taken the leases of four stores in Madison street, east of their present frontage. They will occupy these as soon as the present tenants move out. The Madison street front of their present building will be altered and extended to include the new stores, and it is said that the main entrance will be placed in Madison street. The buildings leased are No. 50, occupied by A. H. Abbott & Co.; No. 52, Haskell Brothers; Nos. 54 and 56, owned by L. Z. Leiter, and occupied by Stanton & Co. It is said that Haskell Brothers received a bonus of $100,000 for their holdings.

CHANGE IN THE I., D. & M. CO.'S NEW ENGLAND AGENCY.

As George P. Staples has resigned the agency for the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company for New England, that company will hereafter have no Boston office, but the New England territory will be covered from their New York office by P. J. Donovan. Mr. Staples found that the requirements of his large retail carpet and furniture business in Boston called for his entire attention, hence his resignation of this agency. Mr. Donovan who has held the New York agency for the Ivins, Dietz & Metzger Company for several years past, is well and favorable known in New England, formerly having been for many years with the house of John H. Pray, Sons & Co. He and his son, Joseph P. Donovan, will make frequent calls upon the Boston and New England trade, and will furnish every opportunity for viewing the lines of the Ivins Dietz & Metzger Company.

THOS. BOGGS & SONS' NEW MILL.

We are pleased to present an illustration of the new mill of Thos. Boggs & Sons, which has been in course of erection for several months past, and to which the firm will remove this month. No Ingrain mill in Philadelphia has been operated more steadily during the past ten years than that of this firm, who have obtained a national reputation as manufacturers of Union and Cotton Ingrains. The Model Mills goods are distributed by leading jobbers throughout the country, and during even the dullest times the full complement of looms has been kept occupied on orders. This great demand has arisen from the superior qualities turned out, coupled with always attractive and original styles and colorings. In their new mill Thos. Boggs & Sons will obtain an increased prominence in the trade, as they have opportunity for expansion and will be able to provide for greater product as the trade requires.

With the occupation of their new mill also comes an addition to the firm in the person of George Boggs, the younger son of Thos. Boggs, so that the firm name is now Thos. Boggs & Sons, and consists of Thos. Boggs, Samuel R. Boggs, who was admitted a few years ago, and George W. Boggs. The sons, as well as the father, have received a thorough practical education in Ingrain manufacture, and devote their whole attention to the mills. The new mill is situated at Second street and Allegheny avenue, and in its construction the firm have had the advantage of every known improvement in modern building adapted to carpet manufacture. It can be reached from Lehigh avenue and Second street in a few minutes' walk, or the cars marked "Front and Tioga Streets," which go up Third street from Chestnut and Market streets, pass by the door.

The fall lines of Model Mills goods have already been freely ordered by the jobbing buyers, and all others who visit the city should not fail to inspect them.

Gustave M. Fauser, designer, devotes his attention to original effects and novelties for Wiltons, Brussels, Axminsters, Velvets, Tapestries, rugs, curtains, upholstery goods and wall papers. His studio is at 103 East Eleventh street, New York.

The spring outing of the Baltimore Carpet Salesmen's Association took place on the 25th ult. at Lowery's Prospect Park House on the shell road. The affair was a great success, special credit for which is due to Geo. Peters, of McDowell & Co., who had charge of the arrangements. Samuel Schillinger, of G. S. Griffith & Co., is president of the association.

SPECIALTIES IN CARPET RUGS.

The large variety of carpet rugs made by James & Geo. D. Bromley, Philadelphia, should command the attention of every rug buyer in the country. They show fabrics not produced by any other maker and which are sure sellers. They produce in 3 yard widths and any length the following different grades and makes of rugs: Istakhr, Kashgar, Ayranian, Aral, Agra, Alta, Extra Super, Dekhan and Aleppo. Of the above three are entirely new for the fall season The Istakhr is a heavy reversible fabric, in weave and appearance resembling an Indian carpet. The Kashgar is another reproduction of Eastern carpets, and is also extra heavy weight and produced in Oriental effects. The Dekhan is the fabric known as Pro-Brussels, made into an Art Square in the rich designs for which this firm are noted. It furnishes a substantial, heavy weight rug at a very moderate price. The Aral rug is one of the most handsomely colored rugs in the market, showing all the richness and depth of coloring obtainable in the highest cost pile goods. It will be a good seller and should not be passed by anyone. The Agra rug is in the well-known and favorite Agra weave, and is produced in a number of new patterns for the fall. The Alta, Extra Super and Aleppo rugs provide large one-piece rugs at prices to suit the popular wants. This exceptionally strong assortment of carpet rugs, which just now are in great demand, is shown by the selling agents, T. J. Keveney & Co., at their New York, Chicago and Philadelphia offices, and may also be seen at the mill salesroom, Adams and Jasper streets, Philadelphia, where quarters have recently been fitted up to receive buyers. Visitors to Philadelphia should not miss calling at the mill of Jas. & Geo. D. Bromley.

The fall price list of McCallum & McCallum is published on another page. There is no change in the prices of Wiltons and Brussels from the spring season, but there is a reduction of 2½ cents per yard on the prices of Arras Tapestries and Extra Supers.

On page 100 of this issue the Butcher Polish Company, 356 Atlantic avenue, Boston, calls attention to its celebrated polish for floors, linoleums, interior woodwork and furniture. It is regarded as the best floor finish made and has not a single objectionable feature. It is not brittle, will neither scratch nor deface like shellac or varnish, and is not soft and sticky like beeswax. It is perfectly transparent, preserving the natural color and beauty of the wood for years. Write for circulars, &c.

Hogg & Son, proprietors of the Worcester Carpet Company, announce that, beginning with this season, they will carry in stock a large variety of patterns in the first and second grades of Wilton carpets, and will supply the trade with any cut quantity desired. Dealers may purchase samples of these goods and order as per their requirements. The line of samples may be ordered either through their selling agents, T. J. Keveney & Co., 898 Broadway, New York, or from the mill in Worcester, Mass.

LOWELL BAGDAD RUGS.

A new feature in the Lowell Company's fall line is their Lowell Bagdad rugs, made in 9x12 feet. They are shown in a good variety of original patterns and beautiful colorings, and are bound to become favorite sellers. The trade should take particular pains to view these new Bagdads before deciding on their fall rug stock. The Lowell Company are also offering to the trade their Daghestan Wilton rugs in 36x63 and 36x72 inch sizes in an ample variety of patterns.

ORIENTAL RUGS FOR AMERICAN REQUIREMENTS.

The great success of Fritz & La Rue, of Philadelphia, as importers of choice Oriental rugs and carpets will be largely enhanced through their offerings for the fall of 1898. The stock selected by Mr. Fritz on his visit to the Orient this spring is now in and is by far the best assortment ever collected by the firm as regards patterns and colorings and qualities of fabric, together with rareness in antique pieces. The feature of this firm's Oriental offerings is that they are thoroughly in touch with the wants and ideas of American people and carry out such ideas in selecting their goods. It is no wonder, therefore, that Fritz & La Rue command the attention and business of the best buyers throughout the country.

It is rumored that a new carpet commission firm will be shortly started in New York, composed of well-known men.

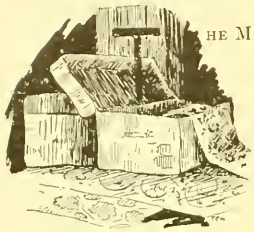
Daniel Currie is showing a good line of popular effects in Extra Supers, C. C.'s, Unions and Cottons at his mill, Lawrence street, below Lehigh avenue, Philadelphia.

Richard S. Margeson, carpet and furniture dealer, 2337 Washington street, Boston, died on May 18 at his summer home at Newington, N. H , aged fifty-two. A widow and six children survive him.

Stinson Brothers' new line of patterns in their popular Tapestries and Velvets have been receiving the highest compliments from the trade. All their former distributers will have these goods on show, and other outlets have been secured. We may say truthfully of quality that no possible condition will tempt the reduction of their standard quality one iota.

BRINGING BUYERS TO NEW YORK.



The Merchants' Association of New York has made arrangements with the railway lines extending from this city as far west as Chicago and St. Louis, as far south as the Ohio River and Baltimore and Washington, as far east as the border line of the New England States, and north into Canada, for reduced rates for merchants who are members of the Merchants' Association residing at points outside of New York city and the members of their immediate families.

This territory is subdivided into two separate territories, each under the jurisdiction of a separate railway association. The reduced rates have been granted on the application of the Merchants' Association for a separate series of dates in those separate territories. The earlier set of dates are for the more distant territory. This is bounded on the west by Chicago and St. Louis; on the south by the Ohio River, but taking in that portion of northern Kentucky which is traversed by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway; on the east, but not including Suspension Bridge, Niagara Falls, Tonawanda, Black Rock, Buffalo, East Buffalo, Buffalo Junction, Dunkirk and Salamanca, N. Y.; Erie, Pittsburg and Allegheny, Pa; Bellaire, Ohio; Wheeling, Parkersburg, Huntington and Gauley Bridge, W. Va.

The dates upon which the reduced rates will be in effect in that territory are from August 7 to 10, inclusive, and from August 27, to 31 inclusive. The tickets to be sold between those dates will be good to return for thirty days from the date of sale. The price of each ticket will be at the rate of one fare and one-third for the round trip from the point of departure.

The second territory is east of and including the cities named above, running south to Baltimore and Washington and east to the New England States. The dates upon which the reduced fare will be in effect in this second territory are September 1 to 4, inclusive, and September 10 to 14, inclusive. The rate of fare in this second territory will be the same as for the first named territory, but the period of time within which the tickets will be good to return home will be fifteen days from the date of sale, instead of thirty days, as in the first named territory.

At an extraordinary general meeting of Messrs. John Crossley & Sons, carpet manufacturers, Halifax, on the 13th ult., a resolution was passed confirming the resolution passed at a recent special meeting that there be returned to the holders of the 118,797 ordinary shares of the company of £5 fully paid up £1 per share, and that each share be deemed to be paid up to the extent of £4 only, and liable to a call of £1. The chairman (Mr. E. Crossley) said that the directors were gratified to find that their recommendation had met with the approval of the shareholders. He believed the proceeding would conduce to the consolidation and strength of the company.

HUNTER & WHITCOMB'S NEW RUGS.

The new rugs shown by Hunter & Whitcomb indicate that they will strongly hold their leading place in the wholesale rug trade for the fall season.

They show high pile mohair rugs in solid colors and two-toned effects in any size up to 9x12 feet and in plain or crinkled pile. These are exceedingly rich and choice goods, and as their production is in the hands of few people it will pay to view this firm's line.

A fine line of baby carriage mohair robes and rugs is also displayed.

A new thing which will surely attract the higher class trade is a French made rug in an extra high and fine worsted pile. It is made in any size up to 14.9 wide, and in any length ; also in hall runners and yard goods. There are 75 to 100 different patterns in choicest designs and colorings, and the rug is sold 25 to 35 per cent. cheaper than India rugs. Hunter & Whitcomb are the sole agents for the rug in this country.

Another novelty is a new seamed rug, made of fine worsted in a high pile, in which all the coloring effects of the best imported Axminster may be obtained. This is a new patented weave, and is a higher class than any seamed rug heretofore offered by Hunter & Whitcomb.

For carpet size rugs or smaller sizes in fine qualities and rare effects, consult Hunter & Whitcomb, 874 Broadway, New York.

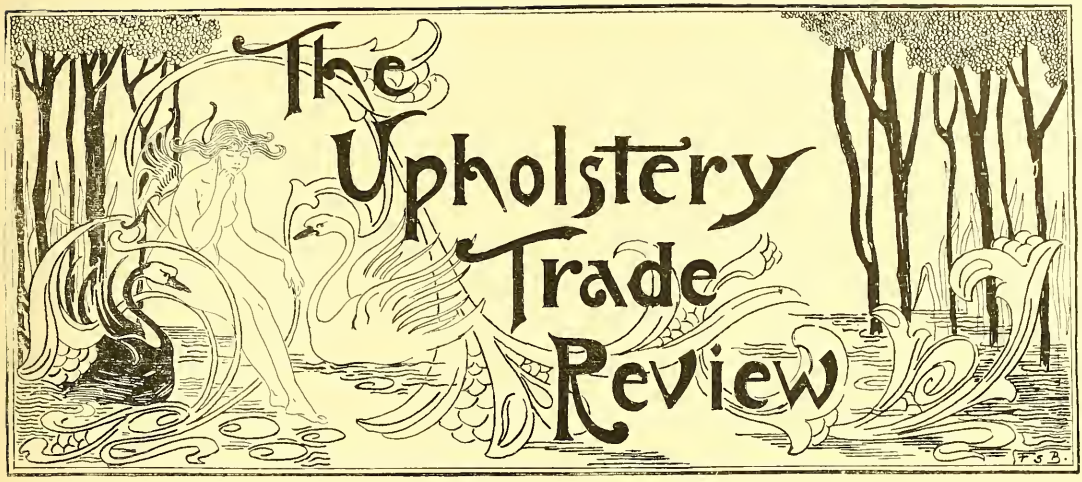
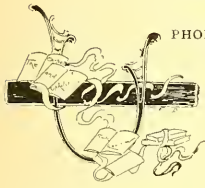
They are prepared to make attractive prices on the goods and will send quotations on application.

CHIPMAN'S NEW MOVE.

W. H. Chipman & Co., the Boston carpet wholesalers, are hereafter to make a specialty of handling job or irregular goods. It is said they will make this the leading feature of their business, but will retain a few of the regular lines which they have handled for many years past.



The Fortnight.



UPHOLSTERY goods manufacturers' new lines for the fall trade are completed and are now being shown to the jobbing buyers, who seem to be placing a fair amount of orders. The lines are more extensive than ever before, and furnish an excellent illustration of the steady progress which our domestic manufacturers are making in their line of trade.

The same remark applies to the lace curtain manufacturers, whose travelers have already made their first trips on the road with their new lines and are now in town again. Our American buyers of lace curtains have certainly every reason to be satisfied with the extent and character of the offerings for the fall business in domestic goods.

WHEN THE NEW TARIFF TOOK EFFECT.—In the case of the United States against Stoddard, Haserick & Co., heard by Judge Colt in the United States Circuit Court at Boston on the 26th ult., the question involved is: When did the Dingley tariff bill become law?

The plaintiff asks for a review of the findings of the Board of General Appraisers of New York, which held that the act did not become operative as law until the moment of 4:06 P. M. on July 24, 1897, when the President affixed his signature to it. This was a reversal of the decision of Collector Warren, of Boston, who ruled that by relation the act became operative as law from the first moment of July 24.

Under the finding of the board the importation of 305 bales of wool, in this case, which arrived on the Sylvania at this port from Liverpool on the morning of that day, and received permits of delivery before noon, was entitled to entry duty free under the old tariff act of 1894, paragraph 685. But as the collector had before ruled, the importation was subject to a duty of 11 cents per pound under paragraph 357, schedule K, of the Dingley act, the whole duty amounting to $30,465.

The contention of the Government is that by relation—the Government recognizing no fractions of a day—the act became operative as law from the first moment of the 24th of July—the afternoon of which day the President signed it. But the importers contend that the ruling of the board that the law did not become operative until the President approved it by affixing his signature is right.

The court reserved its decision.

JAPANESE SILK BOUNTY LAW REPEALED.—The Consul of Japan, S. Uchida, has sent the following letter to Albert Tilt, president of the Silk Association of America:

"DEAR SIR—Referring to my last letter, dated the 13th inst., I have the pleasure of informing you that the bill repealing the silk bounty law has passed both houses of our Diet yesterday, and it will undoubtedly take effect as a law very soon."

This letter is dated May 24, 1898.

The Secretary of the Treasury, upon investigation, found that the Government of Japan paid an export bounty on raw silk exported from that country, and therefore he instructed officers of the customs to collect countervailing duties on such importations equal to the export duties paid. Three grades of raw silk were specified, upon which the export bounty paid was 50, 30 and 20 yen per 100 catties respectively. The countervailing duty was the same as the bounty. The present value of a Japanese yen is 49 8-10 cents, and a cattie is equal to 1⅓ pounds.

THE TWIN LINES OF TRADE.

A FEW years ago we made some comments on the growing tendency of the upholstery and carpet trades toward each other, and since then the relations between these trades have grown even closer. There are now but few carpet stores in which upholstery goods are not also handled, and the retail establishments in which only upholstery goods were kept have almost entirely disappeared.

In the great department stores the upholstery department is usually situated next to the carpet stock, this arrangement being found most convenient for the customers, because the choice of curtains, draperies, &c., often depends so much upon the pattern and colors of the carpet. Indeed all the reasons which have induced many furniture dealers to add carpets to their stocks apply with much stronger force to the union of upholstery goods and carpets, and the appreciation of this fact is evidently general in the trade.

It follows, of course, that no trade paper can now be justified in posing as an organ of the upholstery goods business exclusively or as a carpet paper only. The interdependence of the two trades has become so marked that to do justice to one the other must be kept just as clearly in view. As the dealer in carpets is also a handler of upholstery goods he desires to see the advertisements of both of these trades, and the reading matter of the upholstery department of The Review shares his attention with that of the carpet department. He is interested in both, and can afford to neglect neither.

For several years past The Review has kept these facts well in mind, and has acted accordingly, giving careful and equal attention to these two kindred lines of goods, and the wisdom of this policy seems to be amply proved by the large and constant growth of its advertising business in both the carpet and the upholstery goods trades, and especially in the latter.

INFRINGEMENT OF KING'S HOLLAND TICKETS.

We are requested to state that John King & Son's label tickets have been used on another make of hollands, and that the party guilty of this deception is known. John King & Son take this means of notifying whom it may concern that upon a recurrence of this misuse they will prosecute the offender with the utmost rigor of the law, which will bring upon him an unenviable notoriety, as well as legal punishment.

THE PHILADELPHIA TAPESTRY MILLS.

The manufacture of finer grades of upholstery piece goods has of late taken an upward tendency in this country, and among the firms who are showing some of the finer qualities is that of the Philadelphia Tapestry Mills. This concern presents to the trade a line of goods which is unsurpassed for excellence of manufacture, beauty of design and artistic ideas.

It has produced for the coming season many novel effects in Oriental couch covers, curtains, table covers and piece goods. The standard of this enterprising concern has always been set very high, and its line, now showing, quite excels any previous efforts made by it. It may be seen at the mills, Cambria and Ormes streets, Philadelphia.

The Rome Universal curtain pole is rapidly coming into great demand in the trade. No traverse rings are required for it, only the ordinary rings being needed. It is an excellent window pole for stationary drapery. Portières can be traversed without cords if this pole is used, or if it is desired the cords can be used, but concealed. The Rome Universal pole costs no more than the ordinary brass poles of the same quality. Write to the manufacturers, the Rome Brass and Copper Company, Rome, N. Y.

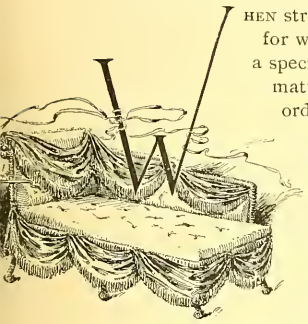
While the Trenton Oil Cloth and Linoleum Company have gone into the manufacture of linoleums extensively, they retain their usual interest in the manufacture of table, stair and enameled oil cloth, which products will continue to be as important a part of their business as heretofore. The new fall samples in these light oil cloths may be seen at their salesroom in the Hartford Building, 41 Union square, New York.

STRAW MATTING AS A WALL COVERING.



When straw matting is made a substitute for wall paper it is customary to use a special grade, and special designs of mattings are, of course, used, as the ordinary variety would present no attractiveness on a wall. In every case patterns that show extremely large figures are the thing. Diamonds and stars are high in favor, and squares and blocks made to imitate carpet designs have hardly less popularity.

In all there are a dozen or more new and fresh patterns peculiarly adapted to nailing up on walls. Red and white and green and white are the colors that are used. The blue and white matting has not come into vogue yet for wall decoration, though it may appear at any time.

These mattings are laid on in strips across the walls, not up and down. It should be remembered that the ordinary floor mattings would not be at all the thing on walls, and that only the special varieties mentioned above should ever be used. With the proper matting laid on skillfully there is an admirable background for any sort of pictures, and a room is made that will seem delightfully cool in the hottest sort of weather.

For a matting walled room window shades of matting of the same kind, or at least of a harmonious pattern, should be used.

LEADERS IN SHADE ROLLERS.

In their page advertisement in this issue the Stewart Hartshorn Company sum up in one sentence the lines along which they have made a splendid success of their business during the past years. They turn out "everything that helpeth or maketh a shade roller," and they might have added, a perfect shade roller.

It will be observed that their product is confined strictly to the manufacture of shade rollers both of wood and tin and the many novel and valuable accessories which can be utilized in connection with these goods.

This firm are liberal advertisers, because they make a roller which will bear the closest scrutiny of the public, and in addition to their general advertising they publish each month a little paper entitled "The Hartshorn Roller," which serves up in a clever and fascinating manner a good salad consisting of valuable pointers about window shades and shade rollers, garnished with humorous sketches and illustrations.

The loss amounted to $2,500, $500 of which was on the building. Both goods and building were fully covered by insurance.

CONVERTIBLE FURNITURE FOR DRAWING ROOMS.

The house furnisher nowadays finds it most difficult to keep pace with the incessant demand for novelty, and very often does not know where to turn for fresh ideas with which to satisfy the exacting conditions imposed upon him by continual changes of fashion. On this subject R. D. Benn, in the London Cabinet Maker, says: "It is not my intention at the present time to discuss the question whether the ever-existing necessity for producing 'something fresh' is favorable to the best interests of our craft. I am decidedly of the opinion that it is quite the reverse, but that is not the point at issue. The public insists upon novelty; the retail furnisher considers it to be his first duty to satisfy the public, and the manufacturer has to satisfy the retail furnisher; therefore it is our constant aim to provide our readers with suggestions which shall assist them in the origination of new forms, always keeping in view those fundamental principles of construction and design without which no satisfactory result can possibly be attained.

"To the majority of people there is an irresistible charm about combination and convertible articles—things which 'are not always what they seem'—and it is rather surprising that greater advantage is not taken of that foible. At the end of the last century Sheraton recognized the fact that the letting down of one part, the turning over of another and the shooting up of a third in a number of his productions gave unlimited satisfaction to a large proportion of purchasers, and—wise in his day and generation—he cultivated the mechaniceal side of his genius assiduously; with what results we know. Neither has this phase of the cabinet maker's art been neglected in the pages of this journal. For years past inventive furniture has received its full share of attention, and it is gratifying to know that many of the ideas given have been carried out with more than a little profit to those in whose showrooms they have found a place. I shall not, therefore, offer any excuse for devoting this article to a further series of studies belonging to what may be termed the convertible school, from the pencil of Mr. Henry Pringuer, for I feel sure that they will appeal more than favorably to a large proportion of those to whom freshness of thought is a strong recommendation, in whatsoever form it may be revealed.

"A simple little combination writing and work table is shown in Fig. 1, on the second page following this, the construction of which needs but little explanation. It will be seen that the top consists of a couple of shallow stationery cabinets, fitted to contain note paper, envelopes, pens and other accessories, and hinged respectively to the sides of the centre part. When closed the underneath surfaces of these are uppermost, but when opened out their position is reversed, and ample space on which to write is secured. It is obvious that the ink could not be placed in these side pieces; it might, however, have a small corner of its own in the sliding work-well, the sides of which latter are lined with silk or some other decorative fabric, and the interior provided with handy nooks for the bestowal of the hundred and one odds and ends which needlewomen have so remarkable a faculty for collecting.

"Fig. 2, in its first position, is just a dainty corner seat, with legs continued upward to support a graceful drapery, which, if carefully selected, might form a delightfully effective background to the head of the occupant. But this is not all. The main structure is hinged in the centre and opens out in the manner indicated by the second position, one half carrying with it the seat—or rather two seats, as will be explained later—and the other retaining the work-well which is fixed thereto. This renders the latter available for use, immediately to hand at the side of the seat, but it may not always be required by the seamstress, so yet another conversion is made possible. As already hinted, what in the first instance appeared to be only one seat is really two, hinged to and closed upon each other, and stuffed upon the inner sides as well as upon the top. The upper one can be turned over till it rests securely upon the well, and the result is a novel screen settee, capable of accommodating at least a couple of people, and not by any means devoid of decorative qualities. The upholstering of the inner sides of the two seats is sunk—the edge of the surrounding woodwork being beveled down to it—and kept low to permit of their closing perfectly. The complete working of this is made perfectly clear by the sectional drawing, Fig. 3.

"Perhaps the most ingenious of these suggestions is that presented in Fig. 4. In the first place, this is a quaint table, whose top is curiously framed in by side pieces terminating at each end with and connected by a turned bar, by which, if desirable, the table could be held when being carried from room to room. So far so good, but the article is capable of assuming the form illustrated by the second position of Fig 4—truly a remarkable transformation. The straight side pieces of the top, with their turning and cut through brackets, are actually four legs attached to upholstered seats, which seats are hinged to the central supports and kept flat against them by means of the brass catches indicated. These catches released, the seats fall on each side, describing a quarter of a circle, until the legs rest upon the ground, as shown in position two, Fig. 4. The table top, swinging between the central uprights, to which it is pivoted, can without trouble be adjusted to form a solid back to the two seats, additional comfort being insured by the addition of loose cushions hung from the shaped corners, which are pierced to permit of a strong cord being passed through. The greatest care has been taken in the planning of this contrivance to render both the table and the seats, in their different capacities, as stable as possible, and that aim has been perfectly accomplished. The foregoing description, taken together with the two sketches in Fig. 4 and the sectional drawing in Fig. 5, should make the carrying out of this idea an extremely simple matter to any skilled craftsman.

"After the foregoing problem something more simple will come as a relief, and there is in the combination writing table, work table and seat, Fig. 6, nothing to puzzle even the simplest mind. The top of this is in two pieces, lined on the one side, to fulfill the requirements associated with a writing table, and one of them upholstered on the other. When required for use as a work table and seat, both halves of the top—hinged as shown—are raised, that which is upholstered acting as a back and its companion—padded and arranged for the reception of needles, pins, scissors and the like—giving access to the work-well. When closed the seat may be requisitioned for the storage of magazines and papers, though anything placed thereon would naturally have to be moved in the event of its being converted to serve its alternative purpose.

"Fig. 7, again, is simple, but is none the less worthy of attention on that account. The back is made in three parts, the two side ones being hinged to the centre. To each end of the seat is hinged a continuation, upholstered in exactly the same manner, from the back edge of which on the under side project a couple of dowels. These two continuations, or supplementary seats, when raised are latched to the end posts of the central section of the back; the sides, with their leaded glass panels and dainty curtains, close in upon them, and a comfortable settee, thoroughly protected from unwelcome drafts, is formed. By turning back the side wings and lowering the seats till the dowels fall into the holes in the shelf brackets made for their reception additional accommodation for two sitters is provided. It will be seen that these two shelf brackets, when the wings are brought forward, slide in between the seat and the under framing of the centre part, where they are well out of the way. If desired, only one side may be closed.

"As regards the choice of woods and fabrics for the carrying out of the other pieces, the maker should be the best person to judge the requirements of his customers, but one or two hints may be acceptable to guide his selection. For the work and writing table, Fig. 1, mahogany, with satinwood banding, and old gold or terra-cotta silk for the lining of the work-well, would be the best, but plain walnut might be employed if cost had to be considered. Either stained wood, oak, walnut or mahogany would do for the combination table and settee, Fig. 4, while as to the covering I can suggest nothing better than silk or printed velveteen. Mahogany, again, would lend itself best to the production of the combination screen, corner seat and settee, Fig. 2, for the seat and backs of which Genoa velvet, silk tapestry or printed velveteen might be adopted, but the curtains should certainly be of silk if possible. Practically the same treatment is to be recommended for Figs. 6 and 7. In Figs. 2 and 7 the curtains should not be figured at all, as, if they were, both articles might err in the direction of being 'over-patterned.'"

RATTAN FURNITURE.

The United States leads the world in the manufacture of rattan furniture. No other nation approaches the perfection to which our manufacturers have attained. Our product in this line, besides being consumed in immense quantities at home, is exported to England, Germany, France, Australia, South Africa and South American countries. American manufacturers are contemplating with interest the settlement of our Spanish difficulties, and they anticipate the greatest trade in future years in the West India Islands, particularly Cuba.

Rattan furniture is greatly preferred to all others in warm countries, principally because it is much cooler than other kinds. However, it would be hard to find an American home to-day which does not boast of one or more rattan chairs. Some idea of the extent to which this business is carried on in the United States may be formed when it is stated that no less than $100,000 worth of the raw material is constantly in transit from India. Singapore is the principal point of shipment. We began exporting this sort of furniture fifteen years ago, and the beginning of the great growth in the industry dates from the time when American ingenuity devised means for shipping the furniture in pieces, thus allowing it to be put up in compact shape and easily handled. Formerly furniture of this class was put together before shipment, and this took up considerable space.

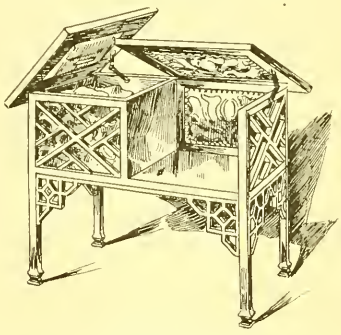

FIG. 6.—COMBINATION WRITING TABLE, WORK TABLE AND SEAT.

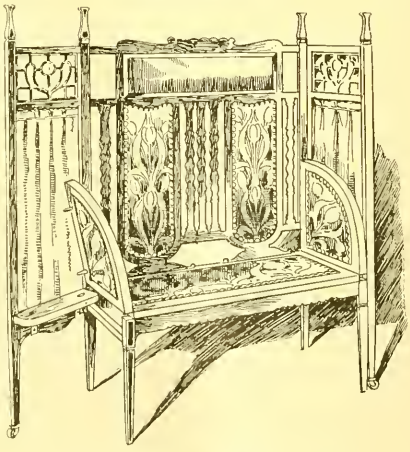

FIG. 7.—COMBINATION SCREEN AND SETTEE.

Germany and France are our principal competitors in the manufacture of rattan furniture, but how vastly inferior is their product may be judged from the fact that we sell our product largely in those countries. Some rattan furniture is made in Liberia and Australia, but this is the coarser article. A very poor article, in fact, the poorest made, is turned out in China. Our goods are infinitely superior in design and workmanship to all others.

In the early part of the career of the enterprise the manufactured product was the common wooden seat chair. At a later date the flag seat came into use, which at a still later period was superseded by the cane or rattan seat.

The history of the introduction of rattan into the manufacture of chairs is an interesting one. It came into use about the year 1833, and from that date until 1876 the chairs made by the American manufacturers were those having seats and backs made of rattan. Since that date the business of making rattan chairs and furniture and children's carriages has grown steadily. One American firm is at present filling an order for 3,200 dozen chairs for an Australian house.

Iron bedsteads are largely imported into Southern Russia from Great Britain, commoner qualities being of German origin. A few Austrian makes were imported at Odessa as a trial, but were found too dear for this market. American iron and brass bedsteads have not made their appearance on the Russian market, although there may be a very valuable field for our manufactures.—Ex.

DECORATIVE GOSSIP.

IDEAS of Japanese decoration have been much enlarged since the products of this artistic race began first to be common among us. To the grotesque red and gold spatter work, which was our first association with the art of the island empire, has followed a much wider knowledge. We find that banner screens, as well as the familiar fans and unbrellas, are to be found in soft tones of gray, brown and rose, often perfectly plain, or with some slightly sketchy design that enhances the beauty of the background. These are most useful in furnishing summer homes and apartments, as they lend themselves admirably to cool looking effects. With them are most suitably used the fish net draperies, and now that they are shown in a wide range of colorings it is possible to carry out any decorative design.

THE "cozy corner decorator" is a factor by which domestic comfort and beauty are supposed to be ensured nowadays. As her title employs, she is an individual whose profession consists in the cozifying of corners—a laudable object, and in these times quite warrantable, when so much is done to order. Whole houses are decorated and entire rooms furnished on the plan—when the purse is long enough and the personal taste not to be relied upon, why not parts of rooms, namely, corners? The only trouble that suggests itself is that æsthetics at large might suffer by the process; that the contrast between the part so decorated and the division not decorated at all (in the "to-order" sense) might be too obvious. There is also the suspicion that anything like coziness is hardly capable of following in the footsteps of the "to-order" method. Still, this might be hypercritical. The more natural emotions aroused by this latest development of the decorative instinct are admiration and wonder. This is the age of specialties, and it is said that those women who so specialize their decorative talents are realizing very practical results.—Harper's Bazar.

IN an article on the decoration of piano backs an English writer suggests that a very simple yet pleasing idea is to arrange a screen straight across the back of the piano with one fold coming round the side which stands out into the room. The screen should be chosen an inch or two higher than the piano, and, if possible, with a curved or ornamental top, as this gives a much lighter effect. A plant or palm standing on the piano gives a finished appearance

HAMMOCKS are likely to play a more prominent part than ever in summer housefurnishing this season. Besides their positive use as a veranda adjunct, and their potential benefit when the house party happens to out number the beds (a practice first instituted in New York city studios of bachelor women), it now appears as a parlor embellishment, according to an authority on decorative matters. Hung across a corner or before an alcove, it has a way of breaking up the lines and angles of an apartment most successfully. The favorite hammock for this purpose is of a good gray color and of plainest fish net weave. Gay cushions of tartan, bandanna, or "Old Glory" give it color as well as comfort. The highly colored hammocks of fancy weave and fringed and self-upholstered were never in good taste, and this year they have not even the zest of novelty. For indoor service, especially, the plainest hammocks are to be preferred.

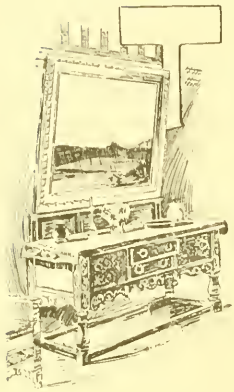
DESIGN FOR SIDE OF ROOM.

THE BOUDOIR AND THE "DEN."



These are not the days when a man must go to his inn or to his club in order to take his ease. As for woman, she has always had some place suitable for that purpose. The bower of mediæval days preceded the boudoir; and if we accept Milton's authority, it was a recognized institution in Eden. In ancient Gaul (and all Western Europe) the bower, or "solar," was an apartment, more or less open to the sunshine, built over the great hall of the chief's dwelling, where the ladies could enjoy each other's society, rest, or pass the time in embroidering, or music, or games, or story telling, free from all interference of rude men. In our time the amusements that woman can enjoy without man's aid are more numerous, and modern womankind has become far more luxurious than the ladies of romance. Of late years, however, a reaction has set in, and simplicity and comfort are now considered to be the desiderata to be provided in the boudoir. That which we illustrate on the opposite page has its piano, its canopied lounge, its easy chair and rocker and screen covered with sketches and photographs. The color scheme should be light and cheerful, some dull, pale rose or maize tint predominating. As the boudoir is never large, a paper with a small pattern or absolutely plain is to be preferred. The curtains may be of any cheap, translucent stuff. East Indian mixtures of silk and cotton answer admirably. The floor should be polished.

In the man's "den," which is illustrated on the third page following, provision must be made for an even greater range of tastes and fancies; for he may be at one and the same time student and sportsman, musician and artist, traveler and collector of bric-à-brac. Our illustration shows how all these avocations may be accommodated in a small attic room. On one side we have a piano; on the other well filled book shelves, a cabinet filled with odds and ends of pottery, water colors, a mandolin, a trophy of weapons and fishing rods and the model of a full rigged ship. The window seat and the lounge near it, covered with Persian prayer rugs and saddle bags—the latter often very charming in color—may serve at the same time as coffers in which to keep engravings or other things not often in actual use; while the antique chest of drawers at the nearer end will accommodate whatever of the sort is more frequently needed, and the flat top may serve as a writing table. A rather dull general tone is recommended—say drab if the light be from the north, or gray if from the south. Plenty of positive color is sure to be introduced in the accumulation of odds and ends that a man gradually gathers about him.

The upholsterers of Boston have voted to keep all their members in the union who enlist, in good standing, and in case of accident or death all benefits will be paid.

HEALY & CO.'S TROUBLES.

J. Healy & Co., manufacturers of bedding, couches and artistic furniture, at Nos. 147 to 153 West Seventeenth street, New York, have become financially embarrassed, and have given chattel mortgages aggregating $16,862 to three creditors—the New York County National Bank, $2,500; Columbia Bank, $3,500, and Blanche T. Prince, $10,862. Their trouble is attributed to the war, which caused some of their largest customers to countermand orders and crippled their trade. A few months ago, it is said, they received a large order from the West, and to fill it, as well as in anticipation of duplicate orders, they bought heavily, but when the war broke out the order was countermanded, and this, with the general falling off in business, placed them in such a position that they were unable to meet obligations. The liabilities are reported to be about $40,000. The value of the assets is not definitely known. Their inventory of January 1 last showed assets, $58,316; liabilities, $28,495.

The partners are John Healy, Joel L. Isaacs and Aaron Prince. The business was started on January 1, 1889, on a small capital, and they built up a large trade, both in this city and throughout the United States.

The sheriff received an attachment against the firm on the 19th ult. from Abram Kling for $1,968 in favor of Salo J. Stroheim for balance due for upholstery goods sold, it is claimed, on the strength of the firm's representation that they were worth $35,000. The attachment was obtained on the allegation that they had disposed of their property, that they had given chattel mortgages, transferred all their accounts and had removed a portion of their stock. It was also asserted that Mr Healy declared that the firm could pay 30 cents on the dollar. The sheriff put a keeper in the firm's place of business, at No. 147 West Seventeenth street, and found the marshal in possession, under the chattel mortgages.

On the 20th ult. the sheriff received two more attachments against J. Healy & Co. from Abram Kling in favor of Wm. Wilkens & Co. for $2,063, and in favor of Taylor & Ellis for $8,901.

JOHN KRODER & HENRY REUBEL COMPANY.

An immense line of carpet and upholstery hardware and wood and metal curtain poles and trimmings is shown for the fall trade by the Henry Reubel & John Kroder Company, 268 and 270 Canal street, New York. This company are large manufacturers of metal and wood goods, and are in a position to offer especially strong inducements to buyers. Their line is shown also at their Boston branch, 564 Washington street, where C. W. Ellis is in charge.

CHARGE OF THE BARGAIN BRIGADE.

(With proper apologies.)

"Bargain sale! Bargain sale!"
Newspapers thundered.
Up to the palace of trade
Strode the Six Hundred.
"Forward! Our fortune's made!
Charge on the clerks!" they said.
Into the palace of trade
Rushed the Six Hundred.

"Goods sold for half their worth."
Was this a cause for mirth?
Women who saw the sign
Not even wondered.
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to simply buy,
Buy in the palace of trade—
Thought the Six Hundred.

Bargains to right of them,
Bargains to left of them,
Front of them—back of them—
Volleyed and thundered.
What they bought none knew well,
Weak ones grew faint and fell,
Tho' dresses ripped, ker-r-r-rack!
Into the push pell-mell
Dove the Six Hundred!

Boldly and well they fought;
Then home her spoil brought
Each wife and daughter.
Let this be their defense,
All saved at least ten cents—
Some saved a quarter.

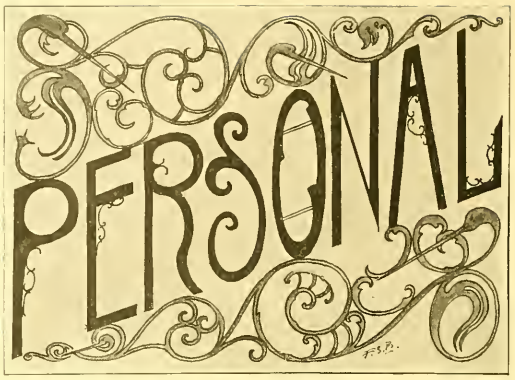
H. W. Elliott has opened a furniture and upholstery establishment at Spencer, Ind., and George A. Scribner has gone into the same business at Newport, N. H.

An explosion occurred in the building occupied by the Hygienic Feather and Down Company, Philadelphia, a few days ago, causing a fire which did considerable damage before it was extinguished. Fully insured. F. B. Slemmer, formerly of the upholstery department of Strawbridge & Clothier, was largely interested in the business.

On page 91 of this issue Hoffman, Corkran & Co., 209 Church street and 415 Market street. Philadelphia, call attention to the big line of cotton duck, awning stripes, bunting flags, hammocks and cordage manufactured by them and now ready for the fall trade. It pays to handle these goods, and buyers will find that Hoffman, Corkran & Co. can offer them very strong inducements.



Brebner.—J. J. Brebner, buyer of upholstery goods for the H. B. Claflin Company, is in Europe making important purchases for the recently extended department of that firm. He is due to return July 1.

Burrowes.—E. T. Burrowes, of E. T. Burrowes & Co., Portland, Me., has presented the Center Street Grammar School with eight very fine pictures, framed and ready for hanging.

Cobb.—Samuel G. Cobb, for three years past with Windeman & Co., Washington, D. C., is now manager of the upholstery department of E. L. Ritter & Co., Philadelphia. Ritter & Co. are the successors of Homer, Le Boutillier & Co.

Darling.—John Darling, of the firm of Hartmann & Darling, New York, returned from his trip abroad per Umbria on the 21st ult.

Evans.—There is now on view at the store of Frederick Loeser & Co., Brooklyn, a rare collection of about seventy paintings that should be seen by everyone at all interested in art productions, from the private collection of William T. Evans, of the firm of Mills & Gibb, New York. Many of the works are what are known as prize pictures, and have been awarded medals at home and abroad. Mr. Evans is, perhaps, the best known art patron and connoisseur in the country. Ten years ago he established, in connection with exhibitions of the American Water Color Society, a prize of $300 to be awarded annually for the most meritorious water color painted in this country by an American artist. Many of these pictures have been purchased by Mr. Evans, who has otherwise given attention to gathering a truly representative collection. The result is that these pictures are recognized as the finest array of American art subjects in existence, and have an international reputation.

Graham.—J. A. Graham, who had been foreman of the machine room at the factory of the Meriden (Conn.) Curtain Fixture Company, resigned last month to take charge of the machine room of the Sheffield Car Company, Three Rivers, Mich.

Jacobson receiver on the application of the directors. It was stated that the company is insolvent. Mr. Jacobson is secretary and treasurer and Solomon Jacobson president. The company was incorporated in April, 1893, with a capital stock of $25,000. The trade liabilities are $10,596 and nominal business assets $25,796, the actual value of which will show a big depreciation. The company also has a house, No. 14 West 133d street, valued at $26,000 nominally, which is incumbered for $24,730, and is appraised at $20,000 at a forced sale.

Deputy Sheriff Strauss took possession of the store ahead of the assignment on an execution for $533 in favor of the South Carolina Loan and Trust Company. The liabilities are estimated at $8,500, and assets probably $5,000.

James B. Angell, our Minister to Turkey, has resigned, and he will be succeeded by Oscar S. Straus, who represented the United States at the same place during Ex-President Cleveland's first term. Mr. Straus is a member of the firms of R. H. Macy & Co., New York, and Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn. In reply to the President's telegram to him asking him to take the office of Minister to Turkey Mr. Straus sent the following:

NEW YORK, May 27, 1898.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY, EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C.:

Your request that I should accept the post of Minister to Turkey, with which you honor me, I regard as a command, and deem it my patriotic duty to you and to the country to accept.

OSCAR S. STRAUS.

DECORATIVE SUGGESTIONS FROM WALL PAPERS.

There are times when a very strongly colored and over-elaborated wall paper may be all right, but in the average room it is too much. Nevertheless, that very paper is of the utmost value to the decorator, for out of the over-elaborated pattern, if well done, he can get a color scheme for the entire furnishings of a room, from the floor to the ceiling.

The wall paper sample is not to be adopted for the wall. It is to give merely the harmonizing colorings to be used on floor, furniture, draperies, walls and ceiling. After you study it you will conclude that some coloring in the pattern should prevail for each of these purposes. The London Plumber and Decorator says: To lay out systematically work for the best results in color one might get up a collection of wall papers in yard samples, for the best results in colorings are often obtained in wall papers. A fabric is frequently designed in perfect taste, but the value of the coloring is emasculated by the weaver or by the exigencies of the loom work or economy. The salesman who wishes to sell a fabric for a little less will suggest the dropping of a pick here or there, and the manufacturer wishing to reduce expenses does not see that the pattern is very much spoiled by the change. The wall paper manufacturer, however, can reproduce with absolute accuracy anything that the designer suggests, and so his colorings are always shown to their full force of character.

The decorator who has a well printed piece of wall paper can get every idea out of it for the treatment of a room. There is no law to be followed. Some of the happiest effects have been those which were apparently accomplished by the very defiance of all theories of color harmony.

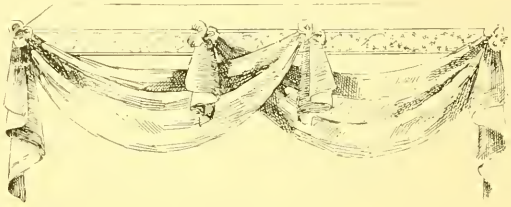
The man who is not able to take a pointer, an idea, a suggestion, and work it out, should get out of the business. Plain colors have been exceedingly popular of late years—plain burlaps for the walls, plain ingrain papers, plain fillings for the floor—inasmuch as they serve as an excellent background for the display of rugs, pictures, plaques, or richly upholstered furniture and draperies.

A scrap of wall paper will give a suggestion. For instance, it will give the neutral tint, like a gray, for the background. It will give the right kind of red to go on the gray. It will give even the comparative values of each color. It will give in the shadings of a rose leaf, for instance, the right tints for the cornice of the woodwork. Our advice to everybody in the business is to collect wall paper samples. You do not need carefully devised and technically correct water color drawings.

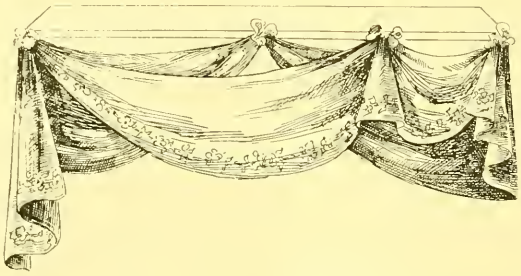
A picture of a tree will give an entire color scheme in itself. The earthy color of the ground, the deeper shade of the trunk, the various greens in the leaves are all details of a good color combination.

Nature provides harmonies that can be always safely followed; and when Nature rebels and gives discords, like the sudden lowering and darkening of a summer sky in a storm, you have the contrast which is always effective—the natural flower tints upon a dead background.

Every possible form of coloring has been followed in wall paper—followed accurately and in good taste. One has only to study these wall papers, preserving, as we said before, the proportionate value of each color to get good results. Do not make the mistake of using too much red if the wall paper pattern shows but a little. Follow the comparative values of each color as used in the wall paper design, and, above all, do not misunderstand us and use the wall paper design in toto for the walls. Take from the pattern the lesser and most unobtrusive detail for the wall.



MAY be made from any soft, light material either in silk or cotton fabric and should be trimmed with a tassel edging. If made from double faced goods no lining would be required.



THIS design will look well made in silk or flax velours in colors to harmonize with the other furnishings in the room. No fringe would be required if outside edge of the material were embroidered.

MANTEL DRAPES.

William Ackerman and John C. De Witt have started in business at Marion, Ohio, as the Marion Upholstery Company.

On the 22d ult. fire caused by lightning destroyed the felt mill of the Newfane Felt Company, at Newfane, near Niagara Falls, N. Y. Loss, $6,000 to $8,000; covered by insurance.

HIGH CLASS LACE CURTAIN NOVELTIES.

Apropos of the present sentiment in eschewing French bonnets on account of the pro-Spanish feeling in France the curtain trade are offered an opportunity of securing real lace curtains in styles that even beat the French, and which are made in Boston. Byers & Parmelee are showing for the fall season a remarkably large and handsome assortment of Renaissance, Cluny and other real lace curtains, with bed sets to match. Their styles are thoroughly original creations, being different from anything imported and supplying all the requirements of good taste and richness. Besides the real lace goods the firm manufacture a large line of muslin and net made-up curtains, with bed sets to match any curtain turned out. Their muslin curtains have a finish unsurpassed by anything else produced, and show a ribbon effect in the borders, which is produced by them exclusively on a special machine. The finish of all their goods is a feature which should particularly interest buyers, and fully proves the facilities of the firm for producing the highest class work. The "Pennant" pattern in muslin curtains is a great novelty, and will doubtless be a large seller, as also the Point d'Esprit effects in nets. Wm. B. Parmelee, of the firm, has started on his Western trip, and will show these elegant goods to the trade as far west as Omaha and south to Louisville. Wm. Byers, of the firm, was for many years the Boston and New England representative of Mills & Gibb, and attends to the Boston salesroom and nearby trade. The firm's full line will be shown in New York at the Everett House during July and August.

A BAROMETER OF PATRIOTISM.

The spirit of the times is vividly portrayed by the enthusiasm with which new and appropriate ideas conveying patriotic expressions are adopted. As a barometer of American patriotism the illuminated window shades, representing Old Glory, made by the Jay C. Wemple Company, New York, have already received the stamp of popular approval, orders exceeding the company's most sanguine expectations having already been received. The timely introduction of this novelty is but an evidence of the readiness with which the Wemple Company adapt themselves and their product to the demands of the day. These flag shades, being translucent, provide a very handsome effect, and when at night the room is brightly lighted their attractiveness is highly augmented Buyers can see a practical demonstration of this effect by visiting the salerooms of the Wemple Company, 537 Broadway, where the large windows are ornamented with the flag shades.

In addition to the travelers mentioned elsewhere, Hassall Brothers, Boston, will be represented in Chicago during the fall season by F. F. Fazzie, with headquarters in the Lees Building, 147 to 153 Fifth avenue.

A NEW COMMISSION FIRM.

Schaeffer & Williams is the title of a new upholstery selling agency which has located at 511 Hartford Building, New York. The firm are agents for the Geo. S. Stewart Company, of Norwalk, Ohio, manufacturers of fretwork, grilles, screens, &c.; the Crawford Mills, of Philadelphia, manufacturers of upholstery goods and curtains, and Oehrle Brothers & Co., of Philadelphia, manufacturers of upholstery and drapery trimmings.

E. A. Schaeffer was formerly connected with the C. S. Ransom Company, and S. A. Williams is well and favorably known to upholstery buyers, having been manager of the Brussels Tapestry account for several years.

PATERSON UPHOLSTERY MILL TO LIQUIDATE.

Harwood V. Parke, vice-president of the Paterson National Bank, has been appointed receiver of Geo. W. Fulton & Co., manufacturers of light silk upholstery and drapery fabrics, Paterson, N. J. It is said that the business will be wound up, as the demand of the trade has changed from the products made by Fulton & Co. The firm has been in business for ten years and it is reported that the assets largely exceed the liabilities. Jo Frank was the selling agent for this firm for several years.

NEW ROPE PORTIERE.

The Buffalo Fringe Works, Buffalo, N. Y., will show a new idea in rope portières for the fall season and one which we are sure will strongly interest the trade. Samples of this new portière will be displayed on the road in ample time for fall ordering, as also new designs in the popular "Decorative" rope portière made by this concern. Morris Bernhard, the proprietor, states that it will pay to wait and see his company's lines of portières and the general assortment of fringes, borders, loops and trimmings for the fall season. The few buyers who have been favored with a view of the new portière express the opinion that it will be a winner.

C. C. Caler, until recently buyer of upholstery goods, &c., for Owen, Moore & Co., Portland, Me., is now with Oscar F. Hunt, of the same city.

Eighteen hustling salesmen comprise the traveling force of the Jay C. Wemple Company for the coming season. They will show the firm's shades, shadings and rollers in all sections of the United States, and will doubtless receive substantial evidence of the trade's appreciation of these goods.

"Tapestreola" is the name of a new fabric gotten up especially for the decorating of walls in dining rooms, sitting rooms and halls. It is made in a great variety of colors, mostly in the self tone order, the warm tones prevailing. The fabric is on sale in the upholstery department of Joseph G. Darlington, Philadelphia, of which Mr. Stokes is manager. Mr. Stokes has recently secured contracts for the furnishing of several houses with draperies, furniture, &c., to be completed in the fall.

HENRY W. GREEN & CO.'S WAR BULLETIN.

Opposite page 80 will be found a declaration of war—war against inferior goods. Henry W. Green & Co., the Philadelphia window shade manufacturers, state that they have vowed to sell the "best goods at lowest prices," and illustrate that victory rests upon those who buy their Wide Awake window shades, and sorrowful defeat upon those who do not buy them. The fact is that Green & Co. have been for years making a very superior quality of high grade oil opaque shadings, and have obtained an excellent reputation and a large business on these goods. They offer them at the lowest prices in consonance with such high quality, and dealers who have not handled them should at once send for samples and prices. Other productions of the firm are opaline water color shades and hand-made special oils, and, as for several years past, Green & Co. are one of the largest importers of Scotch Hollands, which they show in all colors and widths.

HASSALL BROTHERS' FALL STYLES.

New fall styles in muslin and net curtains are now shown by Hassall Brothers, 11 Hayward place, Boston. They have brought out several original creations in catchy, tasteful effects which will certainly suit the popular trade, while other effects are designed to meet the ideas of highest class trade. All the goods supply stylish appearing curtains at moderate prices.

An idea of the line of high class oil opaque shadings made by Henry W. Green & Co. may be obtained from a view of their sample book. which contains some fifty different colorings. In fineness of muslin and evenness of finish these goods are the top quality in oil opaques. Send for a sample book.

From and after July 1 days of grace will be abolished on all notes, drafts, &c., made on and after that date in the "State of Rhode Island or Providence Plantations," except as provided in Sections 4 and 9 of Chapter 166 of the general laws. By those sections all bills of exchange drawn at sight, due and payable within the State and in which there is no provision to the contrary will still be entitled to three days' grace.

Robert Lewis, manufacturer of tapestry curtains, table covers, couch covers and drapery fabrics, has his new line for the fall trade on view at his factory, Bridesburg, Pa., and at his New York salesroom, 611 Hartford Building, 41 Union square, where Wilber C. Hyde is in charge. The line is replete with new and handsome effects, including Oriental, floral and other designs, and buyers are advised to see the samples early, for they will well repay examination.

Masten & Hund, the window shade manufacturers, 33 Clinton place, New York, are having a very active spring trade. They now carry, in addition to shade cloths of all kinds and domestic hollands, a full line of Scotch hollands, and can deliver orders promptly. Frank Hund, of the firm, is adding new laurels to his reputation as a crack shade salesman, while C. F. Tompkins, one of the veteran and most successful shade travelers, is keeping up his end with the same vigor as shown by him during all the years of his career.

FLAGS AND AWNING STRIPES.

As large manufacturers and wholesalers of awning stripes, cotton duck and flags, Hoffman, Corkran & Co., 209 Church street, Philadelphia, command the attention of buyers of these goods. Their sales of awning stripes this season have been very large, and they are now working on big contracts for cotton duck for army and navy use. They produce flags in both cotton and wool bunting, and in all sizes from 2 by 3 feet to 26 by 40 feet. As flags are now such good stock to handle, we would advise upholstery departments to order supplies, and they can obtain best goods and prices from Hoffman, Corkran & Co., who will fill orders promptly, as they are working their forces night and day. Write to them for prices.

EXTENSION CURTAIN RODS.

The demand for the extension curtain rods made by the Sash Curtain Rod and Novelty Company, of Providence, R. I., is keeping the factory employed fifteen hours per day. These brass rods are used for full size lace curtains as well as for sash and vestibule curtains. The company are making a double extension rod designed for frilled or ruffled curtains, allowing half a curtain to be draped on one rod and half on the other rod. Write for samples and prices.

James Brooks, of George Brooks & Son, returned from a road trip last week.

The ingenious London man who supplies human dummies for receptions, parties, &c., is extending his business. He tells an English reporter:

"Last year I supplied no fewer than 500 dummy customers to the leading West End shops. At the beginning of all the stock-taking sales they thronged into my clients establishments, elbowing each other in the rudest manner in their eagerness for bargains.

"They bought quantities of goods, which, needless to say, were never delivered. You've no idea how this dodge influences the general public. It simply made most of the sales. Naturally none of the dummies knew each other, and doubtless some of them smiled at each other's gullibility, as they mistook one another for genuine customers. Five shillings a day I charge for dummy customers, but then, you see, the work is light and the hours are short.

"Talking of shops, last year I supplied two West End drapers with a shopwalker apiece. Probably neither of them had ever been inside an establishment of the kind before. As a matter of fact, both were gentlemen down in their luck. I selected them for their exceptionally fine personal appearance and courtly bearing. Both firms subtly circulated a romantic rumor in connection with them, and for a time society nibbled at the spicy tit-bit, and of course lost no opportunity of getting at the shops in which the heroes of the stories were employed. Those two dummies doubled the business during their stay, and when their novelty had worn off I knew one was presented with a £50 note in addition to his salary."

OBITUARY.

Robert MacWhinnie.

Robert MacWhinnie, a traveling salesman well known in the upholstery trade, died on the 16th ult. at his home in this city at the age of thirty-six years. He came to this country from Scotland about fifteen years ago, and during his career in the trade acted as salesman for the Brussels Tapestry Company, W. & J. Robertson and other upholstery concerns. His last engagement was with Bossut Pere et Fils, with whom he remained until a few months ago, when symptoms of consumption developed and confined him to his home. His untimely death is greatly regretted in the trade, for he was widely known and a very able and popular salesman. He leaves a widow and a daughter.

ORINOKA MILLS.

The new lines of the Orinoka Mills are now on view and they are well calculated to show the perfection which has been attained in upholstery and drapery goods manufacture in this country.

The line of wool tapestries is especially extensive and attractive, embracing every grade from the cheapest to the finest. The choice mohair goods in the best grade deserve particular attention. In Derbys a big line is shown, including solid colors, and figured goods in new and beautiful styles. In the very extensive assortment of mercerized cotton goods, buyers will find a superb range of handsome effects. Algerian stripes in curtains and yard goods are another interesting feature. These goods should be seen by every buyer, and the same remark applies to the new line of curtains in Oriental effects, which show a great improvement in this class of goods.

The Orinoka Mills' lines have been in great demand and the goods are now sold up six weeks ahead. The mills' new offerings surpass all it has ever made before and there is no doubt that there will be a big demand for them.

Ferd Mohlenpah succeeds George L. Warner, dealer in window shades, &c., Newark, Ohio.

An approximately circular mesh ground is made on a twist lace machine by using two warps to each bobbin thread and forming each pillar by twisting two warps and two bobbin threads as shown in Figure 1, the pillars being connected at intervals by two warps. The warps 1, 2 always move when the bobbins are in the back combs except when connecting to the next pillar, when they move across to bobbins to the right and then one to left, and again one to left. In forming the connection the warps 1, 2 pass over two bobbin threads, and then when the carriages are in the front over another, and when the carriages pass to the back they return in two steps of two and one. The warps 5, 6 move when the carriages are in front, their motion being analogous to those of 1, 2. Warps 3, 4 move to the right when the carriages are at the back and to the left when they are in the front. The pattern consists of bobbin finings, and the warps move in a well-known manner.

NEW USE FOR WALL PAPER.

A novel and decorative use for the surplus paper remaining after the walls are finished is making valances and lambrequins for the windows and doors of a room. A recently completed suite of rooms shows examples of this idea in styles appropriate to the decorative features of each apartment; no poles are used, and the continued line of wall pattern across the window and door openings is singularly appropriate and effective.

The practical part of the work is simple enough. The wall paper is pasted to cheese cloth or sheeting, and cut out to the desired shape, the trimming being fluting or ruching of the same stuff, with pipes or jabots at discretion. The cornices of light pine are covered with cloth lined paper, and are given a touch of ornamentation by the use of ruching similar to that trimming the valances. Long curtains of Singapore lattice, Calcutta net or Colonial muslin are hung on light rods inside the cornices, and may be drawn aside without interfering with the draped effect. These window and door headings are easily kept clean, and may remain in place when the lower curtains or portiéres are removed for the summer.

Why the ingenious idea has not occurred to anyone before, in view of the recurring difficulty of obtaining fabrics which go with wall papers, is a matter to be wondered at, but its simplicity and appropriateness are sure to make it popular, now that it has been discovered and put in practicable shape.

His health gradually improved and his family hoped for his entire recovery. About a year ago, however, he developed symptoms of heart disease, which resulted in his death.

BREACH OF CONTRACT OF EMPLOYMENT.

George E. Cov, in a suit he brought against William Campbell for damages for alleged wrongful discharge, claimed that in July, 1895, Campbell employed him for one year at a guaranteed salary of $5,000 as general manager of Campbell's wall paper business, and that he was wrongfully discharged in March, 1896. The suit, though brought in April, 1896, was not tried until February, 1898. Mr. Campbell having died meantime, Richard M. Morton and others. as executors, were substituted as defendants. The death of Campbell took away the right of plaintiff to be sworn as a witness, and his case was made by evidence of one Fischer, who testified to hearing the contract of employment between plaintiff and Campbell. Judgment given in favor of plaintiff has been affirmed by the First Appellate Division, which held, by Justice Rumsey, that though the truthfulness of this testimony was attacked by defendant, it was, upon the whole case, a question for the jury whether the contract was made. The fact that Campbell expressed a willingness to employ plaintiff as a traveling salesman, upon a different contract, it was held did not take away the effect of the discharge from the previous employment.

Jo Frank will start on a Western trip this week.

E. Ries, the lace curtain importer, will return from Europe this week.

BOSTON.

As doubtless most of our customers have already a sufficient quantity of old patterns secured through the medium of "Auction Sales," "Surplus Stocks," etc., we would say that our Fall Lines will be largely made up of new, desirable patterns and colorings, selected and to be distributed in such a way that a retailer can control a pattern and thereby secure a profit.

If this seems to be a reasonable principle, we shall be glad to show our lines to our friends and answer correspondence.

Our New Private Patterns in Wiltons and Brussels

are now ready. The line is unsurpassed in colorings for medium and high class trade.

Office of

PHILADELPHIA TAPESTRY MILLS,

Cambria and Ormes Streets.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1898.

To Buyers of Upholstery Goods:

You'll find our "Ads." to be the smallest part of our business. We lay more stress on our reputation as successful manufacturers. A FEW SOLID FACTS, if read and digested by thinking buyers, are worth pages of talk.

The well-merited popularity of our goods has not been established because WE SAY SO. We haven't been running our mills uninterruptedly ever since the beginning of our business, nor have we been compelled to build an additional mill because we devote a certain amount of space to self-approbation in the trade journals.

It naturally follows that commodities strictly up-to-date and not infrequently in advance (as in our case) find a ready market. Success is not the result of mere chance or accident. The constant bettering of a product long known as the best of its kind has made us what we are to-day:—

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms:

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprisng but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked is elasticity—not so much as in rubber bands, but enough to let the matting give when the foot strikes and lessen the blow. Ordinary matting is made of a poor quality of rubber, brittle and stiff. The foot lands heavily, and rapidly wears away the rubber or breaks it off.

In our mats, matting and step-treads we use a tough, elastic rubber, which yields to the foot and saves itself, springing back into shape as soon as the pressure is removed. Two grades: Spider—excellent quality and a good wearer· Double Diamond—superior quality and an exceptional wearer. Call or write.

WORCESTER, MASS., May 16, 1898.

Gentlemen:

We wish to announce to the Trade that, beginning with the Fall season of 1898, we propose to carry in stock a large number of patterns of both our first and second grades of

in order that our customers may order and receive any quantity, from a small length to any number of yards, and may thereby escape the necessity of having an expensive stock, and at the same time have a larger assortment of patterns by carrying only samples of the two grades.

We also wish to advise our customers that we are placing upon the market in suitable Oriental designs and in beautiful thick Wilton fabric, from the small size of 27x54 inches to the large size of 15x18 feet.

Thanking our patrons for past favors, and assuring them that all orders, both in the above and in our regular line of Brussels or Wilton Carpets, will have our prompt attention, we remain,

Yours truly,

William James Hogg & Son.

P. S.—Our Selling Agents are:

whose representatives will in due course call upon you, and in case you are unable to see them, by writing direct to us we will see that you are supplied with samples.

BIGELOW CARPET COMPANY.

AXMINSTER, WILTON AND BRUSSELS

CARPETS.

The Carpets made by this Company have received the highest award wherever exhibited, including Gold Medals at the Paris Exposition, 1878, and at the Centennial, 1876.

Their deserved reputation for excellence of fabric, richness and durability of color, novelty and beauty of design, has led to frequent infringements, and inferior goods have often been palmed off in their stead. For the protection of the public the Company has adopted as a trade mark the word "BIGELOW," which will be woven (at every repeat of the pattern) in white capitals into the back of the fabric. Customers will therefore have merely to examine the back of a carpet to be certain that they are getting the genuine Bigelow goods.

THESE GOODS CAN BE HAD FROM ALL FIRST-CLASS DEALERS.

UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT, PAGE 49.

☞ Our readers are urged to remember that we are always desirous to receive communications of interest to the carpet or upholstery trades, such as changes in firms or managers, the building or opening of new stores, improvements in old ones, the adding of new departments, improved methods of doing business, new inventions, suggestions as to the cutting, making and laying of carpets, the designing and fitting of draperies, or inquiries and dissertations relating to the technical or commercial details of the trades to which this periodical is devoted.

THE TRADE SITUATION.

THE excitement prevailing during the recent auction sale of Smith carpeting has in a measure subsided. The jobbers are making active preparations for marketing their purchases through their customary trade channels, and it is to be hoped that the goods will reach the consumer without too serious a disturbance of value, especially as it now seems probable that there will not be another auction sale this season.

Velvet and Tapestry carpetings have of course been injuriously affected by recent events, and prices have been reduced 5 cents a yard. The Ingrain manufacturers are doing a fair amount of business, but a considerable part of the fall demand will doubtless come later. The rug trade is active, manufacturers of Smyrnas are well employed, and the specialties shown in rugs of other weaves, new and old, seem to find a ready and expanding market. Reports from the floor oil cloth makers are fairly encouraging, and the linoleum trade is especially good.

The travelers are on the road, but it is too early yet to form an opinion as to the results of their trips.

THE SITUATION ON PRICES.

THAT the market has been disturbed through the sales at auction and sales of surplus stocks in Tapestries, Velvets, Axminsters, &c., goes without saying. That such stocks were accumulated is unfortunate for the trade as a whole and of doubtful benefit to the producers.

The policy of running in accordance with demand has proved beneficial to the Philadelphia manufacturers, and it would seem as if the same policy might be wisely adopted by other makers.

There is no gainsaying the right of a manufacturer, or jobber, or retailer to dispose of his wares in any manner he chooses, but the buyer has an equal right to purchase according to his best judgment. From all we can learn the large majority of buyers are opposed to such violent depreciations of values as have occurred in the goods above mentioned.

No merchant can get in and out of stock quick enough to accommodate himself to the rapid changes which have occurred in these prices during the past forty-five days, and it certainly seems judicious for the manufacturers to conserve the merchants' interests. One cannot do without the other, and the protests of merchants against the recent market changes will doubtless be heeded. The one favorable outlook is that, despite the great quantity of goods let out since May 1, there is an opening for those makers who desire to continue to sell by regular methods. While orders are not as large as usual for a season's opening, we believe the trade atmosphere will clear as the season progresses and each manufacturer will find he still has an opportunity to do business.

A COMPLIMENT FOR THE REVIEW.

Washington, D. C., June 3, 1898.

The Carpet and Upholstery Trade Review:

Much obliged for the information regarding hassock manufacturers. I don't see how the carpet men can get along without The Review. A dealer who tries to dispense with it gives, in my opinion, ample evidence that he is a back number in the trade.

We have received the contract for furnishing matting and linoleum to the Interior Department.

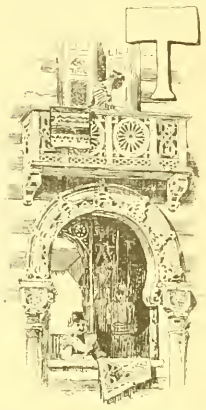
The Julius Lansburgh Furniture and Carpet Co.,
By D. A. Childs.

THE NEW ONE PIECE RUG.

Barnes & Beyer have received universal encomiums from all the trade who have viewed their new Khorasan rugs, on the high quality and superior character of the patterns and colorings produced. It is universally acknowledged that their production is the highest grade one piece carpet yet turned out in this country and that the styles are eminently appropriate and suitable for American trade. The enterprise of the concern in preparing this superior fabric deserves recognition in good orders from all users of high-class rugs, and now that Barnes & Beyer are prepared to deliver the goods the trade should encourage this new industry with liberal orders.

The R. H. & B. C. Reeve Company's new line of floor oil cloths for the fall trade has evidently made a highly favorable impression upon buyers, for W. & J. Sloane, the selling agents, report that the goods are almost sold up.

THE HANDSOMEST ORIENTAL RUG ESTABLISHMENT IN AMERICA.



To say that Fritz & La Rue, of Philadelphia, have now the handsomest Oriental rug establishment in America is speaking advisedly, as everyone who is acquainted with rug salesrooms through this country and abroad will acknowledge the correctness of this statement after viewing the large new establishment of this firm. They have just removed from 1128 and 1130 Market street to 1218 and 1220 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, occupying a building 60 feet front by 235 feet deep and four stories high on the Chestnut street front and three stories high on the back street. Between the two extremities the establishment for about 150 feet is one story, lighted by Monitor skylights, thus giving an abundance of natural light throughout the entire 235 feet of length of the main floor, a construction very rarely found. The building was formerly occupied by a high-class ladies' costumer and was lavishly and magnificently fitted up with plate glass mirrors, mahogany fixtures, frescoed walls and ceilings, and in fact was a notable example of ornate and artistic store furnishing. It is said that the former tenant spent $56,000 on the fittings, of which $10,000 represents plate glass mirrors.

The main floor is divided into sections by Moorish woodwork partitions, and these sections will be used by Fritz & La Rue for different kinds of Oriental rugs and carpets. The establishment is situated in the busiest part of Philadelphia, on Chestnut street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, and the entrance is most notable among the many attractive exteriors to be found on this representative American shopping street. Immediately within the entrance the space is devoted to a reception room, in which the floor is handsomely tiled and the fittings are all in mahogany, including elaborately carved mantels, with rare pieces of art bric-á-brac. On either side is a large swell front glass case, in which will be displayed some silk and other costly rug pieces. The large sections in the interior will be devoted one to carpets and the others to rugs, and, as stated, the light is superb and the surroundings eminently appropriate for Oriental goods.

The three floors above the store floor on the Chestnut street front are reached by a passenger elevator and will be stocked with Oriental rugs and carpets, while the rear building will be given over to the matting department and private and general offices. There is also a basement extending the entire length of the building, which supplies immense capacity for storing mattings or other stock. The establishment is lighted with a myriad of incandescent lights, operated by an individual dynamo plant in the basement. When thoroughly settled this establishment will be positively one of the show places of this country, and rug buyers should visit it, not only to see the great stock of Oriental rugs and carpets and China and Japan mattings imported by Fritz & La Rue for the trade, but they will also obtain many points as to up-to-date methods of displaying these goods.

The employees of S. Baumann & Brothers will have their annual outing on Sunday, June 19.

The Saturday half-holiday is now universally observed in the trade, and will continue until September 1, if not longer.

Henry Mannes & Sons, carpet and furniture dealers, 429 Eighth avenue, will remove to the premises 155 and 157 West Thirty-fourth street about August 15.

T. J. Keveney & Co. have become selling agents for Hirst & Rogers' Velvets. These are ten-wire goods, and the line of patterns embraces a wide variety of new and handsome effects.

W. & J. Sloane, selling agents for the Nairn Linoleum Company, are very well satisfied with the demand for the company's goods to this date, the product of the works being well sold up

The Siegel-Cooper Company's Employees' Association has arranged for several cottages for the summer at Long Branch and Asbury Park, for its members to occupy during their vacations.

Costikyan Frères, importers of Oriental rugs and carpets, have their importations for the fall trade ready for inspection at their New York salesrooms, 139 Broadway, and their lines are specially extensive and attractive in both large and small rugs.

A mass meeting to agitate for the early closing of stores in Brooklyn will be held in Palace Hall, Grand street, Brooklyn, on June 15. The meeting is called under the joint direction of the Eastern District Early Closing Association, composed of dry goods salesmen, and of the Furniture and Carpet Employees' Association.

Andrew and John Nelson, composing the firm of Nelson Brothers, dealers in carpets and furniture at 261 Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, made a general assignment on the 11th inst. for the benefit of the creditors to Ambrose B. Tremaine, a lawyer, of Montague street. The liabilities are unknown. Nicholas Nelson is a preferred creditor for $1,200 money loaned.

Speaking recently to a representative of The Review, Mr. W. W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane, said that his company were selling at private sale more goods than they had expected to dispose of, this being the result of the travelers going out, and that the outlook seemed to him quite encouraging. In regard to the marketing of mill products Mr. Law said that, although it seemed a paradox, there was nothing in which a carpet manufacturer took less interest than he did in a piece of carpet, and that when this was not the case, the manufacturer was simply a speculator in carpets. The Moquette mill of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Company has been closed for an indefinite period.

Architect Ernest Flagg has filed plans at the Building Department for a fourteen story addition to the Singer Building, to be erected at 85 to 89 Liberty street, and covering a plot 74 feet 10 inches by 93 feet 3 inches The ground was purchased by the Singer Manufacturing Company at partition sale last fall. The estimated cost of the new structure is $450,000

An explosion look place on the 2d inst. in the basement of the two story brick business building at 241 West 125th street. It was followed by a fire which did about $4,000 worth of damage, but was soon put out. An employee of a real estate dealer who has an office on the ground floor went into the cellar for something. There was oil there, and it is thought the man lit a match to find his way and that the oil exploded. A dense cloud of smoke rolled out of the basement. Firemen at once summoned soon put out the fire. The upper part of 239, which is part of the burned building, is occupied by Hobson Brothers, carpet and furniture dealers. They say their stock was damaged $2,000 by water.

CLAFLIN COMPANY'S ORIENTAL RUG OFFERINGS.

The Oriental rug department of the H. B. Claflin Company is now open for business, and the offerings comprise a very extensive and superior line in all grades and sizes These goods are now a fixed feature of the company's mammoth carpet department. They represent careful and exceptionally large selections made by the company's own buyer during a recent trip to the rug districts of the Orient. No dealer who handles such goods can afford to pass this collection without inspecting it.

The Bissell Carpet Sweeper Company have recently opened a branch office in Milan, Italy, and also one in Scandinavia, and they are now practically covering all European countries.

In our "Special Notice" column a manufacturer of linoleum and table and enameled oil cloths advertises for salesmen to represent him in the Southern Coast States from Baltimore south, and also in Kansas, Nebraska, Texas, Arkansas and Mississippi. The lines can be carried in connection with other goods and the opportunity is one to interest good salesmen.

....James H. Jarman, formerly with Boyd, White & Co. and now with Fritz & La Rue, is in a hospital, his leg having been broken by a fall from his wheel a few days ago.

....President McKinley will probably make Thomas Bromley, Jr., of the Bromley Brothers Carpet Company, an officer in the Second City Troop of Philadelphia, now ready to go to the front.

....Joseph Henry Price, aged fifteen years, son of Chas. S. Price, of the wholesale department of McCallum & McCallum, died at his father's home, Pulaski avenue, Germantown, on the 8th inst.

....The officers of the Judge Brothers Carpet Company, reference to whose incorporation was made in our last issue, are William B. Judge, president; I. C. Kerkeslager, vice-president, and James Judge, treasurer and manager.

....Alexander Crow, Jr., is running 120 out of 180 looms, and Mr. Wright, his superintendent, says they are receiving additional business daily. It's the case of finding the missing and wounded were exaggerated when you come to count noses at roll call.

....Lawrence Collins reports a good trade thus far in the season, and orders are coming through correspondence quite freely. Mr. Collins will visit the nearby trade in person very shortly, and will show a large number of new and very attractive designs and colorings.

....Dornan Brothers' Monitor Mills, Howard and Oxford streets, are running a goodly portion of their looms on recent orders, and are looking for a large increase in the trade later on. They have brought out one of the finest lines of goods ever offered by them and they will doubtless be appreciated by the trade.

....John Gay's Sons' Park Mills, Howard and Norris streets, are busy in every department and are running to their fullest capacity. The popularity of the Messrs. Gay's special weaves in Ingrains, known as the Rajahs and the Flemish Tapestries, is constantly increasing, and orders are accumulating for them daily. The rapidity with which these goods have found favor with the trade is a gratifying proof that there is a growing disposition on the part of retail carpet dealers and consumers to favor goods that are known to be of high quality and superior in design and shading. The Messrs Gay are also showing a fine line of Extra Supers that are fully up to the standard in quality and excellency of design and coloring.

....William Henderson, Fifth street and Columbia avenue, is very busy and has all his looms in operation. Mr. William Henderson, Jr., is visiting the trade in the West and is meeting with very gratifying success. He has an attractive line of goods with him. Mr Henderson, Sr. sees indications of a large increase in his business later on.

....Dickey & McMaster have opened up the fall season on their Damasks and Venetians in satisfactory shape, and also on their Granites, Domestics and other popular priced special weave carpets. The demand for their goods throughout the spring kept them fully occupied and the outlook is that the same condition will continue through the fall.

....Edward Strawbridge, of Strawbridge & Clothier, gave a dinner to about fifty of the employees of their mechanical department at his residence in Moorestown, N. J., a few days ago. The affair took place in a fine grove near the house and was an enjoyable occasion for all present. Mrs. Strawbridge assisted in entertaining the large company.

....James Pollock & Son have added five new Crompton Ingrain looms to their plant and are now running them along with the rest of their machinery on fall orders Fall business on Ingrains, Damasks and Venetians has opened up very satisfactorily and, as heretofore stated, the trade find dealing with Pollock & Son on Damasks especially desirable, owing to the promptness with which they can ship goods

....Mr. Hays, of the Toronto Carpet Company, was in Philadelphia recently and placed an order for Murkland Ingrain looms with the M A. Furbush & Son Machine Company. He also inspected the new mill of Thos Boggs & Sons and was so impressed with its construction and arrangement that he gave a commission to Wm. Steele, the architect, to draw up plans of a similar nature for a new mill for the Toronto Company.

....Besides the new weaves recently issued by James & Geo. D. Bromley at their Albion Mills, Adams and Jasper streets, they are also showing a line of medium grades of Ingrains and are now running a portion of their looms in furnishing them. The old, full standard qualities remain the same as they have always been and are not changed excepting in design and colors. The new weaves will be sold for what they are, and in no instance will they be represented as being anything else. In putting forth the medium qualities of Ingrain carpets the Messrs. Bromley are simply complying with a popular demand for a greater variety in quality.

BOSTON BUDGET.

Gilbert, Brooks & Tebbutt have made some changes recently in the front of their Summer street carpet store that have added to its appearance and greatly increased the light. Among their large orders of the past month were carpets for two churches, for the Franco-American Club in this city and for the Iver-Johnson-Arms Company's new block in Fitchburg,

M. J. Whittall's mills, at Worcester, Mass., are running on full time, and the force will probably be increased soon.

The Guy Furniture Company, Brockton, Mass., will occupy the store recently vacated by the Bay State Carpet Company. The partition between the two stores has been torn down and they will be connected by a big arch. This will make one of the biggest stores in that part of the State, as the Guy Company retains its present store and takes the new one as an addition.

T F. Foss & Sons, carpet and furniture dealers, Portland, Me., who have been located on the corner of Exchange and Federal streets for twenty-five years, have bought the stock and fixtures of the Maxey, Sawyer Company, on the corner of Congress and Preble streets, where they will hold a mammoth crockery sale before refitting the store for their regular housefurnishing business.

Owing to the continued illness of E. E. Pierce, the junior partner of the firm of Offutt & Pierce, Lowell, Mass., the copartnership has been dissolved, Mr. Pierce retiring in the hope that a rest will restore him to health. The business will be continued by Geo. F. Offutt, who has been the senior in the firm for many years. He will make extensive alterations and repairs to the store.

On the 1st inst the employees of the Norfolk Carpet Mills at East Dedham. Mass., had a flag raising. Nearly 1,000 people gathered in the mill yards to witness the ceremony. As Old Glory was floated to the breeze the band engaged for the occasion played the "Star Spangled Banner," while the mill bells pealed forth and cheers filled the air. Fireworks were set off in celebration of the event. Speeches were made by local celebrities.

H. B. CLAFLIN COMPANY'S CARPET DEPARTMENT.

The travelers for the H. B. Claflin Company's carpet department are meeting with much more success on the road than was expected in view of the prevailing conditions. Manager Winters says that the orders sent in are very satisfactory, and that there is no doubt that the department will get its usual large fall business in the lines of goods generally carried in it, and everyone in the trade knows what an immense factor the department is in the trade of every season. It could not be otherwise in view of the extraordinary attractions offered by the H. B. Claflin Company, controlling as it does the product of a number of carpet and rug mills, carrying an immense stock of every description of domestic floor coverings, and being exceptionally conspicuous also in the importing of Chinese and Japanese mattings, while it is also showing for the fall trade a remarkably extensive and well varied stock of Oriental rugs and carpets of its own importation. A glance at these offerings will convince buyers that Mr. Winters is determined to make these goods a highly important feature of his mammoth stock of floor coverings.

VANTINE'S JAPANESE RUGS AND MATTINGS.

On page 21 of this issue A. A. Vantine & Co. call attention to their extensive offerings in jute and cotton rugs. These goods are offered in a great variety of sizes and styles, and at special prices well calculated to interest shrewd buyers. They quote also very attractive prices on Japanese mattings, of which they show a great assortment. The trade are advised to write for samples of these goods, for Vantine & Co., as large and direct importers, are in a position to offer the strongest possible inducements to all handlers of such goods.

W. W. Corson & Co. have become New England agents for the Trenton Oil Cloth and Linoleum Company, and are showing their new line of linoleums in that territory.

Joseph Martin, assignee of Fell & Van Ness, New York city, has notified the creditors to appear at the Supreme Court Room, Part I., this city, July 7 next, to attend the final settlement of his accounts or show cause for opposing such settlement. The notice is issued through Maurice Rapp, attorney of the assignee, 167 Broadway, New York.

Business is very good in this, the queen of gas towns, and has been unusually brisk since spring trade opened.

Muncie, Ind.

W. A. McNaughton, whose magnificently equipped department store is doing the leading business, reports his carpet trade far ahead of '97. Frank McNaughton, who manages the carpet and upholstery department, is one of the best judges and keenest buyers in the State, and the department reflects his taste.

E. J. Hickson & Co., furniture and carpets, are doing their usual share. They succeeded Parish & Hickson.

Youse & Haffner, who do the leading business in fine goods, dealing exclusively in carpets and wall papers, report a very successful spring business and the fall outlook good.

Branch & Brother have added to their firm name, the style now being Branch Brothers & Bath. Mr. Bath was formerly cashier for S. C. Cowan, who has emigrated to Detroit.

Eugene Vatet is now well settled in his new quarters, which were formerly occupied by S. C. Cowan, and seems to be getting both his old trade and that of his predecessor at his new stand.

Carroll & Cooney report their business in carpets and floor coverings as a considerable advance over 1897, their Lima, Ohio.

March business being treble that of March, 1897. Chas. Dimond is the manager of this rapidly growing department, and his stock shows the hall mark of taste, while his facility for disposing of remnant stock is proverbial.

John O'Connor and J. W. Rowlands also carry furniture and carpets.

Neuman & Williams are well pleased with their business for spring, and look for a good fall trade. They are rapidly becoming factors in the furnishing trade of Lima, and this is due largely to the popularity of both partners, whose friends are legion.

Hoover Brothers are now occupying their new building, which is one the largest in the State devoted to the sale of furniture, carpets and housefurnishing goods. Their 100 feet front of plate glass gives them a magnificent opportunity for display, and the chance is always accepted, forming an unusually attractive sight to would-be purchasers, who seldom escape them. H.

MACELROY & SCHOLES, Philadelphia, are showing a new idea in Pro-Brussels Art Squares. These goods make a heavy weight and suitable fabric for a square and are sold at a moderate price. The firm have an exceedingly strong line of Pro-Brussels yard goods and Ingrains in Extra Supers, C. C.'s and Unions.

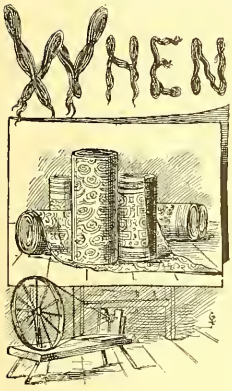
THE new Ingrain mill at Gaffney, S. C., is to be supplied with Crompton looms and rapid progress is being made toward its completion.

IN Robert Kidson's poem, "The Battle of Manila Bay," which appeared in our issue of the 1st inst., the seventh line was printed incorrectly. It should have read as follows: "We passed the forts on either side with scarce a shot or shell."

MR. O. P. AUSTIN, chief of the Bureau of Statistics, Washington, D. C., deserves the thanks of the public, and of newspaper men especially, for the full, accurate and timely series of tables on the commerce of the Philippines and adjacent countries presented in the last "Summary of Finance and Commerce" issued by the Treasury Department.

PROGRESS OF THE INGRAIN INDUSTRY.



THE Ingrain carpet industry was started in Philadelphia the weaver was not blessed with a three story house with pressed brick front, brown stone trimmings, bath room and other pleasant surroundings in the way of carpets, furniture, &c., such as happily he can boast of to-day. He had no objections to having his hand loom, bobbin wheel, yarn racks, &c., in his best room. He would sandwich himself between two large bundles of skein yarn and march off to the public dye house, returning laden in the same way with dyed yarn. His helpmate would sit on a three legged stool, turning the bobbin wheel with one hand and guiding the yarn on to the bobbin as it passed between the fingers of the other hand, changing at intervals from one guide finger as the skin would become worn away to another recently healed. The bobbins are no longer in use, but it is difficult to realize that it is less than twenty years since this slow and painful method was altogether abandoned. The weaver of that time would sit and sing and weave a little now and again between smokes and drinks and finally land his finished piece of carpet at his employer's place in a wheelbarrow. The fathers of some of our present most prosperous Philadelphia manufacturers were not ashamed to be seen with a piece of carpet in a wheelbarrow.

In those days the main study of the weaver was the number of shuttles used, how to select them and at the same time secure a good selvage. Sometimes more than thirty shuttles were introduced in some way during each repeat of the pattern. This error of introducing so many shuttles was carried far into the power loom period, and gave no end of trouble to loom builders, machinists and fixers, as shown in the monster upright arrangement of shuttle boxes in the Duckworth and Bigelow looms and the revolving shuttle boxes of the old Murkland loom. Not until the inventor came along with his many improvements and solved the problem of how to shade without striping did superfluous shuttle boxes find their way to the scrap iron pile and was it possible to make selvages neat, strong and continuous.

The difficulties experienced and overcome by our pioneer Philadelphia manufacturers in procuring designs for Ingrain carpets may be imagined from the fact that on account of the scarcity of designing ability they would even be obliged to resort to a scheme as follows: They got a sample of English or Scotch carpet having a margin over the full length of the pattern, then removed the weft from a few inches of the margin, and the warps thus exposed and set free they would draw in proper order through an ordinary loom reed, the whole being held taut. Next, a weft from the first pair in the pattern would be drawn forward an inch or so, which would act as a substitute for the first line of a regular painted design, and with a hammer in one hand and a single punch in the other our enterprising manufacturer read and punched his card as the warp lying over the weft would indicate.

But a set of cards once secured would often remain on the loom undisturbed for years, and the patterns were so scarce in number and variety that each design had a name of its own, such, for instance, as "Henry Clay," "The Eagle," "Walls of Troy," &c.

But after Jonathan Crabtree and his brother, Ben Crabtree, left England and started designing and card stamping in Philadelphia the Ingrain industry gradually gained activity, until the limited capacity for color effect, natural to the weave as compared with other carpet fabrics, began to affect the demand for the goods. The Ingrain trade was suffering seriously from this cause when Mr. Hardwick discovered a method of materially increasing its designing and coloring capacity, without adding to its cost, as illustrated in his mate thread weave. This invention gave new life to the whole industry. The demand for change is now so great that at the present time there are many Ingrain carpet manufacturers in Philadelphia who now introduce in a single year more than a hundred new designs and several hundred new samples, showing the designs in different color combinations, while the combined capacity of Philadelphia manufacturers is, perhaps, 100,000 rolls of Ingrain carpet per annum.

Not the least among the men of enterprise to whom the Ingrain industry of Philadelphia is indebted for its rapid progress was M. A. Furbush, for in addition to his perseverance in perfecting the Murkland power loom he materially assisted many beginners in the trade by his liberal methods and generous dealings. The Murkland power loom is very desirable for heavy Extra Super, &c., on account of its weight, firmness and beating up power. The Knowles and Crompton power looms are especially valuable inventions for both 4-4 goods and Art Squares. Just about the time that Mr. Hardwick simplified the shading of Ingrains came the Knowles and Crompton universal four shuttle box motion, a clever device by which any one of the four shuttle boxes on either side of the loom could readily be brought into play whenever desired. Their improved Jacquard also added materially to the advantages of Ingrain carpet manufacturers, and especially in Art Squares.

THE Tapestries offered by the James Dunlap Carpet Company, Philadelphia, for the fall trade are even better in quality and styles than any of their previous season's productions. The goods have a worsted face, well covered, and are sufficiently soft and pliable to meet all requirements. They can be seen in New York at the Hartford Building, where the Dunlap Company is represented by S. E. Weeks.

BÉDROS KAZANJIAN, 32 Greene street, New York, has just received an invoice of 200 excellent Shiratz rugs, which run from prayer rug sizes to very large pieces. These are all very rare in design, very silky and harmonious in colorings and in perfect condition. Mr. Kazanjian reports a very satisfactory business. He is disposing of his goods at a very small margin, and the trade therefore pay him frequent visits.

FARR & BAILEY CO.'S NEW LINOLEUM FACTORY.

The Farr & Bailey Manufacturing Company, Camden, N. J., are preparing for the erection of several large buildings, which will be used for the manufacture of linoleum.

THOMAS BOGGS & SONS' NEW MILLS.

The "Model Mills" are aptly named, especially in connection with the large new mills now occupied by Thos. Boggs & Sons, at Second street and Allegheny avenue, Philadelphia. The construction and arrangement of these mills and the handsome exterior comprise a model establishment for Ingrain manufacture. The main building is 210 feet long by 54 feet wide, and one floor is spacious enough to take in the entire plant of nearly 100 Ingrain looms, with room for twenty-five more. The Messrs. Boggs occupy the entire first and second floors, the first floor being utilized for winding and other processes of preparing the yarn for the looms and for yarn storage, together with shipping room. The second floor is devoted to the weaving looms. There is an "L" of 55x34 feet extending the entire five stories of the structure. The architect is William Steele, a leading builder and architect of Philadelphia, who has done himself great credit in both the exterior and interior design and construction of the mill. The Messrs. Boggs, however, are also responsible for many of the new ideas in its arrangement, as they aimed to have everything of the best character and utilize all possible improvements. The engine and boiler house and machinery therein, the sprinkling and water system and the sanitary and other arrangements for the hands are all of the most perfected character.

In this model mill the Messrs. Boggs will continue to manufacture their well-known grades of Union and Cotton Ingrains, keeping them up to the high standard for which they have so long been noted. It is also pleasant to announce that their fall orders are of the usual large volume and promise steady running for the new mills throughout the season.

THE GREAT AUCTION SALE.

PROCEEDINGS ON THE LAST DAY. GENERAL REVIEW OF THE SALE.

In our last issue we noted the proceedings on two days of the auction sale of Smith carpeting held May 31, June 1 and 2, but were obliged to go to press before the conclusion of the sale on the third day.

On this, which was the 2d inst., the first goods offered were nine lots of Ne Plus Ultra carpeting, the highest price realized for any lot being $1.04 and the lowest 96 cents. The Extra Tapestries, which came next on the catalogue, comprised thirty-four lots. The highest price obtained for these was 45 cents, the lowest 40½ cents and the average 43½ cents. These figures showed a reduction as compared with the prices obtained for the same grade on May 31. The Smith Axminsters, 105 lots of which were the next goods offered, also failed to bring so much as they had two days before, the highest price on the third day being 57½ cents, the lowest 50 cents and the average 53. Of the Saxony Axminsters, which came next, only ten lots were offered, the highest price secured being 57½ cents, the lowest 49 cents and the average 51½ cents. These prices were about the same as those which were obtained for the ninety-one lots sold on the preceding day, but not so good as those secured for the fifteen lots sold on May 31.

It was about noon when the Wilton Velvets, the next grade on the catalogue, were offered. A number of buyers had left the auction room, and after ten or twelve lots had been sold the bidding slackened and prices dropped considerably. When thirty-two lots had been sold the sale was stopped for half an hour, as usual at luncheon time, and when the buyers came in again for the afternoon session Mr. Walter W. Law, of W. & J. Sloane, opened the proceedings by taking the auctioneer's stand and addressing them as follows:

Gentlemen—As it is our full intention to close this sale to-night, with the completion of the catalogue, it is perhaps only fitting that I should say a word or two, as we have been so often asked to do, in relation to that which is to follow. And I can say in a word in starting that the future rests with you. We shall commence after this sale is over to offer goods in the store, as we have been accustomed to offer them at the close of every season, hoping thereby promptly and early to close up whatever remainder of stock the Alex. Smith & Sons Carpet Company may hold. We want to take you into our confidence as fully as it is in our power to do. There are some things we do not know ourselves—we are neither prophets nor the sons of prophets, and therefore cannot divine the future very far ahead ; but we want to say this : that the prices which we shall ask you for the fabrics of the Alex. Smith & Sons Carpet Company on the floor will make some of you wish very much that you had bought more of them than you have bought during the past few days. I congratulate you all, gentlemen, upon the purchases you have made, and I want to say that some of you who have some rankling in your hearts against the methods of the Alex. Smith & Sons Company, will when you get home and make comparisons with the prices at which the goods can be bought conclude that the Alex. Smith & Sons Carpet Company have been your best friends. There are some who do not like auctions, and I am free to confess I am one of them, but I also confess that we have the full conviction that there are times and circumstances under which it is wiser to resort to an auction than to go on in the chaotic condition that the carpet trade was in a month ago. No one knew what the value of goods was, and it is the supreme faith we have in the carpet trade of America putting the proper value upon carpets that made us appeal to you to put your own prices upon them. It is our earnest hope—shall I say confident belief—that you will take from us the remainder of our stock on the floor at private sale before the close of this six months—which will be next month. It is in your own hands, gentlemen, as to whether there shall be another auction or not. If you take all that we have in stock or shall have left at that time there can be no auction; it is for you to decide. But at the end of the six months, carrying out the conviction of the Alex. Smith & Sons Carpet Company, whatever may remain at that time—little or big—must assuredly be closed up, for the company are firm in their conviction that every piece of goods which they hold shall be closed up with the closing of this six months' business.

We thank you all very much for your kind attendance here during the week that you have given us your attention, and will thank you still more if you prevent another auction taking place ; it is for you to decide.

At the conclusion of Mr. Law's speech the sale of Wilton Velvets was resumed, there being nineteen more lots on the catalogue. On the fifty-one lots of these goods sold, the highest price secured was 90 cents, the lowest 62½ cents and the average 81 cents. On May 31 some lots of this grade brought 95 cents, and the average price was 84 cents, but then only nineteen lots were offered. Forty-six lots of Extra Velvets were then disposed of, the highest price being 84 cents, the lowest 69 cents, and the average 79⅓ cents. Fourteen more lots of Wilton Velvets were sold next, the highest price obtained being 85 cents, the lowest 70 cents and the average 78. A few lots of Moquette mats followed, the highest price for any being 61 cents, lowest 56½ cents and the average 59 cents. Thirty-four lots of E rugs were then sold at an average price of $1.10, the highest figures being $1 17½ and the lowest $1 06½. In four lots of the Ne Plus Ultra rugs the average price was $3.75 and the lowest $3 50, none going higher than $4.00. The Moquettes which came next on the catalogue, comprised sixty-two lots, and the average price realized was 52½ cents, the lowest being 49 cents and the highest 58 cents. Best Tapestries, which were the next and last goods sold, brought an average price of 43½ cents, the highest price in the ninety-one lots disposed of being 47 cents and the lowest 40 cents. The last lot sold at the sale was bought by the Charles R. Company, of Hartford, Conn.

The highest, lowest and average prices obtained in the three days of the sale for the various grades disposed of are shown in the following table:

A GROUNDLESS APPREHENSION.

So much has been said in the public prints and elsewhere as to possible disturbances and trouble on the Atlantic coast, in view of the present war, and also of the lurking danger in submarines mines and torpedoes with which our harbors have been protected, that the timidity of a large number of people has been increased, and many have refrained from making their annual spring outing to one of the seaside resorts.

The best proof that these dangers are imaginary is found in the fact that the great coastwise lines continue to operate their schedule uninterruptedly. For instance, the steamships of the Old Dominion Steamship Company, running between New York and Virginia, have lost none of their trips and do not expect to do so.

Interest in Fortress Monroe, Old Point Comfort, Newport News, Hampton Roads and Washington has never attained a greater height since the civil war.

STINSON BROTHERS have reduced the prices of their Tapestry and Velvet carpeting 5 cents a yard.

BROWN.—H. V. Brown, who has been long and favorably known throughout New York State in connection with carpeting and mattings, has made arrangements to represent John H. Pray, Sons & Co. throughout this State, and will make his headquarters at Troy, N. Y. Mr. Brown has always had the reputation of a thoroughly reliable and altogether patient salesman, with the result that he has surrounded himself by many staunch friends, and we doubt not that this season, with the effect of giving him as good a send-off as possible in his new position, many orders will be reserved for him. He will represent both the carpetings and mattings of Pray, Sons & Co.

CLARK.—George B. Clark, of George B. Clark & Co., carpet and furniture dealers, Bridgeport, Conn., is a new papa, but there is no truth in the rumor that the little one already sings "Daddy, You're So Good"; it's another song.

COON.—Frank Coon, who has had charge of the carpet department of Frankenstein & Co., Westerly, R. I., has decided to return to his former home in the West.

CRAFT.—H. T. Craft, manager of the carpet and upholstery department of the Keely Company, Atlanta, Ga., was in New York last week purchasing fall supplies. Mr. Craft reports a very satisfactory trade during the spring season, especially in matting, sales of which have been beyond the utmost anticipations and far ahead of any previous season. The space in his department has been increased during the past six months, and the company are well satisfied with their business in these goods.

DYER.—Herbert S. Dyer, formerly a well-known carpet salesman, is doing well as agent for a surety company at Portland, Me. Mr. Dyer left the carpet trade about four years after a twelve years' experience in it as salesman for the E. S. Higgins Carpet Company and Arnold, Constable & Co.

GEORG.—Charles Georg, an employee of the Day Carpet and Furniture Company, Peoria, Ill., has a brother in the gold region, from whom he is very anxious to hear. The man left Portland with five others, and has been in Alaska since January 5. It is doubtful if he knows that war has been declared, or of other important events. Mr. Georg, of Peoria, wrote to his brother some time ago, directing the letter in charge of one who is interested in the expedition, but has been advised that his letter will not reach his brother before June 15.

KNAPP—DAY.—Hiram Miller Knapp, son of Sheppard Knapp, of Sheppard Knapp & Co., and Miss Grace Martin Day were married at the Mount Morris Baptist Church, New York, last evening, 14th inst.

TURKINGTON.—Alexander Turkington, superintendent of the Lafayette (Ind.) Carpet Company, went to Fort Wayne on the 2d inst. and was there united in marriage to Mrs. Mary J. Turkington, from whom he was divorced soon after he became a resident of Lafayette.

VAN GAASBEEK.—A. B. Van Gaasbeek, the veteran Albany carpet dealer, is fully up to the times in everything concerning the trade. He was a notable buyer at the Smith Company's auction sale last month, and showed excellent judgment, as usual, in his purchases.

YARDUM.—Armen Yardum, of Yardum Brothers & Co., importers of Oriental rugs, sailed for Europe recently on the steamship Lucania. During his trip abroad he will visit all the principal rug districts of the Orient and will include Japan and India in his tour. Mr. Yardum will meet in Damascus, his buyer, Mr. Dommar, who preceded him in search of novelties and specialties in Damascus furniture, antique lamps, arms, armor, draperies, &c.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Daniel Burnman, an old and well-known citizen of Milton, Pa., died there on June 3, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. He served as deputy postmaster in the latter part of the sixties. His trade was that of a carpet weaver and he acted as superintendent and manager of the State prison carpet and jute manufacturing department of the Northumberland County jail for several years

He also had the honor of weaving the first Velvet carpet that was ever woven in this country. Besides several sons here he has relatives in England.

The mercantile agencies announce the death of H. T. Clock, of Clock Brothers, Eastman & Co., Islip, N. Y.; J. A. Hartly, of E. A. & J. H. Hartly, Emporia, Va

Buyers coming to the market will have every opportunity to view the complete lines in New York at the Judge Company's office in the Hartford Building. According to a statement issued by the Bureau of Statistics, 4,000,036 pounds of carpet wools were entered for consumption during the month of May.

PACIFIC COAST AND FAR WEST NOTES.

San Francisco, Cal., June 4.

The carpet trade is very inactive. The past spring failed to produce results hoped for, because a drought continued through that season and struck a hard blow to business. The dry spell was broken a few days ago by a soaking rain, which, although coming late in May, nevertheless saved the northern portion of California from serious results. Crops are short in San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys, which means hard times for farmers and other classes. The local houses are doing more or less in a general way, but none of them is over-rushed, nor are they in danger of being so for some time to come. The shortage of grain crops and the war are hardly conducive to brilliant trade results. This is about the sum and substance of the situation at this writing.

Schlueter & Volberg report a fair trade in carpets and furnishings.

W. & J. Sloane & Co. report general trade rather unsatisfactory, but look for an improvement before many months have elapsed.

The Chadbourne Furniture Company at San Diego, Cal., has purchased the stock of the San Diego Furniture and Carpet Company.

The Chas. M. Plum & Co. Upholstery Company are experiencing a good demand for better grades of carpets and furnishings. Mr. Plum says that business has turned out fairly good this year.

Joseph Fredericks & Co. are furnishing throughout the elegant new steamer St. Paul, just completed by the Union Iron Works in this city for the Alaska trade. Quite a number of good sized orders keep this house busy.

Coulter Brothers, the rattan furniture dealers, are making a rattan casket, which will be thoroughly tested in a practical manner by a local undertaking firm. The bottom will be of poplar. A crowning cover will fit all around the top in a ledge, thus rendering it an easy matter to remove it. The handles are to be of rattan, and will be made either stationary or drop. The casket will be shaped like the ordinary metallic article, but will be many times lighter and easier to handle. For the present it will be used for transferring bodies to the undertaking rooms, but the manufacturers believe that in the course of a short time rattan caskets will be used for burial purposes.

GOLDEN GATE.

AROUND AND ABOUT.

OULD you take up the very latest idea? Then cover your bathroom, walls, ceiling and floor, every inch of it, with oil cloth. This is a plan that has aroused much enthusiasm, and the oil clothed bathroom is now exceedingly correct. Oil cloth is less expensive than tiling, and even easier to keep clean. It is made nowadays in so many patterns that everyone's tastes can be suited, and, though those that have never seen a bathroom decked in this manner may not be inclined to think so, a bathroom that from top to toe, as it were, is of oil cloth, is a very artistic affair.

The oil cloth chosen should be of a pattern that closely resembles tiling, and it is best to varnish it thoroughly. One of the prettiest designs in the market—a design, by the way, that is used in several well known New York houses—is a white ground with a blue figure. The border is of the "Wall of Troy" variety. Another good pattern is of green and white.

AN English genius, who calls himself a shop starter or boomer, describes his methods in a London paper as follows: "I have been a shop-starter now for a decade, and have got to be fairly well known in my business. I have given the push-off to many hundreds of businesses. Queer profession? Well, I suppose it is, but I'm a necessary quantity, judging by my engagements. How is it done? You must have the shop fitted attractively, and see that it is on the right side of the road, and boom it thoroughly. Nothing so important as having your shop on the right side of the road, that is to say, the side on which the most pedestrians pass. And that's the sunny side. In streets running from north to south the east side is the best, while those stretching east and west the north side is the best. Many a capable business man has failed for no other reason than that he has not paid proper attention to the question of the side of the road. A shop cannot be too well lit; the brighter the light the greater the attraction, and here is presented a curiosity in things human, for when people see a brightly lighted shop they will gather round it like moths, and very often won't move away until their pockets are burnt. Everything in the way of fittings should be made particularly attractive; neither glaring nor offensive to the eye, but just sufficiently effective. The thing is to draw attention to the window, and prominence given to any other feature detracts from that and is a mistake. After all, the window is the main thing.

"There are many methods of calling attention to a newly opened shop, some of them suitable in one neighborhood and some in another. Not a bad spec. is the engaging of a band to play on the opening night of, say, a grocer's shop in a working district. It wouldn't do, though, in a middle-class neighborhood. I pushed off successfully in Nottingham a little while ago a grocer's shop on these lines, and the band played for the first four Saturdays at a cost of £10, but a good connection had been built up before the fourth Saturday came around, notwithstanding the comparative failure of one or two other similar businesses in the neighborhood. I started a business in Leeds once for a young firm, and got them to give away a handsome dinner service worth four guineas to the customer who presented at the end of the first month the greatest number of checks, which were given away with every article worth sixpence or more. It sent the business up safely. But on one occasion the police in another town interfered with this idea, claiming that it was a lottery. That did more to advertise the business than the service itself, the gift of which got through all right.

"A cheesemonger's I started in a similar way, only I gave away six eggs with every pound of bacon for the first week. It brought the people from every corner of the district. In Blandford I opened a cigar and tobacco shop for a young married couple, and got a connection together for them by selling ounce packets of tobacco at half price for the first week. An enterprising London drapery salesman took it into his head to open a country public, and he commanded almost instantaneous success by giving away half-ounce twists of tobacco with every glass of ale—my suggestion—for a month. The second week he augmented this gift with a pin cushion for the customer to take home to his wife, which put the lady on good terms with her husband and 'The Romping Kitling.' I've told you quite enough. There's my card."

MANY retail dealers seem to be possessed with the dangerous and erroneous idea that incandescent electric lamps, such as are used in stores, diffuse no heat, and may therefore be placed near or in close contact to inflammable fabrics without fear of igniting them. This is a great mistake As is well known, the carbon filament of the lamp is a substance offering great resistance to the passage of the current, and the products of this resistance are light and heat. It is an instance of the translation of one form of energy into another. It is not, however, so generally known that the light produced is after all only a small percentage of the energy thus manifested—some 5 or 6 per cent. only at the most. It is true that the lamp when working is not comparable with a flame or naked light, but at the same time the heat evolved is such as may lead to ignition, and several serious fires in stores have been caused in this way.

IN buying an Oriental rug one can discriminate between the imitation and genuine, not by the color or pattern, which may be copied, but by a careful examination to see if each stitch is knotted. If the stitch is knotted and it is impossible to pull it out, the rug is genuine Turkish, whether the warp is cotton or wool, but if one can pull the stitch out it is imitation, no matter how closely color and pattern follow the original. The manner of testing the quality of the rug is as follows: A live coal is dropped on the rug and allowed to burn a little. When it is removed, a yellowish mark will be left. If this can be brushed off with the fingers, leaving the original colors unaltered, it is a sure proof of the genuineness of the rug. It is necessary, however, for one to be a connoisseur in rugs in order to be able to discriminate between the qualities of rugs of various countries, and to understand the age of the rug from the intensity of lustre. Some of the rugs which find their way here have been damaged, but so skillfully restored that to the eye of the uninitiated they seem in perfect condition. Many of these have been "cropped" to remove signs of wear, which reduces not only the richness and depth of the pile, but affects the durability of the rug as well. Damaged spots are also frequently touched up with water colors and a fine brush—a deception easily discovered if the colors are wiped over with a soft cloth somewhat moistened.

The rag carpet, after many years, has returned. It is once again fairly popular, and the rags that for a quarter of a century have been going to the ragman are now being treasured up, since, if they are of wool, they are almost worth their weight in gold. Why the rag carpet ever did go out of style it is hard to determine, and its reappearance is not difficult to understand. Properly put together and made of a good assortment of rags, it is exceedingly pretty, and withal easy to manufacture, all the knack needed being the skill necessary to cut the rags into strips, sew these together in lengths and wind them into a ball. For a small sum the rag carpet weaver does the rest.

Bathroom and study rugs are the chief uses of the rag carpet of to-day, and it is not so much rag carpets, in fact, as it is rag carpet rugs. The rag carpet rug is not large, as a rule. Six feet by 3 would be quite an extraordinary size. The idea is to have quite a number of them, and these much smaller.

They clean easily and wear like iron. These facts especially commend them. Then, too, there is much sociability in their making. A rag carpet party is a jovial event, and a "function" that, long neglected, is coming in again once more. The girls meet of an afternoon and sew rags until 5 or 5:30. Then the men, especially asked for this hour, begin to drift in, and there is afternoon tea. It is the modernizing of the old time "sewing bee," and it works marvelously well as an amusement.

A correspondent of a Western paper tells this story: "In an Illinois city of about 20,000 I recently spent a day. While there I called on an old friend who owns the largest carpet store in the place. As I went in the front door of his place of business I caught a glimpse of my friend flying out the back door, and before I had time to ask what it meant a well dressed woman came in, and, stepping up to one of the clerks, inquired for my friend. The clerk politely told her he was out, and that he did not know when he would be back. The lady remarked that she would come again. She was hardly outside when the back door opened and my friend came in and greeted me cordially. 'Well,' he laughed, 'I suppose you would like to know what possessed me to run from a woman. You see she isn't an ordinary woman, but an advertising solicitor for programmes for benefit performances, church sociables and that kind of things. She is such an awful stayer that once she gets hold of you you're a gone goose, and the only thing you can do is to fight for a small space. She is a terror and no mistake. Why,' he went on, 'not long ago a certain merchant here decided that he would not be bullied into taking ads. by her any longer, so the next time she came to him he flatly said no. She was not a bit discouraged though. It was about 11 o'clock when she first saw him, and she stayed and talked to him until 12. Then he started to go home to dinner, and as she had her carriage there she offered to make up for the way she had bothered him by taking him home. It was all in the game, however, for when they reached his home, she got out and and announced her intention of going in to see his wife. From her she managed to get an invitation to dinner. She went back to the store with that man. He was so mad he would hardly speak to her, and finally in sheer desperation gave her an ad to get rid of her. Now do you wonder I run when I see her coming?'"

A FACSIMILE OF BLABON'S INLAID LINOLEUM.

In this number, opposite page 8, will be found a reproduction in colors of a pattern of the Geo. W. Blabon Company's new inlaid linoleum. This colored print shows the method of joining the inlaid sections, which method is claimed to insure the firmest amalgamation of the cork mash. The Blabon Company show several very appropriate and attractive designs, which can be seen at their offices in Philadelphia and New York.

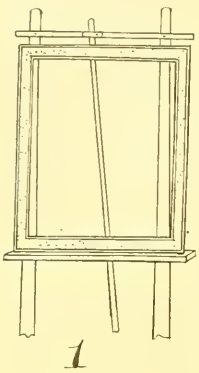
SHOW WINDOW DISPLAYS.



AN inexpensive way to exhibit goods on a revolving stand through a frame is shown in Figures 1 and 2 of the illustrations presented herewith. The first shows the frame, which should be on an easel. The second is the stand in section. The window should be trimmed on both sides of the frame, so that from the front the only parts seen are the frame easel and the revolving stand of goods just back of the frame. The goods may carry cards worded to suit the ideas of the dealer

A display figure can often be used with effect. I will refer to the use of a figure of a man made mostly with balls of sewing twine and displayed in the window with a lot of carpets. The body of the figure was formed by four rows of half-pound balls of six-ply philis. A fifth row, but smaller and without a ball in the centre, made the neck and shoulders. The arms were formed of half-pound balls, passed on an iron rod and hooked on the upper row of the body. The legs were made of three 1 pound and four half-pound balls on rods, the same as the arms. For the head a 2 pound ball was used, with hair and beard of raffia combed fine and pinned on the ball. The nose and ears were made by cutting pieces of card and covering them with twine. For a cap an enameled bowl was used, and for hands a pair of harvest gloves. It was seated in the window on a pile of carpets and attracted much attention.

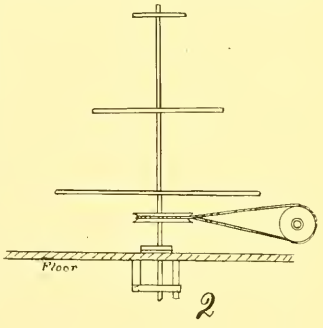


Figure 3 is a form of a sheep cut from thin boards. Fig. 4 is a sectional view showing the board body (A). The side which is to stand facing the window is built out with burlap and straw, and some fleece wool bought at the carpet mills is stuck to the burlap. The sheep thus made is put in the window with finished carpet, and a sign put up reading: "From the raw to the finished product."

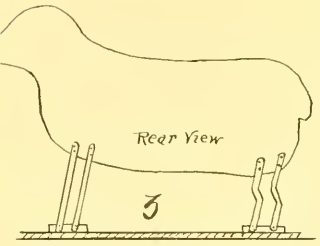

THE rug and drapery buyers of New England should make a point before placing their fall orders, of inspecting the large lines of W. T. Smith & Son on show at 611 Washington street, Boston, by W. H. Reid. A more than usual number of new patterns have been added for the fall, and the offerings in tapestry and chenille curtains and table covers, lace curtains, Smyrna rugs and carpets and Art Squares are such as will interest any buyer. Particular attention is called to the Royal Axminster Smyrna rugs, and the trade who have handled them the past season can testify to their quick selling merits. The trade in the large sizes is growing and dealers should give particular attention to them, as they will find them profitable to handle. Mr. Reid will cover the New England trade thoroughly and should receive a welcome wherever he goes.

WILL SELL THE NEW KHORASAN RUGS.

HUNTER & WHITCOMB have taken the selling agency for Barnes & Beyer's new one piece, high pile Khorasan rug and will show these desirable goods on the road and at 874 Broadway, New York. The arrangement has just been completed as we go to press.

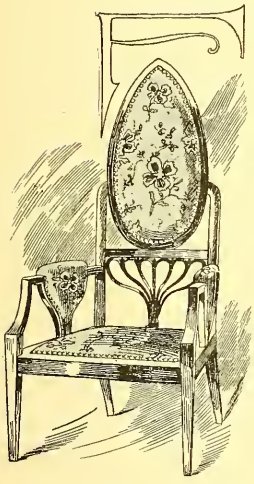
THE Roxbury Carpet Company resumed work at their mill in Boston, Mass., on the 14th inst., after a shut down of several weeks.

THE sales of Staines inlaid linoleum, made by the Linoleum Manufacturing Company, Limited, of Staines and London, England, are increasing steadily through the capable representation of Hunter & Whitcomb, of 874 Broadway, New York.

A FEATURE of the insurance business which has become very popular is that of insuring against accidents in apartment or tenement houses—many of these being equipped with metal plates and metal stair nosings which enhance the liability to accidents by slipping on the smooth surface of the metal. The patent rubber nosings sold by the Knapp Rubber Binding Company, 335 Broadway, New York, will prevent such a catastrophe, as these rubber nosings will prevent slipping, are noiseless and will reverse to wear on the other side. Send for samples and prices.

THE UPHOLSTERY TRADE REVIEW

The Upholstery Market.



FALL upholstery business cannot be said to have opened up as briskly as desired. The well established mills, however, have recorded very fair orders on yard goods and richly deserve same, as their new offerings show a big step forward in the production of new fabrics and advancement in designs and colorings. In fact the outlook is that ere long the American makers will produce every known fabric used in the trade, and in styles and prices that will command the business.

The importers and manufacturers of Swiss, French, and English lace curtains are about opening up their season for retail buyers. The offerings in Swiss goods are particularly notable for handsome new styles, and the trade in them promises to be more extensive than ever, as every season proves the capabilities of the Swiss manufacturers in bringing out remarkably handsome effects at moderate prices.

The domestic manufacturers of lace curtains are also opening their goods for fall retail buying, and, while the demand for domestic laces may not be so pressing as was the case last fall, yet with the disappearance of the war scare the domestic machinery will doubtless be fully occupied.

The representatives of English and Scotch lace curtain manufacturers say they are much encouraged with the improvement in demand for their goods, and feel that they yet have a standing in the American market. The general report of buyers is that they need goods for fall, and if they do not order at once they will be compelled to do so later. However, we should judge the wise man to be the one who anticipates his wants in time, and places orders early enough to insure proper deliveries.

THE NEW DUTY ON SCOTCH HOLLANDS SUSTAINED.

DUTY ON SCOTCH HOLLANDS.—The trade have been waiting impatiently a long time for a decision of the Board of General Appraisers on the question of the duty on Scotch hollands, and at last it has been made, the board on classification having given its ruling on the 2d inst. The case before the board was the protest of the Pinney, Casse & Lackey Company against the collector at New York on an importation of King's hollands. The merchandise, according to the official analysis of the Government chemist, contains a trifle over 77 per cent. of cotton fibre and from 19 to 20 per cent. of starch, with a small portion of coloring matter and alumina, iron oxide and silica.

The collector classified the article under paragraph 311, tariff act of 1897, which provides for "cotton cloth, filled or coated," 3 cents per square yard and 20 per cent. ad valorem. The importers claimed under the countable clauses, paragraphs 304 to 309, inclusive, of the same act, and asserted that the cloth is neither filled nor coated, but simply starched. The single question, the board say, was whether the goods are really "filled." At the outset it may be noted that the provisions in paragraph 311 for "cotton cloth, filled or coated," is new, nothing like it appearing in previous tariffs. The expression "filled or coated," is not a commercial term, but is rather used techically in a manufacturing sense.

Counsel argued at some length as to the precise meaning of the word "fill" in this connection, and witnesses testified concerning it. "It seems to imply," say the board, "simply the use of some substance to put into or stop up the pores or interstices of the cloth. The real point of contention was whether starch alone constitutes a filling; for, from the above analysis, it will be seen that there is no other substance in these goods that could be so regarded." From a consideration of the entire evidence the board found that the merchandise was cotton cloth, filled, and held that the goods were properly classified by the collector under paragraph 311. The protest was therefore overruled.

In a dissenting opinion, General Appraiser George C. Tichenor argued that while the majority of the board found that the word "filled" is not a commercial term it should therefore be taken in its ordinary and popular signification. He contended, from the board's recent decision in a similar case, that the treatment to which the cloth here in question had been subjected "completely filled the interstices between the threads of the fabric and rendered it opaque," and that "they are filled, the interstices between the threads being effectually closed or filled." The evidence in these cases shows that there are window shade cloths thus filled, and that the "filling" process is that method. The Scotch hollands in the case, he claims, are not of this character. He held that the evidence, furthermore, abundantly showed that there are several other varieties of cotton cloths well known in commerce, notably bookbinders' cloth and imitation vellum, the interstices between the threads of which are actually filled with glue, china clay, white lead, plaster of paris, glauber salts, glucose and other substances than starch.

In this view Appraiser Tichenor is constrained to dissent from the conclusions of his colleagues in these cases and is of the opinion that the protests should be sustained.

Duty on Mercerized Fabrics.—In the case of Converse, Stanton & Cullen against the Collector of Customs at New York the question involved was the rate of duty to be charged on certain mercerized cotton goods.

The goods were returned by the appraiser as colored cotton cloths, (1) exceeding 100 and not exceeding 150 threads to the square inch and exceeding 4 and not exceeding 6 square yards to the pound, (2) exceeding 150 and not exceeding 200 threads to the square inch, valued at over 12½ cents per square yard, and (3) exceeding 200 and not exceeding 300 threads to the square inch and exceeding 3½ square yards to the pound. They were accordingly assessed with duty at 3¾ cents per square yard, 40 per cent. ad valorem and at 7 cents per square yard, respectively, under the provisions of paragraphs 306, 307 and 308, act of July 24, 1897; but the importers claimed that the goods were dutiable "at the rates provided for unbleached cottons by Schedule I."

The Board of General Appraisers decided in favor of the Collector on the following grounds:

(1) That the goods in question are not such as were known in trade and commerce of the United States on July 24, 1897, and prior thereto as unbleached or gray cotton cloths, but have been advanced therefrom by an expensive and delicate process, known as "mercerizing," involving the use of special machinery and skilled labor, whereby their appearance has been materially changed and improved, their value considerably advanced and their commercial designation changed to that of sateens or mercerized cotton goods.

(2) That these goods are not in technical or commercial sense bleached or dyed, nor have they been colored by the direct use of tinctorial material, but the warp threads thereof have undergone a process known as "mercerizing," consisting of a bath in caustic soda lye of certain strength depending upon temperature and subjection to severe tension, which straightens and strengthens the fibres, and imparts a silk-like lustre thereto, and also develops the coloring matter inherent in the fibre in such degree as to change and increase the color of the fabric from that of the unbleached or gray cotton cloths of commerce.

(3) That these goods have been advanced one stage in the process of dyeing, and the removal of the fine nap or fluff from the warp, incident to "mercerizing," is in a measure equivalent to the operation of singeing in the process of bleaching cotton fabrics.

It is well known that the cardinal idea which pervades the present tariff act is that of protection to American industry. This idea is nowhere more consistently adhered to than in the respective paragraphs and provisions relating to cotton cloths, the rates of duty thereon being scientifically adjusted according to condition or amount of labor and expense involved in the several stages of their treatment as commercial articles. Thus (1) "in the gray," or rough and unbleached state as they come from the loom, they are subject to the lowest duties, (2) when bleached (the second stage toward completion) the rates are proportionally increased and (3) when they have reached the last stage by being "dyed, colored, stained, painted or printed" the highest rate is imposed.

It is obvious from this careful adjustment of rates of duty and from the elaborate phraseology employed that Congress intended to exclude from the first category all cotton cloths advanced beyond the unbleached or gray state of any process of manufacture whatever. Mercerized cotton cloths, being thus necessarily excluded from the first class, must be included in one of the other classes, unless specifically excluded therefrom by the phraseology employed. In view of the theory and policy of the tariff act, we are of the opinion that a reasonable interpretation of the language carries these goods to the higher classification, to wit, "Cotton cloths dyed, colored, stained, painted or printed." A contrary interpretation would make a portion of this language redundant, superfluous and meaningless.

A decision of the Board of Appraisers which has been held back since May 18 was announced on the 10th inst It was on the protest of Arnold, Constable & Co. against the Collector at New York on a consignment of merchandise consisting of cotton and ramie, and cotton and flax velours, which was assessed for duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 342 of the Tariff Act of July 24, 1897, as pile fabrics of flax, but was claimed to be dutiable at 47½ per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 315 of the same act. The protest was overruled as to pattern No. 7773, Ex. 1, protest 27058F, and as to pattern No. 13544, Ex. 1, protest 27058F, but was sustained as to the merchandise covered by Ex. 1, protest 25995F, namely, the goods on invoice 9394, described as "Vellours Murillo," &c., and returned as "flax plush" 60 per cent. The board's judgment in this case was based on an analysis made by the United States chemist at the appraisers' stores in New York. From this the board found that in the first two instances flax is the chief component, while in the last ramie is such component.

Caller: "Can I see your typewriter a few minutes?" Business Man: "She's engaged, sir" Caller: "That's all right, sir. I'm the fellow."—Truth.

Oscar E. A. Wiessner's metallic bedstead plant on Seventh and Eighth streets, between Second and Third avenues, Brooklyn, was damaged by fire on June 7. Loss between $30,000 and $40,000; insured.

The American Pegamoid Company has moved its general offices from 11 Broadway to the New York Life Insurance Building, 346 Broadway, where the company occupies seven large offices on the twelfth floor.

Ferguson Brothers are busily engaged in finishing novelties for the fall season of 1898. We cannot disclose the particulars, but will not betray the confidence reposed in us if we state that the line will show many surprisingly attractive and salable conceits.

Business progresses very satisfactorily at the showrooms of J. E. Quaintance, 106 Spring street, during that gentleman's absence in Europe, and it is found a matter of great difficulty to fill the demands for Brown's well-known Madras curtains and curtain goods, which are represented here by the firm.

B. Fitch & Co., 27 West Forty-second street, will probably resume business this week, as arrangements for a satisfactory settlement of the firm's indebtedness are rapidly being arranged, by which all claims under $50 will be paid on an 80 per cent. basis in two and four months, and all over that in full by eight notes due ninety days apart.

Lawson, Lynam & Co., importers of laces, &c., No. 466 Broadway, have concluded to liquidate and retire from business. The liabilities of the firm are not definitely known, as all the merchandise liabilities are in Europe, where their purchases were made. The business was established many years ago by Lawson Brothers at Nottingham, England. They established a branch in this city in 1888 and were shortly afterward succeeded by Lawson, Lynam & Co. On January 1, 1893, they claimed a capital of $135,000, but since then it has been materially reduced and in April last was placed at $75,000. This firm have no connection with Lawson Brothers, lace curtain importers, 55 and 57 White street, New York.

William C. M. Pyke, Allan Williams and John M. Carey, comprising the firm of Pyke, Williams & Co., dealers in dry goods, rugs and curtains at 2807 and 2809 Third avenue, corner of 148th street, made an assignment on June 1 to Herman Mayer, giving preferences of $4,491 to the following creditors: West Brothers, $1,187; Lachman, Morgenthau & Goldsmith, $1,010, and the H. B. Claflin Company, $2,294. The business was started in 1885 by West & Pyke, at 157 West 125th street. They were succeeded by Pyke & Williams in July, 1891. The business was removed to 232 to 236 West 125th street, where it was continued until May 1 of this year, when the firm removed to its present location. They were under a heavy rent on 125th street and moved to 148th street to obtain a lower rent, but the new location did not prove as good a one as anticipated. The liabilities are reported to be about $25,000.

STEAD & MILLER.

The new line of Stead & Miller for the fall trade is on view at the mills, Fourth and Cambria streets, Philadelphia; at the New York salesroom, 115 Worth street, and at the Chicago office, 704 Champlain Building.

Stead & Miller rank among the most experienced and skillful manufacturers of upholstery and drapery fabrics, curtains, table covers, &c., and their new line has made a highly favorable impression on all buyers who have seen the samples. It includes a very choice and extensive range of new and standard patterns in tapestry curtains and covers, damasks, Bagdads, chenille curtains and covers, &c.; upholstery and drapery goods by the yard. One of the entirely new features is a line of Oriental striped curtains which are offered at a very moderate price and are certain to find a large demand.

Buyers are advised to see Stead & Miller's offerings as soon as possible.

NEUBURGER, HEINE & CO.'S FALL LINES.

The complete fall samples of Neuburger, Heine & Co.'s lace curtains, piece goods and bed sets are now on view at their salesrooms, 466 Broome street, New York. The trade will find that this leading lace curtain house have strongly maintained their reputation as producers of thorough novelties in all grades of curtains offered. During the past year and a half especially, buyers have found their lines unsurpassed for good selling and exclusive styles and right values, and their great resources for obtaining these attractions are even better demonstrated in the fall lines now offered than ever before. Their collection of Irish points, Tambour muslins, Brussels, exclusive novelties, dotted frilled muslin, Irish point bed sets and yard goods is alone a sufficient inducement for any buyer to view their lines. They show a complete assortment in vestibule curtains in 12, 18, 30 and 36 inch widths. The traveling men will be on the road with samples in due season, and buyers visiting New York will find it advantageous to call at their warerooms.

"We really must have the drawing room done up this year," said my wife.

"I'll tell you what we'll do, Jack: we'll go out shopping together to-morrow. The January sales are still on, and you can help me choose the things at Frampton's.

"My dear," I said, firmly, "I shall be very glad for you to have your drawing room done up, but"—still more firmly—"I cannot possibly come with you. I——"

"Oh, Jack, do come," interrupted my wife; "you have such excellent taste, and"—coaxingly—"you are so clever, and will be such a help."

Of course I went, but I had my misgivings before we started. I used to wonder why a man who goes shopping with a woman always looks such a complete fool, but I know now, for I once went with my wife to Liberty's to choose a wall paper. It took us three-quarters of an hour of earnest controversy to decide. I wanted green; she insisted upon blue. Needless to say, we bought the blue! Of course, I am master in own house as a rule, but I gave way on this occasion because she said: "Now, do leave it to me, you dear old silly, and go outside and smoke." However delightful it may be to be called a "dear old silly" at home, I don't like it before seven grinning shopmen, so I went outside, but I believe I swore. I felt sure I should probably be made a fool of over this drawing room furniture business, although I could not as yet conceive in what way—but I went.

We stopped at several shops on our way to Frampton's, and I noticed my wife at nearly every shop bought something quite different from what she had gone in to buy. I was a little astonished at this, as I had often heard her say the only way not to waste money at a sale is to know what you want before you start—an excellent maxim. I only wish she had followed it.

"I wish to see some brocade for covering furniture," said my wife to the shopwalker at Frampton's.

He took us through a long room hung at either end with hideous bamboo beaded curtains.

"Wouldn't you like one of these for the morning room," whispered my wife. "They are so nice in the summer with the window open. Shall I order one?"

"No, thank you, my dear," I replied, "nor any wax flowers under a glass case."

My wife gave me a scathing glance, but said nothing. In the meantime a very stately gentleman was laying out for our inspection endless rolls of silk. His manner was a little stiff and condescending at first, but my wife soon took the starch out of him.

"Isn't that lovely," she whispered to me, "but it's too thin. It might almost do for a tea gown," she continued meditatively, and held it up against her cheek. How does it suit me, Jack?"

"Well, I think there's too much green in it," I said; "it makes you look a little——"

"Oh, never mind," she interrupted, hastily putting it down. "I don't much care about it." She carefully examined and commented on different silks; then she suddenly remembered that she had not brought the pattern of the wall paper the silk had to match, so she told the disgusted commercial Lord Chamberlain who was attending to us that she "must come again" about the furniture! She said she would choose the curtains now, as she knew quite well the color she wanted, so he brightened up again. After looking at several dozens of silk brocades and velvets, she said she felt worn out, and stopped for tea in the Japanese room. Then, like a giantess refreshed, she returned to the attack. After half an hour or so I whispered in despair: "It is 7 o'clock, Elsie."

"Good gracious!" said my wife, "do make haste then, Jack. There—this one will do; now, dear, where are the measurements?"

There was a moment's blank silence, and I, feeling as though I were back at school and about to get into a jolly good row, said blankly: "What measurements?"

My wife looked incredulously at me. "You don't mean to say you never measured the window, Jack?"

I felt strongly tempted to —— the window, but I couldn't, of course, swear at my wife in a shop, so I put it off, and merely said: "No, I hadn't."

She turned to the shopman. "My husband hasn't brought the measurements," she said, with cold dignity, "so we cannot get the curtains to-day; give me some patterns, please."

It was past closing time, and we left by the back door—in fact, we were practically swept out with straw. We drove home in almost complete silence.

"What a pity, isn't it?" sighed my wife, but I did not answer her. I felt it was not the time of day when I could reply with my usual courtesy.

She came down to dinner looking fresh. It is extraordinary the amount of real physical labor a small, fragile woman can get through without turning a hair! As I sat with my tired head leaning on my hand, my brain still in a whirl, she said: "What a jolly day we've had, Jack, haven't we?"

"Very jolly, indeed," I answered abstractedly, for I was doing sums, and I had just reckoned up that my "jolly day" had cost me, including the guinea toward the hat, lunch and the cabs, £3 17s. 5d.

"Let't have some champagne, Jack, in honor of my new hat." "We will, dear," I answered, cheerfully. "It will be a nice cheap finish to a nice cheap day!"—Ex.

A MODEL AMERICAN LACE CURTAIN PLANT.

As it now stands the lace curtain plant of T I. Birkin & Co., Chester, Pa., has an equipment of machinery thoroughly modernized and representing the latest and best improvements in curtain manufacture. The above, together with their increased production, places Birkin & Co. in a position to serve the trade in the manner aimed at since they established a plant on this side.

Buyers may place orders for fall with absolute confidence in getting deliveries as promised, and will also obtain the best made and finished goods in each grade.

The great range of styles and the fact that Birkin & Co. produce all qualities from six point up to the very finest machine curtains make their line of the utmost importance.

Buyers may now view the new fall styles through the sole selling agents, J. A. Brittain & Co., 438 Broadway, New York.

An old-fashioned Shaker, or Boston cane seated rocker, is made into an attractive piece of furniture by painting it with forest green enamel. Fit a flat cushion covered with gay chintz and tie an oblong one of the same sort by tapes to the back. A short box-plaited valance that clears the floor by four inches all around and is put on with brass-headed nails adds to the Colonial effect.

Wm. G. Grange, who recently purchased the Globe Tapestry Mills at Ninth and Dauphin streets, Philadelphia, reports a satisfactory start of the fall season in his upholstery and drapery fabrics, curtains, table covers and couch covers. He is making a very popular and attractive line of goods, which can be profitably handled in any department and which contains features exclusive to his line. The goods are shown to the trade by Ryan & McGahan, the selling agents, 85 Leonard street, New York.

Capt. Joseph Fisher, a former alderman and one of the best known citizens of Albany, died on May 28 of heart failure. Captain Fisher was born in 1840. At sixteen he was apprenticed to the firm of Senrick & Co., furniture dealers, to learn the upholstery trade. After mastering his trade he launched forth for himself on Washington avenue as a furniture dealer and upholsterer. Here he did a prosperous business until the building which he occupied was acquired for the Capitol site. After a brief respite from business he bought an old established liquor business.

W. E. Rosenthal, selling agent for Hyndman & Moore's Novelty Derby curtains and chenille curtains and covers, the Matred Mills lines of Oriental curtains and fabrics and sole Western selling agent for the Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company's upholstery and drapery trimmings, rope portieres, &c , has his new lines for the fall trade on view at his salesrooms, 458 Broadway, New York, and at the Monadnock Building, Chicago, and No. 304 North Eighth street, St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Rosenthal is now visiting the trade in the West and has every reason to be satisfied with the verdict of buyers on his offerings. He will return to New York early in July, and in the meantime the complete lines are on view at his salesrooms as stated.

A NEW LINE OF PRINTED VELVETS.

A handsome new line of printed Velvets is shown by Chas B. Young & Co., Hartford Building, New York. The make and finish of the goods are up to the best standard, while the patterns and colorings are notable examples of skillful and perfect printing. The trade will doubtless be glad to learn that they can obtain printed Velvets from this popular selling agency.

FLETCHER & CO.'S. LACE CURTAINS.

W. H. Fletcher & Co.'s offerings for the fall trade are in full keeping with their especially conspicuous position in the lace curtain trade. They show new goods in all lines on hand for immediate delivery, and in extent, variety and attractiveness their offerings excel all their efforts for previous seasons. The lines are shown at their New York headquarters, 345 and 347 Broadway, and at 30 Kingston street, Boston, and 1200 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

F. M. Van Blaricom shows at his salesroom, 415 Broadway, New York, very attractive lines of curtain fluting, tamboured muslins, Irish point novelties, fish net, muslin and bobbinet ruffled curtains, tapestry curtains, piece goods, &c. The line of bobbinets comprises every grade from the cheapest to the best, and also goods by the yard. A line of muslin curtains with fluted edge is likely to be in large demand, and flutings are also shown. Mr. Van Blaricom can interest strongly every dealer who handles such goods.

The diamond bar effect has crept from gowns to cushions. It is carried out in numberless ways, from lace, inserting and silk—an all too frail combination for pillow wear, it may be interpolated—to the more sensible white cotton one stitched on a plain colored denim in the diamond shaped squares. A pillow of the latter has a gathered ruche of the denim, which is put on with braid. Another dress accessory of the season which has got into fancy work is the ruffling of very narrow ribbon. This edges dainty organdie bureau covers and has even been seen around dimity valance for the brass bedstead.

The latest idea in fleeting fancies is the introduction of Liberty's silk gauze fussily crimped, somewhat in the manner of the well-known tissue paper, but less formal and far more crumpled, sheeny and substantial looking, hence much more expensive. Its raised, uneven appearance answers exactly to the taste of the day for all light materials arranged in bouillonnés or gauged in a variety of styles. This new puckered fabric is deftly manipulated into entire tea cosies, cornet wall pockets provided with pincushions and sachets of every size and shape, whether to hold veils, handkerchiefs or nightgowns. It is obtainable in beautiful art shades, often softly tinted. The trimming chiefly consists of large flowers, conspicuous among which is the pert poppy, with bud and foliage complete. In some cases, too, frills are used as wavy borders. For instance, along a table runner in ambré red gauze flutters a small double flounce of the same texture in a single color With the plain material, pure white or delicate pink, are also fashioned artificial flowers for lamp shades, quaint flower vases and æsthetic costumes.

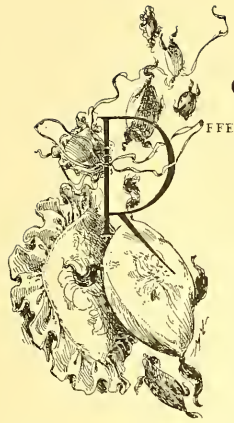
OLDHAM MILLS OFFERINGS.



Reference was recently made by us to the remarkable attractiveness of the lines of the Oldham Mills shown by W. & J. Sloane for the fall trade, and the liberal orders received to date show that this fact has been promptly recognized by buyers.

The offerings comprise specialties in wool, silk and cotton tapestries, armures and drapery goods, fine damasks, &c. A notable feature is a choice line of all silk tapestries in thoroughly French styles, and the lines of wool and cotton tapestries comprise an extraordinary variety of original artistic effects. Manager Smith is very well satisfied with the reception his goods have met, and notes a growing demand for the better grades of fabrics.

J. A. BRITTAIN & CO.

As American agents for the two great lace curtain firms, T. I. Birkin & Son and Sturzenegger & Tanner, the house of J. A. Brittain & Co. has exceptional claims to the attention of the trade, and its offerings for the fall season are in full keeping with this fact.

T. I. Birkin & Co. are very extensive and successful manufacturers of Nottingham lace curtains, nets and bed sets, with large factories at Chester, Pa.; Nottingham, England; Glasgow, Scotland, and Oelsnitz, Saxony.

Sturzenegger & Tanner, of St. Gall, Switzerland, are especially prominent as manufacturers of Swiss points, Brussels, Tambours, Renaissance, Arabian points and muslin curtains and sash goods by the yard and in pairs to match.

With the combined offerings of these two great concerns in its salesrooms the house of J. A. Brittain & Co. is obviously in a position to present remarkably strong attractions to every buyer. The firm regards its present offerings as the most extensive and attractive ever made by it, and the lines have already found prompt and wide appreciation in the trade.

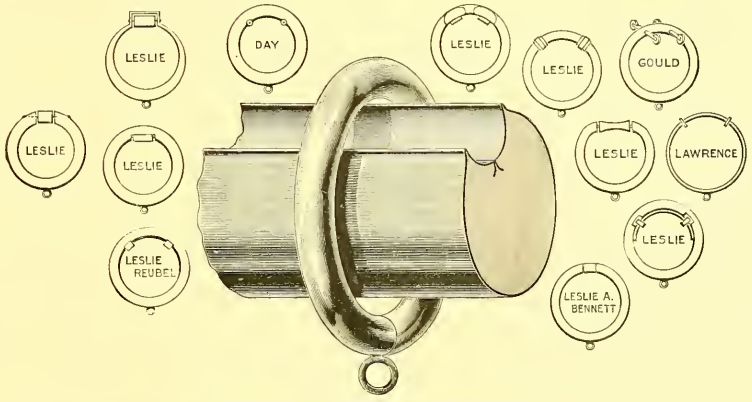
They are on view at the New York salesrooms, 434 to 438 Broadway; at the mill, Chester, Pa.; by Geo. E. Rehm, American Express Building, Chicago, and by W. Mackie, Flood Building, San Francisco.

The Mellville Furniture Company, furniture and upholstery, Mebane, N. C., has been incorporated by W. E. White and others. The capital stock is $25,000.

TRAVERSING CURTAIN POLES.

The Universal curtain pole is to be brought out in all qualities of brass covered poles. It is also made in wood poles with metal tracks. The success of this pole, which was put upon the market last year, has been such as to tax the manufacturing facilities of the Rome Brass and Copper Company, the manufacturers. Another new feature to be shortly introduced is the production of the Universal pole in tubing of high quality for the fine trade, and also in the lower priced qualities for the general trade. The illustration below shows various traverse rings which have been upon the market during several years past and also the new Universal pole, which very clearly illustrates the different methods of traversing poles and the distinction between these methods and the device of the Universal pole. Any dealer who has not seen a sample of this pole will be supplied with one by addressing the Rome Brass and Copper Company, Rome, N. Y.

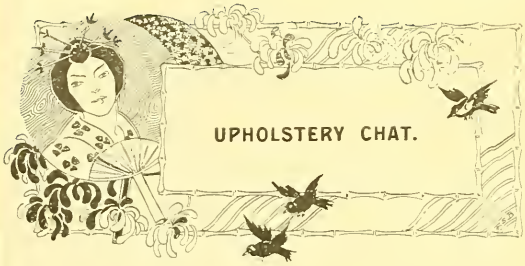
A country house bedroom looks very English when fitted with cretonne draperies. These include short, straight curtains at the windows attached by rings to slender poles, so that they will slip easily back and forth. Spreads for the twin brass bedsteads that are also a necessity for the English aspect are of the same cretonne, covering pillow and hanging, just clearing the floor at the sides. The couch or window seat is also fitted out in the same cretonne; a little writing table is drawn up at one side of the fireplace and the dressing table with one or two low chairs finishes the room. Such an apartment had the steam heat arrangement concealed for the summer under a long, low cretonne covered seat. This was fitted on a frame and set over the pipe coils in such a way that they were not visible.



DEVICES FOR TRAVERSING CURTAIN POLES.

"You say his credit is bad?"

"Bad? Why it has gotten so that he can't even borrow trouble!"—Ex.

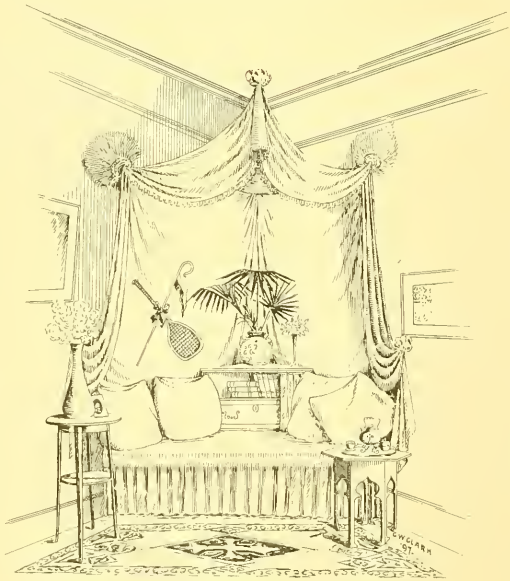


Both the wild and cultivated pineapple yields fibre which, when spun, surpasses in strength, fineness and lustre that obtained from flax. It can be employed as a substitute for silk, and as a material for mixing with wool or cotton It is also useful for cordage, textile fabrics, sewiwg silk or twist, laces, &c. In China it is used as fabrics for clothing for agriculturists, and is in request in India as material for stringing necklaces. It produces the celebrated pine cloth of the Philippine Islands. It is remarkably durable, unaffected by water, and is white, soft, silky, flexible and long in staple. Samples cleaned, without washing, in certain Government experiments in Florida in 1892, when twisted to the size of binding twine, showed a breakage strain of 150 pounds.

The Philadelphia Tapestry Mills present, as usual, a strong line of upholstery fabrics. The pattern and colorings are shown in an endless variety and are exclusive. The array of novelties exceeds anything ever brought out before by this popular concern, and that is saying a great deal. As leaders of style they remain unmoved.

Manila hemp is the fibre of a species of banana (Musa textilis) which thrives only in certain localities, where it is cultivated by the natives. The fibre is still produced in the old native way, by scraping the leaves with a peculiar knife, which requires expert handling. Numberless contrivances to supersede this simple process have been tried and patented, but without success. The native way is still the best, and it produces a fine fibre of which thread is spun and cloth woven that excels the best Tussore silk.

Cohen Brothers & Co., Nos. 424 and 426 Broadway, New York, are giving their customers some special drives in ruffled curtains during the summer season. They are making up 20,000 pairs of frilled curtains trimmed with lace and insertion which will be sold at 65, 75 and 85 cents per pair, suitable for chamber and cottage drapery, having graceful, airy and refreshing appearance, and are sure to make a stir in any live upholstery department. Don't miss this chance to revive trade between the seasons.



A SIMPLE COZY CORNER.

Dunn & Mantie, upholsterers, Hartford, Conn., have sold out.

The Stars and Stripes in the shape of the largest flag in the world will float over Morro Castle, Havana, when Blanco surrenders. The immense flag designed for this duty is already prepared, and may be seen draped at the front of an empty storeroom at 147 Fulton street, New York. A patriotic Wall street man has had the flag made. It is 120 feet in length and 43⅓ feet in width, and it is believed that it breaks the record for size. It is so big that special bunting was made for it in Boston. The bunting measured 42 inches across in the rough. Made up in the flag, allowing for seams, each stripe measures 40 inches. It took a full piece of 40 yards for each stripe, except where they run into the jack. The jack measures 40 feet in length and covers the space of seven stripes. The stars are not very large. From point to point each star measures 14 inches. They are arranged in alternating rows of seven and eight, according to army regulations. The flag cost $290. Big as it is it can be packed in a large traveling trunk, and will not weigh more than 200 or 250 pounds.

L. H. Brockway, upholsterer, has opened recently at Orono, Me., and Christen & Murray are new in the same business at Elmira, N. Y.

A growing and important feature in the business of Rieser & Co. is the making up of real lace curtains in Renaissance, Antiques, Clunys and Arabians, with yard goods to match. They use the best bobbinet in these goods, and as they are made up on their premises their manufacture is under the personal direction and watchful care of the firm members. A good selling curtain is their ruffled Renaissance, which provides a very fashionable effect at a moderate price. They have Clunys from $2.20 per pair upward, Antiques from $1.65 up, Renaissance from $3 75 up and Arabians from $6.50 up. Yard goods are made in 30, 36 and 40 inch widths.

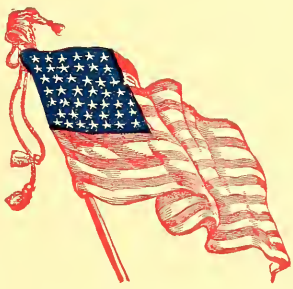
The upholstering establishment of Pierre Dioriot, 248 South Eleventh street, Philadelphia, was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars by a fire of unknown origin on the 3d inst.

Mistrot Brothers & Co., Dallas, Tex., were completely burned out on May 27. They carried a stock valued at $75,000 and insurance amounting to $40,000.

BUNTING FOR FLAGS AND DECORATIONS.

The bunting used for American flags and in many other ways for interior or exterior decorations is sold in pieces of 40 yards length, a case including fifty pieces. It is manufactured in widths of 18, 24 and 36 inches, though the first two widths are the ones almost entirely in demand. It is made in red, white, blue, yellow, black and green. These colors must be fast; the goods must be of certain tensile strength to suit the demands of the Government, although inferior grades are sold for private use. The standard American flag is made from the finest "Royal" bunting, besides which are qualities known as the "Anchor" and the "Signal," also others of minor importance.

The flag in use in the army is known as the "Parade Flag," and is 6x6½ feet, being made in this manner in order not to interfere with the walking of the standard bearer. The "Garrison" flag, the largest one in use by the navy, is 20x36 feet. The standard American flag consists of thirteen stripes sewed together by machines with what is known as a lapped seam. What is known as the "Union" or field occupies the upper left hand corner, and is the width of seven of the stripes, six remaining below. In the standard flag to-day there are forty-five stars, arranged either in six rows, the first, third and fifth of which contain eight stars, the alternating rows having seven; or else five rows, each containing nine stars. The latter method, however, is not in such general use as the former. The method of sewing these stars to the flag is an interesting one. A special machine known as the "Zigzag Sewing Machine" is used for this purpose. This machine makes a stitch around the corners of the star, which is zigzag in character, producing in the centre of the star a pentagon, the stitch connecting alternate points. There are in reality ninety stars, one star backing up a similar one on the opposite side of the cloth, the two being so nicely adjusted that when the flag is finished they appear to be but a single star. In some cases this is done by cutting out stars by a die, while either square or circular patches are sewed on the reverse side, and after the stitching is finished the patches are trimmed to the edge of the stitching, but this is not done in the most particular work and is not so economical. In some flags the blue bunting is itself cut out in the shape of the star, and the white cloth, which in all cases is bleached muslin, is inserted, the white being stitched to the edge of the blue. Very few flags of this character, however, appear to-day. Three or four years ago a company obtained a patent on a process by which the stars were bleached in the piece. These were known as the "clamp die" flags. This process, however, was abandoned, and to-day all stars on bunting flags are sewed on. The cutting is done in very exact manner, the stripes being cut out by a long handled knife of remarkably keen edge, the width of each stripe, of course, being in proportion to the size of the flag. A metal die of exact proportions is used for the stars and the cloth under it of various thicknesses is cut with a knife or shears.



"OLD GLORY."

After the body of the flag is completed the border on the left-hand side is sewed on and the grummets or staples through which the halyards run are stamped in by means of a die

Of course, the Government is the largest buyer of bunting, especially in times such as the present. Very few flags are manufactured for the Government outside of its own workshops. Navy yards and arsenals are particularly busy just at the present time, as the innumerable signal flags for secret code service must be prepared by Government workmen in a remarkably short space of time. No outsider is allowed to work on these flags, as the signals which they typify are known only to Government officials. It has been necessary of late to call for bids on certain flags for the army, and these have been made by one or two manufacturers, but this is not the general rule, as the force in the employ of the Government is usually able to supply all demands There is also a large demand for flags of all nations for decorative purposes, pendants, streamers, private ensigns, &c., which at the present time is flooding the sail and flag makers. There is also a demand for railroads for signal flags which consume a large quantity of bunting every year, perhaps more than many realize. Black bunting is used as a drapery for buildings in times of public mourning.

Besides the bunting flag large numbers of cheaper grades are made of cotton, the design being stamped or printed on the cloth. We understand that a large order for print cloths has been placed of late for use in the manufacture of flags. This may be an outlet for a considerable yardage of fabrics which otherwise will be and are at the present time drugs on the market. Of course, the more expensive silk flag, too, is in demand, but its cost prohibits it from very general use. Should present conditions continue any great length of time it is a question how the demand will be supplied. It may be possible that some mills will find it expedient to commence the manufacture of bunting, on which they may be able to obtain a very good profit, compared with the prices on many other qualities of cotton goods.

NOVELTIES IN COMBINATION FURNITURE.

The first of our sketches presented herewith represents a combination of two articles whose several purposes, so far as we are aware, have never before been served in one and the same piece of furniture. There are some furnishing accessories which, though practically indispensable at times, are not always required, and during their periods of desuetude they are not infrequently greatly in the way. Among these comes the folding draught screen. In winter time, when biting winds find a passage through every crack and crevice, its services are gladly accepted, and come as a boon and a blessing to us chilly mortals. But with the return of warm weather its excuse for existence disappears for the time being, and it is folded up to be stored in some upper room, or else occupies valuable space in the apartment, where its protection is no longer required, which might be utilized to greater advantage. Of course some of the painted and lacquered leather screens on the market to-day are acceptable as decorative features, quite apart from utilitarian considerations; but this cannot be said of all of them, and it is, therefore, not unreasonable to try to see if something cannot be done with this welcome accompaniment of winter to give it a status at those seasons when, instead of keeping draughts out, we take advantage of all we can, and long for more.

Here, then, in Fig. 1 are the details of an idea for doing this which, from an inventive point of view, will, we are sure, commend itself for its ingenuity, while, as far as novelty is concerned, it is unquestionably in keeping with the very latest ideas current in the domain of fancy furniture. In the first place, we have a four-fold screen of simple but tasteful design, the construction of which is "as easy as A B C." The frame, which might be of mahogany, is a perfectly straightforward job, and includes no ornamental details of an elaborate or costly character. In the illustrations the small, long panels of the upper part are shown filled with gilt-leaded stained glass, which would be most effective in the actual thing, but simple spindles or a decorative fret could be substituted for the glass if considerations of price rendered that course expedient. The two large inner panels are filled with some textile fabric—silk, tapestry, cretonne, printed velveteen, or just whatever else might best accord with the fancy of the maker or the customer; but the two outer leaves are treated in a manner somewhat different. The size of the panels is reduced; they are kept to the upper part, and the spaces beneath are filled by small panels and spindles in such a manner as to give an air of lightness to the complete structure. The upper panels of these side wings, however, differ from their larger companions in the centre, inasmuch as that they are of solid wood This may, at the first glance, appear to be quite unnecessary, but its justification will presently appear. So far so good; our screen, so arranged, would give no one the impression that it was anything more than it appeared to be, and as affording protection from draughts or from the fire leaves little to be desired. But there is still more to come.

The solid side panels, already referred to, are made quite distinct from the main structure, and, instead of being paneled in, in the ordinary way, are kept in their respective framework by two strong brass pegs or pivots, working in the frame, near the bottom of the panel, and also by catches at the top. We will imagine, now, that the screen is arranged with the two centre leaves in line with one another, and the end ones standing out at right angles with them. This being so, it will be noticed that a couple of small but strong brackets project, at about table height, from the two centre uprights of the frame, and they are to be made to play an important part in the conversion. By releasing the catches at the top, the upper side panels can be made to fall down as shown, and brought to rest on the brackets just mentioned. As a result of this operation the screen has abdicated in favor of a dainty piece of furniture of novel form, upon which all manner of knick-knacks might be displayed to the best possible advantage, constituting a side table of so taking a description that it would be heartily welcomed in many a home, at all events where matters of furnishing were left to the discretion of members of the "fair sex." As a sort of decorative altar for the "afternoon tea" service it would have many claims to admiration, and in the eyes of those to whom the traditional drawing room cabinet is not an absolutely indispensable feature might even be considered worthy to take the place of that somewhat overdone receptacle for beveled plates, brackets and spindles.

Fig. 2 gives us another contrivance which may seem to some to err in the direction of carrying ingenious combination too far, but others might view it in a very different light. It is really a china cabinet, work table and chair in one, and fulfills the requirements of all equally well. An examination of the illustrations will make clear that it is made in two parts, one of which is a work table, with well, properly fitted; a drawer, and a handy little sliding shelf, upon which the sempstress might rest her cup of afternoon tea with comfort without it in any way interfering with the accessories of the needle. The remaining half of the structure has a double part to play, and whether "standing on its head or its heels"—to use a figure of speech—is equally useful. Taken separately, and resting on the four turned legs, it is a work chair, with upholstered seat, comparatively roomy and comfortable. Special care, however, is devoted to the design and finish of the under part. The seat is polished underneath; every part is perfectly finished, and between the legs, at the sides and back, run a row of turned spindles, giving the article a finished appearance. There is evidence of some ulterior motive in the small brass sockets on the front legs, near the seat, but otherwise there is nothing unusual in the chair to differentiate it from many on view in scores of showrooms at the present time. Having made these two halves, completing each as if it had no relation with the other save in regard to sizes, which must be observed with the most scrupulous care, they are placed side by side, and the top of the right arm of the chair is strongly hinged to the top of the work table, bringing about the combination of our work table and chair "as advertised." But the promise of the china cabinet has yet to be borne in mind and, though the possibilities of its fulfillment may seem distant, a simple action will complete the programme. By closing the flap covering the work well, and turning the chair completely over on to the top of the table, so that the top of the arms and back rest upon it and the four legs are uppermost, the cabinet is completed, save that a brass rod, with a pretty silk or other curtain suspended from it, is to be slipped into the sockets already noted. The legs of the chair now form four sprightly finials; the spindles serve as an effective gallery round three sides, while the arms, seat and back of the chair, "topsy turvy" as they now are, constitute a safe and pretty asylum for anything placed therein. It must be understood that the lid of the work well can be opened or closed with equal facility when the article is being used as a cabinet as in its other capacity, and the sliding shelf, too, is always available.

As the flag pole trade is now an important feature with many dealers, our readers are advised to see the new circular of the John Kroder & Henry Reubel Company, which will be sent on application. This company are large manufacturers of flag poles, and offer a big assortment at prices so low that they are certain to interest every buyer. Their headquarters are at 268 and 270 Canal street, New York.

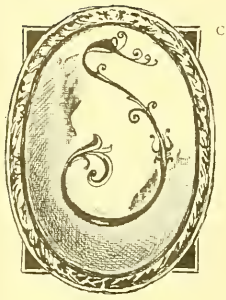
EMBROIDERED SCREENS.



SCREENS afford excellent opportunities for decorative needlework. Their ornamental value well repays the best efforts that a skillful worker can expend upon them. Then again, delicate work mounted as a screen stands a better chance of being kept in good preservation than in almost any other form, while the subject gives so much scope for originality of treatment that it opens up a field in which everyone recognizes endless possibilities.

In a screen the character and coloring of the room for which it is intended must be thoroughly well considered; also the question of whether its primary intention is use or ornament. Both purposes are admirably combined in an Empire screen with three panels, two filled with lovely embroidery, the third with clear glass, giving free passage to the glow of firelight or sunlight. Among the most highly prized treasures of antique furniture are nowadays the screens of a century or so ago Fortunate indeed is the possessor of one or more of these, for nothing lends itself more perfectly to adaptation as a frame for beautiful modern embroidery, provided, of course, that the character of the work be kept strictly in harmony with that of its mounting.

In accord with the present feeling for the elegant forms and dainty coloring of the French furniture of the last century is the beautiful three-fold Louis Seize screen, two panels of which are shown in Fig. 1 of the accompanying sketches. The ground consists of a rich, old-fashioned tabouret of a peculiarly pleasing tint of pearl white, on which the pattern is worked in bright, delicate tones of filo-floss silk. In the center panel is a cornucopia filled with glowing masses of anemones and tulips treated in their natural colors, the soft violet blue of the anemones being reproduced with wonderful truth to nature. The side panels are occupied by pendent baskets of roses tied with blue ribbons, while the subordinate decoration of garlands and knots of ribbon is conceived in the true spirit of the period. At the foot of each panel is a fan-like fluting of soft green silk, while the gilt frame, with its graceful lines and elegant moldings of groups of arrows and musical instruments, admirably completes the decorative scheme. Of a different character, though equally suited to the Old World furniture with which we love to fill our rooms, is the subject of Fig. 2, a suggestion for a pole screen, illustrative of what is quite one of the newest ideas of the day for needlework screens. On a ground of white satin is mounted one of the reproductions (also on white satin) of the old Bartolozzi and other engravings in monochrome after Morland, Wheatley and favorite artists of that date, specially prepared for this purpose. Around it is worked a light, graceful border of blue ribbon, and sprays of pink blossoms and fern, the effect being extremely delicate and tasteful. A great variety of these engravings on satin has recently been published, so that a wide range of subjects is obtainable, in accordance with the taste of the worker.

NO. 2.—DESIGN FOR A POLE SCREEN, MOUNTED WITH A REPRODUCTION OF AN OLD ENGRAVING, WITH AN EMBROIDERED BORDER.

The exceedingly effective design for a fire screen reproduced in the third illustration embodies an original and highly decorative scheme of color, adapted from a seventeenth century Spanish motif. Much individuality is shown in the treatment of the subject—a group of flags or iris, carried out in appliqué, on a ground of Italian linen. Flowers and foliage are in art cloth, the former being of a delightful tone of terra-cotta, harmonizing well with the blue-green of the leaves. At the base are a few quaintly stiff blossoms of the kingcup order. The outlines are defined in crewel wool, and here and there a powdering of lustrous spangles imparts a brightness of effect, which is further heightened by the introduction of a bee and a dragon fly, also worked in spangles and jewels. Brilliantly jeweled effects are certainly a feature in the needlework of the present day Another screen is formed of a single peacock worked in silks, with the burnished metallic hues on the breast and in the eyes of the plumage, touched in with iridescent sequins. The bee and the dragon fly I have just mentioned are encrusted with glittering jewels, the head of the former being composed of wonderfully simulated cabochon moonstones. As a gift for a silver wedding a fascinating screen was not long ago designed, the device consisting of sprays of white lilac, executed in ribbon work and tied with knots of silver ribbon on a background of ivory satin, mounted in a white enameled frame.

An entirely novel suggestion here offers itself in the form of a series of satin medallions, painted in the faint, cloudy, French style, with Watteau subjects, cherubs or studies of heads. Set on colored silk and surrounded with paillettes and wreaths of flowers in fine ribbon work, these medallions make as charming pole screens and single or double panels as can be imagined. A short time ago the writer saw an antique pole screen mount adapted as a setting for a delicately worked panel embroidered on silk, with the narrow crinkled ribbons which are now a good deal used, and finished with a border of lace. The fourth illustration is a reproduction of some old Italian embroidery carried out in French floss silk on a ground of cream satin.

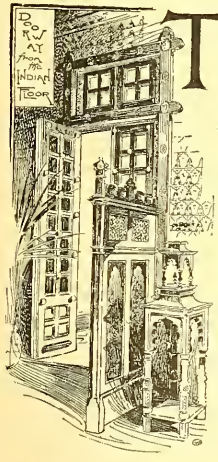
The cultivation of flax promises to become an important industry in the State of Oregon. This branch of agriculture has been established in the State only two or three years, but it is being systematically advanced through the efforts of the Oregon Women's Flax Fibre Association, a part of whose efforts is devoted to advertising the State's possibilities in this direction. The product of 1897 has been sold for 10 cents, and 12 cents per pound is expected for this year's fibre, that being 4 cents in excess of all other American grades. Orders are in hand for every ounce of the 1898 product, which is to come from 140 acres of the best flax land in the State. In addition to this palpable business advantage, arrangements have been made whereby the United States Agricultural Department will assume charge of the association's display at the Omaha Exposition, giving it prominent space, advantageous display, and good advertising. A display of fibres and linens is also to be made at an exhibition in Portland.

East Indian brass may be cleaned with a lemon. Cut off the top until the full width of the fruit is secured and rub freely over the wrought work. Wash off with a strong flow from faucet or a shower tube with clear hot water and polish with a soft brush.

The firm of Holland & Daniels, dealers in window shades and shade cloths, 30 Hawley street, Boston, has dissolved, Mr. Holland retiring. The business will be continued by William E. Daniels.

EAST INDIAN FURNITURE.



Teapoys, tabourets and straight-backed settees of Bombay rosewood are brought out to accord with the draperies and Oriental appointments of East India rooms. Arm chairs, and those light enough to move about, big broad-topped, round tables, suitable for drawing room or study, are also shown. The rosewood is of an ashy, lack-lustre hue, as seen in the importer's shop, but the native oil of the wood comes out with use and polishing, and the delicate, lace-like hand carving shows to advantage.

The carving and ornamentation of this East Indian furniture, as described in the New York Sun, is totally dissimilar to that of the Italian and other schools. It is far more intricate, of smaller, finer pattern, and with none of the capering cupids, veiled Venuses, and ornately bold devices seen on Italian-made sofas and cabinets. The carved edge of a Bombay table top falls over in scalloped-out leaves and emblems as delicate and finely wrought as the embroidery border on a woman's gown. Each table has a selvage trimming of inlaid and embossed work set in about the rim, the carving of such precise, yet artistic, workmanship that it repays examination. Small as the pattern is in the lustreless, unyielding wood, distinctive designs are discerned in it—griffins and sea serpents and big-petalled tropic flowers, interwoven with royal insignia and mythological emblems.

For a base, such a rarely beautiful table has four sylvan-looking birds turned about head downward, supporting the main shaft with their bodies. The wings and outspread tail feathers, as shapely and symmetrical as though carved of pliant, flexible stuff, and not mere wood, vines with delicate tendrils and vine-like twists and curves clamber up the shaft, and the whole table, from the outspread feet to the double-lidded centre, is a thing to be looked at again and again. It is a matter of speculation as to how much time was expended on the painstaking carving, and how long the Hindoo carver wrought on that curved-over lace border. As time is valued in the United States, $600 would not buy such a unique appointment, but the English factors get it made in the time expending East for such a sum that the New York dealer can afford to sell it for $150 and feel satisfied. It is large enough for the centre furnishing of a spacious room, and no cameo carving or sculptured work of art could be wrought with more lavish perfection of finish and attention to detail and proportion.

The little dwarf teapoys of Bombay rosewood, round and squat, and suggestive of a languid people who like to lean upon their elbows and sip now and then of the refreshment at hand, have no carving as elaborate and wonderful as the big tables, but they have rounded, pillar-like supports—tops adorned with what looks like a valance of wood round them, and other non-American features. Many are made with the top to lift out and a hollow underneath for holding the tea caddy. They exchange their dingy, almost gray blackness for a deep, oily ebon hue after being much handled and pulled about from divan to divan in the service of hospitality or home loving comfort. Similar shaped teapoys and drum shaped tabourets can be got in Shisham wood (a warm colored East Indian wood) all inlaid with ivory and pearl tinted composition in intricate patterns, but the Bombay rosewood is the most unobtrusively distinctive, and after use it has the subtle gloss and lustre of something fine and out of the ordinary, to be treasured and grow all the richer with use.

Low standing cabinets, with inscrutable, locked away looking niches and treasure hiding drawers in them, are also shown in Bombay rosewood. The top pillars will be ended off with pagan looking heads and helmets, and on the panels of the main compartment the carving will be subtly suggestive of Buddha or his fabulous prototypes and what they stood for. All this East Indian furnishing is low to the floor and in thorough keeping with the thick mats, prayer rugs and floor cushions modeled on the usages of a people who half sit, half loll at all times and possess to English eyes the miraculous knack of curling their legs up under them and squatting easefully anywhere on the least possible excuse.

The arm chairs, ordinary chairs and settees in this native rosewood are all shaped and ornamented after Dutch models. The Dutch, it seems, first discovered the salable and adaptable qualities of the native East India wood carving and influenced the workers in Bombay to conform to their notions of beauty, so the chairs and settes have a prim rigidness of outline that seems out of key with their Oriental origin. The carving and decoration are a mixture of Dutch influences and East India convictions of what is appropriate.

The Dutch have long since ceased to dabble in the trade, but the English furniture importers and manufacturers have not changed the original models, that are quaint and interesting. The entire back of an upright, uncompromising-looking chair will be a mass of exquisite openwork carving, the pattern so inwrought and convene tional as to fit in with the general style of structure. The seat is left plain, but a narrow carved border of rich work is let in near the margin, and the underpinning and the high posts of the chair back show a touch of East Indian barbaric lavishness. The knobs on the pinnacle of the back posts show a grotesque emblem, half classic, half fantastic, and the feet will have a modified likeness to a centaur's extremities or some strange heathen finishing. On the cross panel or headboard of a big Dutch-looking chair an entablature in flat carving represents a scene eloquent to Hindoo scholars conversant with the native-legends and beliefs and quite imposing and meaningful even to those who have only a glimmering of knowledge on the subject. The carved arms and legs and back posts of the chair are typical of the same superstitions and credences, turned and curved under and molded with distinctive purpose and an art that does not detract from the strength and practicality of the model.

There is an interesting contrast between the Dutch solidity and capaciousness of these furnishings and the character of their decoration.

Certain of the rosewood tabourets have cushions of wrought silk and moreen, glittering with gold and silver threads, the designs corresponding with the Hindoo character of the wood carving. Cushions in rich stuffs are made up to accord with each tall-backed armchair.

Goods such as are described above can be purchased in New York of F. P. Bhumgara & Co., A. A. Vantine & Co. and S. J. Tellery & Co.

MONUMENTAL CITY MATTERS.

Baltimore, June 9.

All kinds of furniture are manufactured in Baltimore, a specialty being oak bedroom suites. Local furniture factories are equipped with the most modern machinery and succeed in having their products sell readily in many States. The manufacture of furniture has grown extensively in Baltimore in the last ten years. This has been the best season the manufacturers have enjoyed for the past five years, and the future of the trade seems very bright. While the war between this country and Spain has made buyers somewhat timid, the volume of business done recently has been very great. There are $2,000,000 invested in this line of business and the value of the annual product amounts to $8,000,000, while the several factories employ over 2,000 hands.

The Manley Furniture Company, furniture and upholstery, Carthage, Mo., has been incorporated by M. E. Manley, C. E. Manley and I. E. Manley with a capital stock of $3,000.

Gottfried Wiedermann, for many years in the furniture and upholstery business, died at his home on West Fayette street the 1st inst. He was a native of Germany. A widow survives him.

Charles Lozano, secretary and treasurer of the Lozano Dry Goods Company, dry goods and upholstery, Washington, D. C., filed a suit against Adolph Lichenstein, senior member of the firm of Lichenstein & Kohner, same business, the 1st inst., for alleged slander, asking $10,000 damages. The basis of the action is that Mr. Lichenstein called him a "Spaniard."

George H. Korb and John Diener, both cabinet makers, were each fined $25 and costs the 7th inst. on the charge of striking Aaron Laven, dealer in furniture and upholstery, No. 403 North Howard street. Mr. Laven stated that he engaged the men to do some work for him, and when they asked for an advance on the job and were refused they assaulted him in his store. Mr. Laven received several blows in his face. During the struggle a lot of antique furniture, valued at about $300, was broken.

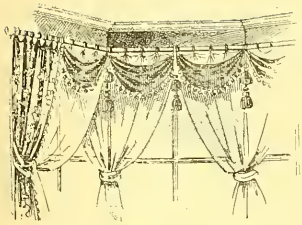

FIG. 5.

HOW TO DRAPE SUMMER CURTAINS.

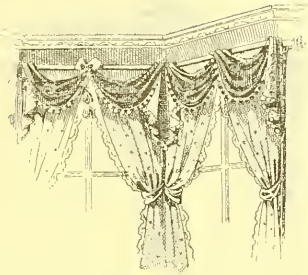

FIG. 6.

It certainly should be the exception nowadays to encounter an ugly window, considering the great variety of pretty curtain fabrics available for summer use. To name but a few we have Madrases—colored and plain —muslins, delicate "Liberty" China, and other silks; Nottingham laces and beautiful Swiss nets.

Fig. 1 represents a simple style, capable of expansion or contraction, and, so, suitable to any averaged sized window. The two curtains should be cut about one foot longer than the window to admit of shrinkage. The festoon is joined to the curtains and the sides should be equal to the width of the hanging, otherwise, when attaching, it would be necessary to gather it in to suit the festoon. When joining the parts it will be well to observe that the back of the left curtain and the front of the swag should be placed together, the reverse order applying to the right hand curtain. A caser and small heading should be made through the former and a cord or tape passed, or the rod itself, if not more than three-quarters of an inch thick, might be used and the tape dispensed with. When fixing see that the one curtain is in front, the other behind the festoon. As a finish frill or fringe may be used.

Fig. 2 is simple and graceful. In this and the succeeding designs the curtains are suspended from a small rod fixed behind the pole sufficiently low not to show over the draping.

At both ends the swag is joined to the tail and drawn to the required width for throwing over the pole either by means of a caser and tape or simply a thread. In the centre the swags are joined and drawn up in a perpendicular form, the cord and tassel being passed over the pole and tied underneath. The drawing supports the drapery in the centre.

Fig. 3 is a slight departure from anything we have yet discussed and one which certainly has a very unconventional effect. The construction is similar to that of the preceding one, the difference being in the fixing. Place a stout screw-eye in the ceiling, from which a long cord with double tassel should depend. A large, careless looking knot should be passed around the gathering of the two swags and some stitching applied here to keep the whole in position. If a semi-circle were described above the pole in Fig. 3, having a diameter equal to the width of the pole, and the apex of drapery slightly raised, this design would be found a simple and effective style of treating a small archway such as may be found in many halls, staircases and landings.

Fig. 4 is another uncommon style known as the "Butterfly" swag. The effect is obtained by cutting the swag in the usual way, giving, however, a little more fullness in depth, cutting out a small semi-circle in the middle of the top and drawing this to a point. The sides are treated in the same way as an ordinary swag. It must be observed, however, that A B and C D together should be equal to the finished top line of festoon, the semi-circle of 6 or 9 inches diameter (according as the swag is large or small) being extra. This drapery, it will be observed, is suspended by hooks from the rings of the pole. In this design a frill would make the better finish, but in the two preceding ones the drapery would be improved by the addition of a fringe.

Although the Madras muslin may be ecru, the fringe need not be self colored; a delicately tinted one in harmony with the prevailing tints around the window would be quite permissible.

Oriel windows unrelieved by drapery present a very unfinished appearance. An easy method of treating them is to have a succession of simple swags suspended from the rings of the pole and disappearing behind the long curtains. Tails may be introduced at the angles if considered desirable, and cords and tassels here give a light and smart effect. Where economy is studied both may be dispensed with. Fig. 5 is an example of what is meant.

Fig. 6 shows a little more style and variety. The centre is drawn up as in Fig. 2, with the swags thrown over the pole at the angle and the tail showing behind.

In this case it is better to draw up the corresponding side of each swag separately, plait up the tail and attach them to one another behind the pole.

The centre of the side windows may be treated with cord and tassels in the same way as the middle one if desired.

The two last designs can be carried out in Madras muslin or in any of the heavier materials, such as wool, serge or tapestry.

When joining the coiling swags and tails of the side windows bear in mind the instruction given for Fig. 1 about the right and wrong sides being placed together. This will be more readily understood if a straight piece of material is festooned over a pole, when it will be seen that each alternate swag presents the opposite side to the room.

In each of the oriel designs here shown there is a pole. This is not indispensable; a plain lath will be found cheaper and it will serve quite as well. In such a case the drapery would have to be tacked to the front of the lath and finished off with a cord. It would improve the scheme to add a small box plaited or frilled heading.

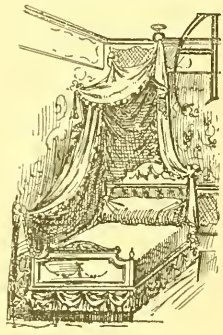
When frilling curtains the muslin should be cut in long strips about 5 inches broad, joined together and hemmed along one side; the fullness put in may be anything from a half to a whole, additional. It is a tedious job to turn down about half an inch on the other edge of the frill and draw it up, then attaching it to the curtain by hand.

It should not be necessary for us to emphasize the fact that skill in draping should never be permitted to "run riot" in the direction of over-elaboration, but a glance into the windows of many houses indicates that a word of warning on that score will not be out of place. As a matter of individual preference we may say that our tastes decidedly incline to far greater simplicity than is to be found in the majority of cases, but as the plain and severe school does not win the approval of many people, we take it to be our duty to guide our readers, so far as may be within our power, in the arrangement of textile fabrics in a variety of ways which shall appeal to those who ask for something more than straight, simple folds—often the most beautiful of all.

A SALESMAN'S ADVENTURE.

E. H. Barnette, a well-known traveling salesman on the staff of H. L. Judd & Co., New York, is also an amateur photographer, and when he left New York for the South last month he took a kodak with him aboard the steamer Algonquin. While the boat was at Charleston, S. C., he took several views of the harbor, with its forts and shipping, and when he finally reached Galveston, Tex., he left the films with a photographer there to be developed. On calling for them the next day he was confronted by a policeman, who told him that he was wanted at the station house, and on arriving there he was informed by the chief of police that the character of the photographs gave strong reason for the suspicion that he was a spy of the Spanish Government. Fortunately Mr. Barnette had several friends in Galveston, who came to his assistance by vouching for the fact that he was simply a salesman and in no way an emissary of Spain. He was finally released, but it is reported that before they let him go the police kept him locked up in the calaboose and handcuffed to a negro prisoner for about three hours; but this part of the story is denied by him.

BROMLEY MANUFACTURING COMPANY.

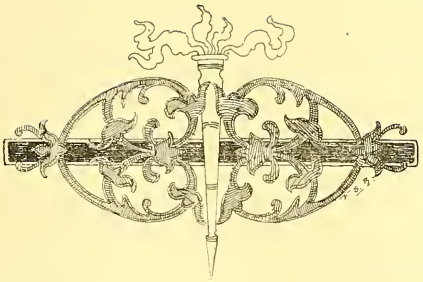


Among the offerings of the season the lace curtains and nets, and tapestry and chenille curtains and table covers, linen velour curtains and piece goods of the Bromley Manufacturing Company are exceptionally conspicuous by their immense extent and the skillfully varied assortment of styles shown in them.

The line of lace curtains and nets is the largest and most attractive ever brought out by the company, and in the tapestry and chenille goods, &c., special efforts have been made to surpass all the manufacturers' previous effects. How successful these efforts have proved can be quickly seen by a glance at the goods. In every grade there is a profusion of entirely new and handsome effects, which, combined with the standard styles, are well calculated to meet the demands of the most exacting buyer. A notable feature is a line of cross and length stripes in Tapestry piece goods.

George E. Lackey, the sole selling agent, has the complete lines on view at the salesrooms, 415 Broadway, New York.

J. S. Lesser & Co., 473 Broadway, New York, are showing notable lines of novelty nets and fish nets, comprising over 150 patterns. These goods are all well made and finished, and must be seen to be appreciated. In Nottingham curtains Lesser & Co. offer both foreign and domestic makes in full size, sash and vestibule. Another important feature of the firm's offerings is the line of Swiss curtains, and attention is called to the special bargains in Brussels to close out a consignment.



ORIENTAL DRAPERIES MADE IN AMERICA.

The Eden Manufacturing Company, of Eden, Pa., have rendered it possible for American buyers to secure at home all the oddity in patterns and colorings of drapery and upholstery goods made in Oriental countries They show fabrics which in texture and patterns so closely resemble these Eastern weaves that the most skilled buyers cannot tell them from the latter. For the fall trade they have brought out an Indian Dhurrie in several different colorings and a variety of Arabian, Damascus and Indian stripes, both in finished curtains and by the yard; Bulgarian, Bagdad and Madagascar stripes in curtains and yard goods; Pompeian curtains in silk stripes; grenadine stripes entirely new this season, and other novel and exclusive effects in fabrics and styles. As Gardner Wright, of the firm of Chas. B. Young & Co., states, "If you have an original idea to carry out in curtain or upholstery goods, the Eden Manufacturing Company is a good concern to bring it to."

It is certainly highly creditable to the enterprise and skill of the Eden Company to find them going into the production of fabrics not heretofore attempted in this country, and the record of the mills' running during the past year proves that this enterprise is being appreciated by the trade. It will certainly be to the interest of every curtain and upholstery buyer to view the Eden Company's line at the salesroom of Chas. B. Young & Co., sole selling agents, Hartford Building, New York, or through their travelers on the road.

NOTABLE LINE OF ST. GALL CURTAINS.

A new department with Arnold B. Heine & Co. opens on the 15th inst. with a large stock of St. Gall lace curtains made in the firm's own factory. A year ago the house, which is one of the oldest and largest embroidery and lace concerns in the country, went into the lace curtain business on import orders, in which branch they have been highly successful. Their satisfactory experience in the import business has induced them to open a new stock department, in which will be represented a large assortment of exclusive styles in Irish points, Tambour lace, Brussels lace, Tambour muslin, frilled muslins and Arabian points. In addition to the above the firm have a large line of specialties, exclusive with them, in stylish, handsome effects. These are known as the Duchesse points, Point de Rococo, Point de Rosacè, Point de Brabancon, Point de Bengalis, Point d'Alencon, Escurial Points and Renaissance. Sash curtains, yard goods and bed sets to match are offered in a large variety in different grades.

Arnold B. Heine & Co.'s new department is located at 503 and 505 Broadway, New York, where it occupies a floor space of 50 by 125 feet. This spacious wareroom has been handsomely and appropriately fitted up, and is one of the most attractive and roomy lace curtain salesrooms in the city. The department is in charge of Mr. Louis Frank, who has been many years in the curtain manufacturing business in St. Gall, and is skilled in all its branches. Assisting Mr. Frank in the selling are J. Decker, Jr., well and favorably known to lace curtain buyers and an acknowledged leader in lace curtain selling, and C. T. Burbridge, also an experienced and successful curtain salesman who has held prominent positions in the trade.

The manufacturing resources of Arnold B. Heine & Co. in Switzerland place them firmly in the front ranks with inducements in assortment of styles and right prices, and such offerings make it the duty of every curtain buyer to view the lines before placing fall orders.

ROPE PORTIERES AND UPHOLSTERY TRIMMINGS.

The Hensel Silk Manufacturing Company's fall line in rope portières is about ready, and represents an aggregation of novelties that will be hard to beat. Mr. Hensel has brought forward new ideas in color combinations and designs which cannot fail to interest discriminating buyers. The new Velvet Ruff cord portière, which has been such a pronounced success since its introduction the first of last season, is shown in an amplified line of styles, and with their increased facilities the Hensel Company will be prepared to promptly supply demands for this quick selling portière. Their line of upholstery trimmings, fringes, loops, &c., is replete, as usual, with novelties of an entirely original character, such as have given a high reputation to the products of this concern. The fall lines can be viewed at the factory salesroom in Philadelphia or at the New York office, 458 Broadway.

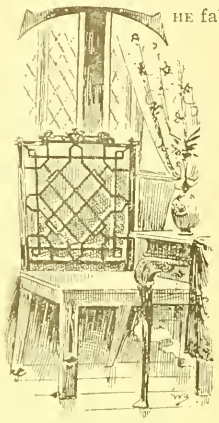
A GREAT PROMOTER'S FAILURE.

Ernest Terah Hooley, the famous promoter, whose recent failure has made such a sensation, came from a family of lace manufacturers at Nottingham, England. When he was twenty-two years old his mother died and left him £35,000. He then started in business as a stock broker, and for some time made about £20,000 a year. As a broker he made the acquaintance of a number of rich people, won their confidence, and with their aid began the career as a promoter of stock companies which brought him so prominently before the entire financial world.

His first great success in this line was in securing control of the Humber bicycle concern and reorganizing it. He began to buy the shares of the company when they were quoted 5½, and they soon rose to 24½. It is said that he made £365,000 on this deal alone. Backed by a ring of large capitalists controlling about £10,000,000 he engaged in one large operation after another, and in 1896, having secured control of the Dunlop Tire Company for £3,000,000, he sold the stock to the present company for £5,000,000. He has since been the leading figure in the promotion of several other companies, but none of them has been very successful, and some were disastrous to all concerned. One of his latest schemes was the floating of a Spanish loan, and this proved a failure.

He has been credited with clearing £50,000 in one year. He lived much like Monte Cristo, bought yachts, race horses and historic country seats, established pensions for the aged, gave gold plate to churches, and in many other ways displayed vanity and liberality alike colossal in proportions.

HOYLE, HARRISON & KAYE'S FALL LINES.



The fall assortment of upholstery coverings, drapery and hanging fabrics brought out by Hoyle, Harrison & Kaye shows that they are keeping well in front in producing new textures as well as new styles. Their offerings in yard goods are by far the largest in assortment and best in character of patterns ever produced by them. In silk brocade they show a very large and fine line, including many superb new colorings. Their line of silk Gobelin tapestries is alone an inducement for a buyer to view their goods, as to all intents and purposes their new silk Gobelin fabrics represent all the beauty and fineness of texture to be found in the originals. In the Tricot weaves they have a good assortment of patterns, and bring out the beauties of this texture to perfection. Other attractive productions are silk warp tapestries, Flemish tapestries, Cecil cloth, a new and stylish fabric; Kremlin curtains, brocatelles and the various other textures for which this firm are noted.

They display equal strength and beauty in their lines of curtains and table covers in a big variety of tapestry and silk textures and also in chenilles. They show high class, all-over-figured chenille curtains which have all the appearance of silk velvet and are so far away from the ordinary chenille patterns that the best trade can find an opening for them in their fall stocks. The complete fall lines of Hoyle, Harrison & Kaye are now displayed by their sole agents, Chas. B. Young & Co., Hartford Building, New York, and it will be a treat to every lover of the artistic and beautiful in upholsteries to view the goods.

The contents of a brick warehouse on North Fourteenth street, Omaha, Neb., used by the Orchard & Wilhelm Carpet Company for the storage of furniture, were seriously damaged by fire on the 10th inst. Loss, $10,000; covered by insurance.

Harry M. Mays, manager of the upholstery and rug department of the O'Gorman Company, Providence, R. I., is adding matting to his stock in full assortment. He had such success with a trial lot of mattings that he decided to make them a permanent feature. The O'Gorman Company will add a stock of furniture for fall which will also be in charge of Mr. Mays.

..The Wolcott & Parret Company, dealers in wall papers, New Haven, Conn., has applied for permission to liquidate the affairs of the concern The company states that it is not insolvent, but that Mr. Wolcott has recently died and that Mr. Parret is in poor health. The firm was organized January 1, 1892. Its capital stock is $8,000.

..A number of buildings, including K. Shields & Co 's wall paper house, at Dallas, Tex., were destroyed by fire on May 27, entailing a loss of from $350,000 to $400,000. J. W. Cowan, married, aged twenty-five years, salesman for K. Shields & Co., lost his life in an effort to save the books of his firm. The walls of the Dorsey Building fell and crushed him to death.

..The large two story factory occupied by the Illinois Wall Paper Company, 4013 to 4023 Wentworth avenue, Chicago, was destroyed by fire with a loss of $110,000. The blaze originated in the centre of the building from an unknown cause and was not discovered by the watchman until several small explosions of chemicals had scattered fire throughout the interior. A. Libert, of Kewaunee, is president of the company and the principal stockholder. The company's loss on stock and machinery was $60,000.

..E. A. Davis, wall paper dealer, Erie, Pa., has been awarded the contract to paper 700 rooms in the new ten story hotel building which Henry Shenk is building near Schenley Park in Pittsburg. The contract is one of the largest ever awarded for wall paper. Over 12,000 rolls of high grade paper will be used. Mr. Davis will personally superintend the hanging of the paper. There are forty-two kinds of paper to be used in the building and the main hall requires over 1,600 rolls, besides an equal amount of border.

The store of Arthur C. King, wall paper dealer, Worcester, Mass., was attached by Deputy Sheriff James Early on the 11th inst. at the instance of John E. Day, and a keeper placed in charge. The stock and fixtures were to have been disposed of at mortgagee's sale the same morning at 10:30 o'clock, but, the attachment being served before the hour of the sale, the sale did not take place. The proprietor of the store is now at the front with the Light Infantry, in which he is a lieutenant. During his absence the store has been in charge of his brother.

..Herbert L. Montague and Samuel E. Montague, composing the firm of Dailey, Montague & Co., dealers in wall paper and decorations, at No. 20 East Forty-second street, New York, made an assignment on the 6th inst. to Charles G. Judson without preference. The business was established about twelve years ago, and M. E Dailey, the senior partner, retired from the firm in January, 1896, and the other partners continued the business under the old firm style. Walter K. Griffin, their attorney, said that the liabilities are $12,000; nominal assets, $5,000; actual assets, $4,000.

..William N. Smith died at his home in Buffalo, N. Y., on the 9th inst., aged fifty years He was born in Buffalo and educated in its public schools. He began life as a newspaper carrier after leaving school. A few years later he entered the employ of Merrit Nichols, dealer in wall paper. He soon became manager of the store, and in 1879, with R. F. Sherman, bought out Mr. Nichols, the firm of Smith & Sherman continuing in business ever since. In early life he entered the Seventy-fourth Regiment as a private and rose to the rank of captain. He was prominent in politics, and had been a member of the Buffalo board of fire commissioners.

..On June 1 Deputy Sheriff Gilligan, of New York, secured an attachment against Whiting Brothers, corporation, manufacturers of wall paper at Mamaroneck, N. Y., for $17,500, in favor of Llewellyn M. Bickford, on an assigned claim from the Otis Falls Pulp Company, of Maine, for balance due for materials and on fifteen notes of the first-named corporation. The attachment was obtained on the ground that it is a New Jersey corporation and it was served on a wall paper dealer here to attach an account. Whiting Brothers was incorporated on March 10, 1897, with an authorized capital stock of $100,000, and purchased the premises formerly occupied by the Consolidated Wall Paper Company, of which Walter B. Whiting was superintendent. He became president of Whiting Brothers and Holland S. Whiting was treasurer.

..In the United States Circuit Court of Philadelphia a bill of equity was filed by Horatio G. Craig and others, trading as H. G. Craig & Co., and John Waldron against the Delaware Wall Paper Mills and A. B. Davis. The bill sets forth that the paper company is indebted to H. G. Craig & Co. in the sum of $3,961 and to John Waldron to the amount of $6,555, and that judgments were entered at Wilmington for each of the debts. The bill further alleges that A. B. Davis, the president of the company, which is insolvent, shipped a large quantity of paper belonging to the firm to Philadelphia in his own name and obtained warehouse receipts from parties in whose possession the paper now is. Two foreign attachments are alleged to have been issued against the paper by other creditors. The bill asks that answers be made to its allegations, that a receiver be appointed and that A. B. Davis be enjoined from converting the paper to his own use. An accounting is also asked for.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1898.

To Buyers of Upholstery Goods :

You'll find our "Ads." to be the smallest part of our business. We lay more stress on our reputation as successful manufacturers. A FEW SOLID FACTS, if read and digested by thinking buyers, are worth pages of talk.

The well-merited popularity of our goods has not been established because WE SAY SO. We haven't been running our mills uninterruptedly ever since the beginning of our business, nor have we been compelled to build an additional mill because we devote a certain amount of space to self-approbation in the trade journals.

It naturally follows that commodities strictly up-to-date and not infrequently in advance (as in our case) find a ready market. Success is not the result of mere chance or accident. The constant bettering of a product long known as the best of its kind has made us what we are to-day :—

MODERN UPHOLSTERIES.

It is evident that buyers are becoming more convinced every season that it does not pay to purchase foreign made Upholstery and Drapery Fabrics when they can buy American made goods of equal quality and superior styles at considerably less money. That our productions for the will substantiate the correctness of this assertion we leave to the judgment of the Trade and invite the most careful comparison between them and imported fabrics.

One eminent and popular house that has tried all makes announces them to be

"The Best Window Hollands Made."

Another equally large Importer of great experience states:

"The goods have always been and are now fast colors."

Another firm in the very front rank of the business describes them as

"Unequalled in quality, unshrinkable and of finest dyes."

While another firm of Importers, probably one of the largest shade goods houses in the world, characterizes them in these terms

"JOHN KING & SON'S Famous Scotch Hollands."

JOHN KING & SON'S

ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR 1775

Celebrated

Scotch Window

HOLLANDS

ILLUSTRATING the high consideration these popular goods hold in the estimation of the most experienced importers of shade goods in the country, the attention of the trade is invited to the above opinions, published in the columns of this and other journals, over the signatures of the respective firms.

Enterprising but unscrupulous parties unable to reach the exalted standard of these celebrated goods, pay them the flattery of imitating the wrappings. It is the Goods, not the wrappings, the trade is after. See that Bands, Tickets and Tabs of every piece are marked

NORWICH, CONN., U. S. A.

THE SECRET OF WEAR IN RUBBER MATTING

is elasticity—not so much as in rubber bands, but enough to let the matting give when the foot strikes and lessen the blow. Ordinary matting is made of a poor quality of rubber, brittle and stiff. The foot lands heavily, and rapidly wears away the rubber or breaks it off.

In our mats, matting and step-treads we use a tough, elastic rubber, which yields to the foot and saves itself, springing back into shape as soon as the pressure is removed. Two grades: Spider—excellent quality and a good wearer: Double Diamond—superior quality and an exceptional wearer. Call or write.

THE above cut illustrates our new way of carpeting stairs. The step and riser can be covered, entirely or only as much as may be desired for fine finished hardwood stairs, as shown in the cut.
